Robbery At Wake

On Friday night, the wake was held for Frank Sedevic, the Beggar's delivery man, who was beaten to death last Monday in Markham.

As if the sorrow of Sedevic's death wasn't enough for the family to endure, an unidentified woman posed as an acquaintance of Sedevic and stuffed her purse with several envelopes containing over $200 of condolence money intended for the family. Sedevic's mother-in-law was the one who first noticed the woman's suspicious activity. Sedevic's nephew, a Chicago Police Officer, was alerted. He examined her purse and then detained her until Oak Lawn police arrived.

Halloween Safety Tips

Halloween is a time of great fun for children, but it can be a little scary for parents and drivers. Children are often out after dark, crossing busy streets and perhaps going to unfamiliar homes.

By following some simple advice, parents, children, drivers and homeowners can all have a safe, enjoyable time:

This year Halloween falls on a school day, which means trick-or-treating is more likely to take place at dusk or later. If children are out at night, drivers need to be particularly careful at dusk and when driving either over a hill or around a curve, where visibility is limited. Use high beams to see and be seen.

Trick-or-treaters should always be accompanied by an adult or travel in a group. Children should be told not to eat any unwrapped candy or treats until they return home where their parents can see them. Making sure kids have already eaten before heading out may help.

Parents should incorporate reflective tape in costumes or add bright colors to increase visibility. Make-up rather than masks should be worn to help ensure that children have an unobstructed view of their surroundings.

Trick-or-treaters may be caught up in the excitement of the day and not be as careful as they should. They should always cross at corners and look both ways before crossing. Drivers need to keep a careful eye on the road and on the sidewalk, in case anyone darts out from between parked cars.

Children should stay on the sidewalk or if none is available, walk facing the lane of traffic, and they should carry a flashlight.

Homeowners should clear their yards of anything that can be tripped over and be sure to have a front door or walkway light on, and refrain from decorations that use an open flame that could ignite a child's costume.

A free brochure with more advice, "Halloween Safety Tips," is available by calling 1-800-2TEACHERS or visiting its website at www.teachers.com.

Program On White- Tailed Deer

"The Largest Mammal in Illinois," a free, family program for persons at least 12 years of age, will be Saturday, Nov. 12, 7:30 p.m. at Plum Creek Nature Center, in Beecher. Registration for this Forest Preserve District of Will County program is required by Nov. 11.

When pioneers first reached the Illinois country, they encountered a number of large mammals. Today, only one mammal can claim the title of largest mammal in Illinois, the white-tailed deer. Its numbers have increased today to controversial proportions because the deer has virtually no wild predators. What is it about this creature that makes many people want to protect and attract it to their backyards? Come and take a look at the history, legends, and behavior of this conflict-ridden animal.

Plum Creek Nature Center is located 1.25 miles east of the intersection of Routes 1 and 394 on Goodenow Road, south of Crete.

For information and registration, call (815) 727-8700, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Village Board Of Trustees Once Again Table

Target Project

At the Oak Lawn Village board meeting, Tuesday, Oct. 25th, Mayor Heilmann announced that Target representatives have finally agreed to meet with the board at the special board meeting held at 6 p.m. on Oct. 25th. The meeting time was moved up so that fans could watch the White Sox play. The ordinance establishing a special service area-the municipal parking lot/Target was again tabled. Mayor Heilmann and the board have agreed not to take action on this ordinance until a meeting with Target representatives has been held.

Trustee Olejniczak requested that police increase patrols in school zones, particularly during the times when the children are going to school or returning home from school. He is concerned about the speeding in the school zones. Trustee Joy concurred.

Residents of the village again expressed concerns over the availability of pornography in the village. Residents have requested that the library discontinue their subscription to Playboy. Oak Lawn resident, Ron Kapp questioned the letter sent by Chief Smith, directed by the mayor, to village businesses who sell such magazines. The letter was sent on police department stationary. Kapp questioned whether this could be considered coercion or intimidation. Kapp also questioned the possibility of treading on First Amendment rights.

All Trick or Treating in Oak Lawn will cease at 8 p.m.

The next regularly scheduled meeting will be held on Nov. 8th.

Lithuanian Women's Club Lunch

On Sunday, Nov. 6th, the Chicago Lithuanian Women's Club will host its annual luncheon at the Garden Chalet, 110th & Ridgeland, to benefit its Philanthropic Fund. A program of tuneful tapping will be presented by the energetic revue of young hearted tap dancers, the "Time Steppers." These happy hoofers, directed by Dorothy Shaw, perform at major musical events in the Midwest.

Doors open at 12:30 p.m. Reservations at $23 per person are available through Irene Norhut at (708) 974-2946.

The next "Nature Works Café," sponsored by the Forest Preserve District of Will County, will be held on Thursday, Nov. 10, 7 p.m. at Plum Creek Nature Center, in Beecher.

Citizens Against Government Waste Issues Report On Real ID

Citizens Against Government Waste (CAGW) recently released Real ID: Big Brother Could Cost Big Money, a report detailing the substantial costs and privacy risks that could be posed by federal standards for state-issued drivers' licenses. The Dept. of Homeland Security (DHS) will hold a meeting with state officials to discuss options for implementing the Real ID Act. One mandate being considered is an embedded computer chip with the capacity for carrying detailed personal information, which would cost $17.4 billion and could push the cost of a driver's license from $10-$25 to at least $90.

"With the high price of gasoline and massive costs of hurricane recovery already burdening Americans, federal agencies should not be saddling drivers and taxpayers with billions of dollars in unnecessary expenses," CAGW President Tom Schatz said.

Buried in an $82 billion military spending bill and passed without any congressional debate in May 2005, the Real ID Act was touted as anti-terrorist and immigration reform bill. However, most states were already making secure cards at a reasonable cost and improving application procedures. While states are not technically forced to accept federal standards, the refusal of any state to comply would affect its citizens' ability to get a job, receive Social Security benefits, or fly on a commercial plane.

"Real ID was not subject to a full debate. But since it is the law, it falls on the Dept. of Homeland Security to issue regulations that do not lead to tax increases or invade citizens' privacy," Schatz continued.

Two main forms of protection are being considered: Magnetic stripes or two-dimensional (2-D) barcodes; and contact-less integrated circuits such as radio frequency identification (RFID) chips. Currently, 49 states use either magnetic stripes or 2-D technology on driver's licenses and have had minimal identity theft problems. If the government opts to require RFID chips, more than 196 million U.S. drivers will be forced to carry a license that has the memory to store every detail about the person, including health records, family history, bank and credit card transactions. Another pitfall is that information on RFID chips can be remotely accessed by unauthorized persons. Finally, the cost of a driver's license could rise by 260-800 percent, from $10-$25 to at least $90, a heavy burden on low-income taxpayers and many senior citizens.

"The idea of turning licenses into 'smartcards' is far from brilliant. RFID chips would force some states to shelve millions of dollars of investment into their own security solutions and start from scratch. With the government's long history of technological ineptitude, RFID chips could make citizens more vulnerable to identity theft and government snooping. If the chips fall where they should, they will not be included in any American's ID card," Schatz concluded.

Real ID: Big Brother Could Cost Big Money, written by CAGW Research Associate Angela French, is available at www.cagw.org.

Trees Ready To Bring Holiday Cheer

Begin your holiday season at Brookfield Zoo's Community Tree Trim on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 19th and 20th. Tree trim participants will decorate balsam fir trees that will line the zoo's malls, bringing holiday cheer to visitors who attend the 24th annual Holiday Magic. The festival, which features carolers and other live entertainment, "Sing to the Animals," ice sculpting demonstrations, visits with Santa (through Dec. 18th) and photo opportunities with a reindeer, takes place on Dec. 10th and 11th, 17th and 18th, and Dec. 26th through Jan. 1st from 4 to 9 p.m.

Organizations such as schools, scouts, libraries, churches, retirement communities and clubs may reserve a tree to decorate during the Community Tree Trim. The cost is $125 ($150 if reservations are made after Oct. 21st). The 6-foot trees are perfect for holding handmade ornaments like decorated Popsicle sticks, Styrofoam balls, and any other creative decorations, excluding food items, straw or sharp objects, which are not recommended. The zoo suggests the use of 200 ornaments no smaller than 3 inches by 3 inches and no larger than 4 inches by 6 inches. Lights will be provided and strung by Brookfield Zoo staff. For more ornament recommendations and restrictions, visit the zoo's Web site at www.BrookfieldZoo.org.

A sign will be displayed in front of each tree acknowledging the organization along with its town, city or village name, as well as who donated the tree. Each group receives 20 general admission and five parking passes (additional passes may be purchased). For those interested, commemorative Community Tree Trim patches may be purchased for $4 each. Trees may be ordered online through Brookfield Zoo's Web site or by calling (708) 485-0263, ext. 365.

Corporations may purchase 10-foot trees for $500 that will advertise their name and logo to visitors while prominently displayed around the zoo's Roosevelt Fountain from Nov. 19th through Jan. 2nd. Participating in the Corporate Tree Trim is a great and unique way to publicize your company while inviting employees to join in on holiday fun. With a tree purchase, each corporation will receive 20 admission passes and five parking passes (additional passes may be purchased). For more information on the Corporate Tree Trim, visit Brookfield Zoo's Web site or call the number listed above.

To purchase advance tickets to the zoo, including the Zooper discount pass, go to www.BrookfieldZoo.org.

Madigan Appoints Statewide Coordinator For Sexual Assault Nurse Examiners

Attorney General Lisa Madigan announced the appointment of a Statewide Coordinator for Sexual Assault Nurse Examiners (SANEs) within her office to organize training programs across the state, encourage certification of Illinois nurses and increase the number of Sexual Assault Response Teams in Illinois.

Madigan has appointed Julie Garner-Teno to fill the newly created position, which will be based in Springfield. Garner-Teno, a registered nurse and member of the International Assn. of Forensic Nurses, advocated on behalf of sexual assault survivors and coordinated staff and community education programs during her more than 10 years of employment at Jacksonville's Passavant Arca Hospital. In addition, Garner-Teno works as a professional educator with the Illinois Coalition Against Sexual Assault to train rape victim advocates about the role of a SANE nurse and has worked with Prairie Center Against Sexual Assault in Springfield.

The SANE coordinator's salary is funded by a one-year grant from the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority. The grant also will be used to cover the cost of three weeklong SANE training courses to be organized by the SANE coordinator and held during the next year at locations across the state. The 40-hour SANE training courses will include sessions on evidence collection and exam techniques, Illinois law and patient counseling. Madigan said she hopes to train an additional 100 SANEs in the next year.

Sexual Assault Nurse Examiners are specially trained in collecting and handling evidence for use by law enforcement and admission in court. SANEs are trained to ask specific questions that will help gather information about the crime and to provide initial counseling services for victims. In addition, SANEs often serve as expert witnesses during sexual assault trials.

Madigan's office already has actively participated in several successful SANE training sessions. However, in the past, the SANE training sessions have been sporadic and no single agency has been in charge of program coordination. Madigan's newly appointed SANE coordinator will serve as the statewide leader and maintain contact with certified nurses to encourage completion of the program and assist in networking and information sharing. The SANE coordinator will work closely with the Illinois Coalition Against Sexual Assault, Illinois State Police Crime Lab and existing programs to achieve these goals.

According to the Illinois State Police, approximately 6,000 women reported being raped in Illinois in 2000. In an ongoing effort to assist victims of crime, Madigan's Crime Victim Services Division currently oversees numerous programs for victims of sexual assault and violent crime.

Madigan's office continues to work with county circuit court clerks across the state to continue to increase implementation of the Illinois Automated Victim Notification System (ILAVN), which allows victims of crime to access up-to-date information on an offender's custody or case status. Madigan's office is working to expand the ILAVN program to include an online component that will provide vital information to victims of crime through the Internet. In addition, Madigan's office offers an online Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Services Directory at www.IllinoisAttorneyGeneral.gov/dvsa.

Woodwork Refinishing Seminars

Helping bungalow owners understand the intricacies of restoring woodwork in their homes, the Historic Chicago Bungalow Assn. announces "Refinishing Woodwork" instructional seminars, the final seminars of the 2005 season.

A woodwork restoration seminar will take place on Tuesday, Nov. 1st at the Woodson Regional Library, 9525 S. Halsted St. The seminar is free of charge and begins at 7 p.m. It will last approximately 90 minutes and reservations are required.

Learn about the techniques used to restore the woodwork in your bungalow from an expert. Gary Dulock is a surface restoration specialist with over 31 years of experience in architectural and artistic restoration. His company, Touches of Illusion, has worked on churches, theaters and historic homes throughout Illinois, including many Chicago bungalows. Gary specializes in wood restoration and restoration of historic decorative finishes.

The Historic Chicago Bungalow Initiative was happy to celebrate its 5th Anniversary in September and was established by Mayor Richard M. Daley to provide a resource for the maintenance and restoration of these historic landmarks. Comprising nearly one-third of the city's single-family homes, there are approximately 80,000 bungalows in Chicago.

The Historic Chicago Bungalow is a 1½-story single-family brick home found in many neighborhoods along the city's northwest, southwest and south sides aptly named the Bungalow Belt. It is essential that Chicagoans know how to preserve their historic bungalows, built more than 75 years ago, and modernize them for today's lifestyles and energy needs. The Bungalow Initiative ensures that these proud owners have the tools and resources necessary to restore their historic homes.

The HCBA's seminar series were created to continue the tradition of restoring the past while preparing the homes for the future. The HCBA's seminar series will return in March 2006.

If you have any questions or want to reserve a space at the seminar, call the HCBA at (312) 642-9900 or send an email to bungalow@chicagobungalow.org.

Seven Tips To Slash Soaring Home Heating Bills

Hurricanes Katrina and Rita will hit homeowners everywhere in the wallet this winter. The storms have caused real damage and disruption to the natural gas industry, adding to strains already caused by rising demand. Natural gas prices are now at a record high, and the Dept. of Energy states they will keep going up as the cold weather descends upon us. The "Energy Crisis" is back.

How high will natural gas prices rise? As much as a whopping 71% more this winter compared to last year. This will translate into a $500 to $800 jump in annual home and water heating bills for most homeowners and over $1,000 for many. While you can't control the price of fuel, you can reduce how much you use. Here are seven tips from the Comfort Institute to make your home an energy sipper instead of a gas guzzler.

Have your duct system tested for air leaks. Many assume that windows and doors are the major cause of a home's energy wasting air leaks. But according to recent research by the Dept. of Energy (DOE), gaps, joints and disconnection in the typical home's duct system are much more significant. The DOE states that the typical duct system loses 25 to 40 percent of the energy put out by the central furnace or heat pump. Authorities recommend having a heating contractor test for leaks and then seal them with a brushed-on fiber-reinforced sealant. Duct tape usually dries out and fails. It turns out duct tape is great for many things, but sealing ducts isn't one of them.

Ask your contractor to perform an Infiltrometer "blower door" test. The blower door is a computerized instrument originally invented by the Dept. of Energy. It pinpoints where your home's worst air leaks are, such as duct leaks, and also measures how leaky the overall house is. Most homes have the equivalent of an open window in combined air leaks. Many heating contractors offer an Infiltrometer test as part of a "Whole House Health & Comfort Checkup" that also checks insulation levels and overall duct performance. Ask if they also provide an infra-red camera scan to pinpoint hidden heat leaks.

Close your fireplace damper. Did you remember to close it last time you used the fireplace? Shut it now or waste precious warm air all winter long.

Replace your furnace or heat pump air filter. Most systems need this done every month to ensure safe and efficient operation. Keep forgetting to do it? Ask your contractor for information on an extended surface area whole house air filter that only needs to be replaced once a year. It also does a far better job of keeping your equipment and the air in your home clean.

Have your heating system cleaned and tuned. A pre-season tune-up is a great investment. It reduces the chances of breakdowns on cold winter nights, improves safety, and more than pays for itself through more energy efficient operation. Ensure your contractor also performs a complete carbon monoxide safety check. For a free report: "How to Identify a Good Heating and Cooling Contractor," go to www.comfortinstitute.org.

Install a programmable set-back thermostat. Turn down your thermostat 8 degrees for 8 hours a day and you'll save 8 percent on home heating costs. But you don't have to sacrifice comfort. Ask your heating contractor to install a "programmable thermostat" that will turn the heat back up before you wake up or before you come home. New models are much easier to program.

Consider replacing your old furnace or heat pump. Just like a car, heating and cooling equipment doesn't last forever. Is your system more than 12 years old? It probably wastes 35 cents out of every dollar you pay for fuel. Planning to stay in your home more than a few years? Many authorities recommend replacing it before it fails permanently. A new system is safer, improves comfort, is more dependable and creates less air pollution. New units pay for themselves over time as they only waste eight cents out of every dollar's worth of gas. However, government and utility research has found that over 90% of newly installed high efficiency systems have energy wasting installation mistakes. Do some homework before talking to contractors. Study Reveals "Byrd Amendment" Not Effective Trade Remedy

A long-awaited Government Accountability Office (GAO) study released Monday, Sept. 26th on the effectiveness of the Continued Dumping and Subsidy Offset Act (CDSOA), also known as the "Byrd Amendment," revealed that the subsidy program is not an effective trade remedy for U.S. companies injured by unfair trade. The report, requested by U.S. Rep. Judy Biggert (R-IL-13) and three other members of Congress, also highlighted a lack of accountability over the $1 billion in CDSOA disbursements that have been paid out since 2001.

The GAO report found that nearly half of the $1 billion in CDSOA payments have gone to only five companies, and two-thirds of all payments have gone to only three industries: bearings, candles and steel. And unlike traditional trade remedy laws, which generally provide relief to an entire industry, CDSOA restricts company eligibility for disbursements to a subset of domestic producers.

The report also found that Customs and Border Protections (CBP) does not systematically verify CDSOA claims and thus cannot be sure it appropriately distributes compensation under the act. This leaves room for error and abuse. In fact, the report found several instances of abuse, including the use of disbursements for the personal expenses of company executives.

"When all is said and done, CDSOA is fiscally irresponsible. Very few companies ever benefit from CDSOA, yet we continue to dole out millions of dollars annually," said Biggert. "With a growing budget deficit and long-term effects of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, we just can't afford to forgo adequate oversight and a lack of accountability when so many dollars are involved."

CDSOA was established to compensate domestic producers harmed by foreign products that are dumped on the U.S. market after an anti-dumping (AD) or countervailing (CV) duty has already been assessed. CDSOA instructs Customs to distribute AD/CV duties directly to affected domestic producers. The CDSOA was included in the fiscal year 2001 agricultural appropriations conference report by then conferee Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D-WV). As a result, the CDSOA did not go through the regular legislative process, and the committee of jurisdiction did not have an opportunity to evaluate the implications of the provision.

While U.S. companies and workers injured by unfair trade might need assistance, the GAO's findings make clear that the CDSOA is not the solution.

Judicial Speakers

How do the courts decide a case? What criteria do judges use in accepting guilty pleas and sentencing? How do the courts view domestic violence? What is the process for selecting a new U.S. Supreme Court Justice?

These are among topics that Illinois judges and court personnel are eager to address as part of an ongoing effort to reach out to community groups and schools. The purpose is to help increase awareness and understanding of the U.S. judicial system and the judiciary's role in the community.

Arrangements for a speaker can be made through the Illinois Judicial Speakers Bureau, a collaboration between the Illinois Supreme Court and the Illinois Judges Assn. (IJA), according to Judge James M. Wexsiten of Mt. Vernon, president of the Illinois Judges Assn.

Other topics which judges can discuss are the human element of being a judge, alternatives to formal court procedures (such as Alternative Dispute Resolution), jury service and selection, and individual courts such as traffic courts, small claims courts, criminal courts, juvenile courts and problem-solving courts (such as drug courts and mental health courts). Judges who speak to community groups are bound by the Illinois Code of Judicial Conduct and are unable to address certain matters, such as pending litigation.

All presentations are voluntary by the judges with no cost to the group.

For further information, or to arrange for a speaker, contact the Illinois Judges Assn. at (312) 431-1283 or (888) 431-1283, or visit their Web site at www.ija.org

Chicagoland has not experienced the kind of enthusiasm and electricity being generated presently by its hometown White Sox since 1985. That's right...the Superbowl Champion Chicago Bears were a household name nationally and every team member seemed to be in demand. Well Chicagoland, if you think the '85 Bears lit it up, just watch what will happen if the 2005 Chicago White Sox continue their march to a World Series Championship over the Houston Astros.

This past Saturday and Sunday evening baseball fans everywhere experienced more excitement than most could remember in their lives. The American League Champion White Sox, led by manager Ozzie Guillen, continues to find ways to defeat their post season opponent. Outstanding individual offensive displays by Paul Konerko, Joe Crede, Aaron Rowand, Jermaine Dye, Juan Uribe and Scott Podsednik have produced heart pounding moments. Each time the Astros have produced runs, the White Sox have answered with their own. Huge home runs by Dyc, Crede, Konerko and Podsednik have provided the sparks for the winning margins of 5-3 and 7-6 respectively.

Defensively, the fielding and catching has been up to each challenge, particularly that of third baseman Joe Crede. His flawless glove work has choked-off a half-dozen Astro rallies, at critical points, in both games. The starting pitching has been serviceable. The bullpen has been excellent. And the manager and coaches seem to be on the same wave length as the players...a must during a championship series.

Space does not permit me to extol the fine contributions of each player but it is sufficient to remind readers that this is truly a cohesive team, showing remarkable poise and purpose in their quest of a World Series Championship.

The 2005 Chicago White Sox continues to be a work in progress...a collection of youthful veterans and youngsters who are playing the game the right way...showing the world that their confidence, energy and appreciation to detail are hallmarks that each one of us could plug into our daily lives.

Let's hope that the Sox will successfully complete their mission on the season's final road trip, which began Tuesday (10/25). Go White Sox! Bring Home A World Championship!

U.S. Senator Dick Durbin(D-IL) has introduced bipartisan legislation requiring hospitals to report the prices of the 25 most frequently performed in-patient and out-patient procedures and the 50 most commonly prescribed drugs. The bill, known as the Hospital Price Reporting and Disclosure Act, will provide uninsured Americans with information to protect them against price gouging.

"Being one of the 46 million uninsured Americans is hazardous to your health and to your wallet. Some hospitals charge $120 for a chest x-ray, others more than $1,500 for the same procedure," Durbin said. "Until we find a way to provide every American with health insurance, the least we can do is make sure that they will not be gouged at the hospital."

Durbin also noted that Illinois has been a leader in providing consumers with access to pricing information from hospitals and ambulatory surgery centers. In addition to this year's passage of the Illinois Right-to-Know legislation, Illinois has a law requiring hospitals to report in-patient procedure prices and quality data.

The Hospital Price Reporting and Disclosure Act is accompanied by a companion bill which has been introduced in the House by U.S. Representatives Dan Lipinski (D-IL) and Bob Inglis (R-SC).

Honoring her efforts to ensure honest and open government through the free exchange of information between the government and its citizens, the Society of Professional Journalists has awarded Attorney General Lisa Madigan with its 2005 National Sunshine Award.

Attorney General Madigan was nominated for the award by the Chicago Chapter of the Society for Professional Journalists. Her nomination was due, in part, to her creation of the first-ever Public Access Counselor position within the Public Access and Opinions Division of the Illinois Attorney General's office in December, 2004. The new position was created to enhance understanding of and compliance with the state's sunshine laws, such as the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) and Open Meetings Act (OMA).

In the 10 months since her appointment, Public Access Counselor Terry Mutchler and the lawyers in the Public Access and Opinions Division have handled over 800 open government cases. An overwhelming majority of the telephone calls and written inquiries have come from Illinois citizens. In addition, more than 40 trainings have been conducted across the state in the past 10 months.

On Wednesday, Nov. 2nd, the Palos Township Regular Democratic Organization will hold its annual Dinner Dance at the Lexington House in Hickory Hills. Cocktails will begin at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are priced at $50 per person, which includes dinner, drinks and entertainment. There will also be a grand raffle, including several prizes and gifts.

This year's dinner theme is Committeeman Sam Simone's "Italian Fiesta." Mr. Simone, who is seeking reelection as the Democratic Committeeman in Palos Township, will be recognizing the many dignitaries and elected officials present that evening. For more information or ticket reservations contact Jane Nolan at (708) 598-2359 or (708) 912-8729.

Worth Township Democratic Committeeman Dennis Magee has announced that his organization's "Annual Cocktail Reception" will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 8th at 115 Bourbon Street, located in Merrionette Park from 7 to 10 p.m. Tickets are $50 per person. Contributions of $100 or more will qualify an individual for membership in the Committeeman's Club and will include admission for two to the Cocktail Reception.

According to Committeeman Magee, who is completing his third year at the helm of the Worth Township Democratic Organization, "our organization continues to grow and succeed in its mission of turning out the vote for democratic candidates on all levels."

For more information or tickets call (708) 422-9423.

The Gorman Good Government Group and Friends will host a reception honoring Cook County Commissioner Elizabeth "Liz" Doody Gorman on Thursday, Nov. 10th, from 7 to 10 p.m. at Sam McGuire's, 39 Orland Square Drive, Orland Park. Tickets are $50 per person and sponsorships are still available. For more information, call Kelly at (708) 772-5199 or visit their website at www.lizgorman.com/campaign.

Gov. Blagojevich's All Kids Plan

Thousands of Illinoisans came together on Oct. 23rd in Chicago for a rally in support of Gov. Blagojevich's All Kids plan to provide comprehensive health coverage for every uninsured child in the state. They were joined by members of Illinois' Congressional delegation, state legislators, union leaders, community advocates and concerned families who urged the Illinois General Assembly to pass the All Kids proposal during the fall veto session, which began on Tuesday, Oct. 25th.

The All Kids rally culminated more than two weeks of outreach and mounting support. Since the governor announced his All Kids plan on Oct. 6th, more than 400 organizations from around the state have signed on in support of the proposal, including groups representing hospitals, doctors, nurses, educators, labor, child advocates and clergy.

In Illinois, 253,000 children are without health insurance. More than half of Illinois' uninsured children come from working and middle class families who earn too much to qualify for programs like KidCare, but not enough to afford private health insurance. All Kids would make comprehensive health insurance available to children, with parents paying monthly premiums and co-payments for doctors' visits and prescription drugs at affordable rates.

Several parents who currently cannot afford private health insurance for their children joined the rally to push for passage of the All Kids plan.

The governor's All Kids program would offer children access to comprehensive health care, including doctors' visits, hospital stays, prescription drugs, vision care, dental care and medical devices like eyeglasses and asthma inhalers.

Over the past two and a half years, the Blagojevich Administration has worked to expand health coverage for low-income, working parents and their children. Since January of 2003, 170,000 more children in Illinois received health insurance, and Illinois is now ranked as the second best state in the nation by the Kaiser Family Foundation for providing health care to children who need it. (Illinois is also now the top ranked state in the nation for providing health care to adults who need it.)

Despite these gains, there are still uninsured children in every corner of the state. Based on adjusted 2003 Census data, approximately 253,000 children in Illinois do not have health insurance. Twelve percent of children in Cook County, the state's most populated county, are uninsured. In Pulaski County at the southern tip of Illinois, nearly 15% of children lack health coverage. In St. Clair County, 9.3% of children do not have health insurance. In Sangamon County, home to Illinois' capitol, 8.6% of kids are not insured. Even in suburban DuPage County, one of the 25 wealthiest counties in the United States, 7.2% of children have no health insurance.

More information about All Kids is available online at www.allkidscovered.com.

Fast Growing Kudzu Making Inroads In Illinois

To all Illinois residents: Be on the lookout for kudzu. This high-climbing, fast-growing weed, which is illegal to buy, grow and plant in Illinois, smothers existing vegetation and has been spotted in more than 30 Illinois counties.

"Many people are not aware that kudzu has been found in Illinois," said George Czapar, an extension educator at the Springfield Extension Center of the University of Illinois. In collaboration with the Illinois Department of Natural Resources, Czapar is monitoring kudzu in Illinois and is part of an effort to slow the spread of the creeping vine.

Kudzu (Pueraria montana var. lobata) is sometimes confused with wild grape, another climbing vine that is widespread in Illinois. Although several species of wild grapes are commonly found in Illinois, they do not spread as aggressively, Czapar said. Kudzu is distinguished from wild grape by its trifoliate leaves, like on soybeans; whereas wild grapes have single leaves alternately attached to the stem.

Kudzu can grow a foot a day, and a single crown may send 30 vines in different directions, Czapar said. Vines can extend 98 feet, and mature vines can be four inches thick, according to the Southeast Exotic Pest Plant Council.

Kudzu was introduced from China and Japan, coming to the United States during the 1876 Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia as part of a Japanese garden exhibit.

In the 1930s, kudzu was touted for its ability to stabilize eroding land and as a food source for cows, Czapar said. The U.S. government promoted what it called the "wonderplant," leading to 2.47 million acres of kudzu-covered U.S. land by 1946, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Now the invasive vine, a relative of soybeans, covers an estimated 7 million acres across southeastern states. In Illinois, kudzu is located mainly along roads.

Halloween Pet Tips

It's all right if you have a scaredy cat at Halloween. Pets can get spooked just like people do.

Dr. Melanie Landis, a veterinarian in the College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences at Texas A&M University, offers some helpful Halloween tips to keep your dog or cat out of harm's way: Keep nervous or aggressive pets confined to one room or a crate if kids are going to be coming by trick or treating; Keep black cats inside for at least a week before and several days after Halloween; Keep pets away from open flames; Keep candies out of reach of your pets; Keep cats that tend to be door darters confined in a closed room;

While treats are a very important part of a Halloween celebration, they can be harmful for Fido and Fluffy. How the treat will affect your pet depends on the size of the animal and the amount of candy that has been eaten, says Landis. "Most candies will just usually cause a mild gastrointestinal upset, like vomiting or diarrhea," she says.

"If the problems are mild, they should subside in 24-48 hours without intervention. Severe gastrointestinal upsets may require a trip to the veterinarian."

Chocolate, a favorite holiday treat, can be dangerous and even fatal for pets. "If a large amount of dark chocolate is ingested, this can be toxic," says Landis. She advises petowners to go to the veterinarian within a few hours of the ingestion if possible.

If you plan on letting Fido or Fluffy join in on the dressing up fun, there are some things you should consider. "If a pet easily accepts a costume, then owners can use them," advises Landis. "Make sure the costume doesn't make the pet too hot and doesn't cover its eyes or nose."

Landis also warns the material used for accenting costumes can sometimes be harmful. "If any paints are used, make sure they are approved for animals, non-toxic if ingested, can easily be washed out of the hair coat, and are not applied near the eyes."

Halloween can be a fun and enjoyable time for both you and your pets if you follow these simple steps. But if you're nervous about Fido's reaction to the hustle and bustle of the holiday season, Landis says "most pets don't seem too bothered by it."

"Keeping pets confined and inside will help ease your pet through this spooky time," she adds.

Schizophrenic Anonymous

Schizophrenics Anonymous (S.A.) group holds regular meetings at Thresholds South Suburbs, 12145 S. Western Ave. in Blue Island, in the conference room from 3 to 4 p.m. every Thursday.

The self-help support group welcomes all those who have the brain disorder Schizophrenia and Schizo-affective disorder, or related disorders, to join with them for the weekly, hour-long sessions. In such a group setting, those attending can openly discuss their life experiences with others who understand because they too live with an illness.

There are no fees. To learn more about S.A. or the group meeting, call Sharon at (708) 239-0564.

"It blocks the sunlight and smothers native plants," Czapar said. No natural enemies or predators of kudzu are common in Illinois, which is typical of an introduced, invasive species, he said.

Southeast Illinois has 90 percent of the Illinois kudzu and the greatest kudzu problem compared with the rest of the state, said Jody Shimp, regional administrator at the Illinois Department of Natural Resources.

The northernmost reported patch of kudzu in Illinois is in Evanston, where there is about an acre of kudzu near the Chicago Transit Authority railroad, Shimp said.

Illinois researchers have found that kudzu survives Illinois winters and has excellent germination - characteristics previously assumed to be untrue, Czapar said.

The U.I. Extension Center and the Illinois Department of Natural Resources are working together to manage kudzu in Illinois. The Illinois Department of Natural Resources uses both herbicides and mowing to destroy patches of kudzu, Shimp said.

"Because its root system can descend 12 feet into the soil and weight 300 pounds, controlling kudzu requires a combination of management practices rather than simply pulling out the weed," Czapar said.

Documentary On Emmett Till Murder

Dominican University will present director Keith Beauchamp in a discussion and screening of his film The Untold Story of Emmett Louis Till on Thursday, Nov. 17th at 6 p.m. in the auditorium of the Priory Campus, 7200 W. Division St.

Beauchamp's documentary records his nine-year investigation of the 1955 lynching of Emmett Till, a 14-year-old black boy from Chicago who was kidnapped and murdered after allegedly whistling at a white woman while visiting relatives in Mississippi. The film, a mix of archival footage and interviews with surviving witnesses, has been credited with influencing the U.S. Dept. of Justice to reopen the case late last year.

The case stunned the country 50 years ago not only because of the brutality of the murder and the haste with which an all-white jury acquitted the two white men accused of the crime but, most importantly, because of Till's indomitable mother's decision to publicly display his battered body. Thousands of people filed past the open casket during Till's Chicago funeral and photographs of the body in Jet magazine galvanized the civil rights movement.

Beauchamp will describe how his decades-long investigation led him to believe that many more people were involved in Till's murder than the two men acquitted of the crime, both of whom boasted of the crime after their acquittal. He interviewed relatives of Till's who either saw or heard several cars pulling up to Till's great-uncle's home the night of the kidnapping. He also read stories in the African-American press that named additional suspects, not all of whom were white.

For more information about the screening of The Untold Story of Emmett Louis Till, contact Janice Monti, professor of sociology and criminology, at (708) 524-6771.

Celebrate The Fall Season

If you are looking for some extra color and fragrance in your life, indulge your senses at Garfield Park Conservatory at 300 N. Central Park Avenue and at Lincoln Park Conservatory at 2391 N. Stockton Drive in Chicago.

It's still not too late to celebrate the fall season with Garfield Park's Outdoor Autumn Garden Show, which will be running free of charge through Nov. 6th. Daily hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. ('til 8 p.m. on Thursday). Fall blooming flowers, including hundreds of asters and mums in every shade and style, come together to create a full hued rainbow in the Conservatory's Sensory Garden.

As we move closer to the season to be jolly, from Nov. 25th through January 8th, you can celebrate the holidays at Garfield Park. The Holiday Show features more than 1,000 poinsettias. Along with Christmas trees, plants such as Jerusalem Cherry, Christmas peppers, plumbago and begonias will be featured. Same hours as above apply with free admission and free parking.

Further north, at the Lincoln Park Conservatory, the Chrysanthemum Show is currently running until Nov. 27th. Daily hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is free. Thousands of the "Queen of Fall" flowers in a rainbow of hues and styles fill the conservatory show house in a traditional Chrysanthemum display.

From Dec. 10th through Jan. 8th Lincoln Park Conservatory will conduct its free Winter Flower and Train Show. Several model trains, including an old-fashioned steam engine, freight train and trolley, wind their way through a miniature village set in a field of vibrant red, delicate white and soft pink poinsettias. The village, comprised entirely of natural materials including willow, spruce and birch woods, features a variety of Chicago style homes and famous buildings such as the neighborhood bungalow, Chicago Theatre and Chicago Water Tower Place.

Observe Paderewski's Birthday

The Polish Museum of America, in conjunction with the newly formed Paderewski Assn., have organized a tribute in honor of the 145th anniversary of the birthday of the remarkable Polish artist, composer and statesman, Ignacy Jan Paderewski. Paderewski's personality truly combined the best features of artist and diplomat. He was a remarkable talent and intellect who devoted his life to deep-rooted feelings of Polish patriotism. An inaugural reception will be held on Saturday, Nov. 12th from 6 to 9:30 p.m. in the Great Hall of The Polish Museum of America. This affair is the first of a series of planned annual events leading up to the grand celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Maestro's birthday in 2010.

Champagne "Bravo" Brunch

The Illinois Philharmonic Orchestra will host a Champagne Bravo Brunch and Concert with jazz legend and international recording artist Freddy Cole (Nat "King" Cole's brother) on Sunday, Nov. 6th at Olympia Fields Country Club in Olympia Fields. The brunch begins at 11 a.m.

Cole doesn't apologize for sounding like his brother, Nat "King" Cole. There are certain unmistakable similarities. He plays piano and sings and performs live with guitar and upright bass, just like Nat. Yet his voice is raspier, smokier, jazzier even. But he has emerged from the awesome shadow cast by his elder brother. In truth, his phrasing is far closer to that of Frank Sinatra or Billie Holiday than that of his brother and his timing swings a little more. His vocals - suave, elegant, formidable and articulate - are among the most respected in jazz. Cole's career continues to ascend as he has moved into the front ranks of America's homegrown art form with a style and musical sophistication all his own. Cole's most recent album was released in May 2005, titled "This Love of Mine."

The event features an Honorary Committee of individuals who have been integral to the Illinois Philharmonic Orchestra's growth over the last 28 years. "The Honorary Committee is a very unique group of people who believe in the Illinois Philharmonic Orchestra, and who have made significant contributions to the IPO over the years."

The Champagne Brunch begins at 11 a.m., and a special presentation will be provided by Audrey Baird, an award-winning arts and symphony advocate. The Jazz Concert with Freddy Cole begins at 1:30 p.m. Advance reservations are $60 per person, and are available by calling Jennifer at the Illinois Philharmonic, (708) 481-7774.

The performances will be at the Palos Park Recreation center, 8901 W. 123rd St. The show is actually three one-act musicals that all deal with the theme of temptation and it opens with a scene in the Garden of Eden. The music and lyrics were written by the same Broadway team that gave us Fiddler on the Roof.

Kathryn Cargill of Palos Heights is cast in the role of the snake/temptation in all three acts. Other leading roles are portrayed by David Bell of Justice, Carrie McGrail of Hometown, Dave Groebel of Lemont, Kathryn Pollack of Oak Lawn, Kristina Caputo of Chicago Ridge, and Mark Rice of Orland Park. Chevy Vettefest Accelerates Into Chicago

The pedal's to the metal for Chevy Vettefest – the world's largest indoor Chevy and Corvette show, swap meet and car sale – to peel into Chicago's McCormick Place North, Nov. 5 and 6. Enthusiasts will find everything-Chevrolet, from antiques to futuristic prototypes, and every super-charged dream car in between.

The "Gold Spinner Concourse" will feature the country's finest and fastest original and restored Chevys. "Bow Tie Boulevard" showcases custom street and stock cars, and the Corvette-filled "Triple Crown" pays tribute to America's favorite sports car, from Route 66 classics to the heart-pounding 206.

Author Noland Adams, probably the world's premiere authority on restoring early Corvettes, will be on hand throughout the two-day show to greet fans, autograph books and posters, and conduct a Saturday seminar. Adams will be displaying his own restored 1953 Corvette, one of the first Corvettes ever built and the exact car portrayed on the U.S. Postal Service "Sporty Car" series stamp introduced earlier this year.

Special exhibits planned for this Chevy Vettefest include a tribute to the "396 Chevy's of 1965." Among the cars featured will be three Z16 Chevelles – a rare model that most enthusiasts would be surprised to see once, much less three times, at any show – along with several 396/425 Corvettes, and more than a dozen rare Big Block Chevys.

There will also be a blow-your-socks-off display of "Super Car Drag Cars," sponsored by the Yenka Sports Car Club. Star cars will include the 1968 Gibb/Harrell Nova, the 1969 Berger/Arons "Grumpy's Toy VIII" Camaro Pro Stocker and several original COPO cars.

In the automotive swap meet, serious restorers and weekend dabblers alike will find more Chevy and Corvette parts and peripherals than anywhere else under a single roof – everything from N.O.S. (new old stock) parts to the latest reproduction items, bumper-to-bumper parts, automotive restoration services and apparel.

The all-Corvette and Chevrolet car and truck sale allows buyers to deal directly with sellers, without commission fees.

Chevy Vettefest will be open to the public, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, at McCormick Place North, 2301 S. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago. Tickets are $14 per person, with children under age 12 admitted free. Tickets are available at the door. For additional information, call (708) 563-4300 or log on to chevyvettefest.net.

EVERGREEN LAKE, A JEWEL ONLY TWO HOURS AWAY: For the past few years I've been hearing about Evergreen Lake. Then the July issue of Outdoor Illinois, published by the Illinois Department of Natural Resources, featured the lake with comments like: "A quiet lake in central Illinois producing some monster fish - one state record to date and the potential for many more."

"In 2001, a 9.68-pound saugeyc (a hybrid cross between a female walleye and a male sauger) was caught on Bloomington's Evergreen Lake and surveys conducted by the IDNR biologists showed saugeyes weighing in at more than 11 pounds - and muskies within 5 pounds of the current state record."

The lake has been stocked with muskies since 1990, and in 1998 and 1999 the Illini Muskie Alliance and the South Side Muskie Hawks stocked the lake with 17-inch and 20-inch muskies.

The month of October is my favorite time of the year to chase the fish "of a thousand casts." Jim Grady, Orland Park, and I picked a date to fish Evergreen. Unfortunately, it was the day after that severe cold front, a 35-degree drop in temperature over a four-hour period. Everyone knows fishing after a cold-front passage is not the best time to fish, but we felt up to the challenge.

A stop at the Visitors Center produced a topo map of the lake, and a few tips from Park Personnel on the best spots to fish for muskies, saugeyes and crappies. It was cold, with 20-mile-an-hour winds out of the North, making boat-control almost impossible. After our 1000 or so casts, we called it quits, vowing to come back another time.

Evergreen Lake is a beautiful body of water, conveniently located off I-55, just five miles north of Bloomington. Signs to the Lake are misleading, exit I-55 at Lexington, go west past Lake Bloomington to Comlara Park, the location of Evergreen Lake.

This 686-acre lake has depths to 50 feet and 22 miles of interesting shoreline, no homes, plenty of campgrounds, two boat ramps, boat rentals and a 10-horsepower limit.

WAL-MART HELPS CONSERVE 138,000 ACRES: Wal-Mart, the world's largest retailer, recently pledged to spend $35 million compensating for wildlife habitat lost nationwide beneath its corporate "footprint."

Acre for acre, Wal-Mart Stores Inc. said it would buy an amount of land equal to all the land its stores, parking lots and distribution centers use over the next 10 years. That would conserve at least 138,000 acres in the United States as "priority wildlife habitat."

The money would go to the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation, a private nonprofit group created by Congress in 1984 to leverage federal dollars for conservation projects, including 312,000 acres in Maine alone. "We introduced the concept of the offset program to Wal-Mart last year," said Max Chapman Jr., the foundation's chairman. "They were quick to say 'yes,' and Wal-Mart's leadership is raising the bar in conservation."

With a quarter-trillion dollars in annual sales, Wal-Mart employs 1.6 million people at 3,600 U.S. stores and 1,570 stores internationally. The foundation plans to raise $35 million to match the Wal-Mart money.

SHIMANO WINS BEST OF SHOW AWARD: Las Vegas, NV. - The Shimano Torsa Reels won the Overall Best of Show Award, and the Best of Show for the Reel Category in the ICAST 2005 New Product Showcase awards competition. The company also took top honors for the new Trevala Jigging Rods in the Rod category.

This year's New Product Showcase winners also include three first-time ICAST exhibitors: DriDuds, Spinmaster and FisherGirl, Inc. Shimano won Best of Show awards in the Reel Category for the fourth year in a row.

Sponsored by Fishing Tackle Retailer/ESPN Outdoors, 170 companies entered more than 800 separate tackle products and accessories into the Showcase.

OPERATION BLONDE FAWN YIELDS TWO ARRESTS: Two Cass County residents made their first appearance on felony charges for unlawful selling of white-tail deer. Illinois Department of Natural Resources conservation police officers arrested John E. "Burt" Harris and Carolyn A. "Missy" Harris on Sept. 19th as the result of a short term, undercover investigation. District 10 conservation police officers say they noticed a Cass County game breeder obtaining wild deer and keeping them with his captive-reared deer and possibly selling them. During a covert operation, the Harris' allegedly sold an investigator two white-tail fawns that were taken out of the wild.

TRAPPING BILL VETOED BY GOVERNOR: Illinois sportsmen are urged to contact state lawmakers to override the veto of a pro-trapping bill. House Bill 1486, introduced by Rep. Frank Mautino (D-Spring Valley), would have allowed trapping, benefiting Illinois Sportsmen and the IDNR. Despite the legislature's overwhelming support, Gov. Blagojevich vetoed the measure.

Asian Carp Prevention And Control Act

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich sent a letter to Illinois Congressional Delegation recently urging them to support a resolution that bans Asian carp - an invasive species that threatens the Great Lakes. Currently, fish farmers in southern states, such as Arkansas and Mississippi, import the Asian carp to eat parasites that threaten their catfish. However, some of these carp have escaped fish farms in the Mississippi River and are making their way north through the Illinois river system to the Great Lakes, where they will destroy the lakes' ecosystems. House Resolution 3049, the Asian Carp Prevention and Control Act, would make it illegal for states to import Asian carp.

"Illinois fishermen tell tales of forty-pound fish leaping into their boats. They're not fish stories, they're facts of the invasion of Asian carp, already infesting some Illinois waterways. We need to do everything we can to protect the Great Lakes from this invasive species," said Gov. Blagojevich.

Asian carp pose a threat to native fish and aquatic ecosystems because they consume much of the food chain. They eat aquatic plants, compete for plankton with native fish, and eat snails and clams. Black carp can live to at least age 15 and grow to more than 5 feet and 150 pounds. They reach maturity at 6 to 11 years of age and then reproduce annually.

Fly Tying Workshop

An "Introduction to Fly Tying" workshop, a multi-session workshop sponsored by the Forest Preserve District of Will County, will be on three successive Saturdays in November, on Nov. 5th, 12th and 19th, with each session running from 12 noon to 3 p.m. at Monee Reservoir. For persons 15 years old and up, the workshop requires a fee of $65 per person and registration by Oct. 28th.

This three-day workshop teaches the basic wrapping and layering techniques used for all flies. Orvis of Chicago staff will provide participants with a thorough knowledge of predator-prey relationships and the proper fly to choose at any time or place.

All equipment and supplies are provided. Participants will take home all of the flies they make. Fly tying is a skill that saves anglers money and brings them the ultimate satisfaction of catching fish with flies they made.

Monee Reservoir is located on Ridgeland Ave., west of Route 50 and south of Pauling Rd., 2.0 miles south of Monee.

For information and registration, call (815) 727-8700.

SXU Sports News Players Of The Week

St. Xavier University senior linebacker Rick King (Tinley Park, Andrew) and sophomore kicker Shane Longest (Wilmington) were named the MSFA Midwest League Defensive and Special Teams Players of the Week, respectively, when the honors were released by the conference office on Monday. Both players played instrumental roles in the No. 14 ranked Cougars' 38-31 overtime win over No. 4 St. Ambrose University (Iowa) on Saturday in Chicago.

King led the SXU defense on Saturday with 13 total tackles (10 solos), including a tackle for a loss of three yards. The defense came up big in the overtime period. After St. Xavier had taken a 38-31 lead, St. Ambrose was stopped a yard short of the first down marker on a two-yard reception on a fourth down and three situation.

In a game where every point was essential, Longest played his role perfectly connecting on all five of his extra-point attempts and making a 30-yard field goal in the second quarter of Saturday's win. Longest also booted five kickoffs for a total of 274 yards, including one into the end zone for a touchback.

Pedigo Plays Well

Despite 14 digs, 11 kills and five blocks for junior Paige Pedigo (Chicago Ridge, Queen of Peace), the St. Xavier University volleyball team dropped a non-conference road match to St. Joseph's College (Ind.) in four games (30-25, 27-30, 20-30, 24-30) on Wednesday in Rensselaer, Ind. SXU falls to 15-17 overall this season with the loss.

Junior Jessica Buchmeier (Steger, Bloom Trail) also finished with 11 kills for St. Xavier, while sophomore setter Traci Looby (Orland Hills, Andrew) tallied 30 assists. Sophomore Eileen Carls (Tinley Park, Andrew) turned in 12 digs in Wednesday's match.

Sports Valve

By: Brad Allen

Welcome again to this week's Sports Valve. It's been rainy lately. So, wipe your feet off and step inside the valve.

Professional Sports Valve: Major League Baseball has released its rules revisions for 2006 and it apparently reads as follows:

All existing baseball rules and regulations remain in effect for each Major League franchise currently operating with the exception of the Chicago White Sox.

Sox Clause 1 ... No out recorded against a White Sox hitter shall be binding until said White Sox hitter has had an opportunity to "un-do" the out, i.e. while the opposing team is taking their post-game showers.

Sox Clause 2 ... White Sox hitters shall be allowed to advance safely to First Base on all foul balls.

Proposed Rule Change ... White Sox fielders shall be given an opportunity to "un-do" opposing hitters' home runs via a rundown between home plate and the dugout after the hitter is done circling the bases.

Okay, I got my dig in, but the fact of the matter is this: When opportunity knocks, the White Sox answer. First, the break occurs, then the next guy comes through. Finally, while the other team is still in shock, invariably, Ozzie will have somebody steal a base. The Sox know how to fight! At the time of this column, the Sox appear to be about to open a door that has been shut since World War I.

And their season has been like a successfully conducted war. Their weaponry isn't so high-powered as to render a swift mess-free victory, but they ultimately prevail. Early in the year, Podsednik and Iguchi helped the Sox to preemptory strikes every game and they won prolifically. Afterward, Frank Thomas showed up like the cavalry. In the last month-and-a-half of the season, the team survived a fierce Indian attack that seemed like it would be "Guillen's Last Stand." How fitting that the Sox final shootout should take place in Texas.

Briefly touching base with other pro sports, the Bears certainly impressed me this past Sunday. I picked them to beat the similarly defensive-minded Ravens 3-2. Instead, the game erupted into a "wild" 10-6 affair.

In the meantime, the Blackhawks are still adjusting to the new rule changes, spending most of the game in the penalty box, but there's still plenty of time; and the Bulls are .500 in the pre-season in their attempts to adjust to life without a starting center.

And the much-neglected Chicago Fire, as usual, are in the playoffs. This time, they are battling DC United in a home-and-home aggregate goal series. I had a front row seat at Soldiers Field for their 0-0 opening game tie. Actually, the Fire scored a thrilling game winning goal in the 90th minute of play, but it was waived off due to a foul. If only they had the same brand of officiating that the White Sox enjoy. Now, onto the amateur valve ...

Amateur Valve: Attention Businessmen: Girls basketball is a big deal in the southwest suburbs and one of the bigger events of the year will be held on Dec. 17th - Bremen High School's twelve-team "Pow Wow" basketball tournament. Local businessmen, if you help sponsor the event with a deductible donation of $150, your company name will appear on a Pow-Wow t-shirt worn by students in many southwest suburbs and Chicago. Call Jim Matlon (708) 371-3600, ext. 3234 or e-mail him at jmatlon@bhsd228.com.

As an infant, Chris Allen, one of the key players on Andrew High School's 2005 soccer team, overcame serious medical adversity, including acute renal failure and aspirated maconium. Now, his obstacles are merely bigger, taller and faster opponents - and he is overcoming them as well. Typically, early in games, Chris (or "Teflon" as I like to call him) fakes, side-steps and decks opponents out of their shoes so badly that they give him more and more space as the game progresses. Then, using the added space his finesse game creates for him, he bides his time and waits. And just when the game seems to shift into slow-motion, he makes his move! Usually, it is the right move as evidenced by his recent hat trick against Bradley and the fact that he is now attracting the attention of college recruiters.

Sports Tip Valve: This week's tip is called the "Tree Trick." When I coached, I was a little frustrated when I'd see a player stiffly standing straight up. When the play came his way he wasn't prepared to move forward, backward, left, right, up or down. Some players, never got into the habit of poisoning themselves by bending at the knees and "feeling" the balls of their feet - at least not until I thought of the "Tree Trick."

This trick works best in late Fall and early Spring or whenever there is a scarcity of leaves. You simply order your "statuesque" player to stand under a tree and tell him to look up. Then you lob a pop-up into the air so that the ball descends down through the myriad of tree branches. As the ball repeatedly ricochets back and forth between the branches on its way down, the kid becomes clueless as to where the ball might eventually land. You'd be surprised how he automatically learns how to shift and re-shift his positioning by - you guessed it - keeping his knees bent and feeling the balls of his feet. If only they would have listened to me in the first place. Exit valve.

Moraine Valley Men's Cross Country Aims To Defend Titles

The bar is being raised this year for the Moraine Valley men's cross country team. After earning the team's first Skyway Conference and National Junior College Athletic Assn. Division I Region IV championships in 2004, as well as placing 21st at the national championships, the Cyclones face the daunting task of defending their titles with only three veterans returning.

There is no question the new runners will learn a lot from the veterans. Leading the way is team captain Kevin Deegan (Brother Rice), who last year won the conference individual title as well as being selected as most Valuable Runner and as a member of the all-conference team. He also took the runner-up spot in the regional championship and was named to the all-region team.

Also returning are Eric Schmidt (St. Laurence) and Dave Brynes (Stagg). Schmidt earned all-conference and all-region honors last year and should achieve that success level again. "Eric is one of our top men. He had a very good pre-season and is rounding into shape. He's farther ahead of where he was last year at this time. I'm really counting on him to excel this year," Coach Mark Horstmeyer said, "and I think he's focused on doing just that."

Brynes was a top contributor last year in helping the team win championships and compete at nationals. This year, Horstmeyer believes he's even better. "Dave started devoting himself to improving last spring. He's a lot stronger and more fit than he was last year. He knows what he has to do to be good. He has dedicated himself to dropping his times, and that dedication will really help us," Horstmeyer said.

Nick Kwit (Argo) returns this year after missing most of last season with injuries. "Nick was really in the mix early on last year, and we missed that after he was sidelined. But he's healthy this year, and I expect him to pick up where he left off and to really be a contributor at conference."

Jay Robertson also returns, and like Kwit, missed most of the 2004 season with injuries. He is rehabbing a slight stress fracture, and the team expects him back very soon. "We hope to get him ready to help us in October when it counts," Horstmeyer said.

The team also is expecting great results from newcomers Anthony Kmetz (Illiana Christian) and Kyle Kurecki (Bremen). Both are veteran high school runners. "Anthony and Kyle will really have to step up if we are to enjoy the success we had last year," Horstmeyer said. "That's a lot of pressure to put on them, but if their pre-season workouts and early season races are any indication, they are up to the task. I was very pleased with their first 8K effort - a huge step up from racing three miles in high school. Once they make the adjustment, good things are in store for them and for the team. The potential is there. I'm looking forward to what they can accomplish this season."

Also new is David Caro (Oak Forest), who does not have competitive running experience but has been coming on strong in workouts. "David is beginning to show what he is capable of doing. He seems to improve with every workout."

"Home Again" Program

Commissioner Joyce Gallagher on Sept. 29th announced that the Chicago Dept. on Aging (CDOA) has selected delegate agencies to help residents of over 40 nursing homes in Chicago, transition back to the community and regain their independence.

The pilot program called "Home Again" will provide assistance to help nursing home residents who are age 60 and older with a comprehensive transition plan to include locating and securing housing, moving-in, assistive living technology, social services and more.

Through the allocation of $372,000 in state funding, the CDOA has partnered with Housing Opportunities and Maintenance for the Elderly (H.O.M.E.), Access Living, and Catholic Charities to identify and screen nursing home residents capable of living on their own; develop individual transition plans, move the senior into a community residence, and provide ongoing case management. In addition, each agency will assist with setting up a household, including furniture and essential appliances.

The CDOA will also provide needed support programs which include homemaker, home health and financial management assistance.

Illegal To Feed Wild Deer

Illinois residents are reminded that it is illegal to feed wild deer. The Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources (IDNR) strictly enforces this law in an attempt to stop the spread of Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD).

According to Section 635.40 of the 17 Ill. Admin. Code - Feeding or Baiting of Wildlife, "It shall be illegal to make available food, salt, mineral blocks or other products for ingestion by wild deer or other wildlife in areas where wild deer are present." People caught violating this law could face a maximum fine of $1,000.

"When deer congregate in areas where people have left food, it increases the potential of spreading diseases that are transmitted by animal to animal contact, such as CWD," said IDNR Director Joel Brunsvold. Exceptions to this rule include feeding birds and squirrels in residential areas.

"We know that people enjoy feeding birds and squirrels and we aren't trying to impact homeowners and their individual feeders," Brunsvold said.

Chronic Wasting Disease is a fatal disease that affects neurological systems in deer and elk. Affected animals will become emaciated, display abnormal behavior, loose coordination and eventually die. CWD is not known to be contagious to humans or livestock.

Kids 'Go' For Healthy Choices

In the first study of its kind, researchers were able to show that a low fat diet is safe for children eight years of age and older and that children will make healthy choices with help from their families and health professionals. The three-year Dietary Intervention Study in Children (DISC) studied the effects of a low fat diet on growth and development in 663 children ages 8 to 10 years old with elevated blood cholesterol levels. This paper reports how the children's eating patterns changed as a result of being part of the study. The participants in the intervention group were taught a system of categorizing foods into "Go," "Slow," and "Whoa" foods. The intake of "Whoa" foods (higher calorie foods from all food groups) decreased by .2 to .3 servings per day after three years compared to the control group. The study showed that after participating in the education program, the kids made more than a third of their choices from the heart-healthy "Go" group which included nonfat and 1 percent dairy foods, fruits, vegetables, whole grains and lean meat.

The "Go" versus "Whoa" system is now being used in the "We Can!" (Ways to Enhance Children's Activity and Nutrition) youth obesity-prevention initiative coordinated by the National Institutes of Health (NIH) For more information visit www.nhlbi.nih.gov/health/public/heart/public/heart/obesity/wecan/index.htm.

"Ow, My FEET Are Killing Me!"

"Aaahh, my feet feel and look wonderful" is more likely the comment you will make after treating your feet to the tender loving expertise of Dr. Bela Pandit - and that's no small feat when you consider the things that motivated Dr. Pandit to become a podiatric physician. According to the American Orthopaedic Foot and Ankle Society ...

- Nine out of 10 women are wearing shoes that are too small for their feet.
- Eight out of 10 women say their shoes are painful.
- More than seven out of 10 women have developed a bunion, hammertoe or other painful foot deformity.
- Nine out of 10 women's foot deformities can be attributed to tight shoes.

So, why do women continually buy and suffer in tight and painful shoes? One simple reason: fashion! In following today's trends, many women want their look to be current and stylish. Often, a high heel is preferred to flats since it elongates the leg and lifts the rear. Unfortunately, most high-heeled shoes have a pointed, narrow toe box that crowds the toes and forces them into an unnatural triangular shape. These shoes distribute the body's weight unevenly, placing excess stress on the ball of the foot and on the forefoot. This uneven weight, coupled with the narrow toe box characteristic of most high heels, can lead to discomfort, painful bunions, hammertoes and other deformities in the knees, calves and back.

So, what's a girl to do? Obviously, to relieve the abusive effects of high heels, women can limit the time they wear them switching to a low heeled shoe when possible. However, when you just can't wear gym shoes to a special event, it is important to look for a shoe that has a wide toe box and a flexible and non-skid sole. A round toe is significantly better than a pointy style as is a wedge or block heel to a stiletto heel.

It is also important to visit a podiatric physician who can evaluate your problems, recommend shoes, adjust and modify the shoes you love so they are comfortable, as well as treat your foot problems. Dr. Bela Pandit of Pandit Foot and Ankle, in Evergreen Park is this physician. She strives to enable her patients to walk beautifully as well as comfortably through life. She is not only the right podiatric surgeon to repair a bunion, hammertoe or fungal nail, etc., but when she has completed your treatment, you will be proud to show your feet off! Never again will you be embarrassed to dine at a Japanese restaurant.

Dr. Pandit possesses that old-fashioned commitment to treat all her patients with compassion, but make no mistake - she is highly trained in the latest innovations in foot care. She is truly a rare blend of sweet-natured and professional. If you are worried about footing the bill, she accepts most insurance & has night & weekend hours available for your convenience.

Playing footsy with that special person in your life should not be a painful experience. So, treat yourself! Hobble over to the phone and call Dr. Pandit at (708) 423-FOOT [3668]. Don't you deserve to put your feet in good hands? She is located at 3830 W. 95th St., Suite #104 in Evergreen Park.

Benjamin Has A Blast At Disney

A very special young man from Oak Lawn recently experienced an extraordinary dream come true thanks to Kids Wish Network, a children's organization that grants wishes to kids with life-threatening illnesses. Benjamin, who was born with complex congenital heart disease, couldn't believe it when his wish to visit Disney World came true!

Benjamin's exciting adventure to Florida began after his mother, Sharon, was contacted by one of Kids Wish Network's professional fundraisers. She was asked if she knew of any kids who might qualify for a wish and she instantly thought of her son.

At birth, Benjamin had no pulmonary artery and his aorta was coming from the wrong side of his heart. Over the years, Benjamin has had several heart surgeries. Recently, his doctors discovered a blockage in his heart; they continue to watch him carefully and are planning for surgery when the blockage gets larger. Benjamin's heart condition prevents him from doing many of the same things as his peers and he must always be extra cautious when engaging in any sort of physical activity that could overexert his heart.

After submitting Benjamin's name to Kids Wish Network, Sharon completed the application process and was thrilled to later learn that her special son was indeed eligible for a wish come true. Benjamin knew just what he wanted to do: he wanted to visit Disney World!

Benjamin's Kids Wish Network Coordinator, Kim, immediately began the arrangements to make his dream come true. She not only secured airline tickets and theme park passes, she also booked hotel accommodations, made dinner reservations for the family at area restaurants, arranged for spending money and more. Benjamin was in for a truly amazing wish adventure.

During Benjamin's exciting trip to Orlando he and his family visited the Magic Kingdom, Epcot, and Universal Studios.

Smoking Ban At Hospitals

The controversy over smoking in public buildings has come full circle at two more area hospitals. Over a year ago, St. Francis Hospital and Health Center in Blue Island, in keeping with its mission statement to help people live healthier lives, had banned smoking not only from hospital buildings, but has also banned smoking on all of its properties, inside or outside.

Joining St. Francis in its stand for a smoke free environment is Little Company of Mary Hospital and Health Care Centers in Evergreen Park and St. James Hospital and Health Centers in Chicago Heights and Olympia Fields. The ban will also apply to St. James Hospital's community Health Centers in Monee, Mokena and Homewood.

The policies go into effect on Nov. 17th, the day when the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout challenges smokers to quit for, at least, a day.

Hospitals outside of the Southland area who have banned smoking include Loyola University Medical Center in Maywood and Northwestern Memorial Hospital in Chicago. St. Francis Hospital officials stated that the first smoke free year there has been uneventful. Little Company and St. James have been informing their employees that the change in smoking status is coming. They plan on offering smoking cessation programs to employees who want to quit.

According to the Metropolitan Healthcare Council of Greater Chicago, it is possible that nearly every hospital in the region will have gone smoke free by next year's smoke out. St. James and Little Company aren't expecting employees to take issue with their stand. They have been informed that smoking is and always has been a "public health issue."

Veterans And Soldiers News

By Lori Taylor Ph: 708.388.2425

At the VFW and Ladies Auxiliary Big 10 Conference held in Des Moines, Iowa over the weekend we learned a few interesting things that I would like to pass on to you. The Ladies Auxiliary National Rehabilitation Chairman, Susie Moon, told us that the organization will now be collecting toward laptops for service personnel who are out in the field and away from phone use. This new program along with the phone cards will enable military persons to reach their loved ones at home. We also learned National Commander-In-Chief Jim Mueller and National Quartermaster General Gunner Kent spent seven days in the hurricane area helping where they were needed. The VFW has collected $850,000 toward assistance funds for the victims. So far $350,000 has been expended and there is $500,000 in the fund to be used in the future. With all of the devastation these funds will go quickly.

National VFW Auxiliary President Sandy Germany said the auxiliary is working to exceed the $3 million plus cancer aid and research goal in the coming year. These funds are used for auxiliary members who have been stricken with cancer and for research grants.

The Big 10 Conference covers the states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Missouri, Minnesota, Nebraska, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin. The conference is held the third weekend in October each year and they are held in alphabetical order so next year's conference will be in Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Ruth Ann Smit state president of the VFW Ladies Auxiliary and a resident of Chicago Ridge, also a member of the Alsip VFW Auxiliary 450, led the delegation of Ladies Auxiliary members from Illinois. Leon Barnes, VFW state commander, also had an impressive number of VFW members in his delegation. A reception was held honoring Colette Bishop who has been serving as the Big 10 president for the past year. Colette is a member of the Rock Island VFW Auxiliary 1303.

The Lansing Veterans Memorial Ceremonial Guard will conduct a Veterans Day program at the Lansing Veterans Memorial on Sunday, Nov. 6th at 2 p.m. The memorial is located at Glenwood Lansing Road and Burnham Ave. at the Lansing Municipal Airport. This year's program will commemorate the 40th anniversary of the introduction of U.S. ground forces into the Vietnam War and the first major battle of the Ia Drang Valley. The program will also honor all those who served during the Vietnam Era. Vietnam veteran, Jim A. Balcer, former Director of Veterans Affairs to the City of Chicago and now alderman of the 11th Ward, is scheduled to speak. Jim is a former U.S. Marine who served in Vietnam. He is the recipient of three purple hearts and a bronze star with V for valor. It is suggested you bring lawn chairs, as no seating is provided. For more information, call Rich Dominiak, ceremony coordinator, at (708) 862-7731 or Larry Grzywinski at (708) 474-3049.

Navy Seaman Recruit Erick Golara, son of Renee Ammon of Oak Forest and Arthur Golara of Homer Glen, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes. Golara is a 2005 graduate of Oak Forest High School in Oak Forest.

Hometown-Murray VFW 9773 will hold a Halloween Party on Saturday, Oct. 29th from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the post home, 9092 Main St. in Hometown. There will be raffles, prizes and a light buffet will be served. A $1 donation will benefit the many veterans and community programs of the organization. Guests must be 21 and over.

Here is some information I saw in the VFW state newspaper regarding the release of cell phone numbers. It was a reminder that as of Sept. 1, 2005 cell phone numbers are being released to telemarketing companies and you will start to receive sales calls. You will be charged for these calls. They will be chargeable minutes. To prevent this, call the following number from your cell phone: 1-888-382-1222. It is the National DO NOT CALL list. It will only take a minute of your time. It blocks your number for five (5) years. You can also do this online at www.donotcall.gov. I hope this information will help you.

Good-bye for this week. May God bless you and God bless America. Have a happy and safe Halloween.

Passing Of Rosa Parks

The following is U.S. Rep. Bobby L. Rush's statement on the passing of Rosa Parks.

"It is with great sadness to learn of the passing of Rosa Parks. Not only did she play a role in igniting the Civil Rights Movement, she helped define it. By refusing to move from the Whites-only section of a bus in Montgomery, Alabama, her courageous act of defiance motivated thousands around the country to stand up and speak out against racial injustice. A heroine that history could not ignore, Rosa Parks' legacy is a reminder to us all that in order to prosper, we must be willing to persevere."

Senator Calls On Pentagon To Begin To Rebuild Equipment Inventories Now

U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) said he is deeply alarmed at serious equipment shortages now faced by National Guard units all over Illinois and the rest of the nation, and has called on the Pentagon to immediately implement a plan to replace the missing items.

A report released on Oct. 19th by the Government Accountability Office (GAO), which is the investigative arm of Congress, showed that Army National Guard units face severe equipment shortages at home partly because they have been told to leave such critical items such as armored Humvees, light trucks and other gear in Iraq for replacement troops.

"This is a huge problem - it impacts the ability of these units to respond as they should in a crisis; it affects their ability to conduct training exercises; it affects the morale of the units," said Durbin. "Replacing this equipment has been slow, and the replacement items are often not adequate in terms of quality or quantity. We cannot and must not allow this to continue."

The GAO report showed that, on average, National Guard units have only 34 percent of the equipment they need to be at full readiness, which could leave them vulnerable in a domestic emergency.

Durbin said National Guard units in Illinois often fare even worse than the national average and equipment inventories of Illinois National Guard units have been seriously depleted. For example, the inventory tallies show that Illinois Guard units are assigned only:

- 4 percent of the medium trucks needed to maintain full readiness (6 of 166 medium trucks)
- 8 percent of the heavy trucks needed to maintain full readiness (6 of 79 heavy trucks)
- 47 percent of night vision devices (1503 of 3220 night vision devices)
- 63 percent of ground to air radios (766 of 1218 radios)

How To Become An Architect

Prospective architecture students will have a rare opportunity to learn more about the graduate degree programs at the Illinois Institute of Technology's (IIT) College of Architecture Graduate Program open house on Nov. 7th. The event will be held at the historic S.R. Crown Hall, 3360 S. State in Chicago, at noon.

The College of Architecture will open its doors hoping to open minds to its Master of Architecture (M.Arch.) and Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) programs. Students, recent college graduates from other disciplines and working architects can learn about advanced degree programs in a series of panel presentations and informational discussions. IIT's professional degrees are accredited by the National Architecture Accrediting Board.

The open house features presentations about the curriculum and studio courses. Student and faculty panels will describe the rewards and challenges of graduate-level architectural studies, supported by the rich architectural legacy of Chicago and the Midwest. A tour of Mies van der Rohe's masterwork, S.R. Crown Hall, will allow prospective students to observe the studio space, student work, teaching methods and practices of IIT faculty, many of whom are practicing architects in Chicago.

Highlighting the day is a tour of Rem Koolhaas' widely noted McCormick Tribune Campus Center. The day ends with a Digital Technology Reception where prospective students will get a chance to see what is happening on the digital front within the College of Architecture.

Attendees should register with the College of Architecture by Nov. 1st. Online registration is available at www.arch.iit.edu. RSVP by telephone at (312) 567-5858 or by e-mail to osbornen@iit.edu. The open house is free and open to the public.

While these numbers alone are cause for serious concern, the situation may actually be much worse. Some of this assigned equipment is unavailable for use by the state because it is currently in Iraq or elsewhere.

Officials interviewed by the GAO believe the National Guard's response to Hurricane Katrina "was more complicated because significant quantities of critical equipment such as satellite communications equipment, radios, trucks, helicopters and night vision goggles were deployed to Iraq."

In response, Durbin is requesting that the Pentagon factor in the cost of replacing this equipment in the defense budgets being prepared now. Durbin said that the total cost of bringing Guard unit inventories up to full levels will cost as much as $10 billion. Durbin intends to ask that $10 billion be spent over the next five years to restock National Guard inventories.

"Right now, the budget analysts at the Dept. of Defense are preparing next year's budget for the President. The Dept. of Defense needs to take into account the cost of replacing this equipment before the problem gets worse," said Durbin.

As of June of this year, Army National Guard units had left more than 64,000 pieces of equipment worth more than $1.2 billion overseas and, according to the GAO report, the Army cannot account for more than half of that equipment. The report said that in addition to what was left overseas, more than 100,000 pieces of equipment from units on the home front have been transferred to deploying units.

AMVETS Donation

The AMVETS Dept. of Illinois will donate $50,000 to help sponsor the National Symposium for the Needs of Young Veterans.

The symposium will bring together veterans, policymakers and other leaders to discuss the urgent needs of veterans now and in the future. The two and a half day symposium is intended to engage veterans in a series of discussions about new ways the veterans benefits system can be modernized and enhanced.

The symposium is co-chaired by The Hon. Anthony J. Principi, former Secretary of Veterans Affairs, and William Boettcher, AMVETS Past National Commander.

Service Foundation President Bill Quick and Department Commander Michael Dawson will present the check to Edward Kemp, the 2005-06 National Commander, at the 4th National Meeting held on Saturday, Nov. 5th at the Holiday Inn in Normal, Ill. The presentation will be held at approximately 12:30 p.m.

The AMVETS Dept. of Illinois has been an organization of veterans serving veterans since 1945. With approximately 12,000 members, Illinois AMVETS has been at the forefront of community and veterans' service for the State of Illinois. Their goal is to improve the lives of our nation's veterans and the communities they live in.

Settlement Over Fraudulent Marketing Of AIDS Medication

Attorney General Lisa Madigan announced that Illinois has joined 49 other states and the District of Columbia in reaching agreement with a Swiss drug manufacturer that bilked states out of millions of dollars by fraudulently marketing its AIDS-fighting drug serostim. Scrono, Inc. of Rockland, Massachusetts, affiliated with Swiss-based Sero Laboratories, produces a human growth hormone approved by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and used by some physicians to treat AIDS wasting in some HIV-infected patients.

Madigan said Illinois will receive more than $119 million of the $704 million settlement announced by federal and state officials on Monday, Oct. 17th.

Sero admitted that it illegally marketed serostim through kickbacks to doctors, discounts to specialty pharmacies and off-label promotion. In addition, Scrono has admitted to conspiring with another company to market a computer program for so-called bioelectrical impedance analysis devices that could be manipulated by doctors to demonstrate an increased need for serostim by their patients.

According to the U.S. Justice Department, funds derived from the settlement will be used by Illinois and other states to repay with interest Medicaid funds used to purchase the drug from 1996 through 2004.

Emergency Energy Conservation Plan

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Oct. 21st ordered the thermostats lowered in thousands of state facilities to reduce the state's winter heating costs. Setting back the thermostat in state office buildings and other facilities from Nov. 1st through April 15th, 2006 will save the state an estimated $4 million in heating costs. The governor took this action as part of his Emergency Energy Assistance Initiative launched last month to confront steep increases in winter heating costs due to record-high natural gas prices.

The Emergency Energy Conservation Plan will affect nearly 2,000 state facilities, including office buildings, warehouses, garages and other facilities. Most facilities will lower their daytime temperatures from 70-72 degrees to 68 degrees. At nighttime and during off-hours, facilities not open to the public or to employees working routine schedules will turn back their thermostats to 55 degrees. Residential facilities such as prisons and military barracks will lower their temperatures to 68 degrees around the clock.

The plan does not affect temperatures at in-patient health-care facilities, homeless shelters and other buildings housing vulnerable populations or where temperature-sensitive public safety and law enforcement operations are conducted.

Finalist For Women Of The Year Award

To be passionate about what your gifts are and not be afraid to share them is the motto of a great McAuley woman. Marge O'Connell Nykasa, Mother McAuley Liberal Arts High School Class of 1972, has been passionately sharing her life and work in the south side of Chicago.

Nykasa is the founder and executive director of Harmony, Hope & Healing, a non-for-profit creative music program for the homeless and underserved throughout Chicago. Serving primarily women and children, Nykasa directs music programs at various agencies including shelters, community outreach programs and a senior center. For more information, visit www.harmony-hopeandhealing.org.

Nykasa was interviewed in October about Harmony, Hope & Healing by Religion & Ethics Newsweekly on PBS. The interview was done shortly after Harmony Hope & Healing entertained rally participants at September's Chicago Unity Rally. The Unity Rally was held by the Archdiocese of Chicago on Saturday, Oct. 1 and was dedicated to the victims of Hurricane Katrina.

Park Lawn Celebrates 50 Years Of Service

Fifty years ago, in 1955, Park Lawn was founded by a group of parents whose children were turned away by public education. They were part of a movement that challenged national and state legislatures to provide community based education for all children including those with developmental disabilities. Sensing untapped potential in their children, these parents decided to start their own school on a slender budget in a donated community facility.

Fifty years later, more than 300 individuals with developmental disabilities are enrolled in a variety of programs at Park Lawn. The organization offers developmental training, a vocational workshop, community based supported employment services and nine community residential facilities.

Friends and family of Park Lawn celebrated 50 years of service to the community with an anniversary celebration, "Golden Memories" on Saturday, Oct. 1st at DiNoi's Banquets in Homer Glen. Kevin Roy, ABC news anchor served as Master of Ceremonies.

A cocktail reception and dinner was followed by musical entertainment by After Hours and a very special performance by Park Lawn's own musical ensemble, The Park Lawn Players.

Parish Collection Counter Arrested

Chicago Police arrested a Tinley Park man, Paul Gazze, on Tuesday as part of a probe into missing funds at a parish in the south suburbs.

Only last month, Paul Gazze was hired by Rev. Bill Killen as business manager for Infant Jesus of Prague in Flossmoor, replacing Doug Peterson who had been fired.

Even before his hire, Gazze had assisted Peterson and a Parish secretary with the collection count every Sunday. Gazze, who had gone to Infant Jesus of Prague Parish since childhood and attended the school there, had recently quit his job at an Oak Lawn CPA firm.

Offices To Close For Veterans' Day

All Secretary of State office and facilities will be closed Friday, Nov. 11th for Veterans' Day, Secretary of State Jesse White announced. Driver Services facilities outside of Cook County, and also the Chicago West, Midlothian, Diversey Express and Niles facilities that are usually open Tuesday through Saturday will resume normal business hours Saturday, Nov. 12th. Offices and facilities that are usually open Monday through Friday will resume normal business hours on Monday, Nov. 14th.

Jan Malloy, alumnae coordinator for McAuley, nominated Nykasa in August 2005 for the Abby Foundation Women of the Year. The Abby Foundation, which was named after the late Abigail Adams who realized the potential of women, named Nykasa a finalist for their Women of the Year award.

"Marge is a phenomenal woman and we at McAuley are very proud to have her in our network," said Malloy. "She is doing her part to make the world a better place. Every time Marge visits us at McAuley, the faculty and students light up with joy from her presence."

Nykasa also received the Distinguished Alumna Award from McAuley in spring of 2005.

"Trick" Danger

While minor stomach aches from eating too much candy may be the most common hazard on Halloween, emergency physicians warn they treat many children for serious injuries on this day that could have been prevented.

"The most common injuries on Halloween are eye injuries from sharp objects, burns, from flammable costumes, and injuries from collisions with motor vehicles," said Dr. Rick Blum, president of the American College of Emergency Physicians. "To ensure a safer Halloween, parents and caregivers should follow important safety measures."

Make sure you see all the candy before your child consumes it. Avoid candy not wrapped in its original wrapper, as well as all fruit. Make sure your child stays on the sidewalks as much as possible (off streets) and obeys all traffic signals. Discuss the importance of staying together in a group. Require at least one adult to serve as chaperone during candy gathering, and forbid children from accepting rides from strangers or visiting unfamiliar homes. Avoid costumes that could cause children to trip, such as baggy pants, long hems, high heels, and over-sized shoes. Avoid costume contact lenses. Avoid masks, but if your child must wear one, make sure it is well ventilated and does not impair his or her vision. Make sure that costume fabric, wigs, and beards are made of flame-resistant materials, such as nylon or polyester. Make sure that costumes are visible at night; avoid dark colors. Add reflective tape to the costume to help make your child more visible to motor vehicles. Check that accessories such as swords, knives, wands and other pointed objects are made from flexible materials and have dulled edges.

"The American College of Emergency Physicians recommends that children 'trick or treat' with adult supervision, at houses of worship, shopping malls, schools, or other types of community sponsored events," said Dr. Blum. "This helps eliminate children's interaction with strangers and ensures that a responsible adult is present."

Car + Deer = Damage

The nation's deer population is growing and each year, collisions with deer account for more than 150 human and nearly one and a half million deer fatalities. October through December is the highest season for the accidents, since it's a time for both wandering deer and holiday travelers.

Most collisions with a deer occur during this time of year when deer are mating and migrating. "Drivers need to be particularly cautious with the season's shortened daylight and deer foraging near roadsides. It's a very dangerous combination," cautioned Ray Palermo, Director of Public Relations for Response Insurance. "To compound it, more drivers are on the road at dawn and dusk, the very time of day when deer are most active."

An adult deer can weigh more than 200 pounds and a car striking one can not only result in the death of the deer, but also incur, on average, two thousand dollars in damage to the vehicle. Palermo suggested a few basic cautions for drivers. In many cases it is best not to swerve around the deer since the deer may move in the same direction. You may also inadvertently hit another vehicle, or go off onto a dangerous shoulder. Unless certain of those road factors, it is often best to simply brake and continue in your lane of traffic. Be particularly careful at dawn and dusk and when driving either over a hill or around a curve, where visibility is limited. Use your high beams to give you a greater area of visibility and allows you to see the deer's eyes sooner. Scan a wide swath of the roadside. Slow down when approaching a deer standing near the side of a road and be prepared. If startled, the deer can bolt onto the roadway and into your path. If necessary, honk your horn and flash your lights to try to scare it away. Be alert for more deer than you may see at that moment. Where there's one deer, there are often more nearby. Deer whistles or ultrasonic deer avoidance systems attached to vehicles have never been proven to work by independent studies and may give drivers a false sense of security. Take deer crossing signs seriously, particularly those installed specifically for this time of year. Be particularly cautious in wooded and agricultural areas where there is little distance between the road and the woods.

A free brochure, "Car + Deer = Damage," is available by calling 1-800-610-5928 or by visiting its website at www.Response.com.

Temporary Homes Needed

Aunt Martha's Youth Service Center is seeking caring foster parents from Will, Grundy, Kankakee and South Suburban Cook counties who are willing to help youth in need of shelter. Aunt Martha's will pay $25 a day per youth to qualified individuals willing to provide a temporary (up to 21 days) home for runaway and homeless youth between the ages of 10 and 17 years of age. Interested individuals must be willing to become licensed foster parents.

Individuals who are interested in providing temporary shelter for these youths may call (708) 535-2934 for more information.

Those who provide temporary shelter to a youth in need will be providing a valuable service, according to David Betz, Aunt Martha's Tri-County Counseling and Outreach Administrator. "All these youth need is a safe place to get themselves back together," Betz said. "They need a quiet haven of peace and shelter - a chance to get some security and stability back into their lives - until they can be reunited with their families. It is only for a short-term basis."

"We encourage area residents who have extra room in their heart and home to help make a difference in the life of a child," Betz added. The temporary home providers are not expected or asked to counsel or provide solutions for the youth in their care. Such services - including individual, family and group counseling, school and court advocacy, crisis intervention, emergency transportation and follow-up care - are all provided through Aunt Martha's programs.

The goal is to help these runaway or homeless youth return home, reestablish a healthier relationship with parents and family, and empower them to help build happy and successful lives for themselves.

Senior Fights Off Purse Snatcher

It was late morning last Saturday when Mark Dzendrowski, 23, of Oak Lawn, apparently picked the wrong elderly lady to mess with.

He reportedly grabbed onto the purse of the 72-year-old woman and began to run. Much to his surprise, the senior was still attached to the purse. He allegedly swung her around mercilessly, but she still refused to let go.

This bought her enough time because, while the attempted purse snatching was taking place, a worker from the water department who saw what was going on, sprinted toward the two shouting "Stop! Police!"

Finally, Dzendrowski let go and fled toward his nearby van, but the water department worker intercepted him. The attacker then disappeared into the neighborhood, but was apprehended by Oak Lawn Police 90 minutes later on a tip from residents who saw someone hiding in the bushes.

Maria's 1st Open House

On Sunday, Nov. 13th Maria High School, 6727 S. California Ave., will host its first Open House for 6th, 7th, and 8th grade young women and their families from 12 to 3 p.m. The theme of Maria's Open House this year is "The Road to Success for Women who Make a Difference in the World." Therefore each activity and presentation is geared to describe how a Maria education takes young women from high school to college and beyond. Ultimately these young women will positively impact their communities by putting into practice the values and education they receive as Maria students.

Maria High School offers a comprehensive curriculum where students can take classes that will challenge them to do their best. The RISE (Reaching Individual Success and Excellence) program offers honors courses in English, Math, Science and Spanish. Furthermore, young women at Maria have the opportunity to jump start their college career by attaining college credits through AP (Advance Placement) classes in Calculus, Spanish, Art, English, French, and History. They can also receive college credits through the PACC (Program for Advance College Credit) program in association with Saint Mary's University in Minnesota Estate.

Guests will meet current and former students, staff and parents. They will have the opportunity to visit the building, observe Maria students in action in some classes, and learn about financial aid and scholarship opportunities.

At Maria high school education is considered a critical time in every young woman's life. That is why it is very important to visit the school to see how, for over 90 years, 8th graders have been coming through Maria's doors to later leave as young women and proud high school graduates who are equipped with the knowledge and the values to make a difference in the world.

After the Open House guests are welcome to attend the fall musical, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," produced by Maria's Drama Club. To purchase tickets in advance call (773) 925-8686, ext. 109.

All Kids Plan Passes In Senate

The Illinois Senate approved Governor Rod R. Blagojevich's landmark proposal on Oct. 26th that would make Illinois the only state in the nation to provide affordable, comprehensive health insurance for every child in the state. After a vote of 32 to 23 in the Senate, the legislation now moves to the Illinois House of Representatives for final passage. House Bill 806, creating All Kids, is sponsored by State Senate President Emil Jones and House Speaker Michael J. Madigan.

In Illinois, 253,000 children are without health insurance. More than half of Illinois' uninsured children come from working and middle class families who earn too much to qualify for programs like KidCare, but not enough to afford private health insurance. The Governor's program would make comprehensive health insurance available to children, with parents paying monthly premiums and co-payments for doctor's visits and prescription drugs at affordable rates.

Participants in the new program will pay monthly premiums and co-payments for doctors' visits and prescriptions, but unlike private insurance that is too expensive for so many families, the rates for All Kids coverage will be based on a family's income. The state is able to offer All Kids insurance coverage at much lower than market rates for middle-income families by leveraging the significant negotiating and buying power it already has through Medicaid.

For example, a family with two children that earns between $40,000 and $59,000 a year will pay a $40 monthly premium per child, and a $10 co-pay per physician visit. A family with two children earning between $60,000 and $79,000 will pay a $70 monthly premium per child, and a $15 co-pay per physician visit. However, there will be no co-pays for preventative care visits, such as annual immunizations and regular check ups and screenings for vision, hearing, appropriate development or preventative dental. These premiums for middle-income families are significantly more affordable than typical private insurance premiums of $100 to $200 a month, or $2,400 per child annually.

The state will cover the difference between what parents contribute in monthly premiums and the actual cost of providing health care for each child, expected to be $45 million in the first year, with savings generated by implementing a primary care case management model (PCCM) for participants in the state's FamilyCare and All Kids health care programs. Participants will choose a single primary physician who will manage their care by ensuring they get immunizations and other preventative health care services and avoid unnecessary emergency room visits and hospitalizations. Patients with chronic conditions like asthma or diabetes will have a single care manager to make sure they are getting the treatments and ongoing care they need to avoid acute care. Primary care physicians will make referrals to specialists for additional care or tests as needed.

By ensuring patients get adequate preventative care on the front end, fewer people will need expensive specialized care or emergency care for critical conditions. In children, preventative care is especially important. For example, infants with stomach flu (gastroenteritis) who receive appropriate primary care can avoid being hospitalized for dehydration. Providing a timely exam and appropriate antibiotic treatment for children with ear infections (otitis media) can prevent chronic ear problems, loss of hearing and the need for surgically placed tubes to relieve fluid build up. Treating children with bronchitis or minor lung infections in a primary care setting can help to avoid more expensive hospitalization treatment of pneumonia, including intravenous antibiotics and respiratory treatments. And early identification and appropriate treatment of children who have chronic illnesses, such as asthma, will result in fewer expensive emergency room and inpatient care visits.

If the legislation passes during the fall veto session, which began Oct. 25th, the All Kids program can be up and running by July 1, 2006. More information about All Kids is available online at www.allkidscovered.com.

IAFP Joins List Of All Kids Supporters

On Oct. 21st the Illinois Academy of Family Physicians (IAFP) endorsed Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich's landmark All Kids proposal that would make Illinois the only state in the nation to provide affordable, comprehensive health insurance for every child in the state. The IAFP is a professional medical society that represents 2,100 practicing family physicians throughout Illinois. IAFP joins more than 400 organizations representing medical facilities, doctors, nurses, educators, labor, child advocates and clergy that have endorsed the governor's plan since he introduced it.

In Illinois, 253,000 children are without health insurance. More than half of Illinois' uninsured children come from working and middle class families who earn too much to qualify for programs like KidCare, but not enough to afford private health insurance. The governor's program would make comprehensive health insurance available to children, with parents paying monthly premiums and co-payments for doctors' visits and prescription drugs at affordable rates.

Senate President Emil Jones and House Speaker

Michael J. Madigan are the lead sponsors of legislation creating the All Kids health insurance program and have vowed to push for its passage during the upcoming fall veto session so the program can be up and running by July 1st, 2006. The organizations vowed to help the governor build support to pass his All Kids plan and to help enroll children in the plan, should it pass.

The governor's All Kids program would offer children access to comprehensive health care, including doctors' visits, hospital stays, prescription drugs, vision care, dental care and medical devices like eyeglasses and asthma inhalers.

Annual Student Laureates Ceremony

The Lincoln Academy of Illinois honored 48 outstanding senior college students during the annual Student Laureate Ceremony on Oct. 22 at the Old State Capitol State Historic Site in Springfield.

The Student Laureate Medallion is given each year, along with a $150 honorarium and a certificate of achievement, to one member from the senior class of each four-year, degree-granting institution of higher learning in Illinois. The medallions were presented this year by Judy Irwin, Director of the State Board of Education. The event marked the 31st year that students have been honored by the Academy.

Michelle L. Jones, a senior at the University of Chicago, delivered the keynote address on behalf of the Student Laureates. The invocation was delivered by Dr. Roger L. Taylor, President of Knox College; the benediction was given by Dr. Paul Pribbenow, President of Rockford College. The Sangamon Woodwind Consort provided music. A luncheon at the Illinois Executive Mansion followed the ceremony.

The following area student laureates were honored: Illinois Institute of Technology, Noah W. Birch of Homer Glen; Loyola University, Erica M. Bauer of Chicago; Millikin University, Deanne L. Drechsler of Oak Lawn; National-Lewis University, Mario E. Rodriguez of Chicago; Northeastern Illinois University, Mersiha Bajrektarevic of Chicago; Trinity Christian University, Erin M. Help Reduce The Risk Of Stroke

Residents living in and around the Chicago Ridge community can be screened to reduce their risk of having a stroke. Life Line Screening will be at the Chicago Ridge American Legion Post 1160, 10739 S. Ridgeland Ave., on Nov. 7th. Appointments will begin at 9 a.m.

A stroke, also known as a "brain attack," is ranked as the third leading killer in the world, and the second among women. Through preventive screenings, the risk of having a stroke can be greatly reduced.

Screenings are fast, painless and low cost. They involve the use of ultrasound technology, and scan for potential health problems related to: blocked arteries which can lead to a stroke, aortic aneurysms which can lead to a ruptured aorta, and hardening of the arteries in the legs, which are a strong predictor of heart disease. Also offered for men and women is a bone density screening to assess their risk for osteoporosis.

Each screening requires 10 minutes or less to complete. A complete vascular screening package, including the Stroke/Carotid Artery, Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm and Ankle Brachial Index (hardening of the arteries) screenings is $109. Sign up for a complete vascular package; include the osteoporosis screening and pay $129.

For more information regarding the screenings or to schedule an appointment, call 1(800) 449-2281. Pre-registration is required.

Orland Park Spelling Bee

The winner of the annual Orland Park Spelling Bee, for the fifth time in eight years, is 76-year-old Kathleen Foley of Oak Lawn. In so doing, she wrestled the spelling title back from Derrick Pavoni who had been victorious two years in a row after breaking Foley's previous five-year reign.

Spellers and would-be spellers from ages 6 to 86 competed in the bee, which was held in the sanctuary at Presbyterian Church in Orland Park and organized by William Smith, a former educator.

Smith stated that, in addition to the goal promoting proper spelling, the bee gives people a chance to conquer their fears of speaking in public.

Annual Craft Fair

Trinity Lutheran Church, 9701 S. Brandt Ave. (two blocks west of Cicero Ave.), will hold its annual Craft Fair on Saturday, Nov. 12, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

In addition to professional crafters, there will be a bake sale, raffle, white elephant sale, and the ever-popular Christmas Room. A number of Trinity women have worked all year producing beautiful Christmas and Fall items. Luncheon food, snacks, and candy will be available all day.

Community residents and their friends are invited to spend time at Trinity during the sale on Nov. 12.

More Than 3100 Illinois Residents Due Money From The IRS

The Internal Revenue Service has money for more than 3100 Illinois residents who still haven't received their 2004 federal tax refunds.

An annual review shows 3133 Illinois taxpayers are due federal tax refunds totaling almost $2.3 million. These refunds were returned to the IRS as "undeliverable." Most refunds are from tax returns filed for the 2004 tax year, but some taxpayers are due refunds for more than one tax year. The checks range from as low as $1 to nearly $39,000. The average per-check amount is $731. Nationwide, 84,290 refunds totaling more than $73 million were returned to the IRS.

"We want to get this money to the people it belongs to," said Sue Hales, IRS spokesperson for Illinois. "It's really a simple process. As soon as we get a correct address, we can reissue the check."

Hales said refund checks go astray for reasons that can vary with each taxpayer. "Most often, it's because a life change — such as a marriage — causes an address change. If a taxpayer moves or changes their address and fails to notify the IRS or the U.S. Postal Service, a check sent to their last known address is returned to the IRS," said Hales.

Taxpayers can find out if they have an undelivered tax refund by visiting the IRS Web site at www.irs.gov and clicking on "Where's My Refund." To use this feature, taxpayers enter information that includes their Social Security number, filing status (such as single or married filing jointly) and the refund amount shown on their 2004 tax return. When this information is submitted online, taxpayers will see the status of their refund check and, in many cases, they also get instructions to resolve potential account problems. If a refund was returned by the post office, the taxpayer may be able to update their address online through the "Where's My Refund" application.

Taxpayers who have moved since filing their last tax return can ensure the IRS has their correct address by filing Form 8822, Change of Address, with the IRS. Download the form from the IRS Web site at www.irs.gov or request it by calling 1(800) 829-3676.

Many people affected by Hurricane Katrina have relocated throughout the country. The IRS will expedite research into the status of undelivered payments and issue a refund check (even when the original check is outstanding) for Gulf Coast residents affected by Hurricane Katrina. The IRS advises hurricane victims who had been expecting a refund check but did not receive one to contact the IRS on the special toll-free Katrina disaster line at 1(866) 562-5227.

Taxpayers without access to the Internet who think they may be missing a refund check should first check their records or contact their tax preparer, then call the IRS toll-free assistance line at 1(800) 829-1040 to update their address.

Hales said taxpayers can avoid undelivered tax refunds by choosing to have their refunds deposited directly into a personal checking or savings account. Direct deposit guards against undelivered, lost or stolen refund checks. The option is available for both paper returns and electronically filed returns. More than 52 million taxpayers chose to direct deposit their refunds this year.

Madigan Awarded Second Annual John F. Kennedy New Frontier Award

The John F. Kennedy Library Foundation and the Institute of Politics at Harvard's Kennedy School of Government on Oct. 26th presented its 2005 New Frontier Award to Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan in honor of her accomplishments as an elected official and public servant.

Caroline Kennedy, president of the John F. Kennedy Library Foundation and a member of the Senior Advisory Committee for Harvard's Institute of Politics, presented the award to Madigan during an awards ceremony at the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library and Museum in Boston. This is the second year the award has been presented.

The John F. Kennedy New Frontier Award was created in 2004 to honor public servants under the age of 40 whose professional accomplishments exemplify the importance and value of public service in the spirit of President Kennedy.

Two New Frontier Awards are awarded each year. One award honors an elected official whose work in politics has brought significant, tangible results in response to a public challenge. The other award honors a non-elected individual working in the realm of community service, advocacy or grassroots activism. Kica Matos, executive director of JUNTA for Progressive Action, also received the 2005 New Frontier Award.

The Meaning Of Freedom

An exhibit featuring the work of 26 artists who explore the meaning of freedom through various art mediums will open Monday, Nov. 7th in Roosevelt University's Gage Gallery, 18 S. Michigan Ave. in Chicago.

Sponsored by Heartland International and Roosevelt University's College of Arts and Sciences and the Mansfield Institute for Social Justice, the exhibition, entitled "freedom-response," includes 29 works by artists who are responding to the promise of freedom, and questions about freedom around the world, through paintings, photos, sculpture, mixed media and fiber works.

An opening reception for freedom-response will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 10th. Jurors for the show include Susan Aurinko, director of FLATFILE galleries in Chicago; Michael Ensford, associate professor of communication at Roosevelt University and director of the Gage Gallery; and Gregory C. Knight, director of visual arts for the Chicago Dept. of Cultural Affairs and chief curator for exhibitions at the Chicago Cultural Center.

The exhibit runs through Dec. 9th and is free and open to the public. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. For information, call (312) 341-6458.

Sex Offender Drives School Bus

William McAlister, 61, of Calumet City is a convicted sex offender. He has recently pleaded guilty of driving a busload of 29 school children and their chaperones to and from a downstate weekend event.

McAlister was stopped as he was heading back to Chicago. He allegedly made a U-turn on U.S. Highway 6, just west of Interstate 56 according to police reports. The police officer found McAlister's criminal history after he researched McAlister's driver's license number through the computer.

The 1992 Conviction of Aggravated Criminal Sexual Assault made it a crime for McAlister to be within 500 feet of a school or operating a school bus, although he did not have to register with the Illinois Department of Corrections. He also did not have the proper license to operate a charter school bus according to officials. That would have required a background check as well as a finger print check.

McAlister faces up to as much as six years in prison and as little as probation.

Heating Program

"U.S. Rep. Dan Lipinski (IL-3rd)" on Oct. 28th warned that Chicago-area residents are facing rising heating costs and offered help in dealing with the high prices this winter.

"Not only is this winter expected to be colder than last year, but natural gas prices have risen greatly because of increased demand and the hurricanes in the Gulf of Mexico," said Rep. Lipinski.

The Energy Information Administration recently predicted that houses using natural gas to heat would experience almost a 50 percent rise in prices. Working families and seniors are at great risk from the increase in natural gas prices and may be forced to make harsh choices on how to spend limited incomes.

"No one, especially the elderly, should be forced to choose between heat and food or medicine," added Congressman Lipinski. "Cook County residents can contact any of my three district offices for assistance in getting help with their heating bills. Already this year, my office has helped almost 1,600 elderly and disabled residents - close to the total number between September and March last year - apply for LIHEAP grants."

On Nov. 1st, LIHEAP, a federal-state partnership that provides one-time assistance with heating bills, will be available on a first-come, first-served basis for working families. For the last two months, the program has been limited to at-risk populations, such as the elderly and disabled.

To find out more about LIHEAP and other energy programs, such as weatherization assistance, call Rep. Lipinski's office at (312) 886-0481.

Dobson's Views

Focus on the Family Action founder and chairman James C. Dobson, Ph.D., issued the following statement about the nomination of Circuit Judge Samuel Alito to the U.S. Supreme Court:

"We are extremely pleased by President Bush's selection of Judge Samuel Alito, who has earned the respect of colleagues in both parties for his legal acumen and courtroom demeanor. As a federal judge for the last 15 years, Judge Alito has demonstrated that he understands the role of the judiciary is to interpret existing law in light of the Constitution, not make new law in service to a personal political agenda."

"Perhaps the most encouraging early indication that Judge Alito will make a great justice is that liberal senators such as Harry Reid and Charles Schumer and leftist pressure groups such as People for the American Way and Planned Parenthood have been lining up all day to scream that the sky's falling. Any nominee who so worries the radical left is worthy of serious consideration."

"Based on what is now known about Judge Alito, we applaud the president for this outstanding nomination."

Ladies and gentlemen...how about those World Champion Chicago White Sox! Not since 1985 (The Bears) has this entire city been so overwhelmed by the fever that the White Sox generated this season. For those of us who have lived (and died) with the "wait 'til next year" promises, our ship has finally come in. It is filled with excellent baseball players who knew the true meaning of the word TEAM.

Congratulations to White Sox Chairman Jerry Reinsdorf and General Manager Ken Williams for trusting their organization, its suggestions regarding players and its willingness to develop quality talent.

Hats off to Manager Ozzie Guillen and his coaching staff for getting the best efforts from each man on the major league roster.

A sincere Thank You! to the Sox players who day-in and day-out were prepared for battle and won a grand total of 110 games this year...including 12 in a row in the playoffs.

And a big round of applause to each one of the White Sox fans and followers who supported this team from the early days of spring training through the October Classic...the 2005 World Series.

The last time this writer witnessed the Sox in the World Series, he was a ten year old. One never would have imagined that it would take 46 years to see a return engagement. Well it did and now we're not just back, we're World Champions. How Sweet It Is!!!

Last week Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan told lawmakers that unless the General Assembly passes a new law that makes it tougher to buy ingredients to make methamphetamine, Illinois is in danger of becoming an island where meth makers come to buy or steal the pseudoephedrine (PSE) they need to make this dangerous drug.

Testifying before the House Judiciary Committee, Madigan urged the General Assembly to pass legislation she has drafted and proposed to bring Illinois law in line with its border states. Madigan's testimony follows three meth law enforcement summits she held this fall to hear from law enforcement and others about the need to toughen Illinois' restrictions on PSE.

The goal of the summits, which led to the drafting of Senate Bill 273, the Methamphetamine Precursor Control Act, was to examine the impact of neighboring states' laws in Illinois, discuss what solutions have worked to reduce meth manufacturing in other states and discuss what Illinois needs to do to protect its communities from the dangerous and illegal practice of meth production.

Senate Bill 273 is similar to an Iowa law which makes ephedrine and PSE "schedule V controlled substance" - meaning they must be kept behind pharmacy counters. The law requires that all single and multi-active ingredient products, tablets, liquids and gels be placed behind a counter. Although customers do not need a prescription, they must display a photo ID and sign a log.

Comptroller Dan Hynes has renewed his push for legislative reforms during the present veto session that would help end the appearance of pay-to-play politics in the awarding of state contracts.

The reform legislation was originally introduced last spring. The measures would mandate the following:

- Contractors with a total of more than $25,000 in state contracts would be barred from contributing to the office holder who awarded the contracts. This ban continues throughout the term of the office holder or for a period of two years after the conclusion of the contract. It would apply to all affiliated companies, executives, and subsidiaries, as well as the spouses and minor children of the contractor.

- For all contracts exceeding $10,000 in value, prospective bidders would be required to disclose all contributions to the office holder awarding the contract within the previous two years prior to the awarding of that contract.

Cynthia Canary, Director of the Illinois Campaign for Political Reform, endorsed the Hynes reform proposals and urged prompt attention. This legislative package goes a long way toward restoring integrity to the businesses of state government.

EDITORIAL/OPINION PAGE

Rep. Ray LaHood Is October Porker Of The Month

Citizens Against Government Waste (CAGW) recently named Rep. Ray LaHood (R-Ill.) the October Porker of the Month for preaching fiscal restraint in hurricane relief spending while seeking to protect and expand pork and wasteful spending in his home district. Rep. LaHood favors coupling drought relief money for Illinois with hurricane relief measures, played a key role in blocking a plan to consolidate Farm Service Agency (FSA) offices, rejected calls to return federal funding for local highway projects, and attempted to kill the Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC) process.

Rep. LaHood teamed up with other lawmakers to procure farm assistance money for Midwestern states, claiming that farmers should be compensated for disruptions to grain shipments on the Mississippi River after Hurricane Katrina. But farmers are already "compensated" by taxpayers to the tune of $17.8 billion per year with most of that money going to large farms and agribusinesses. Illinois farms were the third highest subsidized in the nation from 1995-2003, according to the Environmental Working Group. Comparing a cyclical drought to the worst natural disaster in U.S. history opens the federal trough to every special interest that can claim it was indirectly affected by the Gulf Coast hurricanes.

As a member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture, Rep. LaHood played a key role in scuttling a plan by the United States Dept. of Agriculture to close 713 of the 2,351 FSA offices, saving $50 million per year beginning in fiscal 2007. In an era when fewer farmers are tending larger farms and most of the paperwork is filed online, the FSA system still reflects the farming patterns of the 1930s. Rep. LaHood pledged to "fight-like-you-know-what" to prevent the consolidation of 26 FSA offices in Illinois. In fact, Rep. LaHood bragged about thwarting the reform "for the fifth or sixth" time.

Rep. LaHood also submitted a proposal to reject the BRAC Commission's recommendations to close or realign 182 military bases, including the Illinois National Guard's 183rd Fighter Wing. The plan would save $35.6 billion over 20 years and make the military more capable of facing modern threats. Fortunately, the House Armed Services Committee rejected Rep. LaHood's attempt to impede military transformation just to keep 15 fighter jets in his home district.

The $286.4 billion Transportation Equity Act (H.R. 3) includes about 6,400 pork-barreled projects costing taxpayers more than $24 billion. While some lawmakers and cities are offering to cancel local projects to help hurricane victims, Rep. LaHood has promised that the $44 million for local projects will not be cut (Peoria Journal Star, 10/14).

While Rep. LaHood claims to favor rebuilding the Gulf Coast in a "responsible way," he also calls it "a little unrealistic...to be having heartburn about the deficit." As further proof that the congressman is no friend of the taxpayer, his congressional rating of 29 percent from the Council for Citizens Against Government Waste is the lowest among House Republicans. For refusing to recognize the need for sacrifice in an emergency, for making empty and hypocritical statements in favor of fiscal responsibility, and for opposing sensible and cost-saving reforms, CAGW names Rep. Ray LaHood Porker of the Month for October 2005.

Social Security District Manager

There is still time to apply for extra financial help through the new Medicare prescription drug program that goes into effect on Jan. 1st, 2006.

These days, many Medicare beneficiaries may be trying to decide which of the Medicare plans to sign up for, since enrollment begins on Nov. 15th. But if you have limited income and resources, don't forget to see if you can qualify for extra help to pay for part of the monthly premiums, annual deductibles and prescription co-payments under the new prescription drug program.

That extra help could be worth an average of $2,100 per year for those who qualify.

Social Security is taking applications now from Medicare beneficiaries who may be eligible for the extra help. To qualify, an individual must have total annual income below $14,355 and resources limited to $10,000. The limits for a married couple living together are higher: $19,245 in combined annual income and $20,000 in resources. These resources can be slightly higher – an additional $1,500 per person – if some of the money will be used for burial expenses. Even if your annual income is higher, you still may be able to get some help if you support other family members who live with you; have earnings from work; or live in Alaska or Hawaii.

Some beneficiaries will qualify for the extra financial help automatically. Anyone who has both Medicare and Medicaid, or Medicare and Supplemental Security Income, or anyone whose state pays his or her Medicare premiums, will not have to complete an eligibility application.

Also, it is important that all beneficiaries understand that even if they qualify for the extra help, they still need to enroll in a Medicare-approved prescription drug plan to obtain both coverage and the extra help.

So remember: it is not too late to see if you qualify for some extra help with prescription drug costs. More than three million people have already applied. But if you are not one of them and you think that you might qualify for the extra help, you can complete an online application at www.socialsecurity.gov. Of you can contact Social Security at 1(800) 772-1213, TTY 1(800) 325-0778, and ask for an application in the mail, or request more information. But the clock is ticking, so do it today, and then enroll in the new Medicare prescription drug program between Nov. 15th, 2005 and May 15th, 2006.

Johnston Dies

Alice Johnston, a gifted writer, prolific reader, community activist and long-time editor at southwest suburban publications, died last Tuesday at the age of 77.

Her son, David, was a Geological Survey scientist who was killed in the 1980 eruption of Mt. St. Helens. The most popular viewing point of the volcano now bears the family name, "Johnston Ridge Observatory."

Johnston is survived by her husband, Thomas; her daughter, Patricia (Eric) Ruthenberg, three grandchildren for whom she constantly babysat; and many nieces and nephews.

Services were held at Blake-Lamb Funeral Home in Oak Lawn.

Illinois Division Of Child Support Receives National Award

The Illinois Division of Child Support's Acting Administrator Pam Compton received the Commissioner's Award for Exemplary Business Re-engineering in Washington, DC on Oct. 25th from the Federal Office of Child Support Enforcement (OCSE). Meanwhile, the Illinois Dept. of Revenue (IDOR) also announced that it has collected a record $2.8 million in delinquent child support in September alone.

Gov. Blagojevich has launched a number of innovative and aggressive programs to improve collection to help Illinois parents, including: a New Hire initiative web site that allows employers to report new employees online more conveniently and quickly, a Deadbeat Parents Web site that identifies parents who owe more than $5,000 in child support payments, which has resulted in the collection of over $172,000 in back payments, federal certification of the Key Information Delivery System (KIDS), the main computer for the child support process, and the Sheridan Rehabilitation Project that helps ex-offenders access jobs and training in order to meet their child support obligations.

All child support enforcement services are free and include the automatic location of employers, automatic service of income withholding notices, the submission of child support debt to credit reporting agencies and to the state and federal governments that can then intercept tax refunds, suspend or revoke professional and occupational licenses and deny passports. Information about applying is available on the HFS web site, www.hfs.illinois.gov.

Eastwood On Location

It was kept a secret to all but a select few, but Clint Eastwood spent the day in Blue Island last week directing a scene from the upcoming World War II movie, "Flags of Our Fathers."

The star of the movie, Ryan Phillippe, plays one of the six men who raised the flag in the Battle of Iwo Jima, an event captured in the famous picture. The character hails from a small town in 1940's Wisconsin, of which Blue Island is reminiscent. Eastwood's film is actually represents the fourth time in the past eighteen years that Blue Island has been used as a backdrop for movies or television. Most recently, some of the scenes from the TV Series, "Early Edition" (1996-2000) were shot in Blue Island.

FISHING THE ROCK RIVER: Whether I'm fishing any river, be it the Mississippi, St. Joe, Brule in Wisconsin, Kankakee, Illinois, Middle Fork of the Salmon River in Idaho, or dozens of other rivers, if there is a sand bar or rock bar, I'll find it and run aground with a canoe, raft or power boat.

A recent trip to the Rock River proved no exception. I knew the river was low, so I used my shallow-draft boat, a 14-footer with a 9.9 hp Mercury outboard. Previous trips to the river in normal and high water, I ran aground, so with the low water conditions I was extra cautious. But it happened. Jim Grady, Orland Park, and I ran aground five minutes after launching. The prop was dinged up pretty bad and it took both of us using oars to get the boat off the rock bar. We determined the damage was not bad enough to abandon the fishing trip.

It all started with a phone call indicating that walleyes were being taken at the dam in Dixon, Illinois. "Catfish" Bill Wesolowski, Oak Forest, and Bob Hicks, Alsip, had their boat in the water as Grady and I launched. If we had been there five minutes earlier, we could have followed their boat and missed that rock pile. Bill knows the Rock River like the back of his hand. We spent too much time talking to Ray at Bunny's Bait Shop, where we loaded up on minnows, nightcrawlers and Ray's hot tips of where to fish.

After six hours of fishing, and catching only white bass and drums, we called it quits, gave Bill and Bob our remaining live bait and headed home. It never fails, Bill called me the next day to tell me the walleyes turned on at 4:30.

The Rock River is well situated to provide fishing opportunities for a sizable portion of Northern Illinois' population. Fortunately the river is up to the task, with populations of catfish, walleye, northern pike, largemouth and smallmouth bass, white bass, sauger and panfish.

The Rock River rises near West Bend, Wisconsin and flows south 130 miles into Illinois where it takes a southwest course for 150 miles past Rockford, Oregon, Dixon, Sterling and Rock Island to empty into the Mississippi.

With its good sport fish populations, abundance of boat ramps, and close accessibility to a large number of Illinoisans, the Rock River is one of our more valuable aquatic resources. If you fish the river, watch out for the rock bars!

■THE WAIT IS OVER, SATURDAY IS THE BIG DAY: Pheasant, rabbit and quail hunting season begins at sunrise Nov. 5th, and runs through Jan. 8th, 2006. The daily limit on pheasant is two, quail is eight and rabbit is four. Be sure to read the Illinois Digest of Hunting Regulations for further details.

■GOVERNOR ROD BLAGOJEVICH VETOS A MUCH-NEEDED BILL: SB 2104 would set statewide standards for transporting firearms in vehicles, thus eliminating the patchwork of unfair and inconsistent local firearm ordinances across Illinois, while protecting law-abiding citizens from fines and prosecution under the current system.

■TWO-MAN, ONE DOG CHUKKAR CHALLENGE: Save the dates: Nov. 12th, Dec. 10th, Jan. 14th, Feb. 11th and March 11th. Green Acres Sportsman's Club in nearby Roberts, Illinois will have their Annual Chukkar Challenge. This is a six-bird, timed event. *Brand new point system *Teams optional *Open to members and non-members *The grill will be smokin' all day - Prizes! Prizes! Prizes: Top three of each event.

The March 11th event will be the Championship Challenge where the top five winners will compete for the Championship title.

For more information or to sign up, call the club at (217) 395-2588. These are fun live bird shoots for bird hunters and clay pigeon shooters. The goal is to find, shoot and retrieve the birds as quickly as possible, with the fewest number of shots.

■AQUATIC RESOURCES TRUST FUND RENEWED WITH MORE $$$ FOR SPORTSMEN: President George W. Bush signed the Transportation Equity Act, which includes language re-authorizing the fund better known as "Wallop Breaux" that provides approximately $600 million per year to boating safety, sport fish restoration, infrastructure and access programs and other important programs for the boating and angling community.

Most significantly, the language of the bill includes a recapture of the entire 18.3 cent gasoline tax attributable to motorboats, which means more than $110 million additional dollars each year for boating safety and fish restoration programs. Currently only 13.5 cents of the 18.3 cents collected on each gallon of motorboat fuel is transferred to the fund.

The increased funding will benefit all boaters, anglers, boat and accessory manufacturers, marina operators, state and local governments and all Americans who enjoy the nation's waterways.

Women's Tennis Prepared To Make A Racket

You can't "fault" the Moraine Valley women's tennis team for being so good this year. With two returning players and seven of last year's top area high school players on board, the Cyclones are poised for success.

Bill Finn, women's tennis coach and director of athletics, is confident in the team he's assembled this year.

Finn's enthusiasm is matched only by the team's talent. Team members include Agnes Sturniece, a strong hitting freshman who played for Riga Christian High School in Latvia; Charissa Bilotto, a court-savvy player who was ranked as last year's number one player at Eisenhower High School; Keiko Inoue, a second-year player from Japan with solid fundamental skills and great ground strokes; Nicole Showan, a second-year player from Oak Lawn High School with a "refuse to lose" attitude who has made significant improvement since last year; Carla Gunderson, a freshman top recruit from Oak Lawn with an aggressive playing style; Georgia Les, a first-year top recruit from Carl Sandburg High School who brings an intelligent game to the court; and Vanessa Chorne, a freshman from Queen of Peace High School whose court savvy makes her a dangerous competitor.

The Cyclones finished in 19th place at the National Junior College Athletic Assn. finals in Tucson, Arizona last season.

The cost of the camp is $75 per team and will be limited to eight teams. Registration and fees are required by Nov. 28th. For information and registration, call Coach Tom Pallardy at (708) 458-6900, ext. 255.

Player Of The Week

St. Xavier University sophomore kicker Shane Longest (Wilmington) was named the Special Teams Football Player of the Week by Don Hansen's National Weekly Football Gazette magazine on Wednesday following an impressive outing in the Cougars' 38-31 overtime win over No. 4 ranked St. Ambrose University (Iowa) last Saturday.

In a game where every point was essential, Longest played his role perfectly connecting on all five of his extra-point attempts and making a 30-yard field goal in the second quarter of Saturday's win. Longest also booted five kickoffs for a total of 274 yards, including one into the end zone for a touchback.

SXU Volleyball Falls To Lewis In Three Games

Despite team highs of nine kills and six digs from junior Paige Pedigo (Chicago Ridge, Queen of Peace), the St. Xavier University volleyball team dropped a three-game, non-conference match to NCAA Division II foe Lewis University (Ill.) on Thursday night (30-19, 30-18, 30-19) at Neil Cary Arena in Romeoville. The Cougars fall to 16-18 overall with the loss, while Lewis improves to 16-10.

Senior Carrie Mockovak (Burbank, Queen of Peace) also had a nice outing for SXU finishing with six kills. Senior setter Amy Stephens (Bowen, Camp Point Central) recorded 18 assists for the Cougars, while freshman Mallory Winkler (Burbank, Queen of Peace) turned in a game high four service aces.

Sports Valve

By Brad Allen

One last congratulations to the 2005 World Champion Chicago White Sox as I invite you to fall back inside the Sports Valve for another week. Hurry! It's getting chilly out there. Besides, the wind is blowing in the leaves!

Professional Sports: Speaking of leaves, you've heard the expression, "I could take it or leave it." Well, in a shameless use of puns, this week's professional sports section of the valve will have to do with things in Chicago sports that I could easily do without or ... if you will ... leave!

I want to get some of this out of my system now because, as we draw closer to Thanksgiving, I'll want to focus more on the things I am thankful for. In the meantime, the following is what I could take or leave:

Leave It ... I'll leave the recently acquired theme song of the White Sox, "Don't Stop Believing." I can't believe such a hard-nosed, gritty, down-and-dirty team would actually pick as their anthem a professional but polished, processed and pretty song from the 1980's hair band, Foreigner; especially since the song was supposedly initially adopted by some of the Sox players as a joke. While relaxing in a bar one evening, a bar patron was feeding the juke box machine when one of the White Sox players shouted out (and I'll clean this up a little) "Play some ^!#% Foreigner."

Leave It ... I'll leave the lock, stock and barrel rehiring of the entire Cubs coaching staff. Nice job, fellas! By the way, if I ever go back to coaching baseball, can you please conduct a baseball clinic ... for my team's opponents!

Leave It ... I'll leave the Chicago Bear Coach's recent statement that Kyle Orton will still be his guy even when Grossman returns. This is no slap against Kyle. I think he's doing a decent job considering he is a rookie operating out of an improving but still predictable playbook. But what if he is in a bad slump at the time of Grossman's return. And what if Grossman, with his brief but impressive track record, is standing on the sidelines chomping at the bit to get into a crucial game late in the season or playoffs? Did World Series winning Manager Ozzie Guillen make a premature decision on who was going to be his closer between Hermanson and Jenks weeks before an intelligent decision could possibly be made? Of course not! It's all about who's hot and who's not. It's all about using finesse in managing or coaching each situation as it comes - not mindlessly deferring to some general organizational/philosophical rule of thumb which is often inapplicable to the moment.

Leave It ... I'll leave the Blackhawks' assembling of a scrappy, grind-it-out type of team while the dramatic 2005 rule changes dictate that speed and skill kill! However, I do think that new GM Dale Tallon is a good hockey man and will succeed if Wirtz and Pulford give him the freedom to operate.

Leave It ... I'll leave the Bulls alone for now. They are in the formative stages of what will likely be a much better era than the last one. Paxson, Skiles and the kids are deserving of a grace period.

Time to leave the professional sports valve and enter into the amateur section of the valve.

Amateur Valve: Seconds anyone? The Andrew soccer team wishes they had a few more of those. It came down to the final two seconds of the second overtime, but Sandburg prevailed over Andrew 2-1 to become Sectional Soccer Champions. It was the second time this year that a battle between these two sworn rivals required the final seconds of a second overtime before the final outcome was decided.

Sports Tip Valve: This tip has to do with strength training for any sport. It is a weight resistance system that was developed by the Russians in the 1970's for their Olympic weightlifting team and, believe it or not, it has nothing to do with steroids. It is called "negative resistance." This weightlifting concept is only for athletes who are already in good shape and should only be done when accompanied by at least two spotters.

The principle is based on the reality that an athlete can lower more weight than he can raise. The technique works best with curls and bench presses. Have your spotters place the barbell in the raised position. You then lower the barbell as slowly as you can. This enables your muscles to become acclimated to a poundage never-before-reached through regular positive weightlifting. As a result, sooner than normal, you will be able to raise that poundage as well. Exit valve!

Assistance To Evacuees Living In Tinley Park

Until now, about 92 Hurricane Katrina evacuees were living at the Tinley Park Mental Health Center Shelter that was established at the center when calls for housing were made. Until now, the shelter was run on volunteer efforts the charity of caring people. The South Suburban PADS, an organization that runs a network of homeless shelters every winter, had the enormous task of coordinating the volunteers that helped the evacuees regain their lives.

The housing efforts that will now take place will be run by the Department of Human Services, who will, shortly, be contracting the day-to-day operations, including case managers, who will be helping the remaining evacuees find permanent or transitional housing. FEMA will approve and pay for these services.

It is stated that FEMA had sent 92 people to Tinley Park. Of the 92, several have left to be with family members in other states. Others have found jobs and permanent homes in Chicago. Eleven are slated to leave sometime during the week.

Reports state that FEMA sent 415 people to Illinois. Of that number only 190 were still in State shelters.

Trip To Outlet Mall

Join the Oak Forest Park District on Friday, Dec. 2 for a trip to the Chicago Premium Outlet Mall in Aurora. There are more than 120 outlet stores offering 25% to 65% savings everyday. The bus will leave the Central Park Building, 15601 S. Central Ave., at 8:30 a.m. and return at approximately 5 p.m. The fee for the day is $25. Registration is now being taken. For more information, call 687-7270.

Sister City Gives Donation

The survivors of Hurricane Katrina received a special gift from Tinley Park's Sister City in Germany. Wolfgang Drautz of Chicago's German Consulate brought a check for $12,000 from the people of the German village of Buding.

According to Tinley Park officials, Mayor Ed Zabrocki and Buding Mayor Erich Spamer have been in contact for 17 years. Zabrocki explained what had happened during Hurricane Katrina. After the conversation, Mayor Spamer and the people of Buding, about 6,000 strong, collected and donated a total of 10,000 euros or $12,000.

All of the evacuees that have been housed at Tinley Park Mental Health Center received $100.

All Kids Program

The Illinois Senate approved Governor Rod R. Blagojevich's landmark proposal on Oct. 26th that would make Illinois the only state in the nation to provide affordable, comprehensive health insurance for every child in the state. After a vote of 32 to 23 in the Senate, the legislation now moves to the Illinois House of Representatives for final passage. House Bill 806, creating All Kids, is sponsored by State Senate President Emil Jones and House Speaker Michael J. Madigan.

In Illinois, 253,000 children are without health insurance. More than half of Illinois' uninsured children come from working and middle class families who earn too much to qualify for programs like KidCare, but not enough to afford private health insurance. The Governor's program would make comprehensive health insurance available to children, with parents paying monthly premiums and co-payments for doctor's visits and prescription drugs at affordable rates.

Participants in the new program will pay monthly premiums and co-payments for doctors' visits and prescriptions, but unlike private insurance that is too expensive for so many families, the rates for All Kids coverage will be based on a family's income. The state is able to offer All Kids insurance coverage at much lower than market rates for middle-income families by leveraging the significant negotiating and buying power it already has through Medicaid.

For example, a family with two children that earns between $40,000 and $59,000 a year will pay a $40 monthly premium per child, and a $10 co-pay per physician visit. A family with two children earning between $60,000 and $79,000 will pay a $70 monthly premium per child, and a $15 co-pay per physician visit. However, there will be no co-pays for preventative care visits, such as annual immunizations and regular check ups and screenings for vision, hearing, appropriate development or preventative dental. These premiums for middle-income families are significantly more affordable than typical private insurance premiums of $100 to $200 a month, or $2,400 per child annually.

The state will cover the difference between what parents contribute in monthly premiums and the actual cost of providing health care for each child, expected to be $45 million in the first year, with savings generated by implementing a primary care case management model (PCCM) for participants in the state's FamilyCare and All Kids health care programs. Participants will choose a single primary physician who will manage their care by ensuring they get immunizations and other preventative health care services and avoid unnecessary emergency room visits and hospitalizations. Patients with chronic conditions like asthma or diabetes will have a single care manager to make sure they are getting the treatments and ongoing care they need to avoid acute care. Primary care physicians will make referrals to specialists for additional care or tests as needed.

By ensuring patients get adequate preventative care on the front end, fewer people will need expensive specialized care or emergency care for critical conditions. In children, preventative care is especially important. For example, infants with stomach flu (gastroenteritis) who receive appropriate primary care can avoid being hospitalized for dehydration. Providing a timely exam and appropriate antibiotic treatment for children with ear infections (otitis media) can prevent chronic ear problems, loss of hearing and the need for surgically placed tubes to relieve fluid build up. Treating children with bronchitis or minor lung infections in a primary care setting can help to avoid more expensive hospitalization treatment of pneumonia, including intravenous antibiotics and respiratory treatments. And early identification and appropriate treatment of children who have chronic illnesses, such as asthma, will result in fewer expensive emergency room and inpatient care visits.

If the legislation passes during the fall veto session, which began Oct. 25th, the All Kids program can be up and running by July 1, 2006. More information about All Kids is available online at www.allkidscovered.com.

The other day I awoke in a quandary. When I opened my eyes, I realized I was a fan of the World Champion Chicago White Sox. It really wasn't a dream. It was reality.

The problem I have is that ever since I went to that first game at Comiskey Park in May of 1969 when I was four years old, I have been aware of this feud between the Chicago White Sox fans and the Chicago Cubs fans. The feud started heating up for me in 1983 when I was just 18 years old. That was the year the Sox were supposed to make it, but then didn't. The Cubs had their chances in the late eighties and the Sox were supposed to do it in 1993 or 1994. Then came the 2000 Sox and then the fateful 2003 Cubs.

Spring training of 2005 had the Cubs in the playoffs and the Sox in third or fourth in the AL Central. But throughout the summer, it became a rabid state on the South Side. They were in first from Day One. They were in first at the All Star Break. And they were first going into the month of September, only to give all the Sox fans a scare and all the Cub fans the opportunity to get the dreaded collapse of 1969 off their backs.

But alas, the post season came to Chicago once again, and miracle of miracles, the Sox made it to the World Series! Imagine that! And better yet, they won in convincing fashion. Molly and Lenny stayed up to about 10:00 pm and I sent them to bed during the scoreless game with a promise that I would wake them if it looked like they would win. As the bottom of ninth started, I had the kids come down and share a blanket with me on the couch. I told them that this could be history for us and that this one was for Grandpa. I will never forget the excitement felt by all of us when the final out was recorded. The look on the faces of Debbie, Molly and Lenny will forever be emblazoned in my memory as the Magical Year came to a close.

After I put them to bed, I started calling my fellow Sox fan friends and share in the good times. One of my favorite calls was to an 81 year-old client of mine, Adolph. He is the biggest Sox fan I know of the old era and he sounded like a teenager whooping it up on the phone.

For a brief moment, I thought of calling my Cub friend fans and rub it in. You know, be the typical Sox fan that we are accused of being. I mean, face it, there is a fine line from just joshing about the two clubs and true sarcasm and maliciousness. We have all crossed it at one time or the other. I chose to go to bed without calling any of them.

Thursday morning came and that is when my troubles started. As I have said, all my life I have dealt with this contest of who would get there first, the Sox or the Cubs. The Sox had won and now that empty feeling of what did I have to look forward to now that it was over appeared. Is this how the Hatfields and the McCoys felt when their feud was over? I was confused.

Throughout the day I continued to share good times with fellow White Sox fanatics and some wagon jumpers as well. The few Cub fans that I talked to were very gracious and we got along well. But there was one Cub fan friend that I knew was hurting quite a bit. He will remain nameless, (but his job title is Superintendent of School District #143) who left a simple message of congratulations on my voicemail. I could tell that quite a few Sox fans were ribbing him just by his message. I tried to reach him to talk but he was out of the office. He returned my call later, only to give a more confused half congratulatory, half concession speech on his second message. And that is when it truly hit me. I wanted to talk to him in person to let him know that this Sox fan was not about to rub it in. This Sox fan was not going to act like a six year old and na-na-na-nah him to death.

That being said, here is to all my die-hard Cub fan friends and family, Mike Hollingsworth, Joe Mariscal, Mike Borden, Roger Lawrence, Larry Ryan, Dominic Bartolini, Mike Culver and above all, my best friend, Fred Rutz. My sincere wish is that sometime in your lifetime, I hope that you have the opportunity to sit on your couch with your children on each side of you, and experience the feeling I did when your Chicago Cubs become the World Champions. I hope you can always remember the look on your children's face when they get to experience a piece of history with you. I hope that you too will be able to feel the great rush of emotion that I did. I truly do.

Of course there is still enough Sox fan in me to wish that you were sitting in diapers at the Nursing Home when this happens. Just kidding.

Until next year....

MIDLOTHIAN POLICE CALLS

On Oct. 22nd at 12:51 a.m. a Midlothian police officer was assigned to an attempted robbery at Hog Wild, 14933 Pulaski Rd. As the responding officer arrived two other officers were pursuing the subject behind the Willow Crest Condominiums across from Hog Wild. The subject ran out of the field and disappeared from the sight of the officers. Units checked the area with negative results. The responding officer returned to Hog Wild and spoke with the owner who said no entry was made and nothing was missing. There was a large rock sitting next to the front door with broken glass from beer bottles; but because the door is plexi-glass the rock bounced off causing minor scratches. The owner has a security camera and was going to notify the police at a later date when the videos were downloaded. There was no further report.

On Oct. 22nd at 7:24 p.m. an officer responded to the 14800 block of Kilpatrick to assist the ambulance. Upon arrival the officer met with firefighters who advised Michael R. Seawell, 38, of Midlothian was inside and they were assisting with an overdose of heroin. Approximately 2.5 grams of heroin and drug paraphernalia was found. Seawell was taken into custody for unlawful possession of a controlled substance pending his discharge from the hospital when he will be processed.

On Oct. 23rd at 3:12 p.m. unlawful use of a credit card was reported. The victim stated an unknown person used the credit card to make three transactions at the 7-11, 3950 W. 147th St., without permission. Two transactions occurred on Oct. 17th for $40 and $32.33 and one on Oct. 19th for $30.01. There was no further report.

On Oct. 23rd at 6:25 p.m. an officer was assigned for a domestic disturbance in the 14300 block of Millard. When the officer attempted to apprehend Denis P. Lynch, 37, of Midlothian at his residence Lynch jumped from a window. When he was told to stop Lynch ran and the officer pursued him, but lost sight of him. The officer then found Lynch lying in the creek to avoid arrest. When attempting to apprehend Lynch he ran again but was caught. When the officer tried to handcuff Lynch he continued to fight the officer, pushed the officer and struck him several times with a closed fist about the face and chest. The officer also received an injury to the hand. Lynch was taken to South Suburban Hospital from the scene. When he was released to the Midlothian Police Department for processing Lynch was charged with battery and resisting arrest.

For Troops

To help kick-off Operation Gratitude's holiday donation drive and reach American troops overseas, the Jeep® brand is expanding its partnership with Operation Gratitude, by making the nearly 2,800 Jeep dealerships nationwide including Mancari's Chrysler Jeep Of Crestwood, Inc. official "drop zone" locations. The announcement was made in a dramatic fashion by having an all-new 2006 Jeep Commander and seven skydivers drop 1,200 feet from a Sikorsky helicopter.

Operation Gratitude is a national non-profit organization that collects comfort items and letters of appreciation from the American public and ships them to service members overseas.

In order to reach troops in time for the holidays, Jeep dealerships have begun collecting donations for Operation Gratitude. Consumers are encouraged to drop off items ranging from packs of gum and tuna salad kits to CDs and DVDs. For a complete list of needed items, consumers can visit www.jeep.com or www.OperationGratitude.com.

Pool Property

A parcel of 'Grassy Land,' in the 14900 block of Park Ave., which was once the El Vista Pool Property, is back on the table of the Oak Forest Park District board. The property, which has been largely ignored in plans to use it as park property, had residents protesting its sale. They had asked the board to find out if the land could be used as a roller-hockey arena or splash pad.

The park board recently approved an ordinance that allows the park district attorney to go out for bids on the property. After the bids are received, the board must go before a judge to hold a hearing on whether the public land is surplus.

In the past, the board did not have the money to improve the property, nor was it in an ideal location for development. Heritage Park is two blocks east of the property and it includes tennis courts, a playground and a grassy area. It is also in a densely populated area with homes all around it.

THE SOUTH BEACH DIET

If you love to eat good food, the South Beach Diet may be right for you! Last week at the American Dietetic Association annual meeting in St. Louis, I had the opportunity to spend some time with Arthur Agatston, MD, founder of the South Beach Diet, and here's what I learned.

As a cardiologist, Dr. Agatston originally had in mind not a weight loss diet, but a diet to help his patients with heart attacks and strokes. Dr. Agatston's patients were not faring well on the American Heart Association Diet - in fact, they were getting heavier and their blood chemistries were getting worse. So he studied the work of earlier physician pioneers, which led him to a new diet plan, encouraging a variety of foods - lean protein, low fat cheeses and dairy, whole grains, fruits and veggies, and good fats like olive and canola oils.

The South Beach Diet is structured in three phases, allowing you to choose foods for your meals and snacks. Phase 1 is the strictest period, lasting 14 days. You have three balanced meals a day, with normal size portions, and snacks in the morning and mid-afternoon. Drinking plenty of water is a must! Regular coffee is not allowed, but decaf is. For the first 14 days, starches are eliminated completely. Sweets and alcohol are out! You should notice looser clothing and a slight weight loss at the end of this phase. And a new way of selecting foods!

Phase 2 reintroduces carbs, along with lean meats, cheeses, and other dairy foods. Whole grains are allowed, including bread, brown rice, and whole grain cereals. Wine and light beer are allowed on occasion.

As a result of the change in your diet, you will continue to lose weight after the initial 14-day period, even though you will start adding more variety to your food choices. You will remain in phase 2 and continue losing weight until you reach your goal. Once you hit your target, you'll switch to an even more liberal version of the program, which will help you to maintain your weight loss.

Phase 3 is the stage that lasts the rest of your life! When you get to this point, you'll notice that this plan feels less like a diet and more like a lifestyle—because it is a lifestyle!

I might add that Dr. Agatston has developed a line of meals and snacks which are available now at many grocery stores across the country. Among those I have tried, his cinnamon raisin snack bars rate highest in my book! They are sweet and crunchy, are moderate in calories and fat (140 calories per bar to be exact), and contain fiber.

The South Beach Diet book is available at most book stores. As always, talk to your physician if you have special dietary needs. And see a dietitian for the guidance and support you may require. Weight loss is never easy, but you can at least make it less stressful!

Crotty Co-Sponsors "All Kids" Plan

The Illinois Senate has convened for its annual veto session, and State Sen. Maggie Crotty (D-Oak Forest) has signed on to co-sponsor one of the bills that has proven to be the highlight of this year's fall meeting of the legislature.

In an address to the Illinois General Assembly on Oct. 25th, Gov. Blagojevich outlined his ambitious "ALL KIDS" program, which is designed to bring health insurance coverage to the approximately 253,000 children in Illinois living without it. Over half of these children are from middle class families that earn too much money to qualify for programs like KidCare, but not enough money to pay for private health insurance.

"ALL KIDS provides access for children to good, affordable health insurance," said Sen. Crotty. "I am more than happy to sign on as a co-sponsor to this important legislation."

The ALL KIDS program uses the state's leverage and buying power to negotiate rates far lower than parents could receive on their own. ALL KIDS will include doctor and hospital visits, dental coverage, vision and hearing care and prescription drug assistance. Parents will pay monthly premiums and make co-payments for doctor visits and prescription drug purchases. For families earning between $40,000 and $60,000 annually, monthly premiums would be $40 per child. Those families earning between $60,000 and $80,000 would pay $70 in monthly premiums per child. If enacted, Illinois would become the first state in the nation where every child has access to quality, affordable health-care.

"This is an excellent opportunity to bring health care coverage to the children of this state, and I am optimistic that this legislation will become law in the very near future," said Sen. Crotty.

Classic Fairy Tales

Paige Coffman is an enchantress. She casts her spells by staging contemporary musical versions of classic fairy tales for young audiences, transforming children into life-long lovers of live theater.

Executive Director of the Chicago Kids Company, a not-for-profit theater group, Coffman has been enchanting Chicago youngsters for about 20 years, first as a professional actress and now as a writer, producer and director. She is currently producing "Little Red Riding Hood" through Nov. 18 at the Beverly Arts Center, 2407 W. 111th St., Chicago.

In this version of the story, Little Red Riding Hood, Lauren Wolf (left), meets not just a silly old wolf, played by Matt Rudy (right), but a few of the favorite characters from other fairy tales on her way to visit Grandma. As an introductory offer to area families, tickets to the Sunday, Nov. 6 show (12:30 p.m.) are buy three/get one free. Regular show times are 10:30 a.m. Nov. 8, 10, 14, 15, 16, 17, and 18, and 12:30 p.m. Nov. 6 and 11. Individual tickets are $8; discounts are available for groups of 20 or more.

As part of her commitment to bringing live theater to children, Coffman is offering special ticket discounts to schools and other groups whose field trips are being priced out by increasing transportation costs. Families can take advantage of savings by purchasing tickets to all four upcoming plays and saving $1 on each ticket.

First Lady Honors Breast Cancer Survivors

In her ongoing efforts to promote breast cancer awareness, First Lady Patti Blagojevich joined Y-ME Illinois and 1,500 breast cancer advocates at the Y-ME Illinois Annual Fashion Show and Luncheon on Oct. 29th to honor breast cancer survivors in Illinois and to encourage annual breast cancer screening and mammograms. Early detection has proven to significantly increase a woman's likelihood of recovery from breast cancer.

The First Lady's participation in the Y-ME Fashion Show builds on her ongoing efforts to raise awareness about breast cancer. Earlier in October the First Lady kicked off Breast Cancer Awareness Month by encouraging African-American women and members of their churches to host "Pink Potlucks," a social event that promotes women's health awareness. In addition, the first lady announced $700,000 in Penny Sevens Breast, Cervical and Ovarian Cancer Research Grants and presented the People Are Today's Heroes (PATH) Award on behalf of the Governor to Dr. Olufunmilayo I. Olopade of the University of Chicago for her dedication to breast cancer research.

Breast cancer is the most commonly diagnosed type of cancer among women 20 years of age and older in the United States. Women diagnosed with breast cancer, on average, have an 88% survival rate for the first five years. When breast cancer is diagnosed early, this five-year survival rate increases to 98%. An October study by the Cancer Intervention and Surveillance Modeling Network Collaborators estimated that breast cancer screening reduced the rate of death from breast cancer by up to 23 percent, and found that treatment is likely to be more effective if cancer is detected at an earlier stage. It is estimated that approximately 1,700 women will die from breast cancer in Illinois this year.

This year, Y-ME Illinois will provide assistance to more than 10,000 newly diagnosed breast cancer patients in Illinois. The Y-ME Illinois Fashion Show and Luncheon raises more than $250,000 annually to support breast cancer patients throughout Illinois. This year's event, titled, "Everyone is a Star," paid tribute to all women breast cancer survivors. This year marked the silver anniversary of this annual event.

Durbin Statement On Big Oil's Staggering Profits

Last Thursday (10/27) U.S. Senator Dick Durbin (D-IL) issued the following statement after Exxon Mobil reported the largest quarterly profits in U.S. history:

"Illinois consumers, businesses and farmers have spent over $2.5 billion more this year for gasoline than last year. High energy costs are pushing family budgets to the limit and becoming a serious drag on our economy."

"Don't blame hurricanes or Saudi sheiks for these outrageous gasoline prices. It's the greed of Big Oil. Today, Exxon Mobil reported the largest quarterly profits in U.S. history: $9.9 billion - straight from your credit card to their corporate boardroom."

"Americans may not be surprised that Big Oil is posting their largest profits ever, but they are losing patience with the Republican-led Congress for ignoring the high cost of energy. Americans need relief at the gas pump, help paying this winter's heating bills and a long term plan to lessen our dependence on foreign oil. Instead they are getting left out in the cold."

"That is why I have proposed a Windfall Profit Tax on the largest oil and gas companies. My legislation ensures that the revenue generated by the Windfall Profit Tax will be used to provide a direct rebate to consumers, fund the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program, provide financial incentives to auto makers to make more efficient vehicles and provide States with additional resources for transit and highway projects."

My son John Hansen, who is now a National Service Officer in training with the Disabled American Veterans in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, attended the DAV Wisconsin Fall Conference in Wisconsin Rapids from Oct. 27th to Oct. 30th (his birthday by the way). Recently he and a fellow worker made a five-day tour of Wisconsin with the Service Officers Mobile Unit to assist veterans with their claims. John really loves his job. As a part of his new position he needed to transfer his membership from the New Lenox Chapter to one in Wisconsin so he is now a member of a DAV Chapter in Greendale, Wisconsin, the town where he now resides. As you may have guessed, I miss him and his wife Anne.

Moraine Valley Theater To Present South Pacific

"One Enchanted Evening" in 1943 four lovers find happiness during World War II despite looming invasions on the Japanese in South Pacific, the first show in Moraine Valley's 2005-06 Academic Theater Series. Performances will be at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 10th to 12th and 3 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 13th in the Dorothy Menker Theater in the Fine and Performing Arts Center on campus, 9000 W. Keep Warm Illinois

Following the launch of the Keep Warm Illinois campaign on Nov. 1st, Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced that winter heating grants are now available for all income-eligible households through the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) to help Illinoisans meet their winter heating needs. He urged families who may be eligible for LIHEAP to apply early given the anticipated rise in heating bills this winter and to take steps now to conserve energy by weatherizing their homes.

Through LIHEAP, a state- and federally-funded energy assistance program run by the Illinois Department of Healthcare and Family Service (HFS), heating bill payments are made on behalf of households with incomes of up to 150 percent of the federal poverty level. Gov. Blagojevich made LIHEAP funding available on Sept. 1 to households with elderly or disabled members and those currently without home heating due to service disconnections.

A single-person household can qualify for LIHEAP with a monthly income of up to $1,196, a two-person household up to $1,604, and a family of four can earn up to $2,420. Benefits are paid directly to the household's appropriate utility. The energy grant applications are processed through a network of 35 local administering agencies around the state. These agencies accept applications on a first-come, first-served basis until funding for the program is exhausted. For a complete listing of LIHEAP's local administering agencies and additional information about the grant program, go to www.liheapillinois.com, or call the toll-free LIHEAP information line at 1-800-252-8643. The winter heating program is expected to reach 300,000 households this winter with an estimated $150 million in state and federal funding.

Governor Blagojevich launched the Keep Warm Illinois campaign and website to help all Illinoisans stay warm, healthy and safe this winter. The Keep Warm Illinois campaign is a comprehensive effort to inform and prepare Illinois residents, especially the elderly, families with small children and persons with disabilities, for record high home heating costs this winter. It will include unprecedented coordination between state agencies as well as a statewide public awareness effort in partnership with community colleges and Clear Channel Radio in Chicago to help inform Illinoisans about winter preparations and resources available.

Governor's Key Gun Control Vetoes

Illinois State Police (ISP) Director Larry G. Trent was joined by the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police and gun safety advocates recently seeking to uphold Governor Rod R. Blagojevich's vetoes of Senate Bill 57, Senate Bill 2104 and House Bill 340. Backed by the National Rifle Association (NRA), these bills, if enacted, would have mandated the destruction of all gun purchase records, eliminated the waiting-period for gun owners trading in weapons, and overridden laws dealing with transportation of firearms in local communities.

During the Spring 2005 Legislative Session, the NRA supported Senate Bill 57, which tied the gun show loophole legislation designed to keep guns out of the hands of criminals together with a bill that would mandate the destruction of all records of attempts to purchase guns. Governor Blagojevich signed Senate Bill 1333 earlier this year, which closed the gun show loophole without endangering law enforcement personnel and tying the hands of prosecutors.

This summer Governor Blagojevich vetoed Senate Bill 57 and two other bills that would weaken protections designed to prevent criminals from purchasing and carrying guns: Senate Bill 2104 and House Bill 340, all backed by the NRA.

SB 2104 would have overridden local laws concerning the transportation of firearms. The veto allows many towns and cities across Illinois, including Chicago, that have stricter firearm laws to keep their communities safe by enforcing laws that they deem appropriate. The Senate recently voted 38-20 to override the Governor's veto on SB 2104. The veto still must be overridden in the House before the legislation becomes law.

The Governor also vetoed HB 340 because it would have eliminated the waiting period for gun owners trading in firearms, allowing an individual to trade-in a hunting rifle or small caliber handgun for a military-style assault weapon without delay.

The most sweeping changes to the Medicare Program since its inception in the 1960's will occur this year with the introduction of Medicare PART D. Medicare has always covered hospital stays, skilled nursing facilities, and doctors' visits. Beginning January 1, 2006, it will also cover drugs. This benefit will provide reliable, affordable, guaranteed access to the medications needed most by those eligible to enroll. Anyone on Medicare, regardless of income or resources can enroll.

On average, seniors can expect to save up to 50% on their total drug costs, even after paying their monthly premiums and co-payments. For those seniors meeting the guidelines established by the federal government for limited income and resources (less than $14,355 a year for individuals and $19,245 a year for couples) extra help is available through the State "No Senior Left Behind" program. Of the insurance companies offering drug coverage in Illinois, twelve will have prescription drug plans available with no premium to beneficiaries who qualify for that extra help. To receive the reduced expense, individuals need to apply at their Social Security office or request an application by calling 1-800-772-1213.

In Illinois, Medicare recipients will be able to get prescription drug coverage on January 1st through their choice of either a newly approved, stand-alone prescription drug plan (PDP) that works with traditional Medicare, or a Medicare Advantage plan (Managed Care) that offers drug coverage and other benefits.

Consumers can choose from seventeen (17) Prescription Drug Plans (PDPs) operating in Illinois. The enrollment period will extend from November 15, 2005 until May 15, 2006. All Medicare prescription drug plans will provide at least a standard level of coverage to all enrollees. These plans will differ in terms of their formularies (lists of covered drugs) and CMS (Medicare) will require plans to cover a range of drugs in the most commonly prescribed classes to make sure that people with different medical conditions can get the treatment they need. An "exceptions and appeals" process will be in place to ensure access to non-formulary drugs (non-covered drugs).

Each of the 17 competing plans will offer different options for consumers with regard to the cost of the monthly premium, the cost of the individual drugs, the availability of different drugs, and "enhanced" plans that offer additional benefits beyond the Medicare standard drug coverage. Some plans will have zero deductibles or deductibles lower than Medicare's initial $250 deductible. The weighted average monthly premium for Illinois PDP plans is $31.85, slightly below the national average of $32.20.

Obviously, the cost of each plan affects the range of the formulary (drug list) for that plan, although every formulary must include at least two drugs in each therapeutic category and class of covered Part D drugs: antidepressants, antiretrovirals, antipsychotics, anticonvulsants, antineoplastics and immunosuppressants. Certain categories must contain all or substantially all of the medications in that category.

The purpose of all these competing plans is to give private consumers as much choice as possible to find the most cost effective plan to meet their needs. All of the PDPs will be competing and marketing their plans to Medicare beneficiaries in the coming weeks. The potential for a great deal of confusion, hesitancy and uncertainty among the elderly is paramount. There are numerous sources available to make a conscientious decision. Starting October 15th consumers can access an on-line comparison site that will assist consumers in choosing the PDP best suited to their medication needs.

Thank comparison site can be found at www.cms.hhs.gov/pdps. Within the coming weeks, CMS will be mailing out a new booklet "Medicare & You" describing the new drug benefit program and more information on how to sign up starting November 15th.

Even if you do not take a lot of prescription drugs now, it's still very important to consider enrolling. As we age, most people need prescription drugs to stay healthy. Enrolling now means you pay a lower monthly premium than if you join after the open enrollment period, which ends on May 15, 2006.

Current Medicare beneficiaries who do not sign up by May 15th will face a 1% per month penalty on their monthly premium if they eventually do choose Medicare Part D. For example, if a beneficiary waits ten months after May 15, 2006 to enroll, their monthly premium will be 10% higher. Thus, a beginning premium offered at $32.20 a month will now be $35.42 a month. How to Pick the Best Plan for You

- List the medications you take and the dosage
- List what you currently pay for your prescription drugs
- List the name, address and phone number for the pharmacies you are using
- Talk to your family members, health care providers or pharmacist about choosing the best plan for you

Website For Parents & Guardians About Childcare Facilities

In a continued effort to provide Chicago parents with resources for their children, the Department of Chicago and Youth Services and the Chicago Public Schools have developed an informational map-based website to help parents and guardians locate early childcare facilities throughout Chicago — www.earlychildhoodchicago.org.

Through the website, users enter a specific address and a customized map reveals all of the city-supported infant, preschool and toddler programs. Parents, guardians, teachers and others can also use the online website as an informational guide that describes the types of programs offered at each site.

The Department of Children and Youth Services administers federal, state and city funds for more than 300 organizations citywide that provide various programs for children and youth from infancy to age 18. CYS is dedicated to meeting the needs of Chicago's youngest citizens.

Strike Ends

Everybody's happy! Chicago Ridge School District 1277 has resumed its school year as of Monday after a strike had left 1,300 children, 88 teachers and 3 schools inactive for one week.

Parents of students are no longer scrambling to make temporary child care arrangements; the kids are no longer falling behind in their education; and the teachers have had removed from them a feeling that their time was not appreciated.

The District and Chicago Ridge Education Association negotiated through two marathon meetings totaling 14 hours before reaching agreement. The teachers' new contract provides for a 21 percent salary hike over the next four years, as well as an extended school day whereby 30 minutes of "instructional time" will be added to each school day. The extra half hour will go into effect at the beginning of the next school year.

As for the seven days missed, this agreement provided for four of those days to be made up.

Two Penny Social

The Oak Lawn Community Church, 9000 S. Ridgeland Ave. will hold a Two Penny Social, Nov. 12th, at 5 p.m. Drawings begin at 6 p.m.

There will be hundreds of gifts to be raffled. There will also be a 50/50 Split the Pot. Food and bakery items will be available.

Students Commended

To qualify for the Commended Student award, they scored in the top five percent of the more than 1,000,000 high school students who took the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test last spring.

St. Xavier University Offers Class

St. Xavier University has partnered with the Chicago Public Schools to offer an honors algebra class to gifted 7th graders in its public schools.

Michael Hardy, assistant professor and director of the Mathematics Education Program at SXU, set up the class to teach 9th grade honors level algebra to mathematically gifted 7th graders after being contacted in the summer by the Office of Academic Enhancement for the Chicago Public Schools. While Hardy set up the class and the curriculum, the Chicago Public Schools provided textbooks and calculators for the class and is funding the program.

The 20 students attend the class every Friday morning from area Chicago public schools including Addams, Ariel, Caldwell, Cullen, Earhart, Finkl, Grimes, Hale, Hoyne, Lee, Peck, Pershing, Sawyer, Seward, Sutherland & Woodson. The class will continue to meet weekly throughout the school year.

To participate in the program, the students had to score at or above the 95th percentile in mathematics on the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test). The students and their parents or guardians are responsible for transporting them to and from SXU, and students are expected to make up any class work and homework they miss as a result of participating in the algebra course.

The Chicago Public Schools system has had similar gifted programs at area universities for many years, but this is the first such partnership with SXU, which is located in Chicago's Mt. Greenwood neighborhood.

Veto Keeps Gun Laws Intact

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich applauded members of the Illinois House of Representatives for upholding his veto of legislation on Nov. 2nd that would have weakened gun restrictions across the state. The governor's veto of Senate Bill 2104 allows Illinois municipalities to continue regulating their own gun transport laws. Many cities across Illinois, including Chicago, have stricter firearm laws to keep their communities safe by enforcing laws that they deem appropriate. The Governor's veto, and the House's action on Nov. 3rd, keeps those laws intact.

Senate Bill 2104 is one of three gun bills backed by the National Rifle Association (NRA) that the Governor vetoed following the 2005 legislative session. The other two bills would have weakened protections designed to prevent criminals from purchasing guns, and destroyed the firearm purchase database.

Governor Blagojevich vetoed Senate Bill 57, which tied the gun show loophole legislation designed to keep guns out of the hands of criminals together with a bill that would mandate the destruction of all records of attempts to purchase guns. Governor Blagojevich signed Senate Bill 1333 earlier this year, which closed the gun show loophole without endangering law enforcement personnel and tying the hands of prosecutors.

The Governor also vetoed HB 340 this summer because it would have eliminated the waiting-period for gun owners trading in firearms, allowing an individual to trade-in a hunting rifle or small caliber handgun for a military-style assault weapon without delay.

The most sweeping changes to the Medicare Program since its inception in the 1960's will occur this year with the introduction of Medicare PART D.

Medicare has always covered hospital stays, skilled nursing facilities, and doctors' visits. Beginning January 1, 2006, it will also cover drugs. Letter To The Editor:

Why not choose Gonzales for the U.S. Supreme Court? ["Why not choose a Latino?" Chicago Tribune, 11/4/05. (None)] But U.S. Atty. Alberto Gonzales?

Because the torture friendly slough who slipped into the Office of U.S. Attorney General should, in all likelihood, be indicted along with a few other Bush louses who condoned (if not sanctioned or at minimum acquiesced in) torture policies at Abu Ghraib Prison, Guantanamo Bay, in the nooks and crannies of Afghanistan and the "black sites" of the CIA. Read yesterday's Trib (11/3/05) - "U.S. policy of 'no torture, no excuses' urged."

Bush, Jr., Cheney, Rumsfeld, Rove, Rice, Gonzales and a few U.S. military generals (for starters) can't all know nothing and about everything and should be impeached and/or indicted, as the law may allow and the facts may reveal, for their suspected crimes against the human race (invasion, torture, mass bombing, home invasion, deception, lying, Plame outing, Halliburton non-bidding...). An International Criminal Court (Bush is not for it for some reason) or perhaps the jury that hears Saddam's Case, should review the actions of American leaders regarding torture and nominate accordingly.

This is one American angered by torture and human rights violations regardless of who is doing the abusing or who is being abused. This conduct is not emanating from the America I know and believe in.

Why not Attila The Hun for U.S. Supreme Court justice? He has experience, knows how to extract the truth, and rules accordingly with dispatch. And he's not a liberal.

Friend Of MADD Award

The Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) has been singled out by the Illinois chapter of Mothers Against Driving Drunk (MADD) for its annual "Friend of MADD" Award. MADD Illinois chose IDOT's Division of Traffic Safety, citing the close cooperation that has enabled the anti-impaired driving group to get its message out more effectively.

Susan McKinney, executive director of MADD Illinois, said the agency earned the accolade through its pro-active efforts to increase the level of cooperation and coordination with MADD.

McKinney added that this close working relationship was highlighted at the State Fair in August, when the two organizations shared space inside the Traffic Safety Division's booth.

"For the first time, MADD Illinois was significantly displayed at the State Fair and we had more visitors who received valuable information and heard our message of 'Don't Drink and Drive!' than ever before," McKinney said. "We appreciate the support of the Division and hope this is only the beginning of a long, cooperative relationship."

Observe Organ Donor Sabbath

St. Michael's, one of the largest parishes in the south suburban area, will participate next weekend of the annual Organ Donor Sabbath. The church is located at 143rd and Highland Ave. in Orland Park.

On hand to answer questions about organ donation will be the John J. Gill family. John's wife Joan was on dialysis for 10 years waiting for a kidney. In 1979 she finally received a kidney from a 42-year-old man who died of a brain aneurysm. She had her kidney for 15 years and died in 2003 of a heart attack. Her transplanted kidney had continued to function right to the end.

Two of Gill's daughters will be there to tell of their kidney transplant. Janice Gill of Orland Park received a kidney transplant in 1995. The Gill family calls her transplant a miracle because she received the transplant one day before her first dialysis treatment. The kidney came from a 12-year-old girl who died from a fall. Yet that family was able to think of helping others despite the tremendous grief that happens to anyone who has lost a child.

The Gills' middle daughter, Jo Ann Villanueva of Oak Forest, received a kidney from her older sister, Suzanne Ruff of Eden Prairie, Minn., on Oct. 19th last year. Other recipients and donor families will assist in answering any questions after each mass. Masses are on Saturday, Nov. 12th at 4:30 and 6 p.m. and Sunday, Nov. 13th at 7:30, 9, 10:30 and 12:30 p.m.

"With more than 83,000 Americans waiting for lifesaving organ transplants and thousands more waiting for life-enhancing tissue or cornea transplants, we must all participate in this celebration of life and hope," Cardinal Francis George announced in a letter to all Chicago Archdiocese parishes recently. In his letter the Cardinal reminds the Archdiocese's 2.5 million Catholics of the Church's teachings and statements of support for organ donation and transplantation.

Each year, National Donor Sabbath is observed two weekends before Thanksgiving. The weekend is a time for leaders of all religions to reach out to their congregates with the message that giving life to others through organ and tissue donation is a noble and selfless act that coincides with – and supports – their religious beliefs. The scheduling prior to Thanksgiving is important because so many families are together for the holiday. It is a good time for a family discussion about organ donation.

While a new law of "presume donation" will go into effect on Jan. 1st, 2006, in the event of a loved one's death, it is always helpful that a family knows that a person wishes to be a donor.

National Donor Sabbath is also a time for congregations to remember families who suffered the loss of a loved one, and yet gave the greatest gift of all, the gift of life. Thoughts and prayers also focus on the thousands of men, women and children who continue to wait desperately for needed organs and tissues to save or improve their lives.

Nearly all faith traditions in the United States – from Buddhism to Judaism to the Wesleyan Church – support donation and transplantation as one of the highest expressions of human compassion and generosity. Yet, according to officials with Gift of Hope Organ & Tissue Donor Network, many families mistakenly believe donation is against their religious beliefs and choose not to donate for that reason.

IDOT Seeks Young Artists With A Vision For Safety

Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) Secretary Timothy W. Martin announced recently an opportunity for Illinois students to put their creative art skills to the test. Children in kindergarten through sixth grade are invited to participate in the first-ever Illinois Work Zone Safety Calendar Contest, with the chance to compete in the National Work Zone Calendar Contest.

In an effort to educate students on the importance of safe driving in work zones, Illinois School Board of Education (ISBE) and IDOT have joined together with the American Traffic Safety Services Assn. (ATSSA) to coordinate the statewide calendar contest. The contest will promote work zone safety by introducing children at an early age to safe driving techniques. The idea is to instill a lifelong awareness of work zone hazards and foster safe driving behavior in the future.

Working with the American Traffic Safety Services Foundation (ATSSF), ATSSA and the ISBE, schools across Illinois holding the drawing contest will send the finalists to IDOT. Students are vying for the chance to win savings bonds, trophies and the opportunity to be featured in the 2006-07 Illinois Work Zone Safety Calendar.

There are two age divisions for this contest: Kindergarten through third grade, and fourth through sixth grade. Each school will choose the top two entries from each age group and submit them to IDOT for the state contest. Through on-line judging and celebrity panel judges, the top three entries from each age group will be chosen and will qualify for the national calendar contest.

Along with the top six contestant winners, 10 additional contestants will be chosen to have their entries displayed in a 16-month Illinois Work Zone Safety Calendar, which will be distributed to the public through community events throughout Illinois.

The top 16 winners will be invited to an awards luncheon in February where they will receive their prizes. The top six Illinois works of art will advance to judging at the national level and vie for a spot in ATSSA's work zone safety calendar.

IDOT sent contest packets to nearly 3,000 superintendents and schools statewide with information on the contest. Each school is asked to send in two entries from each age group to IDOT's Springfield Headquarters. Students can submit their drawings to their teachers. All entries are due by Dec. 1st. Beginning Dec. 12th, all entries will be on the IDOT web site for the public to vote online and choose their favorite drawings.

Meth Makers Legislation

Calling it a major victory for law enforcement and communities, Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently hailed the passage of her proposal to ensure that Illinois' restrictions on the sale of ingredients used to make methamphetamine are as tough as or tougher than those of surrounding states. The bill now goes to the governor for his signature.

Such restrictions will help keep Illinois from becoming a favored shopping stop for out-of-state meth makers looking to buy the pseudoephedrine (PSE) or ephedrine needed to make meth. Illinois meth makers also will face significant new barriers in producing their deadly drug because of the increased restrictions on purchasing PSE products.

If signed into law by Gov. Rod Blagojevich, the new restrictions will become effective on Jan. 15th, 2006. The legislation was proposed by State Rep. John Bradley and State Sen. William Haine. As part of her effort to research and draft this bill, Madigan held three law enforcement summits across the state. She also testified before both the House and Senate Judiciary Committees in support of the bill.

The legislation, Senate Bill 273, the Methamphetamine Precursor Control Act, is similar to a law that took effect in Iowa on May 21st, 2005. The bill makes PSE and ephedrine "schedule V controlled substances" – meaning they must be kept behind pharmacy counters. It requires that all single and multi-active ingredient products, tablets, liquids and gel caps be placed behind the counter. Although customers wishing to purchase such products do not need a prescription, they must display a photo ID and sign a log.

Identity Theft On-Line Is Rampant

The convenience of shopping on the Internet has a dark side: for those who pay by credit card, identity theft is on the rise.

There have been massive security breaches in recent months. In one instance, hackers obtained the credit card and debit account data of hundreds of thousands of card holders. The cost to banks and credit companies has topped $1.2 billion, and those costs are ultimately passed along to consumers.

If you suspect that someone has stolen your personal information and is using it to commit fraud or theft, there are three basic steps you should take:

Contact the fraud departments of the major credit bureaus - Experian, Equifax and TransUnion. Tell them that you believe you're a victim of identity theft and request that a "fraud alert" be placed in your file, as well as a statement asking that creditors call you before opening any new charge accounts.

Review their records carefully to make sure that no new accounts have been opened in your name. You should also check the section of your report that lists "inquiries." If any "inquiries" appear from the entity that opened the account, you can request that these be removed from your report.

After a few months, order a copy of your report to ensure that no new fraudulent activity has taken place.

Contact any creditors where the identity thieves opened or tampered with your accounts. Your creditors may run the gamut from credit card companies to utilities to banks and lenders. According to the law, consumers must notify their credit card companies in writing about the theft. It is important to immediately close the account under your name and open a new one with a personal identification number (PIN) and password.

File a report with the local police. Follow up by getting a copy of the police report in case a creditor needs proof of the crime.

Prepare For Winter

Concerns about rising energy costs this winter have prompted lawmakers in Springfield to pass a proposal to assist families and business as they prepare for the winter months ahead. House Bill 466 is co-sponsored by State Senator Ed Maloney (D - Chicago).

Under the terms of the proposal:

- * The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) is expanded by providing an additional $9.2 million for low income energy assistance helping some 18,000 additional families. Those funds - already in the state's budget - would have remained in the state's General Revenue Fund without this legislation.

- * A state sales tax holiday is created from January 1 to January 31st for energy-efficient products and home weatherization products used on homes and other residential structures. During this period, the sales tax will be reduced from 6.25% to 1%. Eligible for the sales tax holiday are items carrying the Energy Star logo, such as windows, doors, skylights, insulation, roof products, residential lamps and lights, transformers compact fluorescent light bulbs, energy saving light bulbs, programmable thermostats, ceiling fans, water heaters, heating and cooling equipment, and appliances.

- * A Power for Jobs income tax credit is created that will allow the Illinois Department of Commerce and Economic Opportunity (DCEO) to provide energy assistance to businesses creating or retaining jobs in Illinois, by giving them a tax credit for up to 10 percent of their energy costs.

House Bill 466 passed the Senate on Nov. 3 by a unanimous 59-0 vote.

Reject Nominee

On Nov. 3rd, in a vote of 28-22, the Illinois Senate rejected the nomination of consumer advocate Martin Cohen as chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission. This move was sparked as a result of intense lobbying efforts from major utilities such as Commonwealth Edison to block the governor's appointment.

"It is a sad day when our elected officials cave to the intense lobbying efforts and financial influence of special interests at the expense of the consumers that they serve," said Rev. James Demus, co-director of MAADD. "ComEd clearly crossed the line when it ran an underhanded aggressive campaign in the press and at the legislature to tarnish the character of a man that is nothing but a fair-minded individual. ComEd's true colors show that it will do whatever it takes to manipulate the system in its favor and everyone who supported the utility's manufactured witch hunt should be ashamed of themselves."

Earlier this year, the media exposed potential unethical conduct and improprieties by certain commissioners at the Illinois Commerce Commission in regards to improper relationships with People's Gas and other utilities that they regulate. As a result, Gov. Blagojevich took action by removing ICC Chairman Ed Hurley and encouraging the resignation of Commissioner Erin O'Connell-Diaz - both of whom had a track record of supporting the large utilities.

"We encourage the governor to stand his ground on his commitment to appointing an ICC chairman that is committed to the interests of consumers," said Demus. "Moving forward we urge the governor to appoint former Sen. Pat Welch or William McNary of Citizen's Action to be the new Chairman of the ICC. Further, we ask the governor to appoint Martin Cohen as the Executive Director of the ICC - a position that does not need Senate confirmation."

State Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka looks like a woman on a mission. The popular incumbent kept the Illinois State Republican Party in limbo these past few months as she pondered whether to seek a fourth term as treasurer or run for the governor's office in the March 21st Republican primary. With the filing deadline for candidate petitions for the March primary only a few weeks away, Topinka has finally concluded that she might best serve the citizens of Illinois by running for governor, according to knowledgeable Republican insiders. Her formal announcement should come in a matter of days.

Topinka is expected to be the sixth candidate seeking the nod as the GOP representative for governor in the primary this spring. She joins businessman Jim Oberweis, State Senators Steve Raushenberger and Bill Brady, DuPage County State's Attorney Joseph Birkett and businessman Ron Gidwitz as erstwhile candidates for the largest Republican prize in state politics. Don't be surprised if some of the men mentioned above re-think their potential elect ability with Topinka now in the field. A possible switch from the governor's race to different statewide offices is a strong possibility. We'll keep you informed.

The offices of U.S. Senators Dick Durbin (D-IL) and Barack Obama (D-IL) have announced that Illinois will receive more than $214 million in funding for transportation and housing projects in the Fiscal Year 2006 U.S. Department of Transportation, Treasury, Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations bill, which was recently approved by the Senate.

The legislation includes $50 million for the construction of a new federal courthouse in Rockford and more than $45 million to reconstruct the Douglas Line of the Chicago Transit Authority's Blue Line. Additionally, $40 million was included to expand the CTA's Ravenswood Brown Line, $42 million to expand Metra (including the southwest corridor); $10 million for bus replacement and bus facilities; and $4 million for the Normal Transportation Center among the projects.

The bill now goes to a Senate-House conference committee.

On Nov. 1st in recognition of November as Diabetes Awareness Month, Governor Rod Blagojevich and Illinois Department of Human Services (IDHS) Secretary Carol L. Adams, Ph.D., announced the Foot Care Aware and Eye Care Aware programs. Both programs provide free exams for eligible persons with diabetes.

In Illinois, more than 567,000 adults, age 18 and older, have been diagnosed with diabetes. An estimated additional 3 million Illinoisans are at increased risk for developing diabetes due to age, obesity and sedentary lifestyles. Diabetes can affect many parts of the body and can lead to serious complications such as blindness, kidney damage, and lower-limb amputations.

People with diabetes and health care professionals may contact the Department's Help Me Grow Help Line 1-800-323-4769 for names and phone numbers of participating local podiatrists and eye care professionals to make appointments. When calling the local podiatrist office, diabetics should state that they have diabetes and wish to schedule a free foot exam as part of the Foot Care Aware Program. When scheduling an eye appointment, individuals with diabetes should state that they are diabetic and are calling to schedule a free eye exam as part of the Eye Care Aware Program.

"Diabetes is a serious and costly disease. We can help improve and even save lives by making Illinoisans aware of the disease and the importance of prevention," said Gov. Blagojevich.

Congressman Dan Lipinski (D-3rd Dist.), in conjunction with State Rep. Kevin Joyce (D-35th Dist.) and Senator Edward Maloney (D-18th Dist.), wishes to invite all interested constituents to a Senior's Fair on Friday, Nov. 18th, from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. at Mt. Greenwood Park, 3724 W. 111th St. in Chicago. Seniors are encouraged to participate in this event. Learn more about financial planning; receive healthcare updates and participate in blood pressure screenings; listen to presentations on senior safety issues and concerns; and learn more about the Medicare Prescription Drug benefit. Representatives from local police departments, law offices, financial institutions, as well as the Social Security Office, and the Department of Aging will be available to address your concerns and provide information on how to keep communities educated and safe.

For more information call the Congressman's office at (312) 886-0481.

State Senator Christine Radogno (R-41st Dist.) has reported to All Points that the Illinois Senate began the second week of the Fall Veto Session by unanimously voting to override an amendatory veto that would have allowed Governor Blagojevich to siphon revenues from Illinois' Teacher Health Insurance Fund to finance general state operating expenses.

Senator Radogno explained that the legislation, House Bill 3272, provides for the Teachers Health Insurance Security Fund to be placed on the list of state funds from which the Governor is prohibited from withdrawing revenue for general purposes. Radogno said that the bill is intended to protect the integrity of the fund, and was introduced last spring in response to a $4.5 million sweep of the fund that the Governor authorized in 2004.

"It was extremely important that the General Assembly override the Governor's amendments, and I'm relieved that all of my legislative colleagues voted in favor of the original legislation," said Radogno. "Not only would the amendatory veto have significantly altered the fundamental purpose of the legislation, it would have allowed the Governor to siphon money from the teachers' health insurance fund, as well as every Illinois fund that isn't protected by law."

Radogno said that upholding the initial legislation was particularly important, citing information provided by Jim Bachman, Executive Director of the Illinois Retired Teachers Association (IRTA), who had been informed by the Governor's Office of intentions to sweep an additional $1.3 million out of the Teachers Health Insurance Security Fund if the Legislature did not override the Governor's amendments.

"Because the Governor's administration was planning to withdraw over one million dollars from the fund, I commend the Illinois Legislature for upholding the original legislation and protecting the future of Illinois' retired teachers," said Radogno.

The League of Women Voters of the Palos-Orland area will sponsor a town meeting on Mental Health Care in the south suburbs on Saturday, Nov. 12th, at St. Coletta's of Illinois, 18350 Crossing Drive in Tinley Park. The meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m. & will include a panel of health care professionals who will give an update on plans to close the Tinley Park Mental Health Center and an overview of what services will remain available in the south suburbs if that facility is closed.

Panel speakers include Illinois Senator Maggie Crotty, member of the Tinley Park Health Center Task Force; Dr. Lorrie Stone from the Illinois Division of Mental Health; Dr. Daniel Winship from the Cook County Bureau of Health Services; Dennis Regnier from Grand Prairie Services; Michael Brady from Metropolitan Family Services and Richard Shaw from U.S. Senator Richard Durbin's office to speak about the mental health needs of area veterans.

The event is open to the public. For more information or directions to the event, contact Karen Switalski at (815) 469-0493 or Doris Wallace at (708) 425-4891.

Secretary of State and State Librarian Jesse White is encouraging Illinois families to make time to read together during the evening of Thursday, Nov. 17th to celebrate the Secretary of State's annual Family Reading Night.

This is the 14th year in which the Secretary of State's office and Illinois State Library have worked with libraries, schools, educational associations, publishers, literacy programs, community organizations and others to sponsor Family Reading Night. White said the target audience for this event is pre-kindergarten to 6th grade children and their families. The theme of this year's Family Reading Night is "Picture the Magic of Reading." The Illinois State Library distributed colorful Family Reading Night posters and bookmarks to several thousand public libraries, school libraries, literacy programs and other agencies to promote and celebrate the event.

"Reading can enrich and enhance all of our lives, and I commend all adults who take the time to regularly read to children," said White.

Charter One Bank Provides $100,000 To Reduce Shelter Heating Bills

With heating bills set to skyrocket this winter, Charter One Bank announced recently a commitment to help defray this season's heating costs at area homeless shelters. Heating costs are expected to increase as much as 50 to 70 percent this winter, resulting in budget strains on critical programs and services offered to Chicago-area low-income and homeless people.

Charter One Bank presented a lead gift of $100,000 to four local organizations to assist with their winter heating bills. The four recipient organizations were the YMCA of Metropolitan Chicago-SRO (Single Room Occupancy) program, Lakefront Supportive Housing, Southwest Women Working Together and DuPage P.A.D.S.

"We've all been warned about the expected record-high heating costs this winter. We also know that it's going to take its toll on the poor and the homeless," said Paul Greig, Charter One Bank-Illinois President and CEO. "By partnering with these quality organizations, we know that our donation will help serve those most in need of warmth this winter."

In addition, Charter One is asking the Chicago-area community to help spread the warmth by collecting donations for additional heating assistance in all of its 132 Illinois branches. Donations will be accepted now through Jan. 31st, 2006.

Chicago-area shelters expect to see a significant increase in heating costs this year over last. The latest numbers on homelessness in Chicago are staggering. Latest statistics from the Chicago Coalition for the Homeless and the National Coalition for the Homeless show that there are more than 80,000 homeless in Chicago and that 15,000 people cannot find adequate, permanent housing on any given night.

New Agency To Oversee Juvenile Offenders

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich applauded members of the Illinois General Assembly for passing legislation creating a new Illinois Dept. of Juvenile Justice. The new department will provide treatment and services including education, vocational, social and emotional services to the state's youngest offenders.

Senate Bill 92, sponsored by Rep. Annazette Collins (D-Chicago) and Sen. John Cullerton (D-Chicago), separates the juvenile justice division from within the Dept. of Corrections and makes it its own agency. The legislation received final approval in the Illinois Senate on Nov. 4th. It was approved in the Illinois House of Representatives on Nov. 3rd.

There are approximately 1,400 juveniles incarcerated within the Illinois Dept. of Corrections (IDOC) and nearly 47 percent of juvenile offenders return to the system. By creating a separate Dept. of Juvenile Justice, young offenders will receive individualized services including educational, vocational, social and emotional that will help enable them to become productive adults. It's expected that the new department will help reduce the number of juvenile offenders that return to the juvenile system.

In addition to the services provided inside of juvenile facilities, the new department will also provide transitional and post-release treatment programs for juveniles, including counseling, mental health, and substance abuse services.

Senate Bill 92 moves eight juvenile facilities and the Dept. of Corrections School District into the new department. The new department is "budget-neutral" meaning its funding, approximately $125 million, will simply be transferred from IDOC's existing budget.

Illinois joins 39 other states that currently separate their juvenile and adult corrections systems.

WorldCom Settlement

Attorney General Lisa Madigan announced on Nov. 3rd that a settlement has been reached between the Illinois State Board of Investment (ISBI), the State Teachers' Retirement System (STRS), the State Universities' Retirement System (SURS) and nearly all the defendants in complaints brought against numerous banks, Arthur Andersen and the former officers and directors of WorldCom.

Illinois pension funds will receive approximately $23 million in payments. Nationwide, the defendants are paying more than $650 million to about 70 different pension funds.

The settlement addresses the sale of WorldCom stocks and bonds to the state pension funds during a four-year period. The complaints allege the banks that underwrote the bonds, Andersen, and the former WorldCom officers and directors made material misrepresentations in their public literature and Securities Exchange Commission (SEC) filings regarding the financial strength of the company to sell more WorldCom bonds to the funds. These misrepresentations constituted securities fraud under the federal securities laws.

The lawsuits were filed in 2002 and followed in accounting scandal at one of the world's largest telecommunications companies in the late 1990s, which ultimately led to WorldCom's collapse and the filing of the largest bankruptcy action in U.S. history.

The settlement covers the common stock losses of the Illinois pension funds, as well as their bond losses for the April 1998, May 2000, December 2000 and May 2001 bond offerings.

The ISBI lost almost $13 million on the bonds, and will recover just over $6 million under the settlement. The STRS lost about $33 million (including nearly $5 million in stocks), and will recover about $13 million under the settlement. The SURS lost about $34 million (including $28 million in stocks), and will recover about $4 million under the settlement. In addition, the defendants will pay the funds' legal fees and costs, which amount to another $2.7 million. These recoveries are substantially more than what will be recovered by pension funds that opted to remain part of the WorldCom class action, which also recently settled.

Most of the settlement funds are being paid by the banks which underwrote the bond offerings, including JP Morgan Chase, Citigroup and Bank of America. A number of other banks provided funds based on their level of involvement in underwriting the issuances. Andersen and the former WorldCom officers and directors contributed a smaller portion. Two defendants who have not yet settled with the funds - Bernard Ebbers and Scott Sullivan - have agreed in principle to a settlement, although the details have not yet been finalized. Any settlement amounts paid by them will come from their own personal assets.

In addition to the money, Citigroup and JP Morgan Chase have agreed to jointly petition the SEC for a rule change that will require greater disclosures on public bond offerings regarding loans made by underwriters to bond issuers and officers of the issuers.

The Illinois funds have received their money from the defendants. The class action members may have to wait up to two years to be paid.

Dr. Hogg Has Gone "High Tech"

Dr. James A. Hogg, a former clinical instructor at the University of Illinois College of Dentistry, has gone "High Tech" in his dental office. He now uses intraoral cameras and digital X-rays (90% less radiation than conventional X-rays) that display the images on computer monitors in each patient operatories. This allows the patient to see their teeth and X-rays magnified on the computer screen. A full examination also includes a non-invasive laser cavity detection system that identifies cavities before they become painful. Lasers are also used to whiten patient's teeth in as little as one hour.

Although all of these innovations are helpful in diagnosing dental problems, Dr. Hogg's main concern is that his patients have a comfortable and pain-free experience in his office. To learn more about his office, visit him at www.drjameshogg.com and register to win a free whitening or a sonicare toothbrush. His office is located at 10232 S. Central Ave., Oak Lawn. Dr. Hogg is a former employee of Blake Lamh Funeral Homes.

Focus Action: Appeals Court 'Declares Parenthood Unconstitutional'

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals - already infamous for ruling the Pledge of Allegiance unconstitutional in 2002 - has outdone itself by ruling recently that parents have no right to challenge what their children are taught in public school sex-education classes.

Focus on the Family Action Director of Issues Analysis Carrie Gordon Earll called the decision, in the case of Fields v. Palmdale School District, "perhaps the most abhorrent example of judicial tyranny in American history."

"Anyone who wonders why pro-family organizations like ours have been so concerned about activist courts only has to look at this case," Earll said. "The 9th Circuit did more than rule against parents who were upset that their elementary-school-aged children were being asked explicit questions about sex in class. They told all parents they have no right to protest what public schools tell their children."

The exact wording from the ruling: "There is no fundamental right of parents to be the exclusive provider of information regarding sexual matters to their children ... Parents have no due process or privacy right to override the determinations of public schools as to the information to which their children will be exposed while enrolled as students."

"What the court did here is declare parenthood unconstitutional," Earll said. "It's long been the liberal view that it takes a village to raise a child - but never before have the 'villagers' been elevated, as a matter of law, above mothers and fathers."

"Every parent in America should shudder at this decision - liberal or conservative, Democrat or Republican," Earll concluded.

St. Coletta's To Honor "Mr. Cub" Ernie Banks

The Caritas Society, the official auxiliary of the St. Coletta's of Illinois Foundation, is pleased to announce the 53rd Annual Caritas Benefit "My Kind of Town" to benefit developmentally disabled individuals.

This year, the Caritas Society and St. Coletta's of Illinois Foundation are proud to announce Ernie "Mr. Cub" Banks as the 2005 Humanitas Award honoree for the Old Chicago themed event. The Humanitas Award recognizes an individual at the national or local level who represents, to the greatest extent possible, a role model for society, both in the person's public and private life.

The black-tie benefit will be held at the Cadillac Club in Soldier Field on Nov. 18th. Guests attending will enjoy an evening of cocktails with field access, a cigar bar, dinner, dancing to the Al Solfia Orchestra, and a raffle. Raffle prizes include a customized tour of Tuscany with cooking classes, wine tasting, classes in the Italian culture and language, and more. Raffle tickets are $50 each or 3 for $100.

There will be a silent auction, as well as a live auction, which will include a Harley-Davidson XL 883C Sportster Custom cycle, donated by Chi-Town Harley in Orland Park. Sealed bids prior to event can be made by going to <http://www.stcolettail.org/caritas-benefit-sealedbid.htm>.

Also attending this year is special guest Eunice Kennedy Shriver, founder of the Caritas Society.

If you would like to purchase tickets to the Caritas Benefit, call (708) 342-5246.

Jerry Lewis Talks About His Memoir

Entertainment legend Jerry Lewis will discuss and sign his new memoir, Dean and Me: (A Love Story), at the Chicago Public Library. The free program will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 16th at 6 p.m. in the Cindy Pritzker Auditorium, lower level, at the Harold Washington Library Center, 400 S. State St.

Jerry Lewis and Dean Martin made 16 popular movies between nightclub engagements, recording sessions, radio shows and television bookings during their 10-year partnership. This candid memoir examines the tumultuous yet productive relationship that developed between the two, as they became a national sensation.

In Dean and Me, Lewis makes a convincing case for Dean Martin as one of the great - and most underrated - comic talents of our era. What comes across in this moving, hilarious, and at times tragic story is the admiration and affection Lewis felt, and still feels, for his partner.

Please note: Mr. Lewis will only sign copies of his book. He will not be signing any other items such as memorabilia.

The Caritas Society was founded in 1952 by Eunice Kennedy Shriver to render support through service and contribution of funds to children and adults with developmental disabilities.

St. Coletta's of Illinois, located in Tinley Park, is a not-for-profit agency providing residential, educational and work opportunities for children and adults with developmental disabilities. St. Coletta's operates the Kennedy School, and the Vocational Training Center, along with 33 residential locations in various communities.

Starved Rock Lodge Offers Mobster Tours

Gangsters, a part of the Starved Rock area? This scenic area of trails, rivers and natural charm was once the scene of bombs, brothels and betting barons. Starved Rock Lodge invites visitors and locals to look back at the unsavory past with Dan Churney, author of Capone's Cornfields. Starved Rock Lodge has announced the dates for its "Mobster" Trolley Tours, which will take place from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 12th, 26th and Dec. 10th.

On the Mobster Trolley Tour visitors will be taken for a ride (not a one-way ride!) to sites connected to mob happenings in the Starved Rock area. Answers will be given to questions such as "What mob boss won kudos from the Ottawa City Council?" "What mob madman was born in Streator?" Or "What are the Illinois Valley links to the St. Valentine's Day Massacre?"

Starved Rock Mobster Tours include a picturesque trolley ride, lunch at Starved Rock and wine tasting at the Tasting Room at Cattails. The trolley ride will be hosted by Dan Churney, an Ottawa reporter, who has unearthed more than 30 cases in which organized crime touched on - or clobered - the Starved Rock area, ranging from moonshine to murder. Churney will guide visitors to many sites located in Ottawa and Streator that are listed in his book.

The tours are likely to fill up fast, so call (800) 868-7625, ext. 386, for more information or to make a reservation. The cost for Mobster Tour is $27 per person including lunch and wine tasting.

Starved Rock Lounge is open year-round, offering lodging, dining and entertainment. For more information on its amenities and activities, check out their web site at www.starvedrocklodge.com.

Noted Harpist/Singer In Concert

With harp and voice, international recording artist Therese Schroeder-Sheker will perform at a concert on Saturday, Nov. 19, at 7 p.m., in McDonough Chapel at Saint Xavier University, 3700 W. 103rd St., Chicago. She will also conduct a one-day workshop on Thursday, Nov. 17, titled, "Music in the Care of the Sick and Dying: Pastoral Care and the Arts," also at Saint Xavier University.

Schroeder-Sheker will perform French, German, Spanish, Sephardic, Irish and Romanian love songs, prayers and lullabies from the late Middle Ages to the 20th Century. Since her debut at Carnegie Hall in 1980, Schroeder-Sheker has played concerts all over the world, has multiple recordings, and has been featured in documentaries for ABC, PBS and NBC. Her career has been distinguished with a gold record, a Christopher, a Gabriel, a shared Emmy, and a first place in the Palm Springs International Film Festival in the documentaries section for a film on the work of music-thanatologists, the field of providing musical comfort using harp and voice at the bedside of patients near the end of life.

She is founder and director of the Chalice of Repose Project, in Mt. Angel, Oregon, the first music-thanatologists school and clinical practice in the country, and artist and clinician in residence at The Catholic University of America in Washington, DC. Her concerts, recordings and more than 100 publications have reached American, European and Asian audiences.

She has been the academic dean of the Chalice of Repose Project School of Music Thanatology for more than a decade, and has delivered plenary and keynote addresses, concerts and medical grand rounds for 125 national and international conferences, universities, medical centers, and centers for performing arts.

The concert is open to the public and revolves around the theme of devotion expressed in several cultures, medieval to modern. Admission is $10. For more information, call the Pastoral Ministry Institute at 773-298-3900.

In addition, Schroeder-Sheker will conduct a one-day workshop titled "Music in the Care of the Sick and Dying: Pastoral Care and the Arts," from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 17, in the Butler Reception Room at Saint Xavier University. The seminar may be taken for one credit or on a non-credit basis. Cost is $60. For more information, call the Pastoral Ministry Institute.

The program will employ voice and harp, image and word, case study and story, theory and reflection. Participants will be introduced to the uses of prescriptive music in the work of palliative and pastoral care. Schroeder-Sheker's work has been developed in response to the many levels of grief, loss, physiological pain and interior suffering that can occur throughout the entirety of the human biography, but especially at the end of life.

Beauty Of Vegetable Gardens

Feast Your Eyes: The Unexpected Beauty Of Vegetable Gardens, a Smithsonian traveling exhibition, will open at the Joliet Area Historical Museum in Joliet on Saturday, Nov. 19th and remain on view through Sunday, Jan. 15th, 2006.

Centuries ago vegetable gardens were the "belles of the floral ball" designed to be productive and pleasing to the eye; artists have painted vegetables, and writers have waxed poetic about them. Over time, vegetables shed their ornamental finery and became hardworking wall-flowers. Today, fashions have changed once again. Vegetable gardens are taking center stage in many American yards, and vegetables proudly strut their stuff in flowerbeds traces this transformation across centuries, continents and cultures.

This colorful exhibition brings together images from the Smithsonian Institution's Archives of American Gardens, as well as images and documents from other sources. Beginning with the "floating gardens" of Montezuma II's Aztec empire, the vegetable gardens of China's Ming dynasty, and the Baroque potager of Louis XIV at Versailles, the exhibit charts the history of vegetables' importance in ornamental gardens. Over the next two-and-a-half centuries, vegetable gardens were placed out of view until World Wars I and II when they took on a renewed importance as war and victory gardens. The exhibition concludes with "vegettes," whimsical tales of vegetables popular today in both public and private gardens, due to their visual interest and appeal.

Kim Shehorn-Martin, educator at the museum, offers special programs for school groups and community groups that relate to the exhibit. For information about educational programming, call (815) 723-5201, ext. 235. The museum gift shop will feature special items in conjunction with the exhibit; call Elaine Stonich, gift shop manager, (815) 723-5201, ext. 226.

The show's performances are scheduled for Nov. 11th to 13th and Nov. 17th to 20th.

Evening performances begin at 8 p.m. Sunday matinees begin at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $10 for adults and $9 for seniors and students. Tickets are $8 for groups of 15 or more, a savings of more than 10 percent off the original ticket price.

ASIAN CARP SEEN IN UPPER MISSISSIPPI RIVER: People have spotted three species of Asian carp on the upper Mississippi, and Wisconsin's DNR say that's a cause for concern.

While most have been seen closer to the Illinois River, the carp are now appearing near Wabasha, Minnesota, about 65 air miles southeast of Minneapolis. That's almost two-thirds of the way up into Wisconsin, north of the Illinois state line. Many of the fish are caught by a dam near Keokuk, Iowa, but numerous carp are flying over it.

SEASONS OPENING TODAY: South zone - muskrat, mink, beaver, raccoon, opossum, striped skunk, weasel and badger trapping (closes Jan. 20th); coyote, red and gray fox trapping (closes Jan. 25th); raccoon and opossum hunting opens (closes Feb. 15th); statewide fox hunting (closes Jan. 31st).

Nov. 12th is Canvas back duck opener in the Central Zone, closes on Dec. 11th.

Dove season closes Nov. 13th.

Reminder: Monday, Nov. 14th is the last day to apply for late-winter firearm antlerless-only deer permits in select counties.

MISSOURI BILL TO HELP COMBAT ANTIS: Legislation in Missouri will hinder anti-hunters' efforts to ban outdoor sports via the ballot box.

House Joint Resolution 8, introduced by Rep. Mike Dethrow (R-Alton), will require a two-thirds majority vote to pass initiative proposals dealing with the harvest of birds, fish game, wildlife and forestry. It will make anti-hunters' efforts to ban hunting, fishing or trapping more difficult.

"Bringing wildlife issues before voters has become a popular tactic employed by the anti's," said Rob Sexton, U.S. Sportsman's Alliance vice-president for government affairs. "They want to take the science out of wildlife management and allow the public who can be swayed by emotional issue campaigns, to decide what is best for the state's wildlife resources."

Sending wildlife issues to the ballot ignores the Department of Conservation's management authority and the science on which management is based. Current Missouri law states that these initiatives receive only a majority vote for passage.

Last year the U.S. Sportsman's Alliance played a key role in the defeat of anti-bear hunting initiatives in Maine and Alaska. Both states require a simple majority to pass a ballot issue forcing sportsmen to spend unprecedented amounts of money to get their message out to voters. House Joint Resolution 8 would give sportsmen the upper hand if anti-hunting initiatives arise in Missouri.

*Consider the light needed to take good photos and how different lighting can be used. A tip here is that the light at the end of the day is great for those small game photos. And it does not interfere with quality hunting time.

*The view in the viewfinder seems closer than reality. Generally, if one fills the viewfinder with just the subject, the background will take care of itself. It is not necessary to try and compose a photo with a subject and background in perfect harmony, unless you are into scenic photos.

*Photos in the outdoors are often taken under poor light conditions. A flash will keep shadows out of the pictures. Many hunters wear hats when being photographed. The bill of the cap will cast a shadow across the face of the subject. A flash will help erase that shadow and bring out the face.

*Pick your background carefully. It is best to have one that is uncluttered so as not to detract from the subject.

*Do not take photos that are disrespectful of the quarry. Remove all beverage cans, trash or cigarettes from the scene before posing your subject. Avoid taking pictures that show blood or animal guts. Remove any debris that may have become attached to the subject, smooth any ruffled feathers or fur.

*It helps to prepare the person who is the subject of the photo. If he or she is wearing dark clothing, then the addition of a red bandana can add a little color and make the shot more visually interesting. Always have the subject remove any sunglasses or shooting glasses. Ask them to hold the trophy(s) at different angles.

*Take as many pictures from as many angles as possible. Move around the subject.

Cougar Invitational II

Behind solid play from juniors Jessica Buchmeier (Steger, Bloom Trail) and Paige Pedigo (Chicago Ridge, Queen of Peace), the St. Xavier University volleyball team won all four of its matches in its own Cougar Invitational II over the weekend at the Shannon Center in Chicago. The Cougars have won five of their last six matches and sit at 20-18 overall this season.

Buchmeier and Pedigo combined for 29 kills in Saturday's three-game match win over Trinity Christian College (Ill.). Looby had 45 assists and team-high 21 digs in the victory, while sophomore Kate Eckhoff (Grant Park) had six service aces. In St. Xavier's final match of the Invitational, Buchmeier recorded 11 kills and 10 digs, both team-highs, while senior Carrie Mockovak (Burbank, Queen of Peace) turned in nine kills and Looby had 19 assists for the Cougars.

Parents Save Life At Volleyball Match

On Tuesday, Nov. 1st, when Bob Adams was stricken with a heart attack, he couldn't have been in a better place. Adams was sitting in the grandstand, watching his granddaughter, Mother McAuley junior volleyball setter Brittany Cermak as she and her team battled their rival Carl A. Sandburg in a Class AA Sectional semifinal game when he was incapacitated.

Judy O'Brien, a nurse at St. Francis Hospital in Blue Island and McAuley players Ashley and Kim O'Brien's mother, and Eileen Couture, a doctor at Oak Forest Hospital and the mother of a Marist JV player, were on hand to begin cardiopulmonary resuscitation on Adams. According to reports, Adams was turning blue and appeared not to be breathing.

Also present was Brian Corley, a Chicago firefighter who was supporting the Mother McAuley team, who used an automated external defibrillator to help restart Adam's heart.

The incident took place at Eisenhower High School in Blue Island during the game between McAuley and Sandburg.

Adams regained consciousness and was talking to his rescuers before he was taken to St. Francis Hospital for further treatment.

As Adams was being treated, the game continued since no one realized what was happening in the grandstand.

Implant Walleye With Transmitters

On Friday, Nov. 4th, staff from the Forest Preserve District of Cook County's Fisheries and Wildlife Sections and members of the veterinary staff at Brookfield Zoo implanted 12 walleye with transmitters for the purpose of tracking and study over an approximate two-year period. The procedure was performed at the District's McGinnis Field Station, 13700 S. 110th St. in Orland Park.

The fish, inserted with transmitters by zoo staff, will be studied for the purposes of better determining the walleyes' habitat needs and migration patterns in District waters. Data collected through the study will be used to inform fishermen of the walleye's habits and movement and to help further improve the District's heralded Walleye Propagation Program, implemented in 1995.

This is the second time that the District and zoo have worked cooperatively for this endeavor. The same study, performed on fish at southwest Cook County's Tampier Lake and northern Cook County's Skokie Lagoons two years ago, has provided useful information for the District and it is believed that this study will do the same.

The procedure is performed in several stages. Fish are procured by staff at District lakes and transported to the District's McGinnis Field Station. In preparing for the surgical procedure, the fish are sedated and, once the surgery begins, they are out of water for approximately 30 minutes. Zoo staff surgically places the transmitter inside the fish and, when completed, suture the fish's incision. Following completion of the surgery, the fish are tagged and begin a 21-day recovery period.

At the end of the recovery period, the fish will be placed in Busse Lake's Main Lake and its South Pool in Elk Grove Village. By requirements set forth by the United States Food and Drug Administration, fishermen who catch one of these fish should not eat them as they have been exposed to drugs during the surgical process. The fish are easily identified by two tags placed on their bodies: a yellow tag with a numerical designation and a blue tag reading "do not eat." Any fisherman that catches one of these fish should note the weight, length and tag number of the fish, release it back into the water and contact the District's Fisheries Division immediately at (708) 403-6951.

Sports Valve

By: Brad Allen

Welcome inside the Sports Valve. Leave the world's problems (and the wind) in the background and shut the valve door behind you quickly. Don't let it get drafty in here.

In honor of the Bears decision to wear their predominantly orange alternate uniforms this Sunday, I have put a nice orange coat of paint on the valve walls. Don't touch it. It's still wet.

Professional Sports Valve: The Bears are a young team - still wet behind the ears you might say, but they appear to be in Phase I of building a new winning tradition. That is to say they are at least beating the teams they should beat. Their victims so far this season (Lions, Vikings, Saints and Ravens) have an aggregate winning percentage of .333. That percentage will drop even further after the Bears muck out another win against San Francisco this week - and it is imperative that they do win this "must game."

How can a Week 9 game be described as a must win situation? Well, I'm glad you asked. It's a critical game for this reason: They will most likely need the cushion of a 6-3 record as they enter into the final seven weeks of the season.

Let's break out the sports valve periscope and take a look ahead. After this week, the Bears will host a tough Carolina squad and then travel to Tampa Bay. They will then return to Soldiers Field to face a Green Bay team with something to prove. Next, the Bears hop out of the frying pan and into the fire for a game in Pittsburgh. Afterward, last year's NFC Champion runner-up Atlanta Falcons will try and dig their talons into our beloved Bears.

Therefore, unless the Bears suddenly and spontaneously advance to Phase 2 of their new tradition and demonstrate an ability to beat excellent teams, they will probably go 1-4 during that stretch. Therefore, they will travel to Lambeau Field in Week 15 as a .500 team and try to withstand what might be Favre's last stand.

This will set the stage for a possible showdown in Minnesota to climax the season - and the Vikings are the only other team in the division that still has a pulse and could work their way into striking position over the next month-and-a-half.

Granted, Culpepper is down for the year, but I am of the opinion that Brad Johnson, because of his varied experience through the years, is better able than Culpepper to distribute the ball in a balanced attack that no longer has Randy Moss to turn to anymore. Culpepper had never run a pro offense that didn't feature Moss.

If Minnesota cuts back on their off-the-field shenanigans and focuses on football, they have a chance to be tied with the Bears going into that final game, but not if the Bears keep beating the teams they should beat - namely, the 49'ers this week. A victory virtually guarantees a title in this year's fledgling North Division, and a trip to the playoffs. Go orange!

As for our basketball team, the Bulls 2005-2006 objective is fairly obvious - don't go backwards! They lack the inside presence, offensively and defensively, to move forward. On sheer heart, determination and coaching, they'll make the playoffs again, but again they will have exhausted themselves too much to expect to win a post-season series. However, I do believe that next season will bring the Bulls' first post-Jordan playoff triumphs. Everything falls into place after this season. They have free agent spending money, cap room, a first round draft pick and an ever-improving nucleus of players to build around and they are bound to move forward.

Condolences to the Chicago Fire. For the second time in this year's soccer playoff's, they had a goal stolen away from them in the closing seconds. This time, it resulted in their elimination. However, the southwest suburbs have a lot to be excited about next season as the Fire, an outstanding organization and a perpetual playoff contender, moves to Bridgeview. In the meantime, I'm moving into the amateur section of the sports valve.

Amateur Sports Valve: Congratulations Good luck to the Mother McAuley volleyball team for their come-from-behind victory over Stagg. The Mighty Macs will hope to give Normal Community High School an abnormal thumping in the Class AA quarterfinals this Friday at 5:30 p.m.

Elsewhere in the amateur sports valve, Oak Forest (9-2) will go into battle Saturday at 7 p.m. versus Hubbard (9-2) in the Class 6A State football quarterfinals. At the same time, undefeated Lincoln Way East (11-0) will show up for their showdown against Brother Rice (9-2) in Class 8A action.

Sports Tip Valve: This week's sports tip addresses the psychological aspect of competing. When I coached, I preached a particular mindset to my serious players called "Calm Aggression." Whether you are hitting a baseball, rushing a quarterback or on a fast break in basketball, the imagery is this - feel the aggressive force inside of you like a volcano, but then release it calmly and orderly like a sniper. In other words funnel your frenzy efficiently. A concrete way to practice this seemingly intangible tip is to workout as hard as you can, but instead of churning your teeth and bulging your eyes, maintain an absolutely tranquil expression on your face during all the grinding and sweating. You might even smile as you muscle up that last rep. Ultimately, your opponents won't find it very amusing. You will be an explosive athlete. Exit valve!

Wildlife Action Plan

The Illinois Wildlife Action Plan, the product of a two-year effort by scientists, sportsmen, conservationists and other members of the community to conserve and enhance the state's wildlife, has been accepted by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources (IDNR) Director Joel Brunsfold announced recently.

All states and territories agreed to develop a Wildlife Action Plan and submit it to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service by Oct. 1st, 2005 as a condition of accepting State Wildlife Grant Program funding for non-game conservation. Thanks to more than 150 agencies and organizations that assisted in developing the document, the Illinois Wildlife Action Plan is among the first ten to be accepted nationwide.

The Illinois Wildlife Action Plan identifies goals for fish and wildlife conservation, and priority actions to address problems affecting wildlife. A committee of IDNR staff and representatives from The Nature Conservancy, Illinois Audubon Society, the National Wild Turkey Federation and Ducks Unlimited provided oversight of the planning process. The Dept. of Natural Resources has welcomed public participation through workshops and other opportunities to review the draft action plan.

Wildlife-associated recreation generates nearly $4 billion in economic activity in Illinois each year. Fishing and hunting provide about 40 million days of recreation, with a value of more than $2.5 billion. Non-consumptive activities, such as bird watching and photography, generate about $1.3 billion in economic activity and support more than 13,000 jobs.

Midwest Baseball Academy Opens Palos Hills Location

At Midwest Baseball Academy, young players can enjoy a real Spring Training experience without leaving Illinois.

Midwest Baseball Academy, which operates a national network of affordable hitting and pitching camps for players in grades 1 through 12, announce the addition of Palos Hills to its lineup for the coming winter and spring. Registration is now under way at www.MidwestBaseballAcademy.com.

The Academy's Spring Training 2006 is a unique concept that provides young players with advanced hitting and pitching training programs, instruction by the area's top high school and college coaches, and fantastic indoor facilities. The training sessions include six weeks of instruction for only $98.

Midwest Baseball Academy's 2006 Spring Training program will be held at nearly 100 sites in 16 states. The session in Palos Hills runs January 15 to March 19 at Moraine Valley Community College. Moraine Valley head coach Mike Kashirsky will direct the program. Instructors will include a staff of the area's top high school and college coaches.

With a player-coach ratio of 5 to 1, each player gets plenty of individual attention in a small-group atmosphere. In addition to unbeatable instruction by the area's best high school and college coaches, players get a pre-season tune-up that helps them enter team practice in mid-season form. With numerous age-specific sessions, instruction is specially tailored for each ability level. Overall, it's the type of intense, professional instruction young players just can't get in a summer league.

Each week, hitters rotate through a series of supervised stations, including indoor batting cages, with each drill designed to teach a different aspect of hitting. Players enjoy participating in hitting games and unique stations used by top high school and college programs. The program is designed to improve pitch and strike zone recognition, timing, balance, power, situational hitting, bunting and other aspects. Pitchers work under the supervision of coaches who can help with all aspects of pitching, from fundamentals and mechanics to more advanced concepts. Drills and repetition will improve a pitcher's speed and control.

Registration deadlines are approximately six weeks before each session begins, but last year's camps sold out much earlier. Because of the low player-coach ratio, spots in each session are limited. Complete details and times for each site, as well as registration forms, are available online at www.MidwestBaseballAcademy.com or by phoning toll free 866-MBA-HITS.

Since 1988, Midwest Baseball Academy has run hundreds of camps and clinics for thousands of players nationwide.

Jesse White Honors White Sox Legend Minnie Minoso

Illinois Secretary of State Jesse White recently hosted a National Hispanic Heritage Month celebration where he spotlighted the achievements of White Sox legend Minnie Minoso and other Hispanics who have contributed to the community in many ways. White presented Minoso with a Lifetime Achievement award and a commemorative Illinois license plate (MINOSO) honoring his accomplishments on and off of the baseball field. He also presented Jesse Ruiz, Aida Giachello, Ignacio Granja and Pepe Vargas with an Education award, a Social Health Research award, an Entrepreneur award and a Cultural Arts award respectively.

Deer Vs. Car Crashes

The Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) and the Illinois Department of Natural Resources (IDNR) reminds motorists that as cooler fall weather approaches the likelihood of car vs. deer crashes increases. Fall is the busiest season for these crashes as deer seek mates and food sources.

In 2004 there were 23,438 deer-vehicle accidents reported in the state, down 9% from 25,660 the year before, according to preliminary statistics compiled by the Illinois Department of Transportation.

If a deer-vehicle accident does occur, drivers and passengers involved should provide assistance to anyone injured. Contact local, county or state law enforcement - do not attempt to remove a dead or injured deer from a busy roadway. Illinois law requires all accidents resulting in damage of $500 or more to be reported and an accident report to be filed with the police.

The driver involved in an accident involving a deer may take possession of the deer. If the driver does not want the deer, any Illinois resident may claim the animal. Anyone possessing the deer must keep a personal record of the date the deer was claimed, the sex of the animal, the location of the accident, and the place where the deer or deer parts are stored. This information must be kept until the deer is consumed or no longer in the possession of any person. This information must be provided to any law enforcement officer investigating the death and possession of the deer.

Those taking possession of vehicle-killed deer are not required to phone in a report and obtain a registration number for the deer unless the deer is taken to a taxidermist or tannery. If the deer is to be taken to a taxidermist or tannery, call the IDNR Office of Law Enforcement at (217) 782-6431 to obtain a tag before delivering the deer.

Baseball Camp

Youngsters who want to improve their baseball skills are invited to attend Benedictine University's baseball camp from 6:30 to 9 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 3rd, 10th, 17th and 24th in the campus' Dan and Ada Rice Center.

The clinics are designed for youngsters who want to become better schooled in the fundamentals of baseball. The main goal of the camp is making certain each student receives individual instruction and coaching. Individual attention is assured by the camps' low camper-to-instructor ratio.

The clinics are conducted by veteran Benedictine baseball coach and Illinois High School Baseball Coaches Assn. Hall of Fame member John Ostrowski whose 33-year record ranks in the top 25 among all active NCAA coaches.

Camp participants will receive a Benedictine baseball T-shirt. Campers should bring a baseball glove and wear gym shoes. Bats will be provided.

The camps are open to youngsters ages 7 to 14. The fee is $35 for one session, $70 for two sessions, $100 for three sessions, and $130 for all four sessions. Campers are encouraged to register early. For more information, call (630) 829-6140.

St. Francis Named A

'100 Top Cardiovascular Hospital' For The 6th Year

For the sixth time, St. Francis Hospital & Health Center in Blue Island has been ranked among the 100 best cardiovascular hospitals in the nation, according to an annual study released this week by Evanston-based Solucient. This year's achievement makes St. Francis the only hospital in the State of Illinois and one of a handful in the nation to receive this recognition six times.

The Solucient 100 Top Hospitals: Cardiovascular Benchmarks for Success Study was released in the Oct. 28 edition of Modern Healthcare and identifies top performing hospitals that are setting benchmark levels of performance for cardiovascular services throughout the nation. According to the study's results, winning hospitals like St. Francis have higher survival rates, lower complications indices and shorter lengths of stay as compared with their peer hospitals.

The 2005 Solucient 100 Top Hospitals®: Cardiovascular Benchmarks for Success study includes non-federal, acute-care hospitals with at least 30 unique cases each of acute myocardial infarction (heart attacks), congestive heart failure (CHF), percutaneous transluminal coronary angioplasty (PTCA) and coronary artery bypass graft (CABG).

St. Francis has been a pioneer in the treatment of heart disease in the South Suburbs since the mid-1960s, when cardiac surgeons first began performing treatments to address coronary artery disease. In 1971, St. Francis became the first hospital in the region to perform open-heart surgery. Today, the hospital performs approximately 400 open-heart surgeries and more than 3,000 cardiac catheterizations every year.

Other cardiac milestones at St. Francis Hospital in 2005 include the recent opening of the hospital's new magnetic resonance imaging suite, which offers the area's only MRI studies of the heart. The hospital has also begun construction on a new, state-of-the-art electrophysiology lab that will open in early 2006.

The Face Of Leukemia 2006 Calendar

The Leukemia Research Foundation (LRF) announces its 2006 The Face Of Leukemia calendar, available now for $15 by calling (847) 424-0600 or visiting www.leukemia-research.org. One hundred percent of the proceeds from the calendar benefit the Leukemia Research Foundation.

The Face Of Leukemia calendar recounts the captivating stories of individuals and families who battle with legions of others in pursuit of the ultimate cure for leukemia and the other blood cancers - individuals on the front lines of discovery, fundraising, living with loss, and living each day in remission. This collection of truly extraordinary accounts is proving to be an admired holiday and year-end gift of inspiration shared as corporate and employee appreciation or as Individual "stocking stuffer" keepsakes. The LRF has been fighting the battle against leukemia, lymphoma and myelodysplastic syndromes for 60 years by funding research into their causes and cures, and to enrich the quality of life of those touched by these diseases.

Travis (December) was diagnosed with acute lymphocytic leukemia at the age of five. "Travis' best hope was a bone marrow transplant... a matched, unrelated donor was found soon after through the National Marrow Donor Program. It was the only perfect match."

Mae (July) lost her adult son David to leukemia in 2000. Part of her son's legacy is the David Wortman Memorial Fund that Mae began in 2002 providing critical research dollars to help find a cure.

Six-year-old Jordan (May) has been fighting leukemia for most of her young life (since 2000). "Jordan has a great attitude and lives life fully on her good days!"

These are just a few of the stories of courage and determination found in The Face Of Leukemia calendar.

Home Care & Hospice

More than four million Americans receive home-delivered health care daily from nearly one million caregivers. In their honor, the Illinois HomeCare Council joins the National Assn. for Home Care & Hospice in celebrating November as National Home Care Month under the theme, "When You Are Well, and Especially When You Are Sick, There Is No Place Like Home."

Through technological advances, home-delivered health care has grown far beyond basic professional nursing and home care aide services. Today's modern home care agency offers a wealth of nursing, physical, occupational, respiratory and speech therapies, counseling, dietary, laboratory, dental, optical, pharmacy, podiatry, X-ray, medical equipment and home medical supplies, and personal care.

Home care services are paid for by public and private sources, or directly by patients and their families.

Despite massive cutbacks in government funding, home care continues to be the preferred means of receiving quality health care services for nearly five million Americans.

The Illinois HomeCare Council is the nation's first home care association and has been a part of growth and change in the home care industry for the last 43 years. IHCC represents nearly 200 home health providers and suppliers. IHCC will participate in the month's celebrations by holding its annual Legislative Breakfast and Summit on Feb. 1st, 2006 at the President Lincoln Hotel and Conference Center in Springfield.

Every day medical professionals and researchers get closer to solving the mystery of leukemia, lymphoma and other blood cancers. The Face Of Leukemia is a powerful daily reminder that the ultimate goal - a cure for blood cancers - can be obtained when one does what he or she can to win.

The calendars are $15 each, plus $3.50 postage and handling. To place an order, call (847) 424-0600 or visit www.leukemia-research.org.

"Breast Friends For Life" Program

Breast cancer affects women of all ages and ethnic groups. At Little Company of Mary Hospital and Health Care center, it is believed the best defense is a good offense. Reducing risk factors and early detection are crucial in the battle against cancer.

As part of its "Breast Friends for Life" program, The Cancer Center and the Breast Health Center at Little Company of Mary Hospital and Health Centers teamed to provide outreach to women living in the Southwest suburbs of Chicago on National Mammography Day (Oct. 21). National Mammography Day was designed to make women aware of life saving breast health screenings and encourage them to get regular mammograms.

New, more convenient hours and affordable, quick 30-minute mammography screening at Little Company let women quickly return to their everyday routine. Offering a warm, private environment and evening and Saturday appointment availability within five business days of a patient's call, the Breast Health Center provides full diagnostic mammography services, including affordable screenings as well as diagnostic ultrasound and specialty views and minimally invasive biopsies.

A mammogram can be an uncomfortable experience for most women. Little Company strives to provide a "spa-like" environment by offering plush robes and soothing music for its clients and, upon request, the technician will provide new comfort cushions for the patient's screening exam. The FDA-approved foam cushion, called MammoPad®, creates a softer, warmer mammogram.

The Cancer Center's treatment modalities and program services reinforce the hospital's commitment to the community's health and cancer care. Schedule a mammogram with its breast health experts, certified by the American College of Radiology, by calling (708) 499-8550. For more information on the National Mammography Day outreach campaign, call (708) 229-5049.

College Illinois! Opens Enrollment Period

To save on future college costs, families across the state can now enroll their children in the state's prepaid tuition plan, College Illinois!, now in its eighth enrollment period. The program helps parents and grandparents reduce college costs by allowing them to lock in a price now to cover future college tuition and fees.

"College Illinois! gives families control over rising tuition costs even in an economic period where costs are rising all around us. The program stops tuition inflation on future college costs once a contract is purchased. Not many other products or services allow people to lock in that kind of financial security," said Randy Erford, director of College Illinois!.

Experts say that earlier college planning by parents of young children results in families who are better equipped to handle college costs, which have doubled in the last 10 years and are projected to continue rising in the future. This year, there are additional incentives for planning early. Families who enroll in College Illinois! online or via mail before Dec. 31 will receive a 30 percent discount off of the program's application fee. College Illinois! general enrollment period runs through April 3.

Early enrollees will also be the first to have an opportunity to benefit from a new state tax deduction that allows Illinois taxpayers to deduct College Illinois! contributions (up to $10,000 per year for individuals; $20,000 for married couples) from their state taxable income. The deduction is effective on 2005 contributions and contributions made to the plan each tax year beyond. There are other tax advantages to participating in the program. Plan earnings are 100 percent exempt from state and federal income taxes. Purchasers also enjoy federal gift and estate tax benefits.

Administered by the Illinois Student Assistance Commission, College Illinois! is a secure college funding option because benefits do not fluctuate with the stock market. Similar to an insurance policy, College

Illinois! is a contract between the purchaser and the state of Illinois that ensures tuition and fee benefits for college. When a beneficiary is ready to go to school, he or she can choose to attend college anywhere because benefits can be used not only at Illinois public universities and community colleges, but at public and private institutions nationwide as well.

Families interested in enrolling in College Illinois! can find information about this year's plans and pricing options at collegeillinois.com. Online registration is also available at the site and takes less than 10 minutes to complete.

College Illinois! benefits keep pace with the increases in tuition and fees equal to those found at in-state, public institutions. Participants can purchase from one semester at a community college to nine semesters at a public university. Various payment options are available, including monthly and annual installments and down payment options.

College Illinois! is open for enrollment through April 3. For more information about the program, or to enroll, visit www.collegeillinois.com or call (877) 877-3724.

NightVISION Reflective Address Signs are now being installed at the request of individual residents!

An Independent Contractor of Address America will begin working on this street starting tomorrow. We are trying to install individual address signs straight down the street, so that in case of an emergency, especially at night, your home can be found more easily. Ambulances, fire departments, patrol cars, cabs, repair and delivery persons depend on reflective signs at night.

Can 911 find your home when every second counts?

Most homes are difficult to find at night, and that's when NightVISION Numbers really stand out. These very attractive signs are highly visible both day and night. NightVISION Numbers are BRILLIANTLY REFLECTIVE. Your address will show up at night like an Interstate sign!

Your participation is appreciated.

Rain Forest Is Coming To Town

How can a rain forest come to town?

It's truly something you will have to see to believe. On Monday, Nov. 14, Ridge Lawn School, 5757 W. 105th St., will be transformed into a tropical rain forest.

Touring under the name "Live on Stage, The Rain Forest," not only will you think you are right in the middle of the tropical rain forest with the beautiful sounds and sights of the Amazon region, you will also see exotic birds, monkeys, alligators, jungle cats, and snakes.

It all started as a dream for founder and current director Mike Kohrieser. Mike's father being a professional animal trainer gave him an entire childhood of learning his profession. Then in the 80's Mike and his wife Marcia became increasingly aware of problems in the tropical rain forests. Using his already developed skills as an animal trainer and stage entertainer, Mike wanted to educate young and old alike about these animals facing possible extinction.

In 1992 the non-profit organization Understanding Wildlife, Inc. was created. The goal is simple - educate and inspire individuals to get involved and make this a better world for us all (including the animals) to live in.

This fascinating comedy animal show will only be at Ridge Lawn School on Monday, Nov. 14 for one show at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $6 for adults and $3 for children and will be available at the door.

America Recycles Day

Get involved to celebrate "America Recycles Day," the West Cook County Solid Waste Agency and Keep West Cook Beautiful have partnered with Classic Computer Recovery, Inc. and Triton College to host a FREE One-Day Electronics Recycling Event on Nov. 19th from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Triton College in the Northwest Student Parking Lot, 2000 Fifth Ave. in River Grove.

Among the items accepted are Computer (PCs), all-in-ones, laptops, modems, printers, monitors, CD-ROM drives, keyboards, mice, cables, hard drives and motherboards. The contractor specializes in electronic products recycling and is capable of recycling over 95% of the materials and components in the items listed above.

Electronic equipment, especially computers, printers and monitors, quickly become outdated. Consequently, many of these items end up in landfills. While these types of electronic equipment are not banned from landfills, the components often contain materials that are hazardous to human health. Computer monitors, for example, contain toxic materials such as cadmium, lead, mercury and chromium. Each monitor contains five to eight pounds of lead that, if not disposed of properly, can harm humans and the environment. For this reason, WCCSWA encourages residents to properly dispose of electronic waste at the collection. For more information, contact Jim Caporusso at (708) 450-0100.

Letter To The Editor

Letter to the Editor:

As a community member who attended the Oak Lawn Park District meeting in September, I was happy to read that the elected board members will consider a dog park proposal at their meeting Monday, Nov 14th at 7:30 p.m. at the Oak View Center (4625 W 110th St - east entrance).

At first I was disappointed with the initial reaction from some of the board members. This is an important issue for the community to discuss.

As a dog owner and long time resident of Oak Lawn I think the dog park would be a great benefit to the community at a low or zero cost to taxpayers. It is not just dogs who enjoy a dog park. Many adults and families enjoy dog parks just as much or even more than the dogs. A dog park would not only be a great way for residents to interact with their dog but it will be a great way for community members to interact with each other.

With the growth of condos, town homes, apartments, and homes with small yards a dog park is needed now more than ever to allow responsible dog owners to enjoy the full benefits of pet ownership.

I encourage the park board members to consider this issue and move forward on it so community members can start to fundraise to defray cost from taxpayers, find a suitable location, and help draft guidelines and proposals that will help the dog park to be a success.

Residents of surrounding communities are welcome to attend a meeting as guests.

Veterans And Soldiers News

By Lori Taylor Ph: 708.388.2425

We received this statement from the House of Representatives Veterans Committee on Veterans Affairs Chairman Steve Buyer (R-Ind.) entitled Veterans Day: Their Precious Service: Our Renewed Obligation.

"America's veterans embody the ideals upon which America was founded more than 229 years ago. Since the Revolution, eight generations of America's veterans have established an unbroken commitment to freedom.

This Veterans Day, we will honor more than 25 million living veterans and the memory of those patriots who came before them. With pride, we remember each soldier, Marine, sailor, airman and Coastguardsman who has served our country by taking up arms when called by our nation in a time of need. The sacrifices ordinary American men and women from communities large and small have been willing to make, often before they were past their teenage years, have secured our nation unprecedented freedoms and made us the world's bulwark of liberty.

The young patriots now returning from war in Iraq and Afghanistan and other deployments worldwide are joining the ranks of veterans to whom America owes an immense debt of gratitude. For those who have made the ultimate sacrifice, we are grateful that such men and women were among us. For those who continue to serve, we honor their commitment. For those who return to civilian life, we honor their service.

Our greatest privilege and responsibility as leaders of the House Committee on Veterans Affairs is to provide our veterans with a system that cares for their wounds and ensures that they have an opportunity to succeed. Every member of the committee shares that calling.

Our nation has kept faith with its veterans. Funding for veterans healthcare and benefits is strong, and has increased more than 75 percent in the last decade. VA healthcare is now synonymous with world-class quality. An expansion of community-based outpatient clinics is enhancing access to care, especially for rural veterans. Yet, we must never stop looking for ways to improve the services we provide our veterans.

Our commitment to America's veterans is to provide them with a system that offers first-rate healthcare and a system of benefits that is administered fairly, swiftly, and consistently. Service members returning from war deserve a "seamless" transition from the military into the VA healthcare and benefits system. Our pledge to each veteran is to make that happen; when they took the oath, service members volunteered to uphold the Constitution, not fight jealous bureaucracies.

And so, at the appointed hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, let us renew our obligation to them."

The National Vietnam Veterans Art Museum, 1801 S. Indiana Ave. in Chicago, would appreciate any donations to advance the museum's exhibits, educational programs and art conservation. I had the opportunity to visit this museum two years ago when our National President was in town for her official visit. The museum is unlike any other art museum in the entire nation. It is the only museum committed to showing art created by those who have seen war. Through the museum's activities, everyone whether currently in the military, are veterans, or citizens who have never seen war, can honor the service and sacrifice of these veterans and engage in an examination of the human experience of war. It is a real enlightening experience to visit this museum. If you or your organizations would like to consider giving a donation to the NVVAM to support the exhibits and programs, call Ruth Crnkovich at (312) 326-0270 for more information. If you would like to view their new award winning web design visit www.nvvam.org.

Navy Seaman Raymond E. Galvin, son of Maureen and Raymond V. Galvin of Chicago, and his shipmates represented the United States when they participated in the 10th annual International Exchange of Sports soccer tournament in Yokosuka while assigned to the amphibious command ship USS Blue Ridge, also home-ported in Yokosuka, Japan. A total of 12 teams took part in the tournament, including two semi-professional Japanese clubs and teams from Peru, Brazil and Argentina. Galvin is a 2002 graduate of Brother Rice High School in Chicago. He joined the Navy in August 2004.

Air Force 1st Class Trisha L. Arena is currently deployed to an overseas forward-operating location to support the missions of Operations Enduring Freedom and Iraqi Freedom. She is the daughter of Cynthia Carroll of Homewood and the granddaughter of John Arena of Matteson. The airman is a 2003 graduate of Mother McAuley Liberal Arts High School in Chicago.

Army Spec. Martin A. Aguilar has deployed to Iraq as a member of the 172nd Stryker Brigade Combat Team (BCT) to support the mission of Operation Iraqi Freedom. Aguilar, a fire direction specialist with two years of military service, is the son of Charlene and Martin Aguilar of Stickney, Ill. The specialist is a 2003 graduate of Morton West High School in Berwyn.

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Garrick S. Corder has deployed to the U.S. Naval Base, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, to serve as a member of Joint Task Force-GTMO in support of Operation Enduring Freedom. Corder has served in the military for three years. He is the son of Linda and stepson of Paul Arvia of Midlothian. The sailor is a 2002 graduate of Bremen High School in Midlothian.

Good-bye for this week. God bless you and God bless America.

A Veteran To Remember

If the name of Jim Stockdale rings a bell with you at all, it's probably got something to do with a late-night comedian. Stockdale made all the opening monologues back in 1992 when, as the running mate of presidential candidate Ross Perot, he stumbled big-time in a televised debate with the other vice-presidential hopefuls. His opening sentences - "Who am I? Why am I here?" - were intended to begin introducing himself and his take on the political scene to the American public. They didn't come off that way, though, and the stay-up-late comics, a tough crowd, had a field day with Stockdale's awkward lines.

There is, of course, more to the story - a lot more - and Veterans Day seems a good time as any to tell it.

If there's one other thing you might remember about James B. Stockdale, it's that he was a retired Navy admiral. That's where the real story of Jim Stockdale begins.

After graduating from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1947, he signed up for flight school and became a pilot. His was a distinguished but relatively uneventful career until September 9, 1965, when he was shot down over North Vietnam and was taken prisoner. As the senior officer with a group of other American captives (including John McCain, now U.S. Senator from Arizona), he was destined to live his most difficult hours - and his finest ones as well.

Stockdale's leadership helped to develop a genuine esprit de corps among the prisoners, who formed a true community complete with its own laws, discipline, and even a secret communication system. But it all came at a terrible cost to Stockdale. Forced to wear leg irons and tortured because he refused to appear in propaganda films, he ultimately spent four years in solitary confinement, including two 18-month stretches in total darkness.

"There are many of us who performed far better [in captivity] than we otherwise would have because of his leadership and example," McCain said last summer to Thomas M. DeFrank, Washington bureau chief of the New York Daily News.

Stockdale was a hero not only to his own men, but to his country. His 26 combat awards include the Congressional Medal of Honor, the nation's highest military tribute; two Distinguished Flying Crosses, three Distinguished Service Medals, two Purple Hearts and four Silver Star Medals. Only a few can attain that kind of record. We should remember, especially on the day we honor our veterans, that those who do - and, indeed, all those who have risked their lives for their country - are heroes to us all.

That's why DeFrank wrote his appreciation of the hero-warrior in July, a few days after Admiral Stockdale died at the age of 81. Death came on his beloved Coronado Island in San Diego, a retirement community for so many Navy veterans. The lingering laughter that resulted from his brief foray into politics is a "monumental injustice" to Stockdale's memory, DeFrank wrote. "Anyone who has ever laughed at Jim Stockdale should be required by law to read his Medal of Honor citation," he added.

Sen. McCain would agree.

"He is my commander always," the Senator reminisced. "If the job of a leader is to inspire people to greater achievement, accomplishments and courage, no one fit that description better than Jim Stockdale."

May he rest in peace.

Donate Comfort Items

On Oct. 24th The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States Post #177, located in Chicago Ridge, sent its Hospital Chairman, Julie Freeze, to the Jesse Brown VA Hospital in Chicago. She brought a donation of comfort items for inpatient and outpatient veterans at the hospital. Many of these veterans are homeless and are in need of clothing items. Marie James, Chief Voluntary Services stated, "It is unfortunate that many of the homeless are veterans and we try to do the best we can with the support of the community." VFW Post #177 is taking donations of gently used men's clothing, coats, hats, gloves, and scarves. If you would like to make a donation of these items or a monetary one that will purchase new undergarments, call Julie at (708) 636-3220.

Census Bureau To Update Numbers On Employment

U.S. Census Bureau data show that the country's official unemployment rate was 5.1 percent in September 2005. So what is the source for this important economic indicator?

The information was gathered from the Census Bureau's monthly Current Population Survey (CPS) — which dates from 1942 — making it the longest-running household survey in the country.

Every month, Census Bureau field representatives ask selected households questions relevant to the U.S. labor force, such as employment status, hours worked, earnings, age, sex, race, marital status, educational attainment, occupation and industry. From their answers come estimates of the unemployment rate, released monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS).

Prior to the survey, local households selected in the nationwide sample receive a letter from Census Bureau Director Louis Kincannon. Some participants are interviewed by telephone and others interviewed in person. The field representatives carry official identification cards.

Sponsored by the BLS and the Census Bureau, the CPS will be conducted during the week of Nov. 13th when nearly 2,000 Census Bureau field representatives will interview about 78,000 households.

Ten Girls Charged In School Fight

Ten girls were arrested for their involvement in a hallway fight that occurred at H.L. Richards High School on Oct. 26th. Seven of the girls arrested were charged as adults with disorderly conduct and breach of peace.

The incident was a continuation of a summer argument between two of the girls according to officials. Two groups of girls faced each other in the school's main hallway near the theater.

Officials said that the girls would receive the 'most severe punishment' due to the fact that they ran from the police who came to break up the fight. On police officer and a teacher was slightly hurt in the melee.

The seven students who were arrested as adults included Brenda Allen, 17, of Calumet Park; Nita Glenn, 17 of Calumet Park; Candace Hightower, 18, Calumet Park; Dequoya Lewis-Alexander, 17, of Harvey; Melanie Mills, 17, of Robbins; Jide Ofoma, 17, Harvey; and Whitney White, 18, of Calumet Park. Three other girls were charged as juveniles. A court hearing for the seven is set for Dec. 5th at the Bridgeview Courthouse.

An expulsion hearing is going to be held at Richards. If the hearing goes against the girls and an appeal is sought, the matter will come before the District 218 school board. School officials have revealed that fight incidents between girls is on the rise this year.

Durbin: Budget Threatens To Hurt Illinois Farmers

U.S. Senator Dick Durbin (D-IL) warned that the Senate-approved budget reconciliation bill threatens critical conservation programs in Illinois. Durbin said the proposal to cut funding for the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) and the Conservation Security Program (CSP) could potentially impact Illinois farmers. Durbin voted against the legislation.

"I am sorry to say, this budget has the wrong priorities. It increases the burdens on seniors and farmers; cuts health care spending; reduces the availability of affordable housing; and cuts environmental protections. It rewards the special interests instead of standing up for American families," said Durbin.

Durbin noted that in Illinois and the nation, the Conservation Reserve Program is the single largest environmental restoration program, with contracts on 41,000 Illinois farms, setting aside fragile land to avoid erosion and chemical contamination of our water sources. The program adds $106 million annually to the Illinois farm company through direct payments to producers. CRP also helps reduce farm commodity payments by taking marginal land out of production.

The Conservation Security Program provides financial and technical assistance to promote the conservation and improvement of soil, water, air, energy, plant and animal life. In this year's budget proposal, the program faces a 30 percent reduction in funds over the next five years, totaling $822 million.

This comes on the heels of over $3 billion in cuts made to the CSP over the last two years in other spending legislation. These cuts threaten to substantially scale back CSP's expansion and prevent thousands of Illinois farmers from enrolling in the program.

"These conservation programs not only preserve state wildlife habitats, they bolster Illinois' farm economy, keep our drinking water clean and attract tourism," noted Durbin. "Currently only 19% of Illinois' most environmentally significant cropland is enrolled in CRP, with a long waiting list of farmers hoping to take part. These cuts would make it impossible for new applicants to participate."

Durbin has pledged to work with farm groups, policymakers and the Bush Administration to ensure that farmers and those who depend on the agricultural economy are not adversely affected by these budget cuts.

Big Brother Should Not Cost Big Money

In recent weeks Americans have been rudely awakened by $3 per gallon gasoline and the hundreds of billions of dollars it will cost to rebuild the Gulf Coast. Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan worries that the deficit is out of control and President George W. Bush has promised to work with Congress to cut spending to offset some of the unexpected costs of hurricane relief.

Given all these new budget strains, it is astonishing that the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) could be giving serious consideration to forcing state governments to issue millions of "gold-plated" ID cards with computer chips. Costing taxpayers tens of billions of dollars, these cards would do little to improve real security but could pose a serious threat to every cardholder's personal privacy.

The Real ID Act, approved in May, for the first time authorizes the federal government to set uniform standards for state drivers' licenses. A spokesman for the bill's primary author, House Judiciary Committee Chairman James Sensenbrenner, said Congress modeled many provisions in the Real ID Act after current standards in states including California, Florida, New York, and Virginia. It is true that many states are making secure cards at a reasonable cost and improving application procedures.

While congressional intent to provide a reasonably priced, secure license is clear, the message may not be getting through to the young Department of Homeland Security (DHS), which was charged with the development of ID security standards but has no previous experience in making ID cards on a massive scale. DHS is consulting with state departments of motor vehicles (DMVs), which do have a great deal of expertise and produce more than 72 million cards each year. The states are aware of the technologies that do and do not work. Existing technologies include use of unique biometrics such as facial recognition, holograms, two-dimensional bar codes, and highly-secure machine readable codes. Drivers' licenses with these features are currently produced in many states for less than $1.50 per card depending on volume.

DHS may ignore the existing technology and mandate that state-issued IDs include embedded computer chips in large part due to lobbying from a coalition of chip manufacturers, many of whom are based abroad. Many states, on the other hand, have rejected this dubious scheme as unworkable due to the huge cost and lack of durability. In the last year alone, New York, Virginia, and West Virginia have examined and rejected the chip idea as costing far too much for very little benefit.

Citizens Against Government Waste (CAGW) studied the chip idea and agreed with the conclusions of a recent London School of Economics report. If the cost of building an entirely new infrastructure is factored in, embedded computer chips could push the cost past $990 per card and would pose significant privacy risks. In fact the full cost of implementing this complex chip solution could be $17.4 billion in new, wasteful spending.

The basis for privacy concerns is that radio frequency chips can more easily be mined for personal information by unauthorized persons, even from some distance away. The encryption for these chips has been successfully hacked even by high school students.

Several state DMVs are also concerned that brittle computer chips cannot survive the wear and tear of every day use. Male drivers in particular tend to carry licenses in their back pockets and often bend cards beyond the breaking point of a chip.

DHS can achieve the security goals set by Real ID simply by following Congress's intent to keep the cost reasonable and, working more closely with governors and state DMVs to gain the maximum benefit from a mix of existing security features that have already proven to be practical on a large scale.

DHS Secretary Michael Chertoff promised such cooperation when he met with the National Governors Association in July. On Oct. 18, DHS held a meeting with state officials to discuss REAL ID regulations, which could be finalized at any time. The secretary should make it clear that he opposes costly, unfunded, intrusive, and unnecessary mandates as part of any federal standard. If the chips fall where they should, they will not be included in any American's ID card.

CAGW's complete report on federal ID standards is available at www.cagw.org.

He Said, She Said Who's Right?

He wants the kids to stay overnight every Wednesday and every other weekend. She says Wednesday nights will disrupt the kids' school routine. Now what? When it comes to divorce and issues of child custody and visitation, it's not unusual for couples to have difficulty reaching agreements.

Lawyer Referral can put you in touch with a qualified family law attorney who specializes in divorce. With more than one million divorces annually in the U.S., family law attorneys are familiar with what is considered usual and customary in terms of property division, spousal and child support and child custody. With the help of their lawyers, the parties can fairly negotiate and settle these matters, hopefully without litigation.

The numerous financial decisions that must be made during the divorce add significantly to the stress. Divorce almost always involves changes in both parties' lifestyles and creates uncertainty as to the future. Who will pay the bills that are in both names? Will you need to sell your home? Where will you live? How will you divide up your joint assets? And when children are involved, who will have custody? How will visitation work? How much money is needed to support the children? Each question becomes a life-altering decision.

Once you meet with a family law attorney and review all the particulars of your case, he or she will be able to discuss with you the various options and the possible outcomes. The lawyer will be able to determine what issues you may be able to work out with your spouse and what issues you may need to pursue through the legal system.

Some issues are more straightforward than others. For example, all states have child support guidelines that will determine the level of child support in many cases. Other issues, such as complex parenting arrangements and complicated financial issues, require more in-depth evaluation.

Finding a lawyer is easy through the Lawyer Referral program, a public service of your local bar association. Just visit the American Bar Association's web site online at www.abanet.org/referral, which includes the listing of Lawyer Referral programs covering all 50 states. Or look in your local Yellow Pages under Lawyer Referral.

Topinka Toured Wind Turbine

State Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka toured the wind turbine in Pittsfield, to discuss ways the Treasurer's Office can assist in financing alternative energy in Illinois. Illinois Rural Electric Cooperative is using this particular wind turbine as a "showcase" project for wind energy.

This is the first downstate turbine to be built in Illinois. Illinois Rural Electric Cooperative is trying to demonstrate and attract economic development with the construction of the wind turbine.

Since May, the wind turbine in Pike County has produced over 1 million kilowatts of electricity. At full wind, which is 22 - 25 mph, the Pike County turbine can provide enough electricity for 500 homes.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor:

The President definitely got it right this time when he put forth Samuel Alito for the U.S. Supreme Court seat. Concerned Women for America, the nation's largest public policy women's organization, strongly supports this highly respected and experienced nominee.

Alito, a strict constructionist, respects the limited role of the judiciary to interpret the law and not make law. Making law is the responsibility of the legislature.

He has all the qualifications needed: intellect, knowledge and experience in Constitutional law, integrity, competence, humility, and judicial temperament and restraint.

Alito will help swing the Court back to the Constitution and restore what has been lost through recent judicial activism.

The U.S. Senate has confirmed him twice by unanimous consent when he was confirmed in 1987 as U.S. Attorney for New Jersey and in 1990 and when President George H.W. Bush nominated him to serve on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. Half of the current Democratic caucus in the Senate voted for him.

I urge our two U.S. Senators to confirm him

Kathy Valente

State Director Concerned Women for America of Illinois

Dear Editor:

Finally, a Supreme Court nomination worth applauding. Judge Samuel Alito Jr. is a constitutionalist with outstanding qualifications and a record to prove it!

In 1990, even about half of the Democratic caucus confirmed him to the 3rd Circuit Court, and the entire Senate unanimously confirmed him.

This nominee is worthy of a quick and speedy confirmation.

TRAVEL NEWS

New Ride Featured In The Spring

Cedar Point amusement park/resort has announced it has reduced the price of its regular one-day admission ticket and will add a $6,000,000 ride for the 2006 season.

Next summer, the price of a regular one-day admission ticket (valid for guests age three through 61 who are 48 inches and taller) will be $39.95, a reduction of $5 off a regular one-day admission ticket in 2005 ($44.95).

Plus, the Junior ticket (valid for guests ages three through 61 who are under 48 inches tall), reduced from $24.95 to $9.95 in August, will remain at $9.95 and the Senior ticket (valid for guests age 62 and older), reintroduced in August, will also stay the same at $9.95. Children age two and under are free.

It will be the first time since the park implemented a pay-one-price ticket program in 1970 that the price of a regular one-day admission ticket has decreased.

Prices were also lowered on two other admission tickets. A Starlight admission ticket (available after 5 p.m. when Cedar Point closes at 10 p.m. or later or after 4 p.m. when the park closes earlier than 10 p.m.) has been reduced to $24.95. In 2005, a Starlight ticket was $27. The popular Ride & Slide admission ticket, which includes admission to both Cedar Point and Soak City on two days, has been reduced from $67.95 to $64.95.

In addition to the reduced ticket prices, the park will also add a world-record-breaking thrill ride - Skyhawk (pictured). Located near Snake River Falls in Frontiertown and standing 103 feet above the ground, Skyhawk will be the tallest ride of its kind in the world.

Skyhawk will feature two giant swinging arms, each 84 feet in length, with 20 seats on each arm. Each set of 20 seats will consist of two rows of 10 seats, positioned back to back, that will provide each rider with a "front row" view. Using pneumatic technology similar to that used on Power Tower, riders will be thrilled as they are pushed toward the sky, then experience weightlessness as they reverse direction and rush back toward the ground - just like the drop side of a roller coaster - with no ride structure in their path. At the peak of the arc, riders on Skyhawk will be more than 125 feet in the air and will reach speeds of 60 mph in both directions! The $6,000,000 ride will give nearly 800 rides an hour. Each ride will be approximately two minutes long. (Guests must be at least 48 inches tall to ride Skyhawk.)

Guests will have their first opportunity to ride Skyhawk when the historic amusement park/resort opens for its 137th season on May 6. Construction of Skyhawk began immediately after the park closed for the 2005 season on Sunday, Oct. 30.

Guests will be able to follow the construction progress of Skyhawk at the park's Web site, www.cedarpoint.com. Exclusive webcams, "OnPoint!" - Cedar Point's official web log and the FUNtimes newsletter will help keep thrill-seekers up-to-date on the happenings at the park during the winter months.

Ukrainian Art And The Orange Revolution

In December 2004 the world focused squarely on the elections in a country that is seldom the subject of national or global headlines. The country is Ukraine and nearly one year ago, the people of Ukraine asserted their right to not only free elections but fair elections. The historical significance of what transpired captured the hearts and minds of all who watched - from the attempted poisoning of the democratic candidate to the mass demonstrations in Kyiv's Independent Square. For two weeks the world witnessed the power of a human spirit that desires freedom, fairness and democracy. Witnesses sat in awe of the peaceful and organized manner with which hundreds of thousands united for the cause of democracy. People poured in from all regions of Ukraine as did Ukrainians from around the world. In freezing temperatures, tent cities were built and food was distributed. Rock stars performed and people blogged the events real time from the streets via email and text messages. In the end, the demonstrators draped in the Orange color of their embattled candidate, prevailed, and Victor Yushenko was elected President of Ukraine.

Recognizing the historical significance of what was transpiring, the Ukrainian Institute of Modern Art in Chicago, in conjunction with the Center for Contemporary Art (CCA) in Kyiv, will host an exhibition of contemporary art that blossomed from the streets of the revolution. During the demonstrations the Director of the CCA in Kyiv (<http://www.cca.kiev.ua>), Yuriy Onuch, flung open the doors of the Center to young artists demonstrating in Independent Square and encouraged them to utilize the resources of the center to experiment and create utilizing the energy of the revolution as their muse. For several weeks a group of young artists utilized the facilities at the CCA to capture, explain and interpret the momentous occasion of the Orange Revolution.

"Artists Respond: Ukrainian Art and The Orange Revolution" showcases the work of this new generation of Ukrainian artists. The exhibit not only captures the significance of a major historical event but the works ask difficult questions surrounding Ukraine's past, who it is now and how it will move forward. The compositions in the exhibition combine to explore these questions and others such as Ukraine's role in the West and how it manages its relationship with the East. The exhibition offers works in many media including painting, sculpture, and mixed media.

The Ukrainian Institute of Modern Art (UIMA) has joined together with the Center for Contemporary Art in Kiev to bring this exhibition of revolutionary art to Chicago. In December, UIMA will present "Artists Respond: Ukrainian Art and The Orange Revolution" - the first exhibition of Ukrainian Revolutionary art shown in North America.

The exhibition is being co-curated by Yulia Vaganova, Director for the Center of Contemporary Art in Kiev, and Nicholas Sawieki, Art Chairman at the Ukrainian Institute of Modern Art.

UIMA is located at 2320 W. Chicago Ave., (773) 227-5522. The Institute is open Wednesday through Sunday from 12 noon to 4 p.m.

Additional information is available at the Ukrainian Institute of Modern Art website at www.uima-art.org.

Classic New England Christmas

The town of Rockland will again put a special seaside spin on their holiday festival.

For the town's annual coastal Christmas celebration - the Rockland Festival of Lights - Santa will arrive by Coast Guard vessel, kicking off three days of revelry that includes all of the holiday season's most trademarked traditions.

Santa's arrival comes at noon on Friday, Nov. 25th, also known as Black Friday, a day when crowds of people around the nation flock to their local shopping centers in a holiday shopping frenzy.

But Roxanne Jobe, one of the event's organizers, says that Rockland will mark the day after Thanksgiving with a much more relaxed feel, ideal for family shopping and those looking to experience a friendly Maine holiday weekend.

After Santa's arrival, he will spend the afternoon in his village meeting with children and receiving wish lists. During that time, downtown businesses will be open and offering special perks like free gift wrapping to those getting a head start on their holiday gift buying.

Friday evening will end when Santa joins the town mayor to flip the candy cane switch and light the town's Christmas tree, as well as the downtown lights.

Festivities continue on Saturday when carolers and horse-drawn carriages take to the streets to spread holiday cheer. Also ongoing throughout the day is Eat, Drink and Be Merry, an informal restaurant tour showcasing the culinary skills of more than a dozen downtown restaurants.

On Saturday night, Rockland will be aglow with light as an evening parade of illuminated floats tour the town before ending in Harbor Park overlooking picturesque Rockland harbor. The parade route's end will be the home of a giant bonfire with hot chocolate, music and merriment.

Sunday features a pancake breakfast with local "celebrities" serving up flapjacks.

Later in the day, the town's historic inns will open their doors to the public, serving up treats and showing off magnificent holiday decorations. Many area inns also offer special packages for those who wish to make a weekend of the celebration.

Cook County Scavenger Sale Notice to Property Owners 2005 Scavenger Sale Schedule and Delinquent Real Estate Tax List

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNERS

This legal notice includes a list of real estate parcels on which property taxes for 2 or more years are listed as delinquent and subject to sale as of Wednesday, December 28, 2005.

SPECIAL NOTE: Due to the legal requirements for publication of this notice of delinquencies, this list may include some properties on which the taxes have been paid after this list was prepared. It is the property owner's responsibility to determine if the taxes are paid in full.

IF YOUR PROPERTY IS LISTED IN THIS NOTICE FOR SALE OF DELINQUENT REAL ESTATE TAXES, IT IS IMPORTANT FOR YOU TO TAKE ACTION SO THAT YOUR TAXES ARE NOT SOLD. Sale of taxes will result in a lien against the property that will add, at a minimum, hundreds of dollars in fees to the amount now due. Sale of the tax and continued failure by the owner to redeem may result in the loss of property.

Under Illinois state law, the purchaser of the delinquent real estate taxes may obtain title to these properties if they are not redeemed (paid) in a timely manner. The Scavenger Sale is scheduled to begin on December 28, 2005. For information on the Scavenger Sale please visit our website at cookcountytreasurer.com.

LEGAL NOTICE COOK COUNTY 2-YEAR DELINQUENT REAL ESTATE TAX LIST

OFFICE OF THE COOK COUNTY TREASURER AND EX-OFFICIO COUNTY COLLECTOR OF COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

Advertisement and Notice by Collector of Cook County of Application for Judgment and Order of Sale of Lands and Lots upon which All or a Part of the General Taxes for 2 or More Years are Delinquent, for Order of Sale thereof, as provided by law.

COUNTY OF COOK,
STATE OF ILLINOIS
November 9 - 10, 2005.

NOTICE is hereby given that the said Collector of Cook County, Illinois, will apply to the County Division of the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois on Wednesday, November 23, 2005, for judgment against all lands and lots hereinafter described as being parcels upon which general real estate taxes for 2 or more years remain due and unpaid along with interest and costs, for an order of sale of said lands and lots for satisfaction thereof. Final entry of said order will be sought on Friday, December 23, 2005.

NOTICE is further given that on the 28th Day of December, 2005, A.D., at the hour of 8:00 a.m., all said lands and lots hereinafter described for sale for which an order shall have been made, will be exposed to public sale at 1100 South Hamilton, Juvenile Justice Center, Lower Level Auditorium, in Chicago, Illinois, for the amount of taxes, interest and costs due thereon.

The following is a list of the delinquent properties in Cook County upon which the taxes or any part thereof remain due and unpaid for 2 or more years; the name(s) of the owners, if known; the property location; the total amount due thereon; and the years for which the taxes are due.

Please note, where an E indicator appears immediately before a PIN in the column marked Currently Exempt, the real estate corresponding to said PIN may currently not be subject to taxation or may currently be owned by a governmental agency whose interest in the property may not be defeated by a tax deed. Where an indicator appears immediately before a PIN in the column marked Currently Exempt the real estate corresponding to said PIN may have been sold at a previous sale of delinquent taxes.

In lieu of a legal description, each parcel of land or lot is designated by a Property Index Number (or PIN). Comparison of the 14-digit PIN with the legal description of any parcel may be made by referring to records that are maintained in County offices.

The Cook County Collector does not guarantee the accuracy of common street addresses or property classification codes. Tax purchasers should verify all common street addresses, PINs, classifications and ownership by personal inspection and investigation of said properties and legal descriptions prior to purchasing general taxes offered at the sale.

With respect to parcels indicated as E, Currently Exempt, Tax purchasers should further investigate the circumstances regarding the status of such a parcel before purchasing the delinquent taxes at the sale.

When a petition to vacate the sale of a currently exempt parcel, the final result may be a refund without interest.

"Eye On Capitol Hill"

Mitchell is only six years old but he's already doing something that many grown-ups haven't. He and his parents are going to Washington, D.C. to tell lawmakers his story about surviving retinoblastoma, a terrible form of eye cancer. Thomas, in his 40s, is going to D.C. as well to speak about his battle with glaucoma and ask his congressman to increase funding for vision research and prevention programs.

Both Mitchell and Thomas are among the volunteers who have joined the "Eyes on Capitol Hill" campaign. Organized by Prevent Blindness America (PBA), the nation's largest non-profit organization dedicated to saving sight, Eyes on Capitol Hill will give those who have been afflicted by chronic eye disease a chance to share their stories with our nation's leaders. The campaign is currently seeking participants of any age to come to Washington, D.C. to speak with their members of Congress and to educate them on eye diseases as well as to ask that more be done in the way of both research and prevention. Volunteers will also learn how to become effective advocates for vision health after they return home.

Travel and hotel expenses will be paid by PBA. However, attendance at this unique event is limited to 100 individuals. PBA is also interested in reviewing applications of primary caregivers to someone of an eye disease. The deadline for applications is December 16, 2005. Individuals will be selected by a volunteer review committee at PBA, based on the compelling nature of their personal stories. Unfortunately, not all applicants will be selected to participate. Applicants will be notified of their status by January 16, 2006.

For more information on Eyes on Capitol Hill and/or to apply for the program, please visit www.preventblindness.net/eyesoncapitolhill or call 1-800-331-2020.

Barrington Marina Owner Is Arrested

A Barrington marina owner was arrested by Illinois Department of Revenue criminal investigators and charged with not filing sales tax returns for boats that he had sold.

Kevin J. Phillips, 51, of Elk Grove Village, owner of Barrington Marine, 99 Kazimour Dr., Barrington, was indicted Oct. 12 by a Lake County Grand Jury on 11 counts of Failure to File a Sales Tax Return. This failure to file is defined as a class 3 felony, and subjects those found guilty to potential fines and incarceration.

Phillips is alleged to have sold watercraft to individuals while collecting sales tax from them, without subsequently filing the sales tax return or remitting the tax to the department. Investigators have since been able to obtain clearance for the boat purchasers so that they can gain title and register their watercraft.

The case was a joint effort by the department's Bureau of Criminal Investigations, department tax auditors, and investigators from the Department of Natural Resources.

In 1999 Phillips pleaded guilty to a single count of Failure to File a State Tax Return, as a result of a similar investigation.

Phillips is scheduled to appear in Lake County Circuit Court on Dec. 6. The case will be prosecuted by the Office of Attorney General Lisa Madigan.

Gov. Eliminates Statute Of Limitations On Hit-And-Run Accidents

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich signed a new law on Nov. 9th that immediately gives prosecutors the authority they need to go after hit-and-run drivers. Senate Bill 1943 makes a law eliminating the statute of limitations for prosecuting drivers involved in hit-and-run accidents effective immediately. The original legislation, House Bill 885 sponsored by Rep. Susana A. Mendoza (D-Chicago) and Sen. Dan Cronin (R-Lombard) and signed by Gov. Blagojevich in August, gave investigators and prosecutors more time to find and bring to justice drivers who leave the scene of an accident. But, that law wasn't to go into effect until Jan. 1.

The law was inspired by the hit-and-run death of six-year old Patrick Leahy in suburban Winfield, whose killer was not found before the legal statute of limitations ran out. SB 1943 was sponsored by Rep. Mendoza and Sen. Carole Pankau (R-Roselle).

The Patrick Leahy Law eliminates the current three-year statute of limitation for prosecution of cases involving drivers who leave the scene of an accident and the current one and a half year statute of limitation for failing to give information or aid following a car crash that results in death, personal injury or damage to an attended vehicle. The Governor's signature on SB 1943 makes the law effective immediately, rather than on Jan. 1, which was the effective date of the original law.

Patrick Leahy was riding his bicycle with his nine-year-old brother and several friends near downtown Winfield on Aug. 17, 1999, when he was struck and killed by a truck, possibly from a rental company. Despite an intense investigation that included posting thousands of fliers and hypnotizing a witness, Winfield Police and the DuPage County Major Crimes Task Force have never found the male driver.

Private Water Well Testing Initiative

The Blagojevich Administration on Nov. 10th announced a partnership between the state and local health departments to make sure people get their water tested for contamination.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, the Illinois Department of Public Health and local health departments are launching a new campaign to encourage the estimated 400,000 Illinois households served by their own private drinking water wells in both urban and rural areas to get them tested for potential contamination.

A new analysis by the Illinois EPA shows that most of these wells are in and around the state's largest cities as opposed to small towns and rural areas, as some may have thought. In fact, the ten counties with the most private water wells are all in metropolitan Chicago and northern Illinois. In central and southern Illinois, the highest densities of drinking water wells are found in and around the largest cities such as Champaign, Peoria, Springfield and the Metro East area.

However, the analysis found that the less populous parts of Illinois are generally more dependent on private well water compared to public water supplies. Seven of the ten counties with the most wells per person are small or medium-sized counties.

Although public and community water systems are tested regularly by the State for a variety of contaminants, regular testing of private well water is the owner's responsibility.

Wells that are located in communities with commercial or industrial development are more susceptible to chemical contamination. For example, in the Chicago suburbs of unincorporated Downers Grove and Lisle, hundreds of private wells were contaminated by chemical spills from one or more nearby industries.

The agencies recommend an annual test for bacteria and nitrate. The presence of bacteria in well water indicates contamination by human or animal wastes that can cause infectious diseases. Nitrate contamination is usually caused by faulty septic systems or agricultural runoff and is especially dangerous for infants. Bacteria and nitrate testing is offered by most local health departments for approximately $25.

For wells that are located near a current or former commercial or industrial area, an above or below ground fuel tank (including gas stations), or landfills, the agencies recommend testing for Volatile Organic Compounds, or VOCs. This is especially important if the well is old or shallow. "VOCs" are common components of gasoline and other fuels, as well as solvents, paints, cleaners, and degreasers. Wells located in agricultural areas should be tested for pesticides.

VOC testing can cost anywhere from $150 and up, while a pesticide screening test starts at roughly $50. Homeowners should consult with their local health department about how often to test for VOCs and pesticides. For a limited time, some certified laboratories are offering discounted rates to coincide with the education campaign.

One contaminant that can affect both private and public water supplies is lead, which can enter drinking water through the decay of plumbing materials. Homes built before 1986 are more likely to have lead pipes, fixtures and solder. The agencies recommend running the water until it gets cold before using it for drinking or cooking. Also, never use water from the hot water tap for drinking or cooking. Hot water is more likely to contain higher levels of lead. The only way to be sure of the amount of lead in your household water is to have it tested by a certified laboratory.

Burglary Spree

In the wake of Michael Rampick's arrest on Thursday, Nov. 10th, Police continue to piece together evidence to add more burglary counts to the charges.

They are also not discounting the possibility of there being another suspect. Rampick, who was hiding out at a friend's apartment in Countryside and driving his brother's car before being apprehended, may have had a partner.

Thus far, items found in Rampick's apartment have been identified by at least three victims in Worth and Oak Lawn.

In all, at least a dozen suburbs were targeted during the burglary spree and the amount of counts could eventually be in the dozens.

Blue Cap Supporters Give Generously At The 2005 Auction

More than 300 Blue Cap supporters attended the organization's 2005 auction, Friday, Nov. 4th at the Doubletree Hotel in Alsip. The event expected to raise well over $140,000 for the individuals Blue Cap supports. Some of the evening's highlights included two silent auction rooms where participants bid on various items. In one room bidders won items such as a baseball signed by Paul Konerko. In the second room, guests enjoyed a Christmas wonderland of auction prizes.

The live auction included fabulous vacation packages such as a beach side condo in Cancun, Mexico and a fall getaway to see the leaves changing in Maine. One lucky winner is taking home an actual Heisman trophy for the month of December donated by 1950s Notre Dame football star, Johnny Lattner.

Bidders enjoyed a new feature of the auction in a game called "Heads or Tails." Players used paddles to guess the outcome of a coin toss and the last woman standing took home $955 dollars splitting the proceeds with Blue Cap. The organization's Special Project capped off the evening raising $65,000. The money will go towards the purchase of a new van to transport children and adults that Blue Cap serves.

Blue Cap would like to thank all of its volunteers who made the evening possible and the generous supporters who keep Blue Cap thriving for the individuals it helps support. Blue Cap is an organization dedicated to providing educational, vocational, therapeutic and residential programs for 400 adults and children with development disabilities. Blue Cap is located in Blue Island and serves the Southside of Chicago and more than 30 suburban communities.

Onsite Nursing Degree Completion Program

Lewis University has partnered with Freeport Health Network (FHN) to bring an accelerated nursing degree completion program to its area students.

Lewis University and FHN, based in Freeport, Ill., have coordinated an RN-BSN (Bachelor of Science in Nursing) curriculum which will allow students to maintain full-time jobs while they attend classes. Instructors from Lewis University's College of Nursing and Health Professions and the College of Arts and Sciences hold classes onsite at FHN.

With this agreement, the program is now open to any student interested in a baccalaureate nursing degree; employment at FHN is not required.

Lewis University offers the only satellite nursing program at FHN, and administrators on each side of the partnership hope to expand the program to offer an MSN (Master of Science in Nursing) degree program, as well.

For more information on the accelerated nursing curriculum offered by Lewis University and FHN, contact Roxie Blackburn at (815) 599-6890.

Tips To Improve Gas Mileage

With gas prices fluctuating from $2.50 to well over $3 a gallon, improving gas mileage is a necessity. Here are ten easy steps to help you car's gas mileage stay high. Clean the air filter. A clean air filter increases mileage by about 10%. It takes 10,000 gallons of air to combust one gallon of fuel.

Lighten the load. Carrying a heavy load of unnecessary items increases fuel usage. Remove unused roof racks, cargo boxes, or ski racks. All of these create substantial aero drag and reduces mileage.

Keep the engine tuned. Make sure that spark plugs are properly gapped and cleaned. Check the O2 sensor.

Use fuel injector cleaner four times a year. Fuel injector cleaner keeps injector nozzles clean, allowing efficient spray patterns to maximize power and reducing your need to stay on the gas pedal.

Keep tires properly inflated. Approximately four million gallons of fuel could be saved every day in the U.S. with properly inflated tires.

Use the recommended grade of motor oil. Gas mileage can improve by 1 to 2% by using the manufacturer's recommended grade of motor oil. Synthetic oil reduces engine temperatures and minimizes friction.

Turn off the air conditioner. The air conditioner causes extra work for the engine, which lowers fuel efficiency by 5 to 10%.

Lock gas caps. Locked gas caps stop thieves from siphoning out precious petroleum.

Make sure that gas caps are fully closed. Click gas caps at least three times when closing up after a fuel stop. Approximately 147 million gallons of fuel are vaporized every year in the U.S. due to improperly sealed gas caps.

Keep a steady pace. A steady pace on the pedal uses less gas.

Following these simple tips can help you get more mileage out of your car and save you money at the gas pump!

Orr Designates Early Voting Sites

Voters in suburban Cook County can vote early at most local villages or township halls prior to the March 21 primary, Clerk David Orr announced recently.

The early voting program will replace traditional in-person absentee voting that was conducted in each suburb prior to past elections, Orr said. The only difference is that voters will no longer have to provide an excuse or reason for voting before Election Day.

"This should make voting extremely convenient for suburban voters," said Orr, adding that early voting for the primary will begin on Feb. 27 and end on March 16. "We will most likely have more than 100 early voting sites."

Orr's decision came this week after it became apparent that a legislative proposal in Springfield would not succeed during the fall veto session. The legislation would have eliminated in-person absentee, allowing Orr to establish dozens of early voting centers throughout suburban Cook County.

Orr believes that a dual system of early voting sites and in-person absentee locations would have resulted in tremendous confusion for voters, many of whom would have been turned away at village and township halls because they would not meet one of the qualifications to vote an in-person absentee ballot.

For example, a voter who wanted to vote early because it was more convenient could not vote at his or her local village hall. That voter would have had to cast a ballot at an early voting site.

Early voters will cast optical scan ballots that will be securely stored and counted on Election Day (the same way in-person absentee ballots had been counted).

Orr's downtown office will also conduct early voting and will offer evening and weekend hours during the 17-day period.

Absentee voting by mail will remain unchanged. Upon request, the Clerk's office will mail ballots to the homes of qualified absentee voters prior to Election Day.

Voters may qualify to cast an absentee ballot only if they cannot make it to their polling place on Election Day. Among the eligible voters who most commonly request absentee ballots are those that will be outside of the county, are physically incapacitated, serving on a jury or as election judge, and those observing a religious holiday. Early voters do not have to provide a reason or excuse.

Cook County Assessor Jim Houlihan Releases Report on Impact of 7% Expanded Homeowner Exemption, Urges Measure Be Made Permanent

Recently Cook County Assessor Jim Houlihan released a detailed study on the impact of the 7% Expanded Homeowner Exemption on Cook County and urged Springfield legislators to make the property tax relief measure permanent.

Speaking at the City Club of Chicago Public Policy forum, where he originally announced the development and push for the 7% measure, Houlihan said, "When I was here two years ago, we promised a balanced approach that would protect homeowners and provide them savings, without negatively impacting commercial properties or school funding. I am happy to say that we were successful on all fronts."

The report released by the Assessor's Office details, in specific terms, the protection that was offered to Cook county homeowners and the negligible impact it had on other property owners. Highlights of the report, which is available at HYPERLINK "http://www.cookcountyassessor.com" www.cookcountyassessor.com, include:

For the City of Chicago in 2003 95% of qualified homeowners saw their exemption amount exceed the minimum of $4,500 and nearly 80% of homeowners received a lower tax bill. In the second year the expanded exemption, 74% of City homeowners had exemption amounts greater than the new minimum level of $5,000 and their median tax bill rose by 1%.

In 2004, the northern suburbs also benefited as 98% of homeowners had exemption amounts greater than the minimum level of $5,000 and 56% had lower tax bills in 2004 than in 2003.

In the south and west suburbs, which are being reassessed throughout 2005, projections show that 95% of homeowners will have exemption amounts exceeding $5,000 and 84% will see lower tax bills for tax year 2005.

"We have reason to celebrate the success of 7% because the facts presented in our report argue in favor of permanent renewal," said Houlihan. "We know there is more to do because all property owners in Illinois, residential and commercial alike, are still paying too much in property taxes. Having the protection of 7% in place permanently is critical while we continue to work with government and civic leaders to address our flawed tax structure."

BUDGET

Recently, Cook County Forest Preserve District Board President John Stroger presented the Forest Preserve District of Cook County Board of Commissioners with his 2006 Executive Budget Recommendation.

"This proposed budget provides for the District's financial health and operational excellence," said Stroger. "I am putting the District's dollars where they will best serve our visiting public and ensuring that the resources necessary to serve them at the highest level are available."

Highlights from the budget include: $1,000,000 in new monies for land acquisition; $995,075 towards land management activities, including cutting and removal of invasive species, stream and grove clean up, and other landscape restoration; a reduction of the District's Operating Divisions from nine to eight, providing a more proportionate regional task assignment and resulting in the elimination of two supervisory positions; the addition of a Spanish-language text to the District's award-winning, web-based picnic permit reservation system; the installation of hot charcoal receptacles District-wide; a pilot replacement program to investigate potential cost savings and benefits of implementing a new type of District picnic table; a proactive safety measure resulting in all drop gates on District trails being painted with high-visibility paint and identified with a large diamond symbol warning endorsed by the Chicagoland Bicycle Federation, making the gates visible from longer distances; and the installation of emergency call boxes at select locations District-wide, allowing patrons and District staff to immediately notify police of emergencies from the field.

The budget also includes a net increase of from 489 full-time equivalent positions to 499. The increase, primarily including Naturalists, Laborers and other front-line workers in the Maintenance and Resource Management Departments, will allow the District to better serve its visitors and further its core mission of protecting and preserving its flora and fauna.

The 2006 budget includes District contributions to the operating budgets for the Brookfield Zoo and Chicago Botanic Gardens of $14.1 million and $8.9 million respectively.

As expected, Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan formally announced last Sunday that she will seek re-election to her present post. The 39-year-old Attorney General was formally re-elected last month by the Democratic State Central Committee as its choice for attorney general in next year's general election. Lisa Madigan is the daughter of Illinois Speaker of the House Michael Madigan, who also happens to serve as Chairman of the State Central Committee. Presently, no Republican has vocally expressed an interest in going head-to-head with the incumbent Attorney General.

Madigan has cited her advocacy for domestic violence victims, her efforts to fight consumer fraud and the use of methamphetamine, and her willingness to level stronger supervision upon convicted sex offenders as some of her accomplishments during her first term.

She also proudly announced that despite party loyalty, her office continues to look into allegations of corruption and waste in the office of fellow Democrat Governor Rod Blagojevich, as well as investigating the ongoing casino controversy in Rosemont. "We have made a real difference in people's lives," Madigan said.

U.S. Senator Dick Durbin (D-IL), U.S. Senator Barack Obama (D-IL) and Congressman Ray La Hood (R-IL-18) recently announced that the House-Senate conference committee has approved more than $13 million to fund specific agricultural projects in Illinois ranging from $250,000 for school nutrition programs to $1.5 million for the City of Chicago and Illinois Department of Natural Resources Asian Longhorn Beetle eradication programs.

The $250,000 funding proper school nutrition in Illinois will go to Action for Healthy Kids, a national, Chicago based non-profit. The funding will allow the organization to implement systematic changes to reverse trends in childhood obesity in the Chicago area and Quincy public schools.

The Senate also approved $1.5 million to combat the spread of Asian Longhorn Beetles throughout Illinois. The beetles destroy trees by boring holes into their trunks, thereby cutting off the circulation of the sap. This approved funding has been reserved for field research and the mobilization of efforts for the identification, removal, and disposal of infested trees. The conference committee approved the funding, which was included in this fiscal year (FY) 2006 spending bill.

U.S. Senator Durbin also alerted All Points regarding actions taken to protect Amtrak services in the U.S. Department of Transportation, Treasury, Housing and Urban Development and Independent Agencies Appropriation Bill.

A few weeks ago in the Senate, the funding necessary for Amtrak to operate in 2006 was provided, insuring that the three Illinois intrastate Amtrak lines serving 30 cities will continue to run. Now the House-Senate conference must give final approval to Amtrak's $1.4 billion request.

Cook County Clerk David Orr recently announced that suburban voters in Cook County will now have the choice of voting early at most local township or village halls prior to the March 21st, 2006 primary election.

The early voting program will replace traditional in-person absentee voting formerly conducted in past suburban elections. Additionally, voters will not have to provide an excuse or reason for voting before Election Day.

According to Clerk Orr "we will most likely have more than 100 early voting sites, beginning on Feb. 27 and ending on March 16."

Early voters will cast optical scan ballots that will be stored and recorded on Election Day (the same procedure used as in-person absentee ballots).

Clerk Orr's office downtown will also conduct early voting and will offer evening and weekend hours during the 17-day period.

Absentee voting by mail will remain the same. The Clerk's office will mail ballots to the homes of qualified absentee voters prior to Election Day upon request.

Just a reminder... voters may qualify to cast an absentee ballot only if they cannot make it to their polling place on Election Day. Among the eligible voters who typically request absentee ballots are those who are physically incapacitated, serving as a juror or an election judge, those that will be out of the county, and an individual observing a religious holiday. Early voters do not have to provide a reason or excuse. Those who vote absentee must be able to furnish proof of their inability to vote on the regularly scheduled March 21st, 2006 primary.

Worth Township residents take note... Cook County Board of Review Commissioner Maureen Murphy will conduct an assessment appeal seminar this Friday, Nov. 18th, at the Andrew Biela Center, 4545 Midlothian Turnpike in Crestwood. The seminar is sponsored by Crestwood Mayor Chester Stranczek. Registration begins at 6:30 p.m. and the seminar will commence at 7 p.m. Topics to be discussed include: how homeowners can determine whether they are over assessed, where to go to gather evidence for an appeal and how to find and fill out the appeal application.

"Many people who are unfairly assessed never bother to appeal because they do not know the opportunity exists or they mistakenly think the process itself is too cumbersome. One goal of our seminars is to convince people otherwise. If you believe you may be over assessed, you should appeal. There is no fee to apply for relief at the Board of Review," stated Murphy.

Cook County assesses over 1.6 million parcels of property each year and accepts its responsibility as the second largest county in the country. Property owners have the right to appeal their assessments to the Assessor, the Board of Review, and the State Property Tax Appeal Board in that order. Please note, taxpayers should bring their Tax Bill, Assessment Notice or Property Identification Number to the seminar so that their complaint form can be completed and turned in.

For more information about the seminar, call the Board of Review at (312) 603-3644.

This Friday, Nov. 18th, Congressman Dan Lipinski, State Senator Ed Maloney and State Rep. Kevin Joyce will host a Seniors' Fair from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. at Mt. Greenwood Park, 3724 W. 111th St. Over 60 representatives from local law enforcement agencies, law offices, financial institutions, the Social Security Office, and the Department of Aging will be available to provide information packets from a variety of organizations and more. Call (773) 881-4180 or (708) 448-3518 for additional information.

A few weeks ago the Illinois Senate passed "All Kids," Governor Blagojevich's new initiative to provide health care to all of Illinois' uninsured children. After careful consideration, State Senator Christine Radogno (R-Lemont) agreed that the goal of the proposal is commendable, but she had too many concerns over how the program would be implemented and financed to vote in favor of the legislation.

"There is no question that I believe every child should have access to quality health care. The 'All Kids' program is a laudable goal. However, this is a multimillion dollar initiative that was rushed through the legislative process with many questions and concerns unanswered," said Radogno.

Radogno cited the following questions for not being convinced of the bill's ability to succeed: "The state's Medicaid program is already financially unsustainable. Illinois currently owes $1.7 billion to health care providers. Additionally, the payments are not only late to providers, but are significantly less than what is paid by other insurers, including Medicare, and are frequently provided with a reimbursement well below the cost of the medical service."

Additionally, the Senator explained that unlike other state Medicaid programs, "All Kids" has virtually no limitations. The program will cover all medical, dental, vision, prescription and mental health services, regardless of income, asset level, or U.S. citizenship, and it will be assumed that all children who apply are eligible. Essentially, hard-working, middle-income Illinois taxpayers who have made the choice to forego unnecessary expenses in order to purchase health insurance for their children could end up financing health insurance for a family with significantly higher income.

Kicks Off Winter Storm Preparedness Week

So far, November's weather has been unseasonably warm, but the snow, ice and frigid temperatures that define typical Illinois winters aren't far away. That's why the Illinois Emergency Management Agency (IEMA), the National Weather Service (NWS) and the American Red Cross (ARC) are joining together to urge people to begin preparing for winter weather dangers now, before it's too late.

The three organizations reminded Illinois citizens that Winter Storm Preparedness Week, which runs Nov. 13-19, is the perfect time to prepare for winter weather. The preparedness week is part of Governor Rod R. Blagojevich's Keep Warm Illinois campaign, a comprehensive effort to inform and prepare Illinois residents for winter with information on energy assistance, home weatherization and winter safety tips.

William C. Burke, IEMA director, recommends people maintain a home survival kit year-round containing the following items: three-day supply of non-perishable food, including high energy foods such as dried fruit and candy; bottled water (one gallon per family member per day for three days); battery-operated radio, NOAA weather radio and extra batteries; flashlight and extra batteries; first aid kit; and extra medications and special items for babies, the disabled and the elderly.

Frostbite is a severe reaction to cold exposure of the skin, which results in numbness and a pale appearance, especially to fingers, toes, ear lobes and the nose. Hypothermia is a potentially life-threatening condition brought about when the body's temperature drops to less than 95 degrees Fahrenheit. Symptoms include slurred speech, incoherence, memory loss, disorientation, uncontrolled shivering, drowsiness and exhaustion. If you're with someone who appears to be suffering from hypothermia, warm the body's core by wrapping the victim in a warm blanket and immediately seek medical attention.

Winter travel can also be treacherous and Burke urges drivers to be well prepared before hitting the road. "At least twice last year, we had major snow events that left many drivers stranded in their cars for several hours," he said. "When large numbers of motorists are stranded, it can take a long time for help to arrive. Having a survival kit in your car will greatly ease that wait, and in a serious situation could save your life."

A winter car survival kit should include many of the same items as your home kit such as food, water and a first aid kit, plus the following: cell phone and charger; knife; boots and extra clothing to keep dry; blanket; sack of sand or cat litter; shovel; windshield scraper and brush; tool kit; tow rope; booster cables; compass and road maps; and a small can and waterproof matches to melt snow for drinking water.

To learn more about winter preparedness, IEMA, NWS and ARC developed a Winter Storm Preparedness Guide, which is available on the IEMA website at www.state.il.us/iema or by calling (217) 785-9888. The guide includes many more tips on how to stay safe in your home and car, as well as information about winter weather terms, frostbite and hypothermia.

The Keep Warm Illinois website www.keepwarmillinois.gov offers various no-cost and low-cost energy saving tips, a web-based tool to conduct a home energy audit, links to energy assistance programs and other resources. In addition, the Keep Warm Illinois hotline (1-877-411-WARM) is another resource for Illinois residents to learn how to save energy and get energy assistance.

NAMI Meeting

The issue of involuntary commitment will be addressed at the Tuesday, Nov. 22nd educational meeting of NAMI South Suburbs of Chicago at 7 p.m. in the Church of Christ, 206th & Crawford in Matteson.

Robert Eizenga, Psy.D., director of forensic services at the Tinley Park Mental Health Center, will make the presentation and cover various aspects of the topic such as: what it means to be committed involuntarily for psychiatric evaluation; how the process is used in Illinois; who to ask for a commitment and what steps must be taken to seek court approval for such an action. He will also address who protects the rights of patients and touch on recent changes in the Illinois mental health code that can affect the process. Dr. Eizenga will also speak on the emotional issue of guilt that may have an effect on those who seek commitment for a loved one, regardless of the outcome in court.

NAMI South Suburbs of Chicago is a volunteer-run, not-for-profit, self-help, grassroots organization concerned with fair and better treatment of persons who have serious mental illnesses (brain disorders). NAMI campaigns for a truly comprehensive system of mental health care that includes medications and affordable housing opportunities.

Frank Lloyd Wright Documentary

More than five years in the making, "Frank Lloyd Wright: Sacred Spaces," a comprehensive overview of Wright's seminal work for spiritual organizations, is anxiously awaited by scholars and fans. Michael Miner, the film's director, announced his desire to benefit the restoration of Wright's first church by holding the premier within the confines of Unity Temple. Miner explains his motivation for development of this project was simple. "I wanted to buy the tape but it didn't exist. I am a huge fan of Wright's work and the sacred designs are a microcosm of Wright's genius within one building type."

Buildings covered in the two-hour documentary on Friday, Nov. 18th at 7 p.m. include Unity Temple (1905), Pettit Chapel (Belvidere, IL, 1906), Annie Pfeiffer Chapel (Florida Southern College, 1938), Danforth Chapel (Florida Southern College, 1938), Community Christian Church (Kansas City, MO, 1940), the Unitarian Meeting House, Madison, WI, 1947), Beth Shalom Synagogue (Elkins Park, PA, 1954), Annunciation Greek Orthodox Church (Wauwatosa, WI, 1956), Pilgrim Congregational Church (Redding, CA, 1958) and First Christian Church (Phoenix, AZ, 1950 - completely posthumously in 1972).

Raku Firing Workshop

The Beverly Arts Center, 2407 W. 111th St., Chicago, will hold a raku firing workshop Saturday, Nov. 26, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The workshop will be conducted by Tom Hill, head of the Center's ceramics program, and is open to all ages. No experience required.

Raku is a centuries old technique in which hand glazed pottery is fired at extremely high temperatures then transferred into a container of combustible type materials like sawdust or newspaper in order to create a colorful and lustrous pattern. No two pieces of raku are ever alike.

Workshop participants will be able to glaze and fire their pottery, which they can take home.

Tom Hill is a skilled ceramicist and artist with a background in arts education and performance. He currently teaches ceramics for children and adults at the BAC, and exhibits his award-winning work in shows from New York to California. Hill was instrumental in the design and construction of the new BAC ceramic studio opened last year.

The raku workshop fee is $10 per piece of pottery. To register or for more information on the workshop or other ceramics and art classes, call the Beverly Arts Center, (773) 445-3838 or go online to www.beverlyartscenter.org.

Tickets are $20 for UTRF members, $25 for non-members, which includes post-film reception and discussion with the filmmaker.

Toys For Tots Motorcycle Parade

This year is the 28th anniversary of the Chicagoland Toys for Tots Motorcycle Parade. Back in 1978 six bikers started a little Toy ride in Chicago to assist underprivileged children. Unbelievable that what was once six is now known as the World's Largest Toys for Tots Motorcycle Parade! Last year over 40,000 motorcycle riders delivered over 75,000 brand new toys to assist the U.S. Marine Corps Toys for Tots program. It is always held on the first Sunday in December, which is Dec. 4th. For a printable poster reminder, visit their web site. Lineup begins at 6 a.m. at Dan Ryan Woods at the corner of 83rd St. and Western. The parade start is scheduled for 9:30. It may start earlier if there is a large turnout. We ask all participants in the woods to recite the Pledge of Allegiance at 9:11 to honor and respect our fallen veterans and heroes. The traditional patriotic balloon release honoring our POWs and MIAs kicks off thousands of iron sleighs led by Santa and his elves on white Harley Davidsons behind a replica 1954 Santa Fe train. The toy-bearing motorcyclists attending will then proceed for 17 miles northbound to the Fourth Marine Reserve Center located at Foster and Troy Ave. to deliver their toys. So cheer on these merry bikers with your family and friends anywhere along the route.

Traffic can be affected in all local areas surrounding Western Ave. from approximately 9 a.m. through 2:30 p.m. If you do not plan to participate, please reroute to avoid possible traffic congestion. The parade will be divided into four or five groups of motorcycles, to allow traffic and pedestrians to cross Western Ave. New for this year, there will be an express, ride-through, drop-off area south of the woods (near the corner of 87th St.) for those riders who wish to drop off their toy donations and leave, just follow the signs. Also, remember only street legal motorcycles, NO ATVs or QUADs allowed. There is no registration fee, but all riders are expected to bring at least one brand new toy unwrapped.

All the 2005 parade product and run pins are now in stock. The sweatshirts and jackets are back to the traditional black and white. For the 28th anniversary their Old School Bear is on the front and their Biker Bear logo on the back. The monies from these sales will be used to purchase brand new toys. This year their collectible glass Christmas ornaments have a green satin finish, with their mascot Bear riding along the Chicago skyline. These ornaments are the third in a series and are only $10 and assist them in their monetary donations. In the last six years they have donated over $750,000 to assist children's organizations, families and individuals throughout Chicagoland. All of the aforementioned items are selling fast, so get your Christmas shopping done before parade day. Products will be available at their warehouse store on Nov. 25th. It is located at 8900 S. Odell in Bridgeview. The store will be open from 7 until 10 p.m. Products are also available at Oak Lawn Harley Davidson located at 11040 S. Cicero.

Proudly on this day their toy collections will assist the USMCR Toys for Tots program. So remember our soldiers by patriotically waving the American and Military flags along the parade route. Toys can be dropped off either at Dan Ryan Woods at 83rd and Western or the Marine Center at 3034 W. Foster the day of the parade. Types of toys needed are board games, educational toys, radios, sports equipment and dolls. Please note: no used toys and no plush toys. Due to hygienic restrictions, many institutions will no longer accept them. They might look adorable but unfortunately many of them become very dirty by the end of the parade. Volunteers are always needed, so become part of the fun, as there are many jobs that need assistance.

For more parade information: watch the Emmy award winning Toys for Tots TV show via Chicago cable Channel 21 every Tuesday. It is a live call-in show, so tune in every Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. via CAN-TV. They will be on every week until Dec. 27th. You may also call their parade hotline at (773) 866-TOYS or visit their web site: www.ChicagolandTFT.org. Every child deserves a brand new toy for Christmas!

Theatre Guild Holds Open Auditions

The Beverly Theatre Guild, a member of the League of Chicago Theatres, announces open auditions for its second show of the 2005 - 2006 season, "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum"; directed by Scott Sowinski with Musical Director George Machay and Choreographer Andrew Waters.

Broadway's greatest farce is light, fast-paced, witty, irreverent and one of the funniest musicals ever written, the perfect escape from life's troubles. "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" takes comedy back to its roots, combining situations from time-tested 2000 year-old comedies of Roman playwright Plautus with the infectious energy of classic vaudeville. The result is a non-stop laugh-fest in which a crafty slave struggles to win the hand of a beautiful but slow-witted courtesan for his young master in exchange for freedom.

Open Auditions (no appointment is necessary) will be held on Sunday, Nov. 20th from 5:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. (registration ends at 8 p.m.) and Monday, Nov. 21st from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. (registrations ends at 9 p.m.). Registrations will be held at the First United Methodist Church of Evergreen Park, 9358 S. Homan Ave.

Auditions will consist of readings from the script. For singing auditions, bring 16 bars of sheet music or a verse and a chorus of a song appropriate to the show. A piano accompanist will be available. Bring clothes to move in as there will be a movement audition. Dancers may be asked to stay and learn an additional combination.

PHEASANT HUNTING SEASON OPENER: Most reports on the opening of pheasant season were mixed. It all depended on where the hunters found a place to hunt.

One important factor was the crops (corn and soybeans) were over 90% harvested in the northern zone. This is important for dog handlers worried about their dogs getting out of sight and on point in standing corn fields, and the birds running from row to row, eluding hunters without dogs.

Due to a shoulder problem, I couldn't shoot but I still enjoyed working my dog, Nip, a Brittany Spaniel. Mark Krueger, a former neighbor, now living in Hinsdale, came along as the shooter. We hunted a farm near Manhattan, Illinois, a farm that I've hunted for 45 years, and pretty much what the birds will be doing.

With no crops in the field, we managed to put up 16 birds (10 hens and 6 roosters). Scenting conditions were near perfect, Nip had some stylish solid points and Mark knocked his limit of two cock pheasants down.

"What's wrong with this picture?" A hunter walking out of a field with a cock pheasant, no gun and a "fishing rod."

The second bird presented an unusual problem. The bird fell dead in the center of the creek, Nip didn't pick up on it, and no persuading on my part could convince Mark to wade in and retrieve the bird. We soon resolved the problem. I went back to the car, got my traveling fishing kit, and set up a spinning rod with a treble-hook Daredevil lure. On his second cast, Mark snagged the bird, reeled it in, walked back to the car with bird in one hand, and fishing rod in the other. Passing motorists did a double take and undoubtedly had no idea why a hunter complete with blaze-orange jacket and hat with no gun was walking through a field carrying a pheasant and fishing rod.

REMINDER: Nov. 18th to 29th first firearm deer season. Illinois Sportsmen Against Hunger Program for the season. Thousands of Illinois families will benefit from the generosity of Illinois deer hunters, thanks to the program. Established in 1989, Illinois Sportsmen Against Hunger encourages hunters to donate deer they harvest this fall and winter to be processed and distributed to food banks, food pantries and charitable organizations to help feed the hungry throughout the state.

The IDNR and the Illinois Conservation Foundation (ICF) encourage hunters to donate deer and a tax-free deductible $35 contribution through the ICF to help cover the cost of processing the meat.

In addition, the IDNR has earmarked $100,000 from the state Wildlife and Fish Fund to assist in covering the costs of processing venison for the ISAH program from deer taken by hunters in areas of the state with growing deer populations. The additional funding is provided through non-resident archery deer permit fees.

For a list of meat processors handling venison for the Illinois Sportsmen Against Hunger Program, check the IDNR web site at <http://dnr.state.il.us> and click on "Illinois Against Hunger" on the home page.

BIGHEAD CARP FOUND IN ROCK RIVER: For the first time, an Asian carp has been found in the Rock River. The Illinois DNR confirmed that a fish caught Aug. 21st by a local angler below the Fordam Dam in downtown Rockford was a bighead carp, which weighed about 7 pounds and measured 22". The discovery could have a long-term effect on the river's food chain as bighead carp multiply quickly, compete with native species for food and can damage the habitat.

MORE AMERICANS WAKE UP TO THE GREAT OUTDOORS THAN TO THE TOP 20 NEWSPAPERS: More Americans start the day in a deer stand, on a bass lake, or in a duck blind than receive the combined circulation of the top 20 daily newspapers in the U.S., including USA Today, The New York Times, The Los Angeles Times and Wall Street Journal (Credit-Congressional Sportsmen's Foundation).

Reducing Asian Carp Study

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently announced that $100,000 in Opportunity Returns funding has been provided to conduct a survey designed to find solutions for managing the invasive Asian carp population, a nuisance fish that is highly disruptive to the Illinois River's ecosystem, by harvesting the fish and processing it into a marketable good. Carp Protein Product, LTD of Havana is conducting the study. Havana is an Illinois River community located close to the Asian carp epicenter and adjacent to critical Illinois research facilities.

The survey has been studying quantities and locations of Asian carp populations, developing harvest techniques and assessing the viability of a future economic development project utilizing the unwanted species of Asian carp for commercial purposes. Results of the survey have led the company to conclude that a profitable business with long-term viability can be developed by processing the Asian carp to make a fish product extract used to make flavored seafood products common in Asia and other parts of the world. Carp Protein Products now hopes to begin planning and design for the construction of a processing plant in north central Illinois.

The grant funding came from the Illinois Dept. of Commerce and Economic Opportunity (DCEO), while the Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources (IDNR) is providing additional in-kind services.

Illinois has learned from the Silver and the Bighead carp just how destructive Asian carp are to native ecosystems. The Silver and Bighead carp originated in Illinois from escapes from fish farms in Arkansas and Mississippi. Once in the Mississippi River, these species successfully reproduced and swam in huge numbers toward Illinois. Today, Silver and Bighead carp comprise up to 75 percent or more of the fish population in many areas of the Illinois River.

If Asian carp are allowed to enter the Great Lakes, this invasive species could devastate the aquatic ecosystem of the world's largest source of freshwater. Asian carp pose a variety of threats to native fish and aquatic ecosystems because they can consume much of the food chain. They eat aquatic plants, compete for plankton with native fish, and eat snails and clams. These voracious feeders breed prolifically and can weigh more than 100 pounds.

Gov. Blagojevich signed a bill this summer allowing the state to regulate Asian carp imported to, and transported within, the state of Illinois. But if other states are not under the same regulations, the legally imported carp in southern states can travel through the river system and contaminate Illinois waters, which is why it must be illegal for any state to import Asian carp.

Gov. Blagojevich also recently wrote to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) requesting it rule in favor of banning Asian carp. The USFWS has proposed a ban but has not yet made a final decision.

The survey is determining best practices to promote environmental management of these invasive species in the Illinois River and help prevent them from progressing into the Great Lakes system. The Havana area is being considered as a site for the plant because of its proximity to large concentrations of Asian carp.

Sports Valve

By: Brad Allen

It's getting frigid outside, but I've turned up the thermostat inside this week's sports valve. So, come on inside! Don't mind the shovel leaning against the valve wall toward the end of the professional sports section. It might even come in handy in a moment or two.

Professional Sports Valve: Mission accomplished! Our beloved Bears prevailed over both the 49'ers and the 49+ MPH wind gusts last Sunday. Their usual formula worked to perfection: Tenacious Defense + Play-Not-To-Lose Offense + Occasional Big Plays = Victory!

In the process, clad in his Bears alternate orange jersey, Nathan Vasber gave San Francisco his version of an orange bang with a 108-yard missed field goal return for a touchdown - the longest yardage play in the history of the NFL against a once-great team experiencing seemingly the longest season ever.

I am rapidly gaining a new respect for the Bears brain trust if what I heard is true - that the Bears had actually practiced that field goal return in advance.

Back to the mission that they accomplished. The Bears have amassed their 6-3 record against teams that are a combined 26-37. Four of the next five weeks, they will face teams with a current combined record of 26-10. However, as I stated in last week's Sports Valve, that's how a winning tradition starts. First, you beat the teams you're supposed to beat! In so doing, they have distanced themselves from the rest of the pack, which is a good thing since the resurrected Vikings, whom the Bears will meet in the season finale, figure to gain ground during the Bears upcoming tough stretch.

A final thought about football this week ... Not one team from the North Division got beat this week. That will teach people to refer to it as the NFL's Remedial Division.

Elsewhere in the professional sports sector of the valve, how 'bout our cardiac kids, your Chicago Bulls! What a success formula they have! They had a game recently where they fell way behind by committing turnovers and missing free throws. Then, struck with a sudden sense of urgency, they stormed back relentlessly and won. Wait a minute ... that's almost every Bulls game! Even if they get beaten up a bit on their annual early season west coast trip, they will bounce back. In fact, I predict that after a respectable 2005-2006 season, the Bulls will fortify themselves through the draft and free agent market. Then, within three seasons, they will win another NBA title. You heard it here first. This team is laying a foundation of unmistakable character, although sometimes they look more like gophers than Bulls, perpetually digging themselves holes to climb out of.

As we approach the hockey section of the sports valve, please watch your step. The Blackhawks are a slippery subject this week ... and it ain't because of the ice!

This week, owner, Bill Wirtz, proclaimed that this year's team (which currently ranks 13th out of 15 Western Conference teams) is the greatest Blackhawks team since the 1950's! It's getting deep in here. You can grab that shovel now.

Wait a minute. Maybe he's right. Of course! Now I see. The real 2005-2006 Blackhawk squad is actually in hiding, perhaps in a rink a couple or three hundred miles northeast of here, disguised in Red Wing uniforms.

Seriously, let's assemble a committee to vote on whether or not this is the best Hawks' squad since the 50's. The committee members shall consist of Stan Makita, Bobby Hull, Tony Esposito, Al Secord and Dennis Savard. We will appoint Chris Chelios, Jeremy Roenick and Ed Belfour as co-chairmen of the committee. Exit professional sports valve.

Amateur Sports Valve: Passing from the sometimes cynical world of professional sports, we now return to the purer amateur section of the valve. Finally, we can all go out and get a decent manicure now that Mother McAuley has finished up another successful volleyball season with a string of nail biting victories. Congratulations, Mighty Macs! Everybody get ready for prep basketball season! Remember, if anybody catches wind of any unusual prep sports feats, call the Sports Valve at (708) 388-2425.

Sports Tip Valve: This week's tips come from my good friend, Dr. Frank Vaught of Crestwood Chiropractic in Crestwood. His understanding of the body's biomechanics transcends even traditional chiropractic practice.

The tip has to do with stretching before you start any physical activity. DON'T DO THAT! Don't stretch cold brittle muscles. Dr. Vaught advises you to first engage in some light jogging, running in place or jumping jacks to warm up your muscles. Then, stretch! After the game (or workout), stretch again before ingesting nutrients either through good eating and/or supplements. In a stretched state, your muscles can better absorb and assimilate whatever vitamins, protein, etc. that you put into your system. So, if you want to build yourself up and not tear yourself down, remember what Dr. Vaught taught! And if you happen to have a sore back or if you don't mind a little back talk, call him at (708) 396-2500. He got rid of my son's back pain in a minute. Exit valve!

District 218 To Consider Altering School Day

Faced with the onus of meeting achievement standards set by the No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB) and growing budget concerns, the Board of Education of District 218 soon will consider altering its school day and graduation requirements.

The district has set up a committee of teachers and administrators to study the issues and then present recommendations to the Board of Education. Parents will also have the opportunity to review those recommendations and give their opinion before the Board of Education makes a final decision.

Two of the district's three high schools are currently identified as 'in status' by NCLB with Eisenhower in Corrective Action status and Shepard on Academic Warning — the direct result of poor performance on math and reading scores by selected subgroups.

For Eisenhower, the next step is restructuring, which under NCLB mandates could include the drastic measures of replacing staff in the area of failure and/or reopening Eisenhower as a public charter school.

The district has shown notable improvement in reading and writing on standardized exams, a result of additions to its curriculum including Literacy Workshop, and other remedial measures implemented by the district.

There are also budget concerns that lie ahead for the district. Again this year, District 218 has achieved a balanced budget. However, projections indicate the district's expenditures will exceed revenues within three to four years.

Right now, District 218 is one of the few school systems to employ a mandatory eight-period day. Board members will consider modifying the structure of the school day to allow some students to attend for seven periods. Students, particularly those who plan to attend college, still would have the option of enrolling in an eight-period day.

For students who are below-grade level, the altered school day would provide some relief. Rather than enroll in seven classes, they may enroll in six and focus their academic efforts on those classes.

Academic counselors and teachers have proposed that such students would benefit from a reduced class load.

After years of increasing graduation requirements, Board members also may consider reducing the number of units necessary to earn a diploma from 23.5 to 22 for some students. If this happens, the district would likely issue two types of diplomas: An honors-level diploma for students who earn 24 or more units of credit, and a standard diploma for students who earn at least 22 credits.

The new graduation requirement would still exceed the recently-passed state graduation standards and place District 218 on par with most Chicago-area high school districts.

In addition, District 218 will maintain its graduation requirements in the core study areas of English, math, science, and social science. Some students would have fewer elective choices.

District 218 in recent years has increased the graduation requirements in English from three years to four, in math from two years to three, and required students to pass courses in geometry and geography. All of these changes reflect the district's commitment to preparing students for university admission standards and to meet NCLB achievement guidelines.

District students have demonstrated growth on NCLB-related exams for four straight years. Administrators strongly feel that the district's increased emphasis on core academic areas, particularly in English, has positively affected student performance on the exams. Further, the district may institute a similar plan for mathematics. Each of these factors has played a role in the district's decision to focus on core academic areas and potentially reduce elective offerings.

The district's expanded menu of Advanced Placement and Honors courses will remain. Over the past several years, enrollment in A.P. courses has more than doubled, and the district is committed to maintaining class offerings in this essential area.

By altering the school day to allow students to attend for seven periods, the district would likely realize a cost savings by reducing the size of its teaching staff. The district, however, would like to reduce the size of its faculty through attrition. Over the next two years, at least 23 teachers will retire from District 218.

Bus company officials have assured the district that they can devise a transportation plan to accommodate any changes to the school day that the Board of Education may institute. Students with an eight-period day would be picked up first, followed later in the morning by those students with a seven-period day.

Since 2001, District 218 has increased its teaching staff from 320 to more than 360. District 218 has added teachers for courses in the English Language Learner (ELL) and special education, areas which have experienced significant increases in enrollment. In addition, the district has had to increase the number of sections offered in math and English due to the increase in graduation requirements in these areas.

Some may wonder why the district finds itself in a financial bind after passing a referendum in November 2001 that increased its tax rate for the first time in 50 years. Essentially, the money realized from the referendum allowed the district to move out of a deficit-spending circumstance, which had almost depleted its cash reserves.

Since then, NCLB guidelines have mandated that the Board of Education increase graduation requirements in core academic areas, while ELL and special education enrollments have skyrocketed. Special education, which requires a smaller teacher-to-student ratio than standard academic classes, enrollment in District 218 has increased from 689 in the 2002-2003 school year to 904 at the beginning of the current school year.

The Board today must balance the district's budget while still offering an education that meets ELL and special education mandates and prepares students for standardized tests.

The diversification of the district's student body also necessitated the addition of a second ELL program at Richards High School in Oak Lawn. Aside from the large Hispanic population served by Eisenhower High School, Richards today features an ELL program that serves nearly 50 native Lithuanian, Polish, and Arab students.

In addition, school districts in Illinois continually must fight for their financial survival. Illinois ranks 49th out of the 50 in the level of funding its state government provides to public schools. Districts continually must find creative ways to cut spending and remain financially viable. District 218 has won the highest financial rating available for two straight years from the Illinois State Board of Education, an indication of the district's commitment to offering a quality education while spending prudently.

Finding ways to reduce spending is not a new exercise for district administrators and Board members. In recent years, the district has consolidated and reduced its administrative staff; eliminated secretarial positions; and, cut custodial positions and instituted a two-tiered salary schedule for custodial staff. New custodial workers, according to the two-tiered plan, earn less per hour than current custodial workers.

Working with the teachers' union, the district also has reduced its insurance expenses through increased deductibles and co-payments.

Teachers Union Statement

Statement by Marilyn Stewart, President of the Chicago Teachers Union

The failure of the two teacher-related propositions put forth by California Governor

Arnold Schwarzenegger on Tuesday, Nov. 8th was a great victory for professional teachers across the country. The proposals, 74 and 75, would have extended the probationary period for new teachers from two years to five years and would have forced union leaders to obtain written permission from all members before union money could be given to political campaigns.

"These were clearly assaults on teacher unions and I am glad the voters of California rejected them," stated CTU President Marilyn Stewart. "Workers elect their leaders to make decisions based on the best interests of their members. The idea that I would have to have the written permission of each of my 36,000 members before my union could financially support a candidate is ridiculous and undermines the very authority of union officers."

The proposition of extending the probationary period was also considered an attack on the teaching profession. "I know of no other profession that places their workers on probation for five years," Stewart stated. "Teachers are among the best educated professionals in the country and deserve the same respect and privileges as those in the medical, legal and other professions."

Graduate School Of Management

In an effort to meet the changing needs of today's business organizations, Lewis University's Graduate School of Management has developed a new master's degree program in Management. Scheduled to be offered in the spring of 2006, the Master of Science in Management (MSM) degree is a 33-credit hour program that will provide a solid understanding of traditional business disciplines and will focus on skill development in critical thinking, problem solving and decision making as well as the management of human resources — areas often underdeveloped in traditional degrees, yet critical to the role of today's managers.

The MSM degree is specifically designed to prepare individuals to assume supervisory positions in the private and public sectors by offering further study and skill enhancement in the practice of management. The program is open to individuals from diverse undergraduate backgrounds and does not require a knowledge of business to enroll.

According to Victoria Weise, associate professor of Lewis' Graduate School of Management, the degree is designed for mid to senior-level managers who are primarily interested in further developing their business acumen and learning the best practices necessary to become more effective strategic managers.

Two unique components set the Lewis MSM apart from other management programs. Students will be paired with a professional mentor during their course of study. Mentors are executive-level managers, who can serve as a bridge between coursework and application. The program also features a capstone Executive Management Practicum in which students will be exposed to various local corporations and will discuss with members of executive management teams topical issues affecting business today. These practical elements are designed to provide applicable, first-hand knowledge of various organizations' practices that are immediately relevant.

The Lewis Graduate School of Management also offers a traditional MBA program with 11 different concentrations. Students may choose to take the MBA program with a custom-elective option, in which they may take electives with specific career and professional goals in mind.

Graduate Management programs can be completed in as few as 18 months. Class sessions are offered in an accelerated eight-week format and begin at five different times throughout the year. Select courses also are being offered online. Lewis University has convenient campus locations in Tinley Park, Oak Brook, Hickory Hills, Shorewood and its main campus in Romeoville.

Upcoming open houses for all of the Lewis graduate programs will take place throughout the month of November. For more information, contact Randy Graves, Executive Director of Lewis' Graduate School of Management, by e-mail at gravesra@lewisu.edu or by phone at (815) 836-5339.

Veterans And Soldiers

Air Force Airman Keith S. Johnson has arrived for duty at Tyndall Air Force Base, Panama City, Florida. Johnson is an aerospace control and warning systems apprentice assigned to the 81st Range Control Squadron. He is the son of Steven and Karen Johnson of Alsip. The airman is a 2002 graduate of Alan B. Shepard High School in Palos Heights.

Illinois Secretary of State Jesse White, veteran of the Army's 101st Airborne Division, was joined by Bronze Star recipient and 11th Ward Alderman James Balcer to announce the launch of his Illinois Veterans' History Project. The project is designed to create a permanent record of the names and stories of Illinois war veterans and civilians who served our state and country during war. The Illinois State Archives, a division of the Secretary of State's office, will collect the information and place it in a permanent repository. The initiative follows a law passed by the federal government authorizing the Library of Congress to collect and preserve the histories of American veterans and civilians who served in wars from World War I to the present. Other veterans who joined White and Balcer at the announcement were: Lorain Kuryla, oldest female veteran of the Gulf War; Michael Kuryla who served on the U.S.S. Indianapolis, which carried the world's first nuclear bomb to Tinian Island. Kuryla was one of the few crewmen to survive the ensuing attack; Beverly Dunjil, Tuskegee Airman; Lollie McKeon, Gold Star Mothers and Families. This project will ensure that the contributions of Illinois' veterans will not be forgotten.

The Illinois Department of Veterans' Affairs celebrated its 60th year of existence on Nov. 8th with a reception at the Hall of Flags in the Howlette Building followed by a tour of the department's central office in Springfield. The Illinois Veterans' Commission was first established in 1945 by the General Assembly. In 1975, House Bill 2541 (PA 79-376) renamed the Commission to the Illinois Department of Veterans' Affairs. Under the new law, IDVA was given the sole responsibility of notifying veterans, their families and dependents of the many state and federal benefits that are available to them. IDVA Director Roy L. Dolgos thanked the legislators and other advocates gathered at the ceremony for supporting the veterans "along the way."

Bremen VFW Post 2791, 172nd and Oak Park Ave. in Tinley Park, will hold a Fish Fry on Friday, Nov. 18th from 4 to 7 p.m. The all-you-can-eat meal is $8 per person, which includes soup, salad, perch, cod, spicy red fish, chicken, cake and coffee. Then on Saturday, Nov. 19th the post will distribute Thanksgiving baskets to the needy. Volunteers will help fix and deliver the baskets.

The 16th District VFW and Ladies Auxiliary will hold a party for the veterans at Manteno on Saturday, Nov. 19th. A bus will pick up participants at the Midlothian VFW, 14817 Pulaski Rd. at 11 a.m. and at Markham VFW, 3220 W. 159th St. at 11:15 a.m. The bus will make another pick up stop in Monee before arriving in Manteno. The district leaders are VFW District Commander John Dudash of Palos Heights VFW 7454 and Mary Jayne Fitzpatrick, VFW Auxiliary District president, of Owen W. Winter VFW Auxiliary 4241 in Oak Forest. Members from all of the posts and auxiliaries in the district will assist with the party.

Marrs-Meyer American Legion Post 991, 11001 DePot St. in Worth will host a Nascar Race Party on Sunday, Nov. 20th at 2 p.m. at the post. This is a very popular Ford 400 from Homestead-Miami Speedway. This is the final party for 2005. There will be food, drink specials, games, raffles and door prizes. Their Rusty Wallace car hood and jacket will be raffled during the party. Admission is free. If you would like to reserve a table, or for more information, call (708) 448-6699 or (708) 448-7006. Reservations are not necessary and children are always welcome.

Evergreen Park American Legion Post 854, 9701 Kedzie Ave., is planning their Christmas Decorating for Dec. 3rd; Children's Christmas Party to be held on Dec. 10th; New Year's Eve Party, Dec. 31st; and what goes up must come down so they will hold a decorations removal on Jan. 7th. For more information, call the post at (708) 422-9513.

Illinois veterans and their family members will soon have additional resources available to them for assistance with applying for the benefits they deserve. IDVA Director Roy Dolgos announced on Nov. 10th that 25 new Veteran Service Officers (VSO) will be on the job next month. The new VSO's will have the primary job responsibility of assisting veterans in applying for nearly $400 million in federal money that goes unclaimed each year. They will also serve as liaison between the state and the federal Veterans' Administration. The IDVA, with the help of the federal VA, will conduct training for the 25 new employees beginning Dec. 5th. The week long training will take place in Springfield.

In the wake of a recent federal report highlighting that National Guard units' supplies are well below full strength and the critical role the Illinois Army National Guard is playing at home and overseas, Gov. Rod Blagojevich called on President Bush to replace essential equipment needed to fulfill a variety of emergency missions. A recent General Account Office (GAO) report showed that, on average, National Guard units have only 34 percent of the equipment they need to be at full readiness. The Illinois Army National Guard currently has less than 10 percent of its necessary medium and heavy trucks and has only 65 percent of its required light trucks. The operational demands of the war have caused the Illinois Army National Guard to leave more than 400 vehicles and generators behind in Iraq thus far. This compounds significant, pre-existing shortages that already existed with a lack of trucks, radios, night vision devices and tactical generators. "I know it is the province of the United States Army to determine how much equipment each National Guard unit receives, but we are reaching a point where the lack of equipment has become a problem that the Army must address. If we cannot properly train our National Guard members for active duty, then that only harms the Army's efforts. Ensuring that the Illinois National Guard receives the equipment it needs would help the National Guard help Illinois and help the Army in all of its efforts," Gov. Blagojevich added.

That's all for this week folks. May God bless you and your family and God bless America.

Promote Community Scale Wind Energy Projects Across Illinois

In another example of his ongoing commitment to promoting homegrown and renewable energy sources, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced the launch of the $4 million Renewable Energy Development (RED) Fund that will support community-scale wind energy projects throughout Illinois. The Illinois Finance Authority (IFA) will work with community banks and lenders to provide loans and loan guarantees to qualified farmers and farmer co-operators who construct wind turbines for use as alternative energy. The program begins immediately with a goal to launch community-scale projects by the end of 2006 that will generate new wind-to-energy market capacity across the state. This aggressive effort to promote the use of wind energy in Illinois is part of the Governor's Opportunity Returns initiative, his comprehensive, pro-active strategy to promote economic growth throughout the state.

In the State of the State Speech earlier this year, Gov. Blagojevich announced his commitment to a Renewable Energy Standard for Illinois with a plan for the state to get 8% of its total electricity supply from renewable energy resources like wind by 2012-up from less than 1% today. A recent study by the University of Illinois at Chicago found that Gov. Blagojevich's plan also would create 7,800 jobs by 2012.

The Illinois Clean Energy Community Foundation (ICECF) and the IFA worked together to develop the RED Fund to support a primary mission of both organizations: to encourage and support development of renewable energy resources. With the Foundation providing the financial resources, the Authority will use its financing expertise and community banking relationships to help Illinois farming operations obtain access to capital for wind-to-energy projects.

Within the next six months, the IFA will host at least three informational seminars across Illinois to educate farmers, landowners, developers and agricultural lenders about the RED Fund and its requirements. Community banks will be encouraged to lend funds for the development of wind projects that meet the Authority's qualifying parameters. The same evaluation and approval process currently in use for existing IFA loans and guarantees will be used.

Governor Commemorates Veterans Day Honoring Local Hispanic Veteran

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich on Nov. 11th asked Illinoisans to remember and appreciate the service veterans have given to our nation and to the state and underscored his administration's commitment to make sure veterans get their share of the federal benefits they're entitled to, as he joined dozens of Hispanic former servicemen and servicewomen on Veteran's Day in Chicago's Little Village neighborhood.

The Governor spoke at a Little Village square commemorating Manuel Perez, Jr., who was a Private First Class with the U.S. Army's Company A, 511th Parachute Infantry, 11th Airborne Division fighting in the Pacific during World War II. Perez was the lead scout for Company A, which had destroyed 11 of 12 Japanese pillboxes in a strongly fortified sector defending the approach to enemy-held Fort McKinley on Luzon, Philippine Islands. Single-handedly, Perez killed 18 Japanese soldiers in neutralizing the position that had held up the advance of his entire company. Perez, who was killed in action on February 13, 1945 at the age of 21, was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, one of 42 Hispanics awarded our nation's highest battle decoration.

At the ceremony, organized by the American GI Forum of Illinois, the Mexican American Veteran Association and the American Legion Manuel Perez, Jr. Post #1017, the Governor was joined by U.S. Congressman Luis Guterrez and by Roy L. Dolgos, Director of Illinois Department of Veterans' Affairs.

According to U.S. Census figures, over 1.1 million Hispanics are veterans of the U.S. armed forces. Over 130,000 servicemen and servicewomen of Hispanic descent were on active duty in the U.S. Armed Forces as of September 2004 according to the Department of Defense figures.

In Illinois, nearly one million residents are veterans. In order to better help our state veterans collect the federal benefits they have earned, the Governor this week announced the 25 additional Veteran Service Officers (VSO) in his State of the State address last February will be deployed across the state by the end of the year.

Families are invited into each animal pen by a farm volunteer who helps children to touch and learn about the animal. According to farm director Andy Maricle, the farm is a hands-on opportunity for children to experience the life of the farm. Complimentary pony rides are offered to visitors every weekend throughout November.

Admission to the farm is $4 per person, or by a $75 annual family pass. No reservations are required on the weekends from 1 until 3 p.m. For further information, call (708) 361-3650.

Knowledge Is The First Step Toward Diagnosis Of Gaucher Disease

Gaucher disease, a relatively obscure condition in the general population, is the most common genetic disorder affecting Jews of central and eastern European ancestry, also known as Ashkenazi Jews. Although this disease may cause a variety of painful and distressing symptoms, it is generally a detectable and treatable condition.

For those most at risk, it is important to know and recognize the symptoms of Gaucher (pronounced Go-shay) disease to gain access to proper treatment.

According to recently published studies, more than 500 persons have inherited Gaucher disease in the Chicago metropolitan area alone, but only 10 percent of those individuals are currently receiving effective treatment.

In some cases, physicians have misdiagnosed the disorder because it shares medical indicators with other, far more prevalent illnesses. For some patients this has led to unnecessary medical procedures - including splenectomies and radiation treatments - some of which have actually worsened the Gaucher disease symptoms.

According to current medical estimates, the most common form of Gaucher disease -- Type 1 -- occurs in one out of every 450 to 600 births in the Ashkenazi Jewish population. By comparison, it occurs in one out of every 50,000 births in the general population. It is caused by a defect in an important enzyme, causing an excessive accumulation of lipids in bone marrow and various body tissues.

Although only one in 100 to 200 people in the general population may be carriers of a gene mutation that causes Type 1 Gaucher disease, as many as one in 10 Ashkenazi Jews carry this inactive genetic trait. The carriers do not have symptoms of the illness, but are capable of passing it along to future generations. When two parents are Gaucher gene carriers, each of their children has a 25 percent chance of contracting the disease.

Unlike Type 1 Gaucher disease, Type 2 and Type 3 have no specific ethnic or regional tendencies and, therefore, pose less of a targeted threat to the Ashkenazi Jewish population. Type 2 occurs in only one of every 100,000 births and Type 3 occurs in one of every 50,000 births.

If adults of Ashkenazi descent are concerned about whether they may be Gaucher carriers, they can take a DNA test to detect the genetic trait with a 90 percent accuracy rate.

The signs of Type 1 Gaucher disease can manifest themselves at almost any age from early childhood through adulthood. Although most individuals with Gaucher display symptoms by the age of 30, some cases have been known to go undetected until latter stages of life.

Gaucher disease alters the chemistry of the body's glucocerebrosidase enzymes which ordinarily break down sugary fats in the body. The defective enzymes allow these fats to accumulate in body cells, particularly in the liver, spleen, lungs, bones and marrow.

The disease can cause severe anemia, enlarged spleen and liver, a lack of stamina and energy, skeletal pain, and increased tendencies of bleeding, bruising and bone fractures. The illness also can inhibit a child's natural growth.

The bloated liver and spleen are generally the first distinctly recognizable signs of the disorder. A physician who observes these or other potential symptoms can confirm whether a patient has Gaucher disease by drawing a blood sample and sending it to a certified laboratory. The lab will test the sample to determine whether the defective enzyme is present.

In the 1990's, medical science created an enzyme-replacement process that has led to dramatic recovery in Type 1 Gaucher disease patients. This treatment involves an intravenous infusion, which clears out the accumulation of sugary fats in organs and tissues. As a result, the disease can be brought under control, bringing relief to its sufferers.

For more information about the symptoms, diagnosis and treatment of Gaucher disease, contact the Clinical Genetics Section at Children's Memorial Hospital by calling (773) 975-8507, or the National Gaucher Foundation at (800) 925-8885.

Consumers Buy Into Health Plan They Thought Was Medical Insurance

After receiving complaints from consumers in Illinois and other states, Attorney General Lisa Madigan filed suit on Nov. 9th against two companies for alleged deceptive marketing and sales tactics used to entice consumers into buying a health plan they believed was actual health insurance.

Madigan's lawsuit alleges that despite their marketing claims, National Benefits Consultants LLC, a Florida company, and Consumer Health Benefit Association (CHBA), a Missouri not-for-profit corporation, only sell discount health plans - offering discounts that often are not even accepted by providers. The companies market the plans at www.nbchealth.com and through unsolicited faxes and newspaper advertising.

Through alleged marketing and advertising claims such as "Save on Healthcare & Prescription Drugs. Everyone Accepted!", "Access to one of the largest PPOs in the country, Beech Street" and "We can have you approved for a medical plan regardless of pre-existing conditions," consumers are led to believe that they are purchasing a health insurance plan, not just a discount card, according to Madigan's suit.

Madigan also alleges that the companies require consumers to provide their checking account or credit card information before they will send consumers information about the discount health plan. The consumers' accounts are then charged an enrollment fee ranging from $109.99 to $199.95 and a monthly fee ranging from $109.99 to $199.95. Callers are told their enrollment fee is refundable within 15 days.

Consumers told Madigan's office that when they contacted CHBA after they received written materials and realized they had not purchased a traditional insurance policy, they were allegedly told by customer representatives that their enrollment fee was non-refundable, even if they requested a refund within the 15-day purchase window.

Other consumers complained that when they tried to use the alleged discounted services provided by health care providers listed as plan participants, providers often had no knowledge of their listing and would not honor the discount.

Madigan's complaint alleges that National Benefits Consultants and Consumer Health Benefit Association (CHBA) have violated the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act. According to Madigan's suit, the companies use the Internet and a toll-free number to conduct business from a Coconut Creek, Florida, address and are not registered with the Illinois

Secretary of State to transact business in Illinois. In addition, the companies allegedly have marketed the CHBA discount health plan to consumers in Illinois since 2003 but are not registered with the Illinois Department of Insurance as a Preferred Provider Administrator (PPA) as required by law.

Madigan's suit asks the court to prohibit the companies from marketing and selling discount health plans in Illinois, to declare that all contracts are rescinded, and require payment of full restitution to consumers, a civil penalty of $50,000 for violating the Consumer Fraud Act and additional penalties of $50,000 per violation committed with the intent to defraud. The suit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, also seeks a civil penalty of $10,000 per violation committed against a person aged 65 and older.

Women Helping Women

If you could help your daughters, granddaughters and nieces avoid cancer, wouldn't you?

If you're a woman aged 65 to 74 whose sister had breast cancer, you can help researchers learn how genes and the environment may affect the chances of getting the disease. Conducted by the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences, one of the National Institutes of Health, the Sister Study empowers women to make a lasting mark on breast cancer research.

"The risk of developing breast cancer is greatest for women over the age of 65 and it is important for senior women to participate in safe research like the Sister Study," said Dr. Dale Sandler, Principal Investigator. She added, "Joining is fairly simple and can be done from home, plus participants are not required to make any changes to their habits, diet or daily life."

Talk To Your Health Care Provider About Pneumococcal Disease This Flu Season

With flu season on the way, you may be planning a doctor's visit. Take the opportunity to also talk to your doctor about another serious health issue-pneumococcal disease (pronounced NEW-moe-cock-ul).

Pneumococcal disease, like influenza, is very common and often underestimated. Both are more prevalent during the winter months and may cause serious health problems, particularly in older adults," according to William Schaffner, M.D., Chair of the Department of Preventive Medicine at Vanderbilt Medical Center in Nashville, Tennessee.

Look At The Facts

Pneumococcal pneumonia is the most common form of pneumococcal disease in adults. Each year in the United States, there are an estimated 175,000 hospitalizations for pneumococcal pneumonia.

When infection spreads to the bloodstream, it is called bacteremia, a very serious and sometimes deadly complication. It has been estimated that there are more than 50,000 cases of bacteremia each year.

Causes, Symptoms And Treatment

Many healthy people-up to 70 percent-carry the bacteria that cause pneumococcal disease and don't even know it. The bacteria are spread by coughing, sneezing or close contact. Researchers don't know why it suddenly enters the lungs and bloodstream to cause illness, but they do know that pneumococcal disease occurs more commonly during winter months.

Pneumococcal disease is usually treated with antibiotics, but that's not always effective. "Treatment of pneumococcal disease is getting harder because the bacteria are becoming more resistant to penicillin and other antibiotics," said Schaffner. For more information about pneumococcal disease, visit www.niaid.nih.gov/factsheets/pneumonia.htm.

Facing Facts About Male Skin Care

Whether you're comfortable shaving or have a knack for nicking yourself, a few tips from skin care experts can help you put your best face forward.

Step 1: Wet face in the shower or with a very wet, warm towel.

Step 2: Apply pre-shave oil or conditioner.

Step 3: Dab a small amount of shave cream into a shaving mug or directly on the face.

Step 4: Wet a shave brush and whip up a rich lather. Lather beard with an upward stroke to lift individual barbs.

Step 5: Shave with the grain of your beard (downward) to avoid nicks and cuts.

Step 6: Apply aftershave balm.

What you use while shaving can sometimes be as important as how you shave. That may be why male skin care products from SPF creams to moisturizers have become so hot and a number of new male skin care lines have been introduced.

For instance, Caswell-Massey, which is one of the oldest upscale grooming product companies in America, released a line for men called 1752-named after the year the company was founded. The company (which is believed to be the fourth-oldest in America) began as a medical supply shop in Newport, Rhode Island. Since then, it has become popular with celebrities and consumers from all walks of life. The line includes:

- Pre-Shave Oil-A blend of moisturizing natural oils and extracts that prepare the beard.
- Shave Soap in Wood Bowl-An all-vegetable formula with natural oils for a smooth, brisk shave.
- Shave Cream-A rich lathering cream that leaves skin moisturized.
- Aftershave Balm-A blend of natural oils, sea kelp and algae with natural extracts and vitamins.
- Face It Treatment Mask-A rejuvenating formulation that cleanses, treats and moisturizes.

The company also reintroduced its Greenbriar Collection-updated to reflect contemporary fragrances while preserving the integrity of its classics. It includes:

- SPF 30 Lotion-Men are not from Mars. They know the importance of protecting skin from the sun's ultraviolet rays. A lightly scented skin conditioner helps them do just that.
- Aftershave Balm-Helps soothe and nourish skin.
- Aftershave-Helps revitalize and refresh skin after shaving.
- The company's products are not tested on animals and are safe for the environment. Many provide protection from the sun's UV rays.

For more information, visit www.caswellmassey.com.

Men's grooming products are a hot trend that show no sign of cooling off.

A Preventive Approach To Managing Chronic Joint Problems

Whether they are active or sedentary, many people over the age of 40 will develop osteoarthritis (OA) by their 70th birthday.

They will probably feel it in the hips, knees or lower back-all weight-bearing joints-or the neck, finger or toe joints.

The current number of adult Americans with OA is expected to swell from 21 million to 41 million by the year 2020, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). The CDC also estimates that over 73 million Americans have chronic joint symptoms that affect their everyday activities. Fortunately, something can be done about it.

It is not just a matter of age and gravity

OA and chronic joint symptoms are the leading causes of disability among Americans over age 15, costing more than $125 billion annually. However, OA and chronic joint symptoms are not simply the result of "wear and tear." Nor are they limited to older people.

In fact, slight changes can be seen in the joints of most overweight people in their 40s, and some medical experts believe that these changes may be present in some people as early as their 20s and 30s. The major change seen in joints is the loss of surrounding cartilage, which leads to loss of joint mobility, stiffness and, eventually, pain.

Cartilage is an active tissue

For years, damage to cartilage due to OA was considered irreversible. However, scientists now realize that cartilage is an active tissue with a continuous turnover of nutrients.

Most joint cartilage is made up of type II collagen and structural proteins, which provide the tensile stiffness and compressive strength that joints need to retain their flexibility.

However, 5 percent of cartilage is comprised of chondrocytes-specialized cells that detect changes in the composition of the cartilage and respond by producing new collagen and other proteins to normalize the area in and around joints.

The acute pain related to OA is usually treated with analgesics, nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs) or cyclo-oxygenase (COX)-2 selective inhibitors for a short time.

While these drugs can alleviate pain, they do not address the underlying cause of the pain.

Preventative measures can be an excellent alternative

As part of a healthy lifestyle that includes exercising regularly and maintaining a healthy weight, some researchers and doctors recommend taking a supplement, such as CH-Alpha(tm), now available from GELITA Health Products.

Its active ingredient-collagen hydrolysate-is a collection of bioactive collagen peptides and appears to have a direct positive effect on the production of chondrocytes.

"Collagen hydrolysate is absorbed in the gastrointestinal tract, accumulates in the synovial fluid of the joint, and may stimulate type II collagen synthesis to reduce symptoms and improve joint function," according to Al Bello, MD, Clinical Associate Professor of Medicine, Rheumatology, University of Illinois.

In at least two medical studies, over 80 percent of patients using CH-Alpha have experienced an improvement in joint mobility with an eventual reduction in the pain associated with chronic joint symptoms.

Taking CH-Alpha orally may provide a safe alternative to address the stiffness and immobility many will eventually experience with age.

Collagen products have been used for many centuries for therapeutic purposes, and are recognized as safe components of pharmaceuticals and foods by the Food and Drug Administration Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition.

For more information, go to www.CH-Alpha.com.

Research indicates that supplements may help manage chronic joint symptoms.

Important Questions And Answers About The New Medicare Prescription Drug Program

By: John Flynn
Social Security District Manager

As of Nov. 15, Medicare beneficiaries across the nation can begin signing up for one of the many plans offered under the new Medicare Prescription Drug Program. The following questions and answers address some basic issues that all Medicare beneficiaries should be aware of as they consider their choices.

What is Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage?

Medicare prescription drug coverage is insurance provided by private companies, approved by Medicare, called Prescription Drug Providers (PDPs). Starting Jan. 1, new Medicare prescription drug coverage will be available to everyone with Medicare. This drug coverage may help lower your prescription drug costs and help protect against higher costs in the future.

Can I get extra help to pay for one of the prescription drug plans?

If you have limited income and resources, you may qualify for extra help. The amount of extra help depends on your income and resources. If you qualify for the extra help, you still will need to join a plan to get drug coverage. If you apply and qualify for the extra help but don't join a plan, Medicare will enroll you in one by May 15, to make sure you get this important coverage.

How do I know if I qualify for extra help?

You may get a letter from Medicare saying that you automatically qualify for extra help and don't have to fill out the application from Social Security. If you didn't automatically qualify, Social Security sent people with certain incomes an application for this extra help. Basically, you may qualify if your income is less than $14,355 for an individual or $19,245 for a married couple living together, and your resources are less than $11,500 for an individual or $23,000 if you are married and living with your spouse. If you didn't get – or did not complete – an application but think you may qualify, call 1-800-772-1213 or visit www.socialsecurity.gov on the web. After you complete the Application for Help with Medicare Prescription Drug Plan Costs, Social Security will mail you a letter telling you if you qualify for extra help.

If I am not certain whether or not I qualify, should I apply for extra help?

Yes, because there is no risk or cost to apply. And, if you qualify, you will get extra help paying for the annual deductible, premiums and co-payments for Medicare prescription drug coverage. This application may be completed before you have decided to participate in the Medicare Prescription Drug Program, and if you decide later that you do not want to participate, you may opt out at that time.

Once I choose a prescription drug plan, how do I pay for the coverage? Can it be deducted from my Social Security retirement check?

In general, there are three ways you can pay your Medicare drug plan premiums:

You can give permission to the PDP that offers the Medicare drug plan you choose to deduct the premium automatically from your bank account; or

You can have your premium deducted every month from your Social Security benefits, similar to your premiums for Medicare Part B; or

You can pay the premium for your prescription drug plan directly by mailing the PDP a check or money order each month.

Where can I get more information about Medicare prescription drug coverage?

For more information, read the "Medicare & You 2006 Handbook" mailed to you in October. It will list the specific plans available in your area. If you need further help, visit www.medicare.gov on the web or call 1-800-Medicare (1-800-633-4227). TTY users should call 1-877-486-2048. Have your Medicare card, a list of drugs you use and the name of the pharmacy you use ready when you call.

Why A Social Security "COLA" Is Important To Older Americans

By: John Flynn
Social Security District Manager

One of the most important announcements Social Security makes each year is that of the cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) for the next year. It's something that every beneficiary is keenly interested in. For all of those readers who are not yet receiving Social Security benefits, let me explain why last month's COLA announcement is so important.

More than 52 million people get Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefit payments. The annual COLA helps ensure that their benefit payments keep pace with inflation. The COLA, which was 4.1 percent this year, will show up in the January benefit payments for Social Security beneficiaries. And increased payments for Supplemental Security Income recipients will begin on Dec. 30.

Many financial planners point out that the annual COLA is one of Social Security's most important features and note that relatively few private pensions have automatic cost-of-living increases.

Without a COLA, retirement benefit payments could lose their purchasing power over time. For example, if the annual inflation rate were 4 percent, an item that costs $25 today would cost $50 in 18 years. This COLA protection becomes even more important as workers live longer after retiring—the average life expectancy for a 65-year-old today is more than 17 years, compared with about 12 years when the Social Security program began in 1935.

The COLAs are directly tied to the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners and Clerical Workers (CPI-W). The CPI-W measures inflation, as experienced by consumers in their day-to-day living expenses.

Before 1975, it took an act of Congress to increase Social Security benefit payments. In fact, the first increase was not authorized until 1950 – 15 years after the original Social Security Act was passed, and a decade after the first monthly benefits were paid.

For more information on the 2006 COLA, visit the Social Security website at www.socialsecurity.gov.

Laws Exist To Protect Consumers

With holiday gift-buying nearly in full swing, consumers should know that there are numerous laws at the national and state levels to protect them from fraudulent or unethical business practices, and defective products. The following is a sample of some of these laws.

Under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, a consumer is ensured that he or she has an equal chance to obtain credit to finance a purchase. This does not mean that anyone who applies can receive credit. To be considered worthy of credit, several factors are taken into consideration, including income, expenses, debt and credit history. The law further states that a creditor may not ask you to reveal your sex, race, marital status, national origin and religion.

The Motor Vehicle Retail Installment Sales Act outlines the terms that must be included in a financing agreement for buying a car. It requires that the contract clearly state the amount of the finance charge and other charges you must pay beyond the cash price of the car.

The Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act prevents sellers from using false or misleading statements. Essentially, the Act imposes penalties on vendors who do anything that is deemed to be deceptive.

Oak Lawn High School Suspends 4 Students

A breach in the security of a District 229 computer program gave four Oak Lawn High School students the opportunity to hack into the school's Parent Portal to change their grades. Early in October, the students found a fault in the Parent Portal program that is used by School District 229 in order to inform parents about their children's progress in school. Parents can view grades and attendance records. Other information is stored in the program for school use. Century Consultants of New Jersey installed the program in April. Century reported that the program is widely used in other schools across the country and that there were no incidents of hacking reported to them. The program is password protected and was designed to keep hackers out.

However, the students found the fault and 'hunt and pecked' their way into the system and changed their own failing grades. A teacher noticed the changes at the end of October. She noticed that the grades that she gave to a student didn't match her hand written records. On further investigation it was noted that the boys did not compromise other student records.

The boys were suspended for 10 days and were denied computer privileges upon their return. Although some officials and teachers wanted the boys expelled, it was stated that expulsion was used only in cases of extreme behavior that jeopardizes the safety of students and staff. According to District 229 officials, expulsion in this case was not justified.

The school's technology department with the help of Century Consultants repaired the fault. The district will continue using the Parent Portal.

If you or a member of your family makes a purchase from a door-to-door salesman - and you change your mind about the purchase - there is a federal law which can protect you. The law enables you - the buyer - to have up to three days to cancel any contract on credit or a cash sale of $25 or more which takes place away from the seller's regular place of business, such as your home or a public place. Furthermore, door-to-door sales contracts must include a prominently displayed notice of this cancellation right.

For further information about law-related issues, contact an Illinois State Bar Association-member lawyer in your area or visit www.illinoislawyerfinder.com.

America Recycles Day

Get involved to celebrate "America Recycles Day," the West Cook County Solid Waste Agency and Keep West Cook Beautiful have partnered with Classic Computer Recovery, Inc. and Triton College to host a FREE One-Day Electronics Recycling Event on Nov. 19th from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Triton College in the Northwest Student Parking Lot, 2000 Fifth Ave. in River Grove.

Among the items accepted are Computer (PCs), all-in-ones, laptops, modems, printers, monitors, CD-ROM drives, keyboards, mice, cables, hard drives and motherboards. The contractor specializes in electronic products recycling and is capable of recycling over 95% of the materials and components in the items listed above.

Electronic equipment, especially computers, printers and monitors, quickly become outdated. Consequently, many of these items end up in landfills. While these types of electronic equipment are not banned from landfills, the components often contain materials that are hazardous to human health. Computer monitors, for example, contain toxic materials such as cadmium, lead, mercury and chromium. Each monitor contains five to eight pounds of lead that, if not disposed of properly, can harm humans and the environment. For this reason, WCCSWA encourages residents to properly dispose of electronic waste at the collection. For more information, contact Jim Caporusso at (708) 450-0100.

Woman Dies After Crash

Karen Mullen, 50, of Burbank, was riding on the back of Gary Bauer's Harley-Davidson when Bauer lost control of the bike and skidded off the road. Mullen was thrown from the bike and has died of extensive head injuries on Wednesday, Nov. 9th.

Bauer, 44 of the 8800 Block of S. 51st Ave. was charged with aggravated driving under the influence and cited with other traffic offenses including failing to reduce speed and operating an uninsured vehicle, police reports state.

Bauer reportedly crashed his motorcycle about 3 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 4th. He was driving from the northbound lanes of Harlem Ave. onto eastbound ramp of 95th street. Bauer told police that he skidded on gravel. He said that he lost control of the bike, but, according to reports, he was only going about 20 mph.

Mullen was thrown from the bike, but Bauer was not seriously hurt. Mullen's death was ruled an accident.

According to the police reports, this was not the first time that Bauer was arrested for DUI. In 1990 Bauer had two DUI accidents which left people injured. He had caused an accident which left a Hickory Hills woman badly injured. In March of 1990, he swerved into oncoming traffic ending up smashing head-on into another vehicle. In Sept. 1991, Bauer pleaded guilty to the driving under the influence. He was sentenced to 22 months in prison according to reports.

For this accident, Bauer was recorded to have a blood alcohol content that measured 0.225, or three times the state's legal limit. Bauer was out on $150,000 bail. Since Mullen has died, Bauer may face upgraded charges.

Tips For Sharing And Preserving Family Memories When A Loved One Has Alzheimer's

Whether it's during the holidays, a birthday celebration or a family reunion, sharing memories with loved ones is an enjoyable and healthy way to remember times past. It can often be very frustrating, however, when someone in the family has Alzheimer's disease.

An estimated 4.5 million Americans have Alzheimer's disease, and as baby boomers age, that number is expected to triple by 2050. It's important to remember, however, that Alzheimer's patients can still appreciate memories even if they don't respond in the same manner as before their illness. Learning ways in which to positively interact with an Alzheimer's patient is crucial for re-connecting with your loved one and sharing memories for as long as possible.

"The toughest part for many families facing Alzheimer's is looking back," says Joanne Koenig Coste, renowned Alzheimer's care pioneer and author of Learning to Speak Alzheimer's. "They need to stop talking about how Mom or Grandpa used to be and focus on who she or he is now. The best thing you can do is to go to their reality. If they're reminiscing about childhood and think they're still eight years old, don't insist that 70 years have passed. Enjoy their stories."

Koenig Coste offers additional tips:

Look at photo albums and videos. Flipping through a photo album or watching a video together allows loved ones to share an enjoyable experience. "Old black-and-white photos-sometimes even photos of absolute strangers-evoked strong memories for Alzheimer's patients," explained Koenig Coste. "Make copies of photos and let your loved one write or draw on them, or show a wedding video because that's a joyous occasion that may make them remember their own wedding."

Make the most of family pets. Don't underestimate the therapeutic power of animals. Animals provide a nonthreatening, healthy interaction for Alzheimer's patients. Patients often require undivided love and attention, something animals naturally provide.

Play music. Music can help stimulate a patient's memories. Music from the patient's youth often triggers memories, but modern New Age music is also helpful-providing soothing background music.

Encourage children to spend time with patients. "It's so important to designate time for children to spend with the patient," Koenig Coste said. "I think the worst mistake people make is keeping children away from their grandparents for fear of how the children will someday remember them. Children have a positive, healing effect on Alzheimer's patients."

While nothing can turn back time and restore a patient's memories, it's important that your loved one see a physician if you think he or she may have Alzheimer's disease. Family members of Alzheimer's patients also need to take care of themselves. Ortho-McNeil Neurologics Inc. sponsors a free program called SharingCare. It provides caregivers with tools to help cope with Alzheimer's disease and its effects. For more information, visit www.SharingCare.com or www.orthomcneilneurologics.com.

Living With Arthritis

Approximately 70 million Americans have arthritis and a new survey by the Rippe Lifestyle Institute shows many are living with arthritis pain needlessly because they don't know which medications are safe.

Says Dr. James Rippe: "We learned from our survey that since these patients are confused, many have stopped or reduced their use of pain relievers. The result is a significant negative impact on their quality of life, that has even forced some patients to limit their daily activities."

According to Dr. Rippe, inactivity can lead to more serious conditions such as weight gain, high blood pressure and diabetes. Patients need to understand the implications of untreated arthritis pain and talk to their doctors about which treatment options they should use. Many doctors these days suggest an over the counter medication such as Aleve.

Get The Facts About Medicare Part D Now

Did you know that one in five adults is the designated caregiver for an aging or disabled loved one who can't manage alone? More than 50 million individuals are selflessly engaged in providing 80 percent of all home care services in America. In addition to assisting with activities of daily living, family caregivers are very influential providers of health care information for their care recipients.

If you are caring for someone who is eligible for Medicare or if you are among the millions of family caregivers who are eligible themselves, it is important that you learn as much as you can about the new Medicare Prescription Drug Benefit Program. Medicare Part D is the most significant expansion in the history of the federal health program designed for the elderly and disabled.

The National Family Caregivers Association (NFCA) was founded to support, educate, empower, and advocate for America's millions of family caregivers. In keeping with its mission, NFCA urges you to learn more about Medicare Part D during open enrollment November 15, 2005 to May 15, 2006. As in many health plans, open enrollment is a great time to explore, compare, and make informed choices. It is also a time during which a one-time cost-saving incentive is offered for early enrollees. Of particular interest to family caregivers, this saving can impact the escalating costs and use of prescription drugs over the lifetime of a care recipient.

Get the facts. Plan ahead. A detailed explanation of the program is offered by the federal government through the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services: 1-800-MEDICARE and www.medicare.gov. Although very comprehensive, it can also be very complex.

Through the NFCA Web site, www.thefamilycaregiver.org, family caregivers can link to other sources of information that are easier to comprehend-some with links specifically designed for family caregivers. For more information about the benefits of NFCA membership or to support its non-profit programs, please visit the organization online.

A Family Conversation On Estate Planning Can Strengthen Ties

Defying a long-held taboo, parents in their 70s are far more likely to be comfortable discussing the sensitive issue of estate planning than their baby boomer children, and they also care more about helping their children financially than their children realize, according to a recent study.

The study shows that older parents and their children need some help when discussing sensitive estate-planning issues. The survey was based on telephone interviews with a random sample of unrelated parents and children. Interviews were conducted with 500 parents ages 70-79 and 450 children ages 45-65, primarily boomers.

"Older adults tell us they really do want to discuss topics such as estate planning, medical care and final arrangements with their children. Boomers, on the other hand, would sometimes rather talk about something else," said Maureen Mohyde, director of The Hartford's Corporate Gerontology Group. The Hartford Financial Services Group research made the following key findings:

- 76 percent of older parents say they are very comfortable with talking about their estate, compared to 45 percent of boomers who say they are very comfortable.
- Parents are far more comfortable discussing the content of their wills than their children realize, with 71 percent of parents saying they are very comfortable, compared with 54 percent of children.
- Boomers underestimate the importance that parents place on providing for their heirs, improving their children's lifestyles, helping their children prepare for retirement and helping grandchildren attend college.
- Significantly more older parents report having important estate-planning documents such as living wills and durable powers of attorney than boomers report they are aware of.

Our research indicates a clear 'generation gap' in communicating about estate planning," Mohyde said. "Families need help in bridging this gap and tackling these issues."

To this end, Mohyde provided the following tips:

- Parents should reach out first. Parents are much more comfortable in talking about estate planning, so it's easier for them to bring up the topic. If children say "we don't need to talk about it, Mom, you're going to be around for a long time," the parent needs to stick with the conversation anyway.

Easing Travel Boredom

Traveling in your plans? Whether it's a plane ride halfway around the world, a car ride to visit the grand kids or a daily commute, these tips will help ease travel boredom and make any trip that much more enjoyable.

- Pace Yourself: Don't try to do too much traveling in one day—especially if you are traveling with grandkids. Be sure to make regular stops and try to plan your route around some interesting and fun activities. Consider bringing some supplies and having a picnic while en route or a quick game of catch at a rest stop.
- Game On: Travel games can be a fun way to pass the time. For instance, Goplay makes a line of stylish magnetic travel games housed in sleek metal boxes that double as boards. The games are a modern twist on classic favorites such as Chutes and Ladders, Four in a Row, Chess and Checkers. When players arrive at their destination there is no need to end the game—store the compact case in your bag and go. The magnetic pieces will be in the same spot when you return. The games are available at Target and Barnes and Noble.

There are a number of ways to make car trips more fun.

- Children should ask how they can help parents maintain their independence. Estate planning can involve drawing up important legal directives such as a durable power of attorney, living will or health care directive. These planning devices can play a big part in helping older parents ensure that their wishes are carried out, even if their health fails.

- Build on shared values: The research, sponsored by The Hartford, showed that parents place more value on helping their children accomplish important financial goals such as improving their lifestyles, enjoying a comfortable retirement and educating their grandchildren than boomers realize. Parents may offer assistance—even if their children don't need it—to remain part of their family's future.

- Start with the positive: The research indicated that boomers and their parents—despite past differences—today have positive parent-child relationships. Discussing estate planning is an extension of that positive relationship.

What we've learned from our survey and conversations with older adults is that estate planning is really not about money, it's about creating lasting bonds within families," Mohyde said. "By reaching out, families can help cement those bonds and preserve memories for generations."

Avoid Amputation, Heart Attack And Stroke—Listen To Your Ankle

If you listen closely, your ankle can tell you a lot. Quiet now, listen. Thump, thump, thump. There it is—that drumbeat sound that speaks volumes. What your ankle is drumming out is the health of your vascular system—think of it as Morse code telling you how well your circulation is working, and more importantly, if you have any blocked arteries that can lead to a heart attack, stroke or amputation.

Your ankle "talks" during an ABI test, or ankle brachial index test. This quick, painless test compares the blood pressure in your legs to the blood pressure in your arms. If you have an ABI score of less than 1.0, you could have peripheral arterial disease.

Peripheral arterial disease (PAD) is atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries. Cholesterol or calcium "plaque" builds up inside the arteries causing them to clog and narrow. Over time, the plaque blocks smaller arteries first, such as those in the legs, and then eventually the larger or high-flow arteries, such as those in the heart or the carotid arteries to the brain.

Although 10 million Americans have peripheral arterial disease (PAD), diabetics are at highest risk with one in three over age 50 affected. PAD is also the cause of 50 percent of all diabetic amputations.

Your ABI score is a red flag—that number tells us if you have blocked arteries and whether you are at risk for gangrene, stroke, kidney damage, heart attack or amputation," explained Dr. Harvey Wiener, interventional radiologist and Legs For Life Chair. "Diabetics, smokers, people over 50 and those with high blood pressure need to have an annual ABI test. Knowing your ABI number can save your life."

Through its Legs For Life program, the Society of Interventional Radiology Foundation is offering free ABI screenings nationwide to detect PAD early. Treatments for PAD include a walking program, medication, and angioplasty and stenting.

More information and an online assessment test for PAD can be found at the Legs For Life Web site, www.LegsForLife.org.

Don't Take Your Medicine For Granted

The pipeline of new lifesaving medicines could be put at risk by quick-fix solutions such as importing drugs from Canada, say experts from the Missouri Pharmacy Association.

The connection, experts say, is that costly research and development of new drugs is borne almost exclusively by pharmaceutical companies, funded by the sale of their products. When these sales are circumvented, so is the revenue stream for new medicines.

"We shouldn't take the existence of lifesaving drugs for granted," says the Association's president, Matt Hartwig. "People are living much longer in the U.S. compared to previous generations, in part because of new medicines. Scourges like diabetes and cancer remind us that there is much more for medicine to do. That's why it is crucial that, in addition to exercise and a healthy diet, there be a vigorous campaign to develop new lifesaving medicines."

According to experts at GlaxoSmithKline, a partner in a new public education campaign aimed at helping people take their medicines properly, it costs more than $800 million for research and development of a single new drug. The odds of success for new drugs are daunting: Only one out of a 1,000,000 compounds screened ever makes it to a patient.

Many Americans believe the government pays for the majority of drug research. In fact, government agencies fund only a tiny fraction of new pharmaceutical research. It is American consumers, through their prescription purchases, who help drug companies pay for research and development.

Industry experts believe the development of new drugs is a burden that's worth shouldering. The progress of the past century, marked by new medical treatments, could halt and even roll backward without a full pipeline of new medicines to meet tomorrow's future health care needs.

"We can't ignore the fact that many people want to take their medicines as prescribed but can't afford them or simply have difficulty paying for the medicines they need," Hartwig says. "That's why we are pointing consumers to an array of drug savings programs that can help eligible patients get free or reduced-price medicines."

Helpful Advice For The Elderly On Avoiding The Flu

The winter season can be a risky time for everyone, but for the elderly it can be deadly. Seniors are at increased risk of developing influenza or the flu, during the colder months, which can lead to serious medical complications. The Illinois Council on Long Term Care, a statewide association of long term care facilities, offers helpful advice to the elderly on how to avoid the dangers of this potentially fatal disease.

The flu is spread in respiratory droplets caused by coughing and sneezing. Persons infected by the droplets have to be near, within three feet, of individuals who are coughing in order for the droplets to be deposited in their mouth or nose. Although transmission is usually from person to person, touching items contaminated by respiratory secretions, such as doorknobs or books, can transmit the flu. Studies show that the flu virus can survive on surfaces for two to eight hours.

Persons over the age of 65 account for more than 90% of the 35,000 influenza-related deaths in the United States. Symptoms of the flu include fever (usually high), headache, extreme tiredness, dry cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose and muscle aches. Other viruses usually cause stomach symptoms in adults. The common cold has many symptoms in common with the flu; however, it is usually milder than the flu. Persons with a cold usually have a runny or stuffy nose and do not develop serious illness.

Here are some important suggestions for the elderly on avoiding the flu:

- Get vaccinated. The best way to prevent the flu is to get vaccinated each fall. About two weeks after vaccination, antibodies develop that protect against influenza virus infection. It is best to get vaccinated between October and November, but getting vaccinated in December or later can still be beneficial.
- Wash your hands often. Make sure to clean your hands often throughout the day to ward off infections. Use alcohol-based hand rubs for those times you are away from a sink and water. If your hands are dirty, avoid touching your eyes, nose or mouth as much as possible until you have thoroughly cleaned them.
- Eat nutritious foods and drink extra fluids. An improper diet can lead to a lowered immune system and increased susceptibility to flu. Also, be sure to get plenty of rest to stay healthy.

- Cover your mouth and nose. The hands are a primary source for transmitting the flu. Use a tissue when coughing and sneezing and dispose of it immediately. Encourage others to do the same. If you have to cough and you don't have a tissue handy, cough into your sleeve and not your hand to minimize your chances of transmitting disease.

Persons in nursing homes are at extreme risk of catching the flu. Stay away from the nursing home if you are sick with influenza. If you must visit, consider wearing a facial mask and stay three feet away from the residents. Wash your hands often to minimize your chances of spreading the disease.

With any case of influenza, the Council advises that individuals consult with their physicians to avoid any serious complications from the illness. These complications include bacterial pneumonia, dehydration and worsening of chronic medical conditions, such as congestive heart failure, asthma or diabetes.

By practicing healthy lifestyle habits and getting vaccinated every year, seniors can guard themselves successfully from the potentially life-threatening complications of influenza, one of the most dangerous illnesses for the elderly.

Smith Village Helps Seniors Stay Connected To Family

Experts Offer Tips On Staying Involved As A Long Distance Grandma

"Maintaining family connections helps more than the spirit," says Philip G. Hemmer, the executive director of Smith Village a continuing care retirement community in Chicago's Beverly neighborhood that is slated for completion in the fall of 2007. "Family relationships keep the mind active and foster a positive spirit that is very beneficial to seniors." Sometimes, when families are far away, it takes more effort to stay in touch, but Smith Village recognizes the power of families and offers programs and tips that help maintain those ties.

Embrace Technology

According to a survey released this month by the Pew Internet & American Life Project 87 percent of teens use the Internet. Using the method of communication that is most familiar to the younger generation, is a great way to connect with them. Webcam, email and digital photos can sound a bit like a foreign language if you are new to computers, but these technologies can help keep families connected in ways that were unheard of in the past.

"My son set up a webcam on his computer so that I can see my grandbabies while we talk on the phone," says Bunny Sugarman, director of marketing for Smith Village and experienced grandmother. Sugarman's three adult children live in New Jersey, so when she moved to Chicago to lead the successful marketing team at Smith Village, she had to get creative. "I can watch live video of two-year-old twins Benjamin and William right on my computer while I talk to them, just like watching a sporting event live on television. When I can watch them learning to walk, hear them practice their first words and see how much they've grown, it makes me feel close to them, even though I'm a thousand miles away."

With older grandchildren, email allows you to send letters and photos instantly. Smith Village will feature a full computer lab, and classes for seniors to help them get connected. Because so many young people use email every day, you are likely to hear from them more often if you learn to use the same technology that they do. "It really isn't hard to use email," says Sugarman. "You need some instructions to get started, but it is easier than you might think. I get emails from my kids and grandkids frequently, so even though I am so far away from them, I still get to keep up with what's happening in their daily lives."

Remember the Stress of Tests

"You can connect with grandchildren that are far away by sending them special care packages in advance of finals or helping them with their studies," says Sugarman. If you are a talented writer or had a career that involved math or science, you can be a terrific resource for them.

Even if academics weren't your strong suit, there are lots of ways to pitch in. Ask what they are learning about in their history class. Chances are they'll be studying about WWII, Korea, Vietnam, the civil rights movement and social changes over the last 100 years. Don't be shy about sharing your personal stories and connections to these events. Your insights will help make the events they read about in books seem very real. Also, you don't need to shower them with gifts, but a little care package with notebooks, pencils or art supplies is a special way to let them know you're thinking of them.

Memories that Connect Generations

A top-notch arts and crafts studio at Smith Village and a series of classes will make it easier than ever to create special keepsakes and hand made items for your grandkids. Even if you aren't artistically inclined you can make wonderful items for them to treasure.

So much in the world has changed over the century, but some of life's landmarks remain the same. The first day of school, graduation, formal dances and holidays are just as exciting in 2005 as they were in 1945 or 1965. Create a wonderful keepsake for your grandkids to celebrate one of their big events by framing photos of yourself and your son or daughter at the same moment. Three photos of special sweet sixteen birthday parties or a young person posing by their first car are sure to start a great conversation and find common ground.

Coming and Going

Of course one of the best ways to stay connected is to visit. Smith Village will include a special guest suite where friends or family can stay while they visit you. Your guests will have top-notch accommodations with a kitchen, bath and living room to enjoy.

You can travel to visit your family as well. Many future residents of Smith Village have family living in other states; even in other countries. They are excited to be able to simply walk out the door to their apartment and not have to worry about a thing. Their apartment will continue to be cleaned each week and there are no concerns about freezing pipes or covering furniture during longer trips. Residents will be able to relax and enjoy time with their grandkids, rather than being concerned with the security of their homes or if their mail is being properly taken care of.

Give Yourself the Time to Embrace Life's Special Moments

The lifestyle at Smith Village frees time for seniors to spend time with family and enjoying their favorite activities. Services include two meals a day in an elegant dining room or casual café, bi-weekly housekeeping, weekly linen service, cable television, all utilities except telephone, emergency call service, maintenance, security and a comprehensive health-care package that offers peace of mind for the future.

Every detail in the plans for Smith Village encourages continued vitality. Smith Village's 152 spacious and elegant independent living apartments will be situated along South Western Avenue between 112th and 113th Places in Chicago's Beverly neighborhood, and ready for occupancy in early 2007. The new community will provide independent living, assisted living, memory support and skilled nursing care with large apartments and a host of services and amenities.

Smith Village is part of the Smith Senior Living family of premier senior living communities in the southwest sector of metropolitan Chicago. An innovative leader in providing the finest services and care for seniors, Smith established its first community in 1924.

Retinal Disease Detection

Pearle Vision in Midlothian is first to offer revolutionary modality for retinal disease detection to patients in the southwest suburbs.

Pearle Vision in Midlothian is the first eye care practice in the southwest suburbs to offer its patients the Optomap retinal exam (Optos North America). This revolutionary modality captures and analyzes an image of virtually the entire retina, for the early detection and management of eye disease. Since Optos first introduced the Optomap exam, nearly one million exams have been conducted worldwide, diagnosing serious eye conditions - such as diabetic retinopathy, retinal detachments and macular degeneration - that could have otherwise gone undetected and often progress without symptoms.

The Optomap retinal exam takes a computer-generated image of the retina, which can be immediately evaluated by Doctors Ronald and Deborah Cope at Pearle Vision, 14702 Cicero Ave. There is no pupil dilation, no eye drops, blurred vision or sensitivity to light. The Optomap retinal exam is a simple, quick and important way to maintain good eye health.

"The Optomap increases the quality of the retinal exam by allowing us to view almost the entire retina at the start of the exam, which can have important implications, not only for detecting eye disease, but also in detecting and managing other medical conditions such as diabetes," said Dr. Ron Cope. "We recommend all of our patients have this exam, which has already detected issues in some of our patients which could have otherwise gone undetected."

About Optos

The Optos modality was developed as a patient-friendly examination tool by Douglas Anderson, founder and vice-chairman, Optos, after his son Leif lost the use of an eye when a retinal detachment was detected too late. It incorporates the latest in scanning laser ophthalmoscope (SLO) technology, using low-powered red-green laser beams to capture an image of virtually the entire retina on an "Optomap," a permanent digital record that gives clinicians a view of the retina that is unprecedented with prior technologies.

Helping Caregivers Care For Themselves

A growing number of people are caregivers-and may not even know it.

If you provide assistance to someone who is disabled or who needs help with day-to-day activities because of a chronic condition, cognitive limitations or aging, you are a caregiver.

Caregiving can mean shopping for groceries once a week for a homebound relative or neighbor, helping an aging parent with his or her finances, or providing hands-on care for a member of your household.

Who Is A Caregiver?

And you are not alone. According to the National Alliance for Caregiving, more than 22 million households provide care for a family member, friend or loved one.

People of all ages-a child, a disabled person or an aging individual-can require long-term care. As a family caregiver, you give of your time, energy, strength and personal resources on an ongoing basis without financial compensation. Caregivers can be any age, male or female, working outside the home, or in the home full-time.

A factor that is sometimes ignored when caregiving is discussed is care for the caregiver.

While it is easy to become overwhelmed with caregiving responsibilities, it is critical to maintain your own life, complete with social, physical and emotional interactions.

Caregivers should never underestimate the importance of their own well-being. Having a healthy mind, body and spirit are all positives that you bring into a caregiving relationship and benefit both the caregiver and receiver.

Signs To Watch For

There is no need to feel guilty about taking some time to take care of yourself. You need it and deserve it.

It's important to be aware of the signs that point to caregiver "burnout." Watch for:

- Excessive use of alcohol, medications or sleeping pills
- Appetite changes-either eating too much or too little
- Depression-hopelessness, feelings of alienation, lack of energy to do new things
- Thoughts of death
- Losing control physically or emotionally
- Neglect or rough treatment of the person for whom you are caring
- Trouble falling or staying asleep
- Difficulty concentrating, missing appointments.
- Helpful Hints
- Check into support groups for caregivers.
- Look into respite programs with adult day centers, assisted living or nursing facilities that might be able to assist you with care on a periodic basis or consider a home health care agency. Respite care can offer temporary assistance to individuals so that the caregiver can rest or travel.
- Community services for support such as Meals on Wheels and Friendly Visitors can often be located by calling your local Area Agency on Aging.

The "Since You Care: Family Caregiving" guide, prepared by the National Alliance for Caregiving and the MetLife Mature Market Institute, assists individuals and families who have assumed the role of caregiver or anticipate future caregiving.

Single copies are available free from MetLife Mature Market Institute, 57 Greens Farms Road, Westport, CT 06880.

Paying For Health Care A Cause For Concern For Many Americans

According to a recent survey by StrategyOne, commissioned by Aflac, nearly half of all American adults worry over the rising cost of health care. Additionally, many Americans are concerned about growing health care expenses and their future well-being, especially as they age.

The survey found that two-thirds of Americans are more concerned about the cost of health care than they were a year ago. Almost half (45 percent) reported that paying for their family's health needs is a source of stress and anxiety for them. Other key findings include:

- 89 percent of respondents agreed that Americans are challenged to balance daily living expenses with rising health care costs.
- 89 percent believe that many Americans will need to use their savings to pay for health care rather than daily needs.
- 80 percent are concerned about the impact that increasing health care costs may have on their financial well-being.
- 75 percent report that, should they become ill or injured, paying for daily living expenses, such as mortgage, rent and utilities, would be of greatest concern.
- 77 percent are concerned about their ability to pay for health care expenses and medical bills in the future. Nationally, women are significantly more likely to feel this way-except in the Northeast.
- 87 percent believe that growing medical and health care expenses will make retirement living less comfortable in the future.

Supplemental Coverage

For seven out of 10 Americans, supplemental health insurance signifies a sense of security, financial protection and stability. These sentiments are shared across gender, age (baby boomers, Gen X and Gen Y), income, ethnicity and location and regardless of whether or not children under 17 are present in the household.

Recently, Aflac embarked on a new outreach campaign linking the iconic duck with a greater understanding of the company's insurance policies and services, combining the lighthearted humor of their beloved mascot with a more comprehensive message about the company's support. Don't Leave Your Doctor's Office Without It

Before you leave your doctor's office, make sure you have the test results identifying your risk of heart disease. Today, diagnostic tests for the most predictive risk factors-cholesterol and the new high sensitivity C-Reactive Protein (hs-CRP)-are available while you are in your physician's office.

Available in minutes, immediate test results allow patients to speak to their physicians about lifestyle changes as well as potential treatment options in the same office visit. Because the results are proven to be as accurate and reliable as those from an outside lab, many physicians believe office-based testing produces better care for their patients.

"People's lives are busier than ever before. It's hard enough to get them in for a check up-I need to be able to identify health risks and provide counsel in the same visit," said Michael Witt, MD of Chatsworth, GA. "The only way to accomplish that is to do the testing myself. Using a tool like the Cholestech LDX System, I can have accurate lipid results within minutes rather than days."

Using a simple finger-stick, the LDX System can measure cholesterol, glucose and liver enzymes, and now, hs-CRP. This enhances the ability to quickly identify patients with risk factors for heart disease, enabling physicians to focus on getting patients on the right treatment sooner and making sure they stay on the right therapeutic mix.

According to Dr. Witt, nearly 40 percent of patients do not have their lab tests done because of the extra time and travel involved in going to an outside lab. "If we're going to improve heart healthcare, we have to make it easy for people to determine their risk of heart disease, the leading cause of death in this country. This is not about convenience, it's about giving patients the tools to take control of their healthcare."

Nearly 2,500 Americans die of heart disease daily, according to the American Heart Association. While smoking and other risk factors have declined recently, high cholesterol remains one of the most prevalent. For example, more than 50 percent of Americans have total cholesterol levels considered to be high risk. The National Cholesterol Education Program recommends that more than 200 million Americans need to be screened for cholesterol annually.

Now, Medicare-eligible beneficiaries have guaranteed access to office based cholesterol blood tests for the early detection of cardiovascular disease. To learn more about office based testing and reducing their risk of heart disease, people should consult their physician or visit www.americanheart.org.

How To Cut Prescription Costs Safely

New savings programs are designed to offset the rising cost of prescription drugs and other medical supplies that will only increase as the baby boomer generation begins aging.

"The lack of affordable insurance for all, the proliferation of expensive treatments and an emphasis on curative, rather than preventive care are the main culprits in the high cost of health care," says Matt Hartwig, President of the Missouri Pharmacy Association.

Although drugs account for less than 10 percent of overall health care spending, some Americans have called for "importing" cheap drugs from Canada and other countries. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration, which ensures the safety of pharmaceutical products sold in the U.S., says the quality, origin and safety of imported drugs can't be determined and it supports keeping imported drugs illegal.

Drug companies spend more than $800 million on average to develop each drug," said Chris Viehbacher, President, U.S. Pharmaceuticals, GlaxoSmithKline. "Drug companies bear the burden of innovation, at considerable risk in fact only one out of 1,000,000 new compounds ever makes it to the patient."

A safer and more practical alternative may be to take advantage of the savings programs being offered by pharmaceutical companies. These programs may reduce prescription drug costs by more, on average, than any imported drug could. Many Americans remain unaware of the benefits available through prescription drug savings programs, which help eligible patients receive prescription name brand medications at a reduced cost or even for free.

To address the 90 percent of health care costs not related to drug prices, experts say that emphasis should be shifted to prevention, which can dramatically reduce costs later on.

Prevention can take many forms. The state of Missouri has just launched an important new initiative to get people to take their medicines properly. Not taking medicines as directed can mean that it takes longer for a patient to get well or may lead to further health complications. This drives up health care costs by making more demands on the health care system.

HEALTHY IDEAS

Many people with joint discomfort are seeking alternatives. Recent studies have shown certain supplements, such as glucosamine, chondroitin sulfate, fish oils, MSM and SAMe may be helpful.

Macular Degeneration

Edward Sieben, 74-year-old Potosi Heights resident, never imagined he would become a macular degeneration statistic. Dr. Thomas Bennett, a Little Company ophthalmologist, successfully treated Sieben with an innovative, multi-course therapy called Visudyne®, used to slow and possibly stop abnormal vessel growth. Now Sieben is able to continue his daily routine, which always begins with a walk, accompanied by his loyol and fluffy friend Belle.

Visudyne is injected into the bloodstream, usually through a vein in the patient's arm. The abnormal blood vessels in the back of the eye that cause sight loss with AMD quickly absorb the drug. Next, a cold laser is concentrated on the affected area of the eye for exactly 83 seconds. This activates the drug and produces a reaction that destroys the abnormal blood vessels.

Experts advise adults ages 40 to 65 to have an eye exam every two to four years; those older than age 65 should be tested every one to two years. If you have a high risk for AMD, your doctor may recommend more frequent screenings.

The experts at Retinal Vitreous Associates are using newer therapies, such as Macugen, the newest treatment available for wet age-related macular degeneration. It's the only drug therapy approved by the FDA for patients with all types of wet AMD. For more information on the Visudyne therapy, Macugen therapy or general macular degeneration information, contact the Little Company health information center at (866) 540-LCMH.

Easing Cancer Treatments

For many cancer patients, there may soon be a way to avoid much of the fear and the suffering that can come from the most effective treatments.

According to Dr. Luis E. Racz, Co-Leader of the Thoracic Oncology Group at the Sylvester Comprehensive Cancer Center in Miami, fear of nausea and vomiting associated with chemotherapy is the number one concern for many patients. "It mentally disables the patient. The patient loses confidence in the therapy and loses confidence in the doctor," he explained.

A number of pharmaceutical companies across the country have met this challenge by developing medications to help reduce the occurrence of this common side effect. Aloxi (palonosetron hydrochloride) injection is the most recent such drug approved by the FDA. Tests show one shot can last for up to five days. The most commonly reported side effects include headache and constipation.

It's produced by MGI Pharma, an oncology and acute care biopharmaceutical company that acquires, develops and commercializes proprietary products that address the unmet needs of patients. For more information about Aloxi, visit www.aloxi.com or www.mgipharma.com.

The Many Uses Of Lemons

Out of shampoo? Company's arriving soon and you didn't have time to stop for flowers? A quick solution may be right in your kitchen. Lemons have long been used to add flavor to soft drinks and food, but they have far more uses than most of us realize. From disinfecting to decorating, lemons are one of the most functional fruits under the sun. Check out the following tips on how to squeeze the most out of your lemons-you'll be buying them by the dozen!

Lighten Up Your Living Room

Looking for a great way to breathe some life into your home? Try filling a large glass vase or one of your favorite baskets with a few lemons to add a splash of color to an old room. Lemons stay fresh longer than most flowers and are available at a fraction of the cost. Spraying lemon air freshener or lighting a lemon-scented candle will help wake up your senses and make the whole house smell wonderful!

Refresh Your Look

For years, lemon has been a staple ingredient in soaps, shampoos and perfumes. Now, it's even in toothpaste. Try adding some zest to your brushing routine with Crest Whitening Expressions Lemon Ice toothpaste. It's an icy burst of lemon flavor that cools your mouth and wakes your senses. But don't stop there; lemon is also great for helping to keep your hair healthy and shiny. Try creating your own special lemon salon treatment: combine the juice of two lemons with a pint of distilled water to create a rinse that fights oily hair and leaves you looking and feeling great.

Lemon to Your Aid

Now you can feel good about adding that lemon to your water-besides smelling and tasting great, lemons are exceptionally rich in vitamin C, an antioxidant that strengthens the immune system. You can build up your immunity and help protect yourself from viruses and colds by consuming vitamin C daily through lemons and lemonade. And, lemons can be used as a topical remedy, too-next time you have a minor cut, try squeezing some lemon juice onto a cotton ball and applying it to the wound to disinfect, sterilize and stop bleeding.

Put the Squeeze on Stains

Next time your pen breaks on your clothes, head to your kitchen before going to the drycleaners. Grab some lemons and liberally squeeze some juice right onto the ink stain while it is still wet. Then, simply throw it in a washing machine with regular detergent and cold water. Lemon juice can also remove rust and mineral discolorations on cotton items like t-shirts. Simply pour one cup of lemon juice into the washer and your discolorations should vanish.

Dangers Of Fraudulent Wire Transfers

Attorney General Lisa Madigan said on Nov. 14th that Illinois senior citizens and consumers can better learn how to protect themselves from scams that involve wiring money under an agreement with Western Union in which the company will set aside nearly $8.2 million nationwide for educational programs about the dangers associated with fraudulent wire transfers and how to avoid being victimized.

Madigan joined Attorney General in 47 states and the District of Columbia in signing an agreement with the Greenwood Village, Colorado-based company that offers money transfer services from more than 40,000 locations in the United States and another 195,000 locations worldwide.

Madigan said that for years, fraudulent telemarketers have targeted consumers, particularly senior citizens, and, as part of their scams, asked consumers to wire money via Western Union and similar firms. Consumers then wired the funds, only to see those funds disappear in illegal contests, bogus international lotteries, advance-fee credit card and loan scams.

Under terms of the agreement, Western Union will partner with the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) Foundation in a nationwide program designed to help educate consumers about the dangers of fraud-induced money transfers and how citizens can avoid such situations.

Quick Recipe Tips

A quick trip to the grocery store could save you time in the kitchen. For instance, home cooks can create a restaurant-worthy Cobb Salad or Caesar Chicken Salad in a few minutes using Tyson canned and pouch chunk chicken breast. The oven-roasted chunk chicken can be a delicious way to save time and money. Visit www.tyson.com for more meal ideas.

Making Fitness Fun! Water Workouts For Seniors

Waterford Estates, one of Chicagoland's finest retirement communities, proudly offers water exercise programs developed specifically for seniors, which provide a healthy balance of recreation and physical activity, promote cardiovascular fitness, reduce pain caused by arthritis and other conditions, improve flexibility and range of motion, and increase muscle strength and metabolism.

Water exercise has long been touted for its benefits, particularly among the senior population. The buoyancy of water provides a wonderful source of bodily support, thereby minimizing impact on feet, knees and hips. In chest-deep water, 90% of one's body weight remains supported, so that muscle pain associated with exercise is all but eliminated. Additionally, water exercise expends more energy than similar land-based exercise programs. For example, an older adult can burn 525 calories per hour of water exercise, compared to 240 calories on land. Best of all, no swimming skills are needed to enjoy the benefits of water exercise!

The indoor pool at Waterford Estates is maintained at a balmy 90 degrees, and ranges in depth from 3.5 to 5 feet deep, making it the perfect place for warm water exercise. Currently, classes are held weekly on Monday through Friday, and are open to non-residents of Waterford Estates, as space allows.

For non-residents of Waterford Estates, there are several water exercise packages available. For a monthly fee of $35, you can attend up to three classes per week (these classes can be mixed between afternoon or evening time slots). For a monthly fee of $24.50, you can attend up to two classes per week, however these are only for the evening classes. If you want to pay as you go, a single class payment of $4 will be required. Remember that advance registration is necessary for all classes.

For more information on Waterford Estates outstanding water exercise program for senior, call Diana Duda, Certified Arthritis/Aquatic Specialist, at (708) 755-8292. Waterford Estates is conveniently located at 17400 S. Kedzie Ave. in Hazel Crest.

Other major elements of this agreement include: displaying prominent consumer-fraud warnings in both English and Spanish at Western Union agent locations, similar warnings will be available over the telephone and online; closing Western Union agent locations which are found complicit in fraud-induced transfers or knowingly ignore cases of fraud; interdicting high-risk money transfers if Western Union receives information from the states of a suspected fraudulent transfer in progress or about to occur; and sharing information with Madigan and other Attorneys General every six months for a period of five years on the progress Western Union attributes to this agreement.

In September 2002, Madigan's office joined a multi-state group to explore the extent of Western Union wire transfers resulting from fraudulent telemarketing schemes. This agreement is one of the results of the states' investigation that Madigan says should go a long way in helping to raise awareness of nationwide and worldwide wire-transfer fraud.

Selecting A Prescription Drug Coverage Plan

Beginning Jan. 1, Medicare beneficiaries will add prescription drug coverage to their list of optional benefits. With the new choices available, people might need additional guidance when it comes to selecting a plan that best fits their needs.

Beneficiaries can sign up for the Medicare prescription drug program (PDP) in one of two ways:

- People with a traditional Medicare plan or Medicare supplement plan can join a stand-alone Medicare PDP.
- Beneficiaries can join a Medicare PDP automatically as part of a Medicare Advantage plan.

"These changes mark the biggest transformation Medicare has undergone in its 50-year history. While it is very exciting, we know it can also be confusing for beneficiaries," said Dr. Scott Latimer, market president of senior products at Humana for North and Central Florida, one of the nation's leading private sector Medicare insurers. "We know from our 20 years of experience in Medicare that the more people understand their benefit options, the better they will choose and use their benefits."

To help dispel confusion, people with Medicare will receive a "Medicare and You" handbook in the mail from the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services that will describe the Medicare plans available in their area.

Beneficiaries can then compare Medicare PDP options and prepare to select a plan best suited to their health and budget needs. Beneficiaries should be aware of how these choices could impact their existing Medicare health coverage. For example, those with Medicare Advantage plans will automatically receive drug coverage benefits and may lose existing Medicare Advantage medical benefits if they enroll in a stand-alone PDP.

Medicare beneficiaries will also need to evaluate Medicare and private insurer PDPs to gauge whether the plans will cover the drugs and services they require in the areas in which they live, and at a price they can afford. Though all PDPs will meet the minimum benefits of Medicare's standard plan, some private plans may offer more extensive benefits with more expensive monthly premiums. Additionally, the list of drugs that will be covered will vary plan by plan.

To learn more information about the Medicare PDP, call 1-800-MEDICARE or contact your local State Health Insurance Program. Information is also available at www.medicare.gov or www.humana.com. Beneficiaries who qualify for extra help paying for a Medicare PDP benefit should contact the Social Security Administration by visiting www.ssa.gov or calling 1-800-772-1213.

There Is No Such Thing As A Typical Cremation Anymore

"Cremation isn't just a passing fad," says Mike Gill, owner of Brady-Gill Funeral Home in Tinley Park and Evergreen Park. "Over forty percent of all Americans plan to be cremated, according to the Cremation Association of North America. That's a trend funeral service simply can't ignore."

The rationale for selecting cremation is as varied as those who choose it. Some people want the convenience, others like the simplicity or the fact that it's less expensive than burial.

Memorialization is an important aspect of cremation. Grief experts agree that personalizing a funeral service and remembering the deceased help survivors cope with the loss. Cremation caskets for viewings, urns that double as works of art and keepsake containers for scattering or dividing ashes among relatives promote that healing. Urns may be buried, maintained in a niche on cemetery grounds, or displayed at home.

For more information on cremation, call The Brady-Gill Funeral Home at (708) 614-9900 or visit its website at www.bradygill.com.

Seniors Call For Cell Phones

The service most requested by 35 million seniors has less to do with the road to retirement than it does with calls made from the road. According to the AARP, cell phone service is the benefit its members most frequently ask for.

Statistics show American seniors are increasingly picking up cell phones, with half of Americans ages 65 to 74 now owning one, according to the Yankee Group, a leading research company. Yankee Group says four years ago, only 15 percent of people over 65 had cell phones.

The firm also reports that today's seniors aren't just using their cell phones for safety purposes—they're using them to call grandkids, stay in touch with friends and for other general purposes as well.

Many wireless companies are just now working to answer the call of this growing market by providing services that are inexpensive and relatively easy to use. One company that has been doing this for years, TracFone Wireless, caters to users of all ages, but is widely popular among seniors because it allows them to spend only what they want and only for the minutes they actually use. Unused minutes carry over from month to month and do not expire as long as the service is active.

The company's approach to wireless service is meant to make owning a phone easier and less expensive. It offers a one-year convenience card for less than $90.00—under $7.50 a month. The card includes 150 free airtime minutes and lets seniors track their airtime balance right on the phone display.

Seniors who tend to use their cell phones frequently may benefit from a new prepaid option called Net10. The plan lets people make calls to anywhere in the U.S. for 10 cents a minute for every call, including local, long-distance and roaming. Airtime cards are available in denominations of $30, $60, $180 and $300, each with varying months of service and minutes. Both of these prepaid services can be a good option for seniors who want to carry over minutes and do not want to sign a long-term contract.

How To Lose 40 Pounds Around Your House

The average American home collects up to 40 pounds of dust each year. That extra weight's not just unsightly, an ounce of dust can house 42,000 mites with as many as 15 different species. In fact, after two years, 10 percent of the weight of a pillow is dead dust mites. But the good news is the average person can burn up to 300 calories from general housekeeping, so check out the tips below and keep yourself and your house lean and clean!

How to avoid dirt and dust in your home (and work off those extra calories):

- Use window blinds that can be wiped clean rather than curtains that have to be dry-cleaned.
- Wash your bedding in hot water, at least 130 degrees to rid them of any mites.
- Remove unnecessary objects from walls and ceilings.
- Minimize the number of stuffed animals and store items that can't be washed in the toy chest.
- Dust each room weekly.

Used mop heads are nesting areas for germs and bacteria that can spread onto the floor.

We remember when people took the time to serve others. Our family has been helping families here for many years. As our area has grown, we have grown too, with more specialized services, such as out-of-town arrangements, pre-arrangements, cremations and a grief recovery program.

Even though we have grown, our dedication to service is still the same as it was years ago.

Protect Your Hearing Now To Keep Listening For Years To Come

Preserving your hearing may be easier than you know. If you've ever left a concert with ringing ears, you are most likely one of the millions of Americans exposed to dangerous noise. Approximately 28 million people in the U.S. have some degree of hearing sensitivity, according to the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA). Of those people, 80 percent have irreversible hearing loss, although many don't like to admit it.

While some people are born with hearing loss, the majority of those affected suffer from exposure to the day-to-day noise that pollutes the environment. People tend to underestimate the vast number of everyday activities that can potentially damage their hearing. According to ASHA, the sounds of a crying baby, running lawn mower, hair dryer, vacuum cleaner, baseball game and street traffic are all things that can exceed the recommended 85 decibels of sound that eardrums can handle for an extended time. The good news is there are easy ways to prevent this problem.

To help, a leading battery maker and ASHA launched a hearing awareness campaign, called the Energizer® EZ Change® "It's Hip to Hear™" program. The program offers a lifestyle brochure and interactive ways to learn about hearing loss.

"We are dedicated to showing consumers that hearing loss prevention doesn't have to take the fun out of life," said Ernie Petrus, director of sales and marketing for Energizer Specialty Batteries, U.S. "We want to turn up the volume on 'responsible listening' in an engaging way that makes the issue relevant to our lifestyles, focusing on music and hot technologies."

As part of the program, the company is also offering hearing-loss prevention tips to help individuals preserve their hearing so they can enjoy music for years to come. These include:

- Be a responsible consumer. Look for a noise rating when buying recreational equipment, children's toys, household appliances and power tools. Choose quieter models, especially for equipment you use often, like a hair dryer. If there is no noise rating, ask the manufacturer for one.

- Limit periods of exposure to noise. It's not just how loud, how long matters, too. Don't sit next to the speakers at concerts, clubs or auditoriums. If you are at a rock concert, walk-out for a while to give your ears a break.
- Inspect your child's toys for noise danger just as you do for small parts that can cause choking. Remember, children tend to hold toys close to their ears which can pose additional threat for hearing damage.
- Pump down the volume. When using stereo headsets or listening to music in the car, turn down the volume. If someone else can hear the music from your headset when standing three feet away, the volume is definitely too high.
- Protect yourself. Wear noise-canceling headphones or ear plugs when exposed to any potentially damaging noise at work, in the community (heavy traffic, concerts, hunting) or at home (mowing the lawn, snow-blowing the driveway).

"The easiest way to guard against future hearing loss is by getting your hearing checked regularly," said Pam Mason, director of Audiology Professional Practices at ASHA. "You should make an effort to get your hearing tested by an audiologist every two to three years, beginning as young as age 30."

For more information on hearing loss prevention or to download a free survival guide, visit the Web site, energizer.com. To find a nearby audiologist, visit asha.org.

Scientists Seek Solutions To Alzheimer's

Today, 4.5 million people 65 and older and half those 85 or older. Without a cure, the Alzheimer's Association estimates as many as 16 million Americans will have AD by 2050. Fortunately, distinguished researchers are working on the issue, including William E. Klunk, M.D., Ph.D. and Chester A. Mathis, Ph.D., of the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center; John C. Morris, M.D., of the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis; and Ronald C. Petersen, M.D., Ph.D., of Mayo Clinic—each of whom recently won a MetLife Foundation Award for Medical Research in Alzheimer's Disease.

"The goal of the award is to encourage research and to support the future work of scientists who have already made a significant contribution to our understanding of Alzheimer's disease. These four scientists have contributed to the early detection and diagnosis of this dreaded disease," says Sibyl Jacobson, president, MetLife Foundation.

Drs. Klunk and Mathis have developed experimental noninvasive methods of detecting and creating images of the plaques that form in the brain tissue of Alzheimer's sufferers. The researchers use dyes to make the plaques visible to medical imaging equipment. The ability to see these plaques in living patients will help researchers directly measure the effects of therapies now being developed.

Dr. Morris works on ways to identify the earliest symptomatic stages of AD, evaluating new drug therapies in the treatment of dementia, and establishing phenotypes for inherited forms of AD and other dementias.

Dr. Petersen focuses on mild cognitive impairment and whether it becomes Alzheimer's. Those past the age of 65 with mild cognitive impairment are found to be at greater risk of developing AD than healthy individuals the same age.

MetLife Foundation has supported Alzheimer's research through the awards program since 1986. The Foundation also supports the Alzheimer's Association, and has sponsored a documentary on PBS called The Forgetting: A Portrait of Alzheimer's.

Explore Options Of Using Generic Drugs

As the price of prescription medicine continues to rise, more people may explore the cost-cutting option of generic drugs. Here are some commonly asked questions about generic drugs, answered by drugstore.com clinical pharmacist Dave Krishna.

Q: How can drugstores sell generic versions of medication for so much less and will they work as well?

A: The FDA lets manufacturers produce generic drugs after the original patent has expired. Because the generic marketplace is more competitive, prices can be less expensive. All generic drugs must receive FDA approval to ensure safety, quality and efficacy.

Q: How can I find a generic version of my drug?

A: Ask your doctor or pharmacist about generic alternatives whenever you refill or get a new prescription. Some online stores, including the drugstore.com pharmacy, provide information on generic options when you purchase a brand name drug. The drugstore.com pharmacy lets you register for e-mail notification of upcoming generic drug launches.

Avoiding Holiday Weight Gain

There are ways to keep weight gain from becoming part of your Thanksgiving tradition.

Doctors and dieticians say moderation is the key to getting through special occasions without overindulging or missing out on familiar goodies. That means festivities don't have to be eliminated or avoided. You can have a fabulous time while maintaining your weight and without giving up your favorite things.

Try these tips to help you eat right during those hectic holiday weeks. They come from Weight Watchers:

1. Plan Ahead-Start thinking about how you will manage the holidays before they arrive. Create a storyboard and post it on the refrigerator. Describe a step-by-step plan for how you will make it through the holidays and stay on track with your healthy eating and activity goals.
2. Get Friendly Support-Chances are your friends, family and co-workers have the same fears as you about holiday weight gain. Get a buddy and attend a local support meeting or join a community chat online at Weight Watchers.com. Getting advice from others who have succeeded and who share their techniques may help inspire you to stay on track.
3. Wear Fitted Clothing-Don't give in to baggy sweaters and stretchy fabrics. You might think twice about grazing at the holiday party buffet when you have your "skinny" jeans on. Also, buy a party dress or a fantastic outfit that makes you feel great now and hang it on the bathroom door as a reminder that you want to look and feel your best this season.
4. Stay Flexible And Adapt-Your routine and schedule may be thrown off at this time of year. The days are shorter, the weather is cooler and you might not have the time to make it to the aerobics class after work. It's okay; just try and get in some activity whenever possible, even if it is a walk across the mall parking lot. Don't give up activity completely. Remember that every bit counts at the end of the day.
5. Pick Only Your Favorite Indulgences-Be selective. It's okay to indulge once in a while, but not every day. Keep in mind that 3,500 calories equals one pound of fat. It only takes 500 calories or a few Snickerdoodles (approximately 500 calories) every day for seven days to gain a pound. To learn more, visit Weight Watchers.com. A Healthier Chanukah

The festival of lights and the celebration of that small amount of oil that lasted eight days is a great way to remind us that a little oil can go a long way! As with most holidays we celebrate, food is an important part of Chanukah. Traditional favorites like potato latkes, dairy and noodle kugle can still be enjoyed with health in mind. Here are some tips to fit in your favorites this year:

Try preparing potato latkes with a variety of potatoes for color and added nutrition. For example, the bright orange sweet potatoes have more beta-carotene than white potatoes, and the colorful presentation will add to any table. When preparing the potatoes, make sure to strain excess moisture off prior to cooking. Reduce the amount of oil used in preparation and layer the latkes between paper towels to help absorb extra oil. The good news is that traditional olive oil is high in monounsaturated fat, which is great for the heart. Serve with fat-free sour cream and natural applesauce.

When choosing dairy products, try fat-free or 1% milk to help accommodate the fat that will be eaten during the course of the day in other holiday favorites.

Cheese blintzes can lighten up with lower fat versions of both cheese and sour cream.

Make your blintzes and jelly doughnuts smaller! Portion size can make all the difference during the holidays.

Hummus is a tasty favorite that provides great nutrition due to the traditional ingredients. In addition to fiber, using traditional olive oil adds a heart healthy monounsaturated fat to this dish.

Add fruit to noodle kugle to increase fiber and add more vitamins, minerals and phytochemicals, which are naturally occurring substances that are showing health benefits in addition to a splash of color on the table.

Balance a high fat meal with a crisp salad of mixed greens with flavorful vinegar for a lighter dressing.

Enjoy the holiday favorites on the holiday and move on! Holidays come but once a year. Enjoying some seasonal treats when you typically eat a balanced healthy diet is a splurge most of us can accommodate.

Add in activity. Be sure it is approved by the doctor for your situation, but a brisk walk around the block, or a trip to the gym during the festivities can help with stress management but can also help balance out extra calories.

Enjoying tradition with family is an important part of the holiday season. Making health a part of your celebration will help make holidays special for generations to come.

IIT Joins Effort To Reduce Drug Development And Manufacturing Costs

Illinois Institute of Technology (IIT) has joined an 11-university partnership with the Food and Drug Administration to conduct research and education in drug development and manufacturing. The new partnership, National Institute for Pharmaceutical Technology and Education (NIPTE), will work to improve the technologies involved in pharmaceutical development and manufacturing with the intent to speed delivery to market of safe and affordable drugs.

The FDA reported in a March 2004 "white paper" that the cost of bringing a new drug to market rose by about 50% over a five-year period to as high as $1.7 billion.

That $1.7 billion figure includes all funds a company spends on the various steps of drug discovery and development, which is a considerable expense because only a small fraction of the attempts to develop new drugs succeeds," said Ali Cinar, Vice Provost for Research at IIT. "The development cost is so high that pharmaceutical can only afford to market blockbusters, consequently, if the drug doesn't hold promise to make a billion dollars a year, most companies don't even develop it. That prevents many potentially good medicines from reaching consumers. Efficiency in drug development and manufacturing will yield significant cost reductions and encourage companies to develop additional drugs."

The FDA also said in the same white paper that a serious impediment to bringing to market new drugs was outdated manufacturing practices. The cost of development and manufacturing is estimated to be 25% of the total cost of a new drug. Research and education in these areas will lead to higher efficiency in pharmaceutical technology, thus resulting in cost reductions, which would be passed directly (price reduction) or indirectly (recycle of savings into R&D investments for new drugs by pharmaceutical companies) to the consumer. Research and education in drug development and manufacturing, in stark contrast to drug discovery, do not receive much federal funding currently. Yet, they are essential in improving drug manufacturing technologies, enhancing product safety and quality and educating the workforce. The need for manufacturing efficiency and safety, rapid transition to manufacture a different drug and enhanced product quality and safety become critical in emergency situations. "In times like these when there is a national initiative to assure vaccine and drug supplies, and develop effective vaccines to deal with the flu pandemics, we cannot afford the risk of contaminated vaccines that may result from outdated manufacturing practices" said Dimitri Hatzivramidis, Director of the Particle Technology and Crystallization Center at IIT. IIT has expertise in fundamental drug manufacturing technologies, process supervision and quality control and toxicology, areas that complement expertise areas of other NIPTE members.

NIPTE is seeking federal funding and is initially being supported with seed funding from its members, who include in addition to IIT: Purdue University, Rutgers University, University of Puerto Rico, University of Connecticut, University of Iowa, University of Kansas, University of Kentucky, University of Maryland, University of Minnesota and Duquesne University.

What You Should Know Before Signing A Contract

A contract is an agreement between two or more people that is legally enforceable.

Generally, persons age 18 and older may enter into a contractual arrangement on a wide variety of matters ranging from employment to obtaining a bank loan. Other typical contracts that are entered into are marriage, divorce, leases, home purchase and for all types of insurance.

The advantage of a written contract is that it protects a person against poor memories. Over time, even honest people often remember their agreements differently. Should a dispute occur, you have the written agreement upon which to rely.

There are also disadvantages to a written contract. Consumers often feel compelled to use printed form contracts that favors the seller. For example, some contracts attempt to limit warranties and have wording that indicates consumers must pay the seller's legal fees if the seller sues to enforce the contract. Furthermore, some words written into contracts have technical legal meanings that most people don't understand.

Here are some additional tips to consider before signing a contract.

- Do not assume that a printed form contract must be okay.
- Do not be intimidated by aggressive sales people or overly trustful of friendly ones.
- Read the entire contract carefully, including the reverse side, before signing it. Ask questions about any part of the contract that you do not understand. Accept the fact that the other party has no obligation to tell you how to get terms that are more favorable to you.
- Do not sign a contract that has any blank spaces—either cross them out or fill them in. If there are parts of the contract which you do not agree to, cross them out, if parts you verbally agreed to are missing, write them in.
- Finally, be certain to obtain a complete, accurate, signed copy of the contract and keep it in a secure place.

Warranties Can Protect Buyers From Costly Repairs

Warranties on items you buy are important. They usually give you the right to have defects repaired at no charge. You should also ask for a copy of the warranty, and by law, the seller must give you one.

The difference between a "full" and "limited" warranty is considerable. Under a full warranty, the seller or manufacturer gets a reasonable number of chances to repair defects but then must allow you to choose a full refund or a replacement without charge. A full warranty applies to anyone who owns the product during the warranty period. Under "limited" warranties, you have no refund or replacement rights.

Warranties can apply to new and used items. However, if something is sold "as is," and if the "as is" limitation is properly made, there are no warranties.

There is usually an implied or unwritten warranty created by law guaranteeing that, for a reasonable time, an item you bought from a dealer will be fit for the purpose for which it was sold. But there are certain requirements for the buyer who wants to enforce an implied warranty. It is advisable to seek the advice of an attorney on this matter.

Be aware that dealers can avoid warranties by having you sign a contract containing a disclaimer of warranties in bold print.

Car buyers are protected under the New Vehicle Buyer Protection Act. It allows you to cancel the deal if you bought a defective new passenger car from a dealer. If a defect "substantially impairs" the value of the vehicle, you tell the dealer and give him or her a reasonable number of chances to fix the problem. Within a reasonable time, you must notify the dealer that you are canceling the purchase. Furthermore, it must be returned without a substantial change to it.

If you have a question related to a consumer purchase, contact the Consumer Affairs Division of the Office of the Illinois Attorney General at 1-800-243-0618.

For further information about law-related issues, contact an Illinois State Bar Association-member lawyer in your area or visit www.illinoislawyerfinder.com.

Cost For Holiday Shopping Up Slightly In 2005

Americans heading to the mall this holiday season are planning to spend slightly more while shopping for friends and family than they did in 2004. According to the annual Holiday Shopping Survey conducted by Myvesta, a nonprofit consumer education organization, the average American plans to spend $747 on their holiday gifts in 2005, up 4.3% from the average of $716 in 2004. 49.5% plan to spend $500 or less.

"While the average amount people are planning to spend has risen slightly, this may not turn into a banner year for retailers," said Steve Rhode, president of Myvesta. "Individuals and families are not much better off than they were last year and most do not have the extra cash available to drastically increase their holiday spending."

The annual Myvesta Holiday Survey was conducted November 4-6 in a random telephone survey of 1,000 people. Some other survey results include: People in the South will spend the most on holiday purchases this year averaging $847 per person. Those in the West will spend the least with an average of $660. People in the Northeast plan to spend $720 and those in the Midwest plan to spend $699. 12.7% of those surveyed plan to spend over $1,000 on their holiday purchases. Those aged 35-44 plan to spend $829 on their holiday purchases, the most of any age group. Males and females both planned on spending an average of $747. Those who are married plan to spend 56% more than single people. Married individuals will spend $848 and singles will spend $545.

To help consumers get the most out of their holiday dollars, Myvesta offers three free self-help publications available for download on their web site. The publications include "How to Survive the Holidays Without Going Broke (or Insane)", "Avoiding Post-Holiday Headaches" and "How to Cut Your Holiday Bills in Half Without Feeling Like a Scrooge." To access any of the free publications visit Myvesta.org online.

Protect Yourself From Salmonella

Snakes, lizards and tortoises. They have become increasingly popular pets, but owners of these and other reptiles must take precautions because they can harbor Salmonella—potentially dangerous bacteria that can cause severe illness in humans.

"An estimated 70,000 people get Salmonella from contact with reptiles in the United States each year," said Richard J. Baltaro, M.D., Ph.D., FCAP, a pathologist and associate professor of pathology at Creighton University in Omaha, Neb. "If you have a reptile as a pet you have to be extremely cautious when dealing with it."

Dr. Baltaro is a pathologist—a physician who treats patients with illnesses such as Salmonella through laboratory medicine. Dr. Baltaro received a Ph.D. in microbiology while studying the DNA antibiotic resistance in Salmonella bacteria.

In addition to reptiles, other animals such as baby chicks and ducklings can carry Salmonella. "Pocket pets" including rats, mice, rabbits, gerbils, hamsters, guinea pigs and ferrets, as well as rodents that are bought to feed other animals (such as snakes), can also carry potentially dangerous bacteria. Salmonella, which usually lives in the intestinal tracts of humans and other animals, can be transmitted to people who accidentally eat food contaminated with animal feces or who fail to wash hands after touching the feces of their pets. To help prevent infections, anyone owning, buying or handling these animals should take the following precautions:

- Buy animals that look lively and alert and that have glossy coats that are free of droppings.
- Don't purchase a pet that shares a cage with other animals that have diarrhea or look sick.
- Always wash hands thoroughly after cleaning up pets' droppings.
- Ensure that children wash their hands immediately after handling rodents or their feces.
- Supervise young children if they clean the pet's cage.
- Don't smoke or eat food while handling your pet.
- Don't handle pets in areas where food is prepared.
- Don't kiss your pet or hold it close to your mouth.

"If you touch reptiles or one of these other animals, wash your hands because it helps to prevent you from contracting viruses or bacteria your pet may carry," Dr. Baltaro said. "If your pet dies soon after you buy it, it may have been ill with a disease that could make people sick. Inform the pet store about the animal's death, and clean and disinfect the cage before using it again."

Symptoms of the Salmonella infection include: nausea, abdominal cramping, vomiting, fever, headache, chills, sweats, fatigue, bloody diarrhea with mucus and lack of appetite. Symptoms occur typically between six and 72 hours after contact with the bacteria.

There is no real cure for a Salmonella infection—only treatment of the symptoms. Infected individuals should seek medical care for diarrhea, extreme dehydration or other serious symptoms. If the infection is severe, patients may be given an antibiotic. But the best way to protect yourself from Salmonella is to wash hands whenever dealing with your pets.

For more information about how to prevent disease, visit the College of American Pathologists at www.cap.org.

The Great Library Playboy Debate

The town of Oak Lawn is divided in their opinion about whether or not the Oak Lawn Village Board was overstepping its bounds after publicly denouncing Oak Lawn Library's policy of making Playboy Magazine issues available to the public.

Public reaction has ranged from passionate to flippant - with some people responding to the political issue of one public body applying muscle to another, while others have focused on the moral question of whether a library should be keeping Playboys on hand, especially at taxpayers' expense.

Those who support the Board's written reprimand of the Library argue that, from a governmental standpoint, this is simply a healthy example of checks and balances with one entity merely keeping another in line; and, from a values point of view, they feel that it was noble to take a stand by taking exception to tax-backed magazines which disrespect women. Further, they feel that, rights or no rights, the greater good is what matters.

The sector of the Oak Lawn public that condemns the Board's attack is on guard against censorship and regards the Library's constitutional right to stock Playboys as the most important thing here to safeguard. They feel that our forefathers would rest uneasily in their graves if the narrow-mindedness that accompanies prohibiting a fellow from going to the library to thumb through a Playboy was allowed to usurp constitutional rights.

There is a third school of thought which collectively rolls its eyes at the Board, but not because of constitutional convictions. They are chagrined simply because, before the Board brought this controversy out into the light, nobody even knew that the library kept a stack of Playboys.

Oak Lawn Officials Unanimously Approve Appointment Of

New Village Manager

Mayor Dave Heilmann and the Oak Lawn Village Board unanimously approved the appointment of the new village manager. Oak Lawn officials conducted a national search to fill the vacancy of what Mayor Heilmann called a 'powerful position', that of village manager. However, he was advised to look in his own backyard for talented professionals. There were many applicants for the position, but the seven-month search was ended with Mayor Heilmann picking a local resident, Gus Sundermeier.

Sundermeier, 47, comes to the position with a strong financial background which impressed Mayor Heilmann and the board. He was a trader with the Chicago Board of Trade which he left to become a math teacher at Chicago's Brother Rice High School. According to the Mayor Heilmann, he wanted the position to go to someone who knew the needs of the village and had 'the heart' to know how to bring both the board and the community together.

Even though Sundermeier does not have the experience of being a village manager, he comes with excellent credentials. Mayor Heilmann stated that he has worked with a state senator and Mayor Zabrocki of Tinley Park.

Sundermeier begins the $108,000 a year position in Jan., 2006. The board expressed gratitude to Acting Village Manager Lynn Krauss for his time and hard work until the search for a permanent village manager was complete.

In other business brought before the board, the ordinance for the Target Parking lot was brought before the board. However, the issue was tabled until the Jan. 10th regular board meeting. It was stated that more information was needed before this measure was passed.

Discussion was held on the installation of 'traffic calming' devices in the Brandt Subdivision area. A resident asked if there was any disruption to emergency vehicles in the area. He stated that his street was totally blocked now. He stated that one neighbor of his stated that he felt like a caged animal. In his opinion, he was not sure if the devices were doing what was intended since the traffic was now going to other unblocked streets. Mayor Heilmann said that the traffic islands were put on the street by request of the residents. He said that a survey was taken and it indicated that the residents felt that there was a great need to slow down the traffic in the area. It was indicated that the devices were just installed, Mayor asked for patience to see if the devices indeed worked.

Mayor and the board wished everyone a Happy Thanksgiving. Village Clerk Jane Quinlan reminded everyone that village hall will be closed on Friday, Nov. 23rd. She also reminded everyone that Santa will be visiting Oak Lawn on Saturday, Nov. 26th from 3 to 5 p.m. The annual Santa Parade will start at 93rd St. and Raymond Ave. and proceed to the village green gazebo where Santa and Mr. Claus will meet with children.

She also reported that Saturday was the last day to pick up leaf bags.

Cold Stone Creamery Opening Benefits Crisis Center

When the new Oriand Park Cold Stone Creamery, located at 16135 S. LaGrange, opens its doors on Friday, Nov. 25, franchise owner Mike Fortuna of Tinley Park will be dishing up hope for victims of domestic violence with every scoop of ice cream.

"A portion of our opening-day proceeds will be donated to the Crisis Center for South Suburbia," explains Fortuna. "As an Oak Lawn Police officer I see, daily, what victims of domestic violence have to go through. They often have no resources and no family support system. As a police officer, I work to guide them in the right direction to get the help and support they need in order to move toward a healthier and safer lifestyle. I feel really comfortable partnering with this charity because I know the proceeds will go to good use."

The Crisis Center is excited about this community fundraiser, and is grateful to Mike Fortuna for choosing to make a difference in the lives of woman and children who are affected by domestic violence. Executive Director Edward Vega comments, "As a police officer, Officer Fortuna has an opportunity to help those who are in need. It is apparent that he brings his spirit of service to his new role as franchise owner. We are grateful to him, and we encourage everyone to visit the Cold Stone Creamery often, and to bring the whole family out to the Oriand Park location."

Vega continues, "In addition to raising much needed funds to support our programs in the community, we also appreciate this opportunity to raise awareness about domestic violence. Individuals like Mike Fortuna help us share our story and our mission so those in need know where to turn for help."

Mike Fortuna is looking forward to welcoming members of the community to the Cold Stone Creamery where they are all about delivering the "ultimate ice cream experience." The aroma of fresh-made waffle bowls and cones as well as the sounds of Cold Stone songs performed by the Creamery staff are sure to become neighborhood favorites.

"I'm expecting a great turn out at our grand opening," says Fortuna. "When ice cream, a frozen stone and a variety of mix-ins meet...and then that combination also helps a good cause, what could be better?"

State Crews Prepare For Winter Driving,

Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) Secretary Timothy W. Martin and Illinois State Police Director Larry Trent announced crews from around Illinois are making final preparations to get the state's frontline personnel and equipment ready for winter emergencies. They are also urging motorists to prepare themselves and their vehicles for winter driving, as Illinois enters the winter driving season.

"You can never be 100% prepared for what nature will throw at you, but our crews have been busy training and prepping equipment for several weeks, and we're ready," Secretary Martin said. "When you're dealing with winter weather, you have so many variables to contend with, but I am confident, as long as our equipment holds up, our plow teams will be able to face any test thrown at them."

IDOT has a clear pavement policy; meaning plow crews stay out until a storm has passed and the highways are all free of accumulation. During the 2005-2006 winter, more than 3300 IDOT employees and 2000 pieces of equipment will be utilized in keeping state routes clear and passable. Last year IDOT spent $35.9 million dollars on snow removal efforts, that cost includes almost 387,000 tons of salt and 561,200 labor hours.

IDOT financial staff will closely monitor winter related expenses, but at no time will snow removal operations suffer because of financial considerations. Snow removal is a safety issue and a priority for the Department. While crews have cut back on mowing operations and have been asked to look at other ways to conserve fuel, snow removal is a priority and will not be scaled back to save money.

A restructuring last year of IDOT's Division of Highways allows for more flexibility within the Department to address immediate needs. Last year, IDOT's southernmost district (D-9) was hit with a major storm, which saw accumulations within a couple of days the district normally would not see all year. Crews and equipment were brought in from the same region, but a different district (D-8), to assist in removal.

Local Ironworker Creates Lasting Tribute To Founding Sisters Of St. Francis Hospital & Health Center

Like the Franciscan Sisters of Mary (FSM), the founders of St. Francis Hospital & Health Center, John Dougherty of New Lenox holds a special place in the hospital's 100-year history.

Dougherty, owner of Southwestern Ironworks, hand-crafted a custom metal basket fashioned after the one used by FSM foundress Mother Mary Odilia Berger, who distributed food, medicine and other supplies to ailing patients in their St. Louis homes in the early 1870s. As a lasting tribute to Mother Odilia and the FSMs during St. Francis Hospital's 2005 centennial year, the metal basket has become a permanent fixture in the hospital's main entryway.

"I was very pleased that I would be a part of the hospital's history," said Dougherty.

"We are extremely grateful to Mr. Dougherty for creating this lasting tribute to our founding sisters, and to Kathy Watkins, executive assistant at St. Francis, who commissioned and oversaw the work," said Colleen Kannaday, St. Francis Hospital & Health Center president. "The basket is dedicated to all FSMs who have served St. Francis Hospital since we opened our doors in 1905. Its stands as a permanent symbol of our hospital's mission and commitment to care for all."

Dougherty used a black-and-white photograph of the original basket carried by Mother Odilia to make the metal basket, which weighs about 35 pounds. The basket has a silver finish and measures approximately 28 inches long, 31 inches high (from the bottom to the top of the handles), and 16 inches deep. It took approximately two weeks to complete.

"The whole concept was challenging," Dougherty explained. "It is something different. I had never made a basket before. I always appreciate doing something totally unique. It sharpens my skills."

Dougherty, age 59, has more than 30 years experience in metalworking, welding, glass etching and woodworking. His creations include chairs, benches, tables, charcoal grills, firewood racks and more. He was hired to repair the crystal chandeliers and stemware in the governor's mansion in Springfield, Ill., and his work has been featured in Log Home Design Ideas magazine. In September 2002 he received a blue ribbon for his creations at the Frankfort Fall Festival, in Frankfort, Ill., which featured more than 300 artisans and 250,000 visitors.

"I take pride in the projects I do," he said. "I make things to last. I only deal with the ultimate finish to be durable and last for years. I've shipped coast to coast, and have had inquiries from the United Kingdom and Africa."

To view Dougherty's work, visit www.southwesternironworks.com. For more information about St. Francis Hospital & Health Center, visit www.stfrancisblueisland.com.

"The onset of winter provides new challenges to motorists and the Illinois State Police," said Director Larry Trent. "We ask that drivers be prepared to meet the challenge of the upcoming winter season in Illinois. Plan ahead, make sure everyone in the vehicle is properly restrained, drive defensively and make sure the vehicle is properly maintained to handle the effects of cold temperatures."

Other safety tips offered by the Illinois State Police for having a safe winter include: Make sure your vehicle is winterized—check the battery, antifreeze level, heater, defroster, windshield wipers and washer fluid level, etc.; Always keep your gas tank at least two-thirds full to prevent the vehicle's fuel line from freezing; Dress warmly for the weather—dress in layers of loose-fitting, lightweight clothing in anticipation of unexpected winter weather emergencies; Do not travel unless absolutely necessary—if you do have to make a trip, check the forecast and plan ahead with safety in mind; Make sure someone is aware of your travel route.; Always carry an emergency car care kit that contains jumper cables, flares or reflectors, windshield washer fluid, a small ice scraper, traction material, blankets, non-perishable food and a first aid kit; Carry a cell phone; and Always wear a safety belt.

Motorists are urged to check travel conditions before any trip. You may get interstate condition information by calling 1-800-452-IDOT (4368) or on the internet at www.illinoisroads.info.

New Telephone Scam

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently warned consumers, particularly senior citizens, about a new telephone scam aimed at stealing their personal bank account numbers.

Madigan said her office has been notified that some customers of Illinois banks are receiving unsolicited calls from representatives of a company calling itself Nationwide Verification Office. The caller asks for their account information so that it can be deleted from a so-called "federal banking system." Consumers are asked to verify their bank account number, or to read it and the bank routing numbers found at the bottom of their checks.

Noting that similar schemes have been reported in other states, Madigan warned consumers to never provide identifying or financial information, such as Social Security numbers, bank account and credit card numbers to anyone that calls on the phone. In many cases, such information can be quickly and illegally used by the scanners to raid their accounts.

Madigan also reminded consumers that neither banks nor the government will ever call and ask consumers for account information or Social Security numbers.

Consumers contacted by Nationwide Verification Office are urged to hang up and report the call to Madigan's Consumer Fraud Hotline at the following numbers: 1(800) 386-5438, TTY 1(800) 964-3013, Spanish 1(866) 310-8398.

Consumers also can visit Madigan's Web site for more information and tips on how to avoid becoming a victim of identity theft and to download a consumer complaint form at www.IllinoisAttorneyGeneral.gov.

Healthy "Holiday Treats"

The Cancer Center at Little Company of Mary Hospital and Health Care Centers is presenting a free discussion and demonstration on preparing healthy "Holiday Treats." Herbs and spices are used to give added flavor to food. Are you aware, however, that many of these condiments also have a medicinal value? Join us as Louann Sopata, R.D., C.N.S.C., discusses the added benefits we receive when using these items in our food. Chef Jim Denvir will prepare holiday desserts using a selection of these spices.

The program is at Little Company of Mary Hospital on Tuesday, Dec. 6th from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. in Café 95 on the main floor of the hospital, 2800 W. 95th St. There will be a sampling of the desserts, and free valet parking is available.

This special program is offered to cancer patients, their families and those who support them. For reservations and information, call (708) 229-6001.

Significant Jury Verdict Upholds DCFS Actions

A U.S. District Court jury reached a verdict on Nov. 14th that vindicated the actions of DCFS workers who had requested a Skokie father to not have unsupervised contact with his children as a result of an allegation of sexual abuse against him made by an unrelated child. DCFS Director Bryan Samuels said, "This crucial verdict reinforces DCFS' mission to protect children and make decisions to put the safety and well-being of children first."

The jury rejected the claims of Patrick Delafont, his wife Stacey and their three children that a DCFS investigator, Andrea Jones, and her supervisor, Karen Beckelman, violated their civil rights when they sought an agreement with Stacey Delafont that her husband would not have unsupervised contact with his children pending a risk assessment that would show he posed no threat of abuse to them, or until an investigation showed there was no credible evidence of the alleged abuse. Delafont, his wife and their three children claimed that the requests made by the DCFS workers constituted a violation of their constitutional rights by interfering with their rights to live together as a family. They sought compensatory and punitive damages.

The two-week trial before Senior U.S. District Judge James B. Moran resulted in a jury finding of no liability against either DCFS defendant. The jury rejected all of the Delafonts' claims. DCFS workers were represented at trial by William G. Sullivan and Robert Grabemann of the law firm of Martin, Brown and Sullivan of Chicago. Bill Sullivan called the jury's verdict "an important victory for every DCFS worker who daily has to make difficult decisions under emergency circumstances."

Use Caution When Heating Homes

Heating costs are expected to rise dramatically this winter, raising concerns that home fires also may increase as people try alternative — and sometimes more dangerous — ways of heating their homes.

The Office of the State Fire Marshal's (OSFM) effort to increase awareness about home heating dangers is part of Gov. Blagojevich's Keep Warm Illinois campaign, a comprehensive effort to inform and prepare Illinois residents for winter with information on energy assistance, home weatherization and winter safety tips. For more information, visit www.keepwarm.illinois.gov or call (877) 411-WARM.

According to the National Fire Protection Assn. (NFPA), heating equipment was involved in an estimated 45,000 structure fires in 2002, resulting in 220 deaths, 990 injuries and $449 million in direct property damage. Portable and fixed space heaters, including wood stoves, were involved in 25 percent of the home heating fires but caused 74 percent of the deaths.

Many fires involving space heaters are caused by combustibles placed too close to the heater. Always keep a 36-inch clearance between space heaters and anything that can burn. Portable space heaters should be turned off every time you leave the room or go to bed.

When buying a new space heater, make sure it carries the mark of an independent testing laboratory and be sure to have fixed space heaters, such as wood-burning stoves, installed by a qualified technician, according to manufacturer's instructions or applicable codes. If your home already has a fixed space heater, have a qualified technician check to see that the unit has been properly installed.

Fireplaces and chimneys cause more than 40 percent of fires, most due to creosote buildup. Wood and coal stoves, fireplaces, chimneys, chimney connectors and all other solid-fueled heating equipment should be inspected annually by a professional and cleaned as often as inspections suggest. It's also important to use properly seasoned wood in fireplaces or wood stoves. Green wood has more moisture and is likely to smolder, leading to more creosote buildup. A moisture content of 20-25 percent is recommended, as wood that is too well seasoned may also result in creosote buildup.

Fireplaces should have a sturdy screen to prevent sparks from flying into the room. Allow fireplace and wood stove ashes to cool before disposing in a metal container.

Furnaces also should be checked every year by professionals to ensure mechanical parts are functioning properly and that nothing is blocking the flue. Such inspections will help keep energy costs down as well as ensure the safety of the home's occupants. Malfunctioning furnaces increase both fire and carbon monoxide risks.

State Fire Marshal Dave DeFrates stresses the importance of ensuring a home has working smoke and carbon monoxide alarms and testing them monthly to ensure they're in working order. "Because we traditionally see more house fires and incidents of high carbon monoxide levels during the winter months, it's especially important to make sure these alarms are in working order. The advance warning these alarms provide can prevent tragedy by giving your family enough time to get out of the house alive."

Educational Assistance Grants

Moraine Valley's advances in educating minority groups who are traditionally underrepresented in higher education illustrate its mission of being a multicultural institution — a goal it will continue to reach with help from combined Higher Education Cooperation Act grants from the Illinois Board of Higher Education totaling $85,605.

The Minority Student Transfer Center received $48,405 to promote access to higher education, academic success and baccalaureate degree completion to minority groups, specifically African Americans and Latinos. Access and Success in Higher Education received a $37,200 grant to promote the same services to those with limited English proficiency. Information will be provided in Spanish, Polish, Arabic and Urdu.

Both programs have identified similar goals such as promoting awareness of and access to higher education to middle and high school students, enhancing the transition to baccalaureate degree institutions and increasing enrollment and student success at Moraine. In addition, the Minority Student Transfer Center will focus on improving the academic and social climate and the retention and completion rates for diverse students.

The Minority Student Transfer Center and the Access and Success in Higher Education programs plan to see increases in college enrollment, student retention and transfer rates after three years of implementing the established goals.

For more information about the Minority Student Transfer Center, call Adrienne Stewart, director of Multicultural Student Affairs, at (708) 974-5478. For more information about Access and Success in Higher Education, call Arlene de la Paz-Kane, program coordinator, at (708) 974-5718.

Medicare Part D Information On Web

As enrollment began Nov. 15th for the new Medicare Part D prescription drug plans, Attorney General Lisa Madigan alerted Medicare beneficiaries to the potential of fraud during the enrollment period and directed individuals to visit her office's Web site to find reliable information and resources.

Madigan's office has posted information about Medicare Part D on its Web site at www.IllinoisAttorneyGeneral.gov/seniors/partd.html.

The enrollment period for Medicare Part D prescription drug plans runs until May 15th, 2006. Madigan advised Medicare beneficiaries who plan to enroll in a Part D prescription drug plan to take note of their current prescription drug coverage, consider whether a new plan would cover the drugs they currently receive and evaluate whether their preferred pharmacies are included in a particular plan's network.

"Medicare beneficiaries should not rush into a decision or feel pressured by a sales pitch for a particular prescription drug plan. There is plenty of time to obtain free, one-on-one help and obtain sufficient information to make a careful decision about which prescription drug plan is best for you," Madigan said.

Madigan also alerted seniors to various ways they can protect themselves from scam artists looking to take advantage of the confusion created by the rollout of Medicare Part D prescription drug coverage. To prevent falling victim to scam artists, seniors should double-check to make sure they enroll with a Medicare-approved prescription drug plan by calling Medicare's toll-free number at 1(800) 633-4227. Seniors also should never give any caller or door-to-door solicitor their Social Security number, bank account numbers or personal financial information.

Anti-Smoking Public Service Announcements

Attorney General Lisa Madigan has joined 31 other Attorneys General in announcing that they have asked Hollywood's major motion picture studios to insert anti-smoking public service announcements (PSAs) in all DVDs, videos and other newer home viewing formats of movies in which smoking is depicted.

The letter was prompted by the Nov. 7th publication of a study finding that adolescents with the greatest exposure to depictions of smoking in movies were almost three times more likely to try smoking than their peers in the least exposed group, even after controlling for other known smoking initiation factors. The study, conducted by the Dartmouth Medical School with National Cancer Institute funding, is the first to determine the effects of viewing smoking in movies on a nationally representative sample of youth in the United States.

The Attorneys General's letter notes that an anti-smoking PSA currently is being produced by the American Legacy Foundation, in conjunction with Hollywood's Entertainment Industry Foundation and the Will Rogers Institute, and beginning next year will run in theaters across this country. The American Legacy Foundation was founded with money from the 1998 tobacco Master Settlement Agreement (MSA).

Citing scientific evidence that airing an anti-smoking PSA lessens the effects on youth from viewing movie smoking, the letter alerts the studios that they "can dramatically increase the number of young people who will receive that anti-smoking message by attaching it to DVD, video and other home viewing format movies" that the studios distribute in which smoking is depicted.

Finally, all Medicare beneficiaries should make sure not to throw away any mail they receive from Medicare or Social Security. Those Medicare beneficiaries with employer or union prescription drug coverage should not throw away any mail they receive regarding their current coverage.

Consumers with concerns or complaints about people misrepresenting themselves or fraudulently promoting the new Medicare Part D prescription drug benefit should report the situation to Madigan's Consumer Fraud Hotline at 1(800) 243-0618. Catholic Schools Achieve Above Average Scores

Results of standardized achievement tests administered earlier this year to third, fifth and seventh graders in Archdiocese of Chicago Catholic schools indicate that the students achieved scores above the national average for all subtests.

The TerraNova II is the standardized battery of tests used by the Archdiocese of Chicago and is aligned with the Archdiocesan curricula and the Illinois State Standards. It is published by CTB-McGraw Hill.

The combined score in Cook and Lake county Catholic schools in core subject areas of reading, language and mathematics shows that students scored at the 68th percentile in the third grade, at the 73rd percentile in fifth grade and at the 75th percentile in the seventh grade. "This means that the overall average for all Catholic schools in the Archdiocese was equal to or greater than 70 percent of third, fifth and seventh grade students nationwide," said Dr. Nicholas Wolsonovich, superintendent of schools.

Science and social studies achievement is also assessed by the TerraNova II tests. In these areas of study Catholic school students in the Archdiocese also exceeded national norms. Third graders scored at the 64th percentile in science and the 68th percentile in social studies. Fifth grade students scored at the 65th percentile in science and the 70th percentile in social studies. Seventh grade students scored in the 64th percentile in science and the 73rd percentile in social studies.

Test results for the Catholic schools in the city of Chicago were equally impressive with students' overall scores in reading, language and mathematics at the 59th percentile for third grade; the 64th percentile for fifth grade and the 68th percentile for seventh grade.

Students in city of Chicago Catholic schools also scored above national norms in science and social studies with third graders in the 55th percentile in science and the 59th percentile in social studies; fifth graders in the 56th percentile in science and the 60th percentile in social studies; and seventh graders in the 57th percentile in science and the 67th percentile in social studies.

Students in grades five and seven in the inner-city elementary schools who receive financial support from the Big Shoulders Fund also scored above national norms in their combined scores for the core subject areas of reading, language and mathematics. Fifth grade students in this group were at the 53rd percentile and seventh grade students were at the 58th percentile.

Fifth graders at schools supported by the Big Shoulders Fund scored above national norms in reading and language and seventh graders scored above national norms in the three categories of reading, language and math. Third graders in this group were very close to the national norm with total scores in the 48th percentile and reading, language and mathematics scores in the 45th percentile, 49th percentile and 48th percentile, respectively.

Jewel-Osco Supports Direct Deposit

Jewel-Osco is helping to spread the word about direct deposit by featuring green signage on grocery bags throughout Chicagoland. The color green has never been used on bags that Jewel-Osco uses to help support various programs, and green is also the color of Go Direct. Go Direct is a national campaign, sponsored by the U.S. Department of the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Bank to motivate recipients of Social Security and other federal benefits payments to receive their money via direct deposit, rather than paper check.

Direct deposit is a safer, easier and more convenient way to receive these payments, and it significantly increases peace of mind for those who depend on those payments.

"Our support of the Go Direct campaign is another example of our mission to make life easier for our customers," said Lauri Sanders, Director of Public Affairs for Jewel-Osco. "This unique bag will catch the shopper's eye and encourage them to sign up for this important program."

Stop by your neighborhood Jewel-Osco store to find the newly-released Go Direct bags and further information on direct deposit. Those interested can sign up for direct deposit by calling Go Direct at (800) 333-1795 (English) and (800) 333-1792 (Spanish), or visit www.GoDirect.org (English) and www.DirectoASuCuenta.org (Spanish).

Biggert: Nuclear Fuel Research Will Lower Future Energy Costs

Funding for two key nuclear research programs could provide relief from high heating bills, according to U.S. Rep. Judy Biggert (R-IL-13), Chairman of the Energy Subcommittee of the House Science Committee and longtime advocate for advanced nuclear energy technologies. Funding secured by Biggert in the Fiscal Year 2006 Energy and Water Appropriations Conference Report will be used to expand nuclear fuel reprocessing and recycling research and development at Argonne National Laboratory, which could lead to increased use of nuclear energy as an alternative to producing electricity from natural gas.

Biggert secured $80 million for the Advanced Fuel Cycle Initiative (AFCI), a cutting-edge program that promises to reduce the volume and toxicity of spent nuclear fuel in the United States in an environmentally sensitive and proliferation-resistant way. This funding will help Argonne expedite development of the UREX+ process and technologies, which domestic and international experts acknowledge is the best method, both technically and economically, for recycling spent nuclear fuel. It also would reduce the volume of our nuclear waste, so much so that another repository like Yucca Mountain will not be necessary, and that waste would require monitoring and storage for hundreds rather than thousands of years.

"The bulk of what we call nuclear 'waste' is actually nuclear 'fuel' that still contains over 90 percent of its original energy content," Biggert said. "Scientists at research laboratories like Argonne continue to develop and perfect ways to recycle this so-called 'waste' and turn it back into useful fuel."

As Energy Subcommittee Chairman, Biggert held two Congressional hearings this summer on the topic of nuclear fuel reprocessing, recycling and waste management technologies, which raised awareness and identified research priorities needed to effectively and readily develop these technologies. As a result, Conference Report provided an additional $50 million for DOE initiative to develop an Integrated Spent Fuel Recycling Plan, which would provide additional research funds to design an Engineering Scale Demonstration of advanced recycling technology. This represents an overwhelming increase of $35 million above what the House recommended appropriating earlier this year.

"We know how to use nuclear energy, and we know how to use it safely," Biggert said. "If we are to meet the growing electricity demand in the United States without significantly increasing emissions of greenhouse gases, we must maintain a diverse supply of electricity, and nuclear power must be part of that mix."

While over 90 percent of power plants currently under construction use the same non-renewable fuel - natural gas - driving demand and prices up, no new nuclear power plant has been built in the U.S. in over 30 years. Nuclear energy is the only carbon-free source of electricity that is currently operating on a commercial scale nationwide. Currently, the State of Illinois derives 50 percent of its electricity from emissions-free nuclear power and also is home to the most nuclear waste of any state in the nation.

Durbin Statement

U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) recently made the following statement regarding the dismissal of Amtrak President David Gunn:

"Today's dismissal of Amtrak President and CEO David Gunn by the Amtrak Board of Directors is a clear demonstration that the Bush administration is determined to end Amtrak and seriously curtail passenger rail service in our nation.

Under Gunn's leadership, Amtrak increased ridership by over 2 million people since 2001 and revenues by $18 million in the last year alone. Amtrak has successfully expanded and become a viable mode of energy efficient transportation.

David Gunn was no crony; he was a professional. He obviously made the White House uncomfortable."

In Illinois, Amtrak serves 30 communities on three daily routes, employs more than 2,000 people, and has about two million annual riders. Chicago Union Station is the nation's fourth busiest passenger rail terminal and last year ridership on the majority of routes originating in Chicago increased by 10% or more.

Ratings

A credit rating is supposed to measure your ability to repay a debt. There are a number of ways to develop a good credit rating. They include having a savings account, buying low-priced items on time, being employed and using credit cards.

You can show that you are a good credit risk by developing a record of completing payments on time or by showing a stable income or other sources of money. And once you have a good credit rating, there are steps you can take to ensure that your credit rating remains high.

"If you buy an item on an installment plan and it needs repairs or is stolen, you probably will have to keep making payments. Whatever you do, don't just stop making payments without consulting with the seller or an attorney."

"You have a right to prepay a loan for consumer goods at any time without a penalty."

If you fall behind in your payments, a seller cannot automatically garnish your wages. The seller can only do so by suing you and getting a judgment.

A purchase contract can indicate that, if you default on a loan, you agree to sign over your wages to the seller. However, there are limitations on wage assignment. You can cancel them at any time. They also have a limited term, usually no more than one year.

If you have a poor credit rating, it can be difficult to buy on credit without having cleared up your credit history. Credit reporting agencies often want references on your loans and your employment history for the past five years.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING... Today we celebrate the many joys and blessings bestowed upon ourselves and our loved ones... a day set aside by President Abraham Lincoln in 1863 as a national holiday when he issued a Thanksgiving Proclamation.

He designated the last Thursday in November as the date of festivities. Today, however, the fourth Thursday of the month is the established day. In 1939 President Franklin Delano Roosevelt (approved by Congress in 1941) changed the date from Lincoln's designated day to the fourth Thursday since on occasion the last Thursday could also be the fifth Thursday of the month, too close to Christmas for businesses.

According to the Plymouth Plantation Museum History the tradition of the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving is surrounded by legend and myth. Few people realize that the Pilgrims did not celebrate Thanksgiving the next year or any year thereafter, though some of their descendants later initiated a "Forefathers Day" that usually took place on December 21st or 22nd. Several Presidents, including George Washington, made one-time Thanksgiving holidays. In 1827, Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale began lobbying several presidents for the instatement of Thanksgiving as a national holiday. Her efforts were unsuccessful until 1863, when Abraham Lincoln finally made it a national holiday with his Thanksgiving Proclamation.

The date of Thanksgiving was probably set by Lincoln to try and correlate with the anchoring of the Mayflower at Cape Cod, which took place on November 21st, 1620 (by our modern Gregorian calendar - it was November 11th to the Pilgrims who used the Julian calendar).

A pair of Democratic County officeholders have formally declared their intentions to seek re-election. Last Wednesday, Cook County Board President John Stroger officially announced that he will seek a fourth term.

Surrounded by political heavyweights Illinois House Speaker Michael Madigan, Cook County Commissioner John P. Daley, former Cook County Assessor Thomas Hynes, and a variety of Chicago aldermen, President John Stroger stated that he wants to continue to oversee the county's role as the primary healthcare provider for the poor and disadvantaged, and he is running for them. President Stroger also reminded listeners about his record on keeping the county's property tax levy flat even during an era of spiraling increases in services. He feels that his experience is valuable to Cook County residents.

President John Stroger has served on the Cook County Board since 1970 and was elected president in 1994. He will face opposition in the March Democratic primary.

Last Sunday, Cook County Democratic Treasurer Maria Pappas announced that she would seek a third term. Pappas stressed that her experience and dedication to the voters of Cook County are reflected in the accomplishments she has made since being elected treasurer in 1998.

"We administer the second largest property tax system in the United States," stated Pappas. "Our Web site attracted nearly 6.4 million visits and we've established e-mail and automated phone systems. Taxpayers are now able to pay tax bills on-line or at banks for their convenience. At the same time we have cut our staff nearly 41 percent, saving Cook County taxpayers $5.8 million. I'm proud of my record," she concluded.

Recently Governor Rod Blagojevich signed the "All Kids" plan into law, making Illinois the only state in the nation to provide comprehensive health insurance for every child in the state at rates parents can afford. House Bill 806, sponsored by State Senate President Emil Jones and House Speaker Michael J. Madigan, gives thousands of working and middle-income families in Illinois access to affordable and comprehensive health coverage for their children.

Of the 253,000 children in Illinois without health insurance, approximately half come from families who earn too much to qualify for public programs like KidCare, but still cannot afford private health insurance premiums. In fact, most come from families with annual incomes between $40,000 and $80,000. The All Kids program will make comprehensive health insurance available to all uninsured children, with parents' paying affordable monthly premiums and co-payments that are based on income.

Soon, thousands of children in Illinois who have been living without access to regular preventative health care will finally be able to get the health care they need when they need it - from seeing a doctor, to getting prescription medicines, to visiting a dentist, and getting eyeglasses. All Kids benefits will go into effect starting July 1st, 2006.

Cook County Board of Review Commissioner Maureen Murphy will conduct an assessment appeal seminar on Thursday, Dec. 1, at the Evergreen Park Village Hall, 9418 S. Kedzie. Registration begins at 6:15 p.m. and the seminar begins promptly at 6:30 p.m. The seminar will show homeowners how to determine whether they are being over assessed, where to go to gather evidence for an appeal and how to obtain and fill out a complaint form. Commissioner Murphy wishes to remind taxpayers to bring their Tax Bill, Assessment Notice or Property Tax Identification Number (PIN) to the seminar so that the complaint form can be completed and turned in that night.

This seminar is sponsored by Evergreen Park Mayor James Sexton and State Representative James Brosnahan. For more information call the Board of Review at (312) 603-3644.

State Senator Christine Radogno (R-Lemont) tells All Points that a new law, which was signed last week, is designed to limit the availability of certain over-the-counter cold medicines which are purchased by out-of-town methamphetamine makers.

The new law will require pharmacies to keep cold medicines such as Sudafed and Tylenol Cold Severe Congestion behind pharmacy counters. It calls for anyone who wishes to purchase the medication to show photo identification and provide a signature documenting the date and the amount purchased. In addition, no more than two packages of medicine containing pseudoephedrine may be purchased at one time.

Senator Radogno noted that the legislation was modeled after an Oklahoma law that reduced methamphetamine labs by 80% within six months of its enactment. The new restrictions target individuals who manufacture the highly addictive drug, which is produced by using large quantities of the pills and household ingredients. The key ingredient, pseudoephedrine, is found in some versions of Sudafed and other medications. The new law will take effect Jan. 15, 2006.

All Secretary of State offices and facilities will be closed Thursday, Nov. 24th and Friday, Nov. 25th, for Thanksgiving, according to Secretary of State Jesse White.

Driver Services facilities outside of Cook County and also the Chicago West, Midlothian, Ford City, Diversey Express and Niles facilities, which are normally open Tuesday through Saturday, will resume business hours Saturday, Nov. 26th. All offices normally open Monday through Friday will reopen Monday, Nov. 28th.

Link Surplus Fire Equipment With Fire Departments Devastated By Hurricane

When Hurricane Katrina struck the Gulf Coast in late August, it destroyed or damaged nearly everything in its path, including many fire stations, fire trucks and other critical firefighting equipment. Realizing the hardship fire departments in the hurricane-ravaged states faced, the Office of the State Fire Marshal (OSFM) quickly began exploring ways to help fire departments in Louisiana and Mississippi that had lost virtually everything.

On Sept. 1st, OSFM issued a bulletin to all fire departments and fire protection districts in the state asking them to consider donating surplus equipment to departments in the Gulf Coast states. Fire departments from across the state quickly responded with offers of equipment ranging from turnout gear to fire trucks. OSFM compiled the offers into a list and forwarded it to the U.S. Dept. of Homeland Security, which sent the list to Louisiana and Mississippi. Fire departments wanting to receive donated equipment then contacted the donor departments directly.

"We already maintain a fire equipment exchange program for Illinois departments that helps link surplus equipment with departments in need. So it seemed like a natural extension of that to try to help link up Illinois surplus fire equipment with departments in desperate need in Louisiana and Mississippi," said State Fire Marshal Dave DeFrates. "We knew the Illinois fire services would be eager to help their fellow firefighters in need."

On Nov. 28th, a fire truck from the Hazel Crest Fire Dept. will head to Bogalusa, Louisiana, which also was hard-hit by Hurricane Katrina. OSFM and the Illinois Commerce Commission worked with the Canadian National Railroad to arrange free transportation of the truck to Louisiana.

OSFM started the Fire and Administrative Equipment Exchange Program in October 2003 to help connect surplus fire equipment with Illinois fire departments in need. Donating departments post surplus equipment ready for donation on the OSFM's web site at www.state.il.us/osfm. Departments can then check the site for needed equipment and contact the donor directly for more information. Since its inception, more than 50 fire departments have donated approximately 3,000 pieces of equipment to more than 40 fire departments.

New Law Further Restricts The Sale Of Meth Precursors

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently announced that Senate Bill 273, the Methamphetamine Precursor Control Act (MPCA), has been signed into law and will help ensure that Illinois' restrictions on the sale of ingredients used to make methamphetamine are as tough as or tougher than those of surrounding states.

Madigan also announced that her office's MethNet Web site has been redesigned to provide easier access for Illinoisans to information about methamphetamine production, abuse, treatment and prevention. Madigan's new MethNet site features detailed information for retailers, consumers and law enforcement about the MPCA and what the latest changes mean to them.

Effective Jan. 15th, 2006, the MPCA makes pseudoephedrine (PSE) and ephedrine "schedule V controlled substances" — meaning they must be kept behind pharmacy counters. It requires that all single and multi-active ingredient products, tablets, liquids and gel caps be placed behind the pharmacy counter. Although customers wishing to purchase such products do not need a prescription, they must display a photo ID and sign a log.

"Signing of this legislation into law means that Illinois will never be a weak link in a chain of states working to put meth makers out of business," Madigan said. "It brings law enforcement and retailers together, in a united front, to make it harder for criminals to complete their shopping lists."

Madigan said her office redesigned its MethNet Web site to provide law enforcement authorities, retailers, consumers, farmers, community coalitions, journalists and others with information on methamphetamine in Illinois. MethNet provides basic information on meth production and abuse, laws and legislation relating to meth, and strategies for slowing the spread of meth — including law enforcement, treatment, prevention and child protection.

October Rainfall Data

Preliminary data for October shows that rainfall averaged 1.26 inches, 1.61 inches below normal.

"This below normal rainfall in October failed to relieve drought conditions across central and northern Illinois," said State Climatologist Jim Angel of the Illinois State Water Survey (ISWS), a division of the Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources (IDNR).

Rainfall since March averaged 19.69 inches statewide, 9.53 inches below normal. It was Illinois' fourth driest March-October since 1895 and the driest March-October on record in northeastern Illinois, which had only 15.79 inches, 12.65 inches below normal. Tuscola had the highest one-day precipitation total with 2.50 inches on Oct. 21st, and Windsor had the highest monthly total with 3.52 inches.

October temperatures averaged 55.5 degrees F statewide, 0.8 degrees above normal. October was the fifth consecutive month of temperatures above normal and the tenth warmest June-October on record. Extremes ranged from 92 degrees F at Hutsonville on Oct. 5th to 20 degrees F at Mt. Carroll on Oct. 28th.

"The National Weather Service's November outlook calls for an increased chance of temperatures above normal, but is noncommittal about precipitation. Their winter prediction also is noncommittal about precipitation and temperatures for Illinois. Last winter both temperatures and precipitation were above normal in Illinois by 3.3 degrees and 2.24 inches, respectively," says Angel.

Handling The Holidays: Suggestions For Less Stress

The reading for Nov. 27th in volume 39 of The Christophers' Three Minutes A Day book has some suggestions for dealing with the stress that comes to many of us during the holidays. Whether it is Thanksgiving, Christmas, Hanukkah or Kwanzaa, many of us get so caught up in trying to do too much or having expectations which are too high that we end up stressed out at some point.

One of the solutions for stress the reading suggests is to set aside time for prayer. For Thanksgiving, we can spend some quality prayer time thanking God and really thinking about each blessing in our lives. I get letters and notes from people who are hurting and who feel that their lives are empty, even hopeless. Each one reminds me that I must never take God's gifts for granted. Though I try to be thankful every day, Thanksgiving is a special time to ask God to bless others, whatever their needs.

Another suggestion for the holidays is to eliminate trying to be everywhere, especially if we are the kind that tries to "stop in" at two, three, or even more places, on the holiday. I talked to a young father who said he, his wife and two young children — three and five — used to visit her parents, his parents and his grandparents on Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day. They would barely get to one stop before they'd be thinking about having to get to the next one. Without fail, sometime during the second visit, the children would have a meltdown and become tired and irritable. That led to everyone else reacting and the stress level went up for all around.

Last year, long before Thanksgiving, the couple decided that they would spread their visits out over a couple of days. They presented the plan to the parents and grandparents, promising that each year they would rotate the visit schedule so that there was balance. This new schedule lowered the stress level for all and allowed for real quality time with loved ones. The young man said that last year, under the new plan, was the best holiday season they ever enjoyed.

On the gift-giving holidays you can eliminate stress by shopping ahead. I worked with a lady who would have her Christmas shopping finished by Labor Day and her cards addressed and stamped by Thanksgiving. This is a lady who was the mother of five children and she and her husband had a very busy social life. Ask her how she did so much and stayed so calm she'd tell you "I plan and organize so that things don't get stressful!"

That Three Minutes a Day reading also reminds us that holidays are supposed to be happy times for being with family and friends. We can do this when we stop over-committing and trying to make our holiday an endurance test. We can enjoy ourselves more when we slow down, pace ourselves and say "No, I'm sorry, I can't be there" once in awhile. It will eliminate some of the disappointment that comes when our expectations of ourselves and others are too high.

Finally, tell your family and friends about your plans for a less stressful holiday. Chances are they've been thinking about it also and will welcome the discussion. Just talking about it could be the first step to having a truly happy holiday!

Tickets are $14-$79.

"Proof" will be shown Wednesday, Dec. 7, 7:30 p.m. It is Rated: PG-13.

A poignant drama based on David Auburn's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, Gwyneth Paltrow lights up the screen as Catherine, a young woman who has given up a seemingly bright future in order to take care of her ailing father (Anthony Hopkins), a formerly brilliant mathematician who went crazy. After he dies, Catherine's closed-off world is invaded by Hal (Jake Gyllenhaal), a young mathematician who worshipped her father, and Claire (Hope Davis), her successful sister who fears that Catherine is too much like their father. Set in and around Chicago, "Proof" has a compelling score and plenty of outstanding acting.

"Intimate Stories" on Wednesday, Dec. 14, 7:30 p.m. is not rated.

In the otherworldly expanses of Southern Patagonia, day-break reaches the charming village of Fitz Roy with a few surprises. A popular game show televised out of the provincial capital has selected one of Fitz Roy's own as the next contestant to appear on its live telecast. On the other side of town, the proprietor of Fitz Roy's popular grocery store has just discovered that his long-lost friend has surfaced, alive and well in the capital. And, finally, Fitz Roy's favorite traveling salesman is on the verge of reaching the capital where the woman of his dreams awaits. Nothing is going to stop them all from reaching the capital, but getting there is no small task. Captivatingly simple, filled with gentle humor, rich with humanity.

"The World" is featured Wednesday, Dec. 21, 7:30 p.m. and is not rated.

"The World" is writer-director Jia Zhang Ke's first "above ground" film. Jia tells the story of people who come to the Chinese capital searching for a better life -- but they don't always find it. The World Park, a real theme park made up of small recreations of major world cities and landmarks, including the Egyptian Pyramids, Big Ben, Stonehenge, the World Trade Center, and, especially, the Eiffel Tower, is the setting for the stories and dreams for a group of Chinese provincials. By filming "The World" in the actual park, Jia reveals that the problems of his characters relate to the whole world, not just to China. A cultural clash between traditions and today's high-tech, fast paced world.

Squares Spread Sunshine

Oh what fun it was for the Swing'n Sugar Squares Square Dance Club of Evergreen Park, to entertain the residents of Evergreen Healthcare Center, 10124 S. Kedzie, by square dancing for them on Halloween.

Pictured are some of those dancers who performed: (first row) June Goerg of Wheaton, Barb and John O'Connell of Plainfield, and Lucy Ernst of Eimhurst; (second row) Al Narkiewicz of Palos Hills, Hank Leenstra of Chicago, Hazei Conroyd of Tinley Park, Bill Winkler of Palos Heights, Bill Gary of Oak Lawn and Helen Hamilton of Chicago.

■HUNTERS GETTING READY FOR DEER CAMPURGED TO LEAVE THE FIREWOOD AT HOME: State forest health officials want hunters to leave the firewood at home in favor of burning locally cut or purchased wood. Insects and diseases can damage or kill healthy trees and can hitch a ride on firewood, which could spread problems around the state.

Most people collect firewood from dead trees, and trees die from a variety of causes. Pests and diseases that kill trees often continue to live on the dead wood and could become the source of infestation in a new area.

Experts also advise against bringing firewood home from hunting trips. Especially if hunters have been traveling in areas that are known to have oak wilt or gypsy moth. And for those hunters who might be in search of Michigan deer, it's especially important to leave the firewood behind.

In Michigan, the emerald ash borer has killed millions of trees in the southeastern part of the state. It was recently found in the U.P. and now it is just a matter of time before it shows up in Wisconsin.

■HUNTERS IN WISCONSIN NEED TO WATCH FOR WOLVES AND ELK: People heading to hunt white-tailed deer in northern Wisconsin need to be aware that coyote hunting is closed in the north during the deer season to prevent the accidental shooting of wolves and that an elk herd continues to roam in the north central part of the state.

The coyote closed zone represents the Northern Deer Management Units and the Menominee Indian Reservation. The coyote closure extends through the firearm seasons that run through Dec. 7th.

There are currently about 113 elk in the Clam Lake elk herd. The elk are mostly located in northeastern Sawyer, southwestern Ashland and southeastern Bayfield Counties near the town of Clam Lake and there is also a small herd of elk located about 10 miles west of the village of Butternut.

Elk were released in the Clam Lake area in May of 1995. Since then, two cow elk were accidentally shot by deer hunters in 1995 and 2000. Elk calves, 5 to 6 months of age, are the same size as adult white-tailed deer. Distinguishing characteristics of elk: elk have dark brown necks, heads, and legs, have short tails and tan rump patches, and adults are 5 feet tall at the shoulder. Deer have long tails with their famous white underside, have a white throat patch and stand 3 to 3 1/2 feet tall. Male elk have large antlers that sweep back, buck deer have antlers that curve forward.

In addition to elk, hunters need to be aware that moose occasionally wander into the state from northern Minnesota and Michigan and a small population exists in northern Wisconsin. Although moose look very different than white-tailed deer, the antler of a yearling bull looks somewhat similar, normally, a large, horse-size, dark body, very long legs, and a large snout easily identifies a moose.

Even with very liberal antlerless deer seasons, hunters are reminded that not all large, brown four-legged animals are fair game. As with all hunting seasons, hunters are reminded to be absolutely sure of their target before pulling the trigger. Mistakes in identification can be very costly.

Hunters are asked to report sightings of wolves, elk and moose to the nearest DNR office. This helps determine the distribution of rare animals in the state.

Chicago Sports: Creating An American Team

The Chicago Public Library is proud to present a new exhibition entitled Chicago Sports: Creating an American Team, which traces the historical beginning and development of amateur sports in Chicago. This free exhibit is currently open to the public through August 2006 in the Special Collections Exhibit Hall on the 9th floor of the Harold Washington Library Center, 400 S. State St. Exhibition hours are Monday through Wednesday from 12 noon to 6 p.m.; Thursday through Saturday from 12 noon to 4 p.m.; closed on Sunday.

Largely drawn from artifacts, memorabilia, letters and photographs, this exhibit explores the growth of amateur sports in Chicago in eight themed sections: Parks, Ethnicity, Gender, Neighborhood Teams, Interscholastic Athletics, Race, Religion and Social Class. Each section represents a contributing factor to the vibrant athletic and sporting scene in Chicago.

As Chicago's population grew in the 19th century, the need for open park space and healthy forms of recreation for immigrant workers became important issues for industrial and city leaders. In 1882, the Pullman Palace Car Company started an athletic club as a means to socially control the leisure time of its workers. The various competitions offered by the company garnered widespread newspaper coverage and national publicity. Pullman's athletics programs soon became a model for industrial recreation programs throughout the United States.

By the turn of the century, the world of sport had become a unifying social force. Although many immigrants remained connected to their country's traditional forms of recreation through organized ethnic clubs, they were also learning American sports like baseball and football, as part of the assimilation process considered essential by social reformers. And as second-generation ethnic youths became increasingly more educated in public schools, they became more adapted to playing baseball, football and basketball.

By the onset of World War II, a pervasive interest in sports marked American society. Baseball, football and basketball were very popular and competition was recognized as a trademark of American culture. Some ethnic athletic clubs had evolved into professional sports teams in cities like Chicago, New York, Los Angeles, Boston, Philadelphia, Kansas City, Detroit and St. Louis. The intense rivalries that developed between these teams and their home cities spearheaded the growth of America's athletic culture.

Moraine Valley Women's Basketball

Delwyn Jones, head coach of the Moraine Valley Cyclones women's basketball team, can't wait to see how the season will unfold for his team this year.

After co-winning the conference championship during the 2003-04 season, the lady Cyclones were stifled last year, posting a 10-22 record. This year, Jones expects his team will be able to recapture the magic from two years ago.

Leading the team this year will be co-captains sophomore Shannon Dugan (Mother McAuley) and freshman Laura Gaylord (Richards). Dugan, a 5'10" transfer from St. Xavier University, plays the small forward position. Her versatility on the court is matched by her good attitude and work ethic, her coach said. Dugan can drive to the basket with authority, commanding respect from the defense in the paint. Gaylord, who played her high school ball at Richards, is a fast, tenacious guard who brings aggressive play to both sides of the ball. At 5'7" she is an excellent scorer and very crafty under the hoop, Jones said.

Other contributors to the team this year are April Flowers, a 5'5" freshman guard from Eisenhower who played all four years of high school basketball. An outstanding defensive player, Flowers acts like a second coach on the floor and will be a double threat as her offensive confidence grows. Katie Golligly, a 5'11" forward from Mother McAuley, also has returned to Moraine Valley after playing for the Cyclones two years ago. Golligly is a flexible player with good defensive capabilities who can match up with point guards and centers extremely well. Kathleen Zulevic is a classic power forward from Mother McAuley, and at 6' can rebound better than most. Nadia Lopez, a returning 5'8" forward from George Washington, has stepped up her game considerably this year. She shows flashes in practice that lead her coach to believe she can be one of the best players on the team this year if she continues to work on her consistency. Rhiannon Howard, a first-year center from Lourdes, also will be a contributor. At 6'5" Howard excels at defending the middle, and her offensive rebounds help keep Moraine Valley in every game. Kelly McKinney, a 5'8" freshman guard from Oak Lawn, also shows a great amount of hustle on the court. Her style of play can be unorthodox, but it is effective in getting the job done for the Cyclones, according to Jones.

Rounding out the 2005-06 team are Joyce Harris, a 5'8" sophomore guard from Benjamin Mays; Schenia Jamison, a 5'5" freshman guard from Richards; Janice Crawford, a 5'7" freshman forward from Richards; Charvon Walker, a 6'2" freshman center from Thornton; Kim McGraw, a 5'7" freshman guard from Stagg; and Greta Bauzaite, a 6' freshman forward from Oak Lawn.

Happy Thanksgiving! The aroma of stuffing and spinach soufflé, etc., is wafting through the Sports Valve. That extra unusual smell you may be detecting was a last second dining choice I thought of this past Sunday - roast panther!

Professional Sports Valve: Yes, the Bears de-clawed the Panthers so badly that, by the end of the game, their vaunted QB, Jake Delhomme, looked as rattled as a lost girl scout in the middle of a dark forest full of angry, hungry Bears.

I've heard that if a Bear actually approaches you, here's the best way to survive:

Get on your knees.
Slowly bend over 'til your face touches the ground.
Put your arms over your head.
Remain motionless.

That's pretty much what Carolina's offensive line did all day long. Believe it or not, this ferocious Bears defense is yielding a per-game average of about one point less and thirty yards less than the legendary 1985 Bears.

So, on this Thanksgiving 2005, I give thanks for the Bears meteoric rise from 1-3 to 7-3.

In fact, none of the Chicago teams are playing like turkeys lately. I give thanks for the Bulls latest come-from-behind victory over the Lakers the other night as Duhon, Gordon and Hinrich decided to start raining 3's as our ex-coach's team saw his Lakers' 7 point lead evaporate. The win makes them 4-5 which, compared to last year's 0-9 start, is progress. Our big men, especially Sweetney, seem to be commanding a little more attention down low, which buys space for our perimeter players. Still, it will take a lot to spur the Bulls to victory when the circus trip rides through San Antonio this Friday.

Even the Blackhawks are giving us reason to give thanks in recent days. I know, some of you don't give a flying puck about hockey, but I do! It's the type of game that, if you ever tried to play it, you appreciate its difficulty. Lifting a cold, hard, heavy puck off slippery ice at 90+ MPH is just as hard as hitting a 90+ MPH fastball. Trying to fight on skates is even harder. I know! Anyway, the Hawks have actually managed to put together a nice streak even though, just like the Bulls, they have been exiled to the road by a bunch of clowns and elephants currently inhabiting the United Center.

I'm also thankful for Baseball's off-season. While the white Sox fight to hold their championship team together and keep the lighting from leaving the bottle, I as a Cub fan, have hope again. Sure! We're still a month away from Christmas, yet I'm already having visions of table setters Rafael Furcal and Juan Pierre dance through my head. The off-season is actually more important than the season. Last year, I knew that the Cubs were not eliminated in September; They eliminated themselves seven months before that with an idle off-season. Exit professional sports valve.

Amateur Sports Valve: The high school world is electric with the beginning of basketball season. Will Richards' guard Kodhammus Longbey keep following in the footsteps of his step-brother, NBA star, Dwayne Wade? Will Andrew's girls basketball team fulfill pre-season expectations and win the SW Suburban Red Conference? Keep track with our Prep Sports scores. One thing I do know is the long and short of it...

The tallest lady prep basketball player in the Chicagoland area is New Trier's 6'5" junior center, Amy Jaeschke. Her counterpart in boys basketball is Marian Central's senior center, Ryne Luecht who has reached an altitude of 7'1".

Conversely, the high school players with the ideal low center of gravity are as follows... Among the ladies, it's a tie. Both Alexis Knighten of Longwood and Arielle Santell of Schurz, stand in at 5'0" while, in boys basketball, Luther East's Doug Krop is flying under the radar at 5'6".

Sports Tip Valve: One good tip deserves another. Just like last week, this week's tip comes from Dr. Frank Vaught of Crestwood Chiropractic in Crestwood (708) 396-2500. Since this week's focus is on the curvature of the stomach, I'll direct this tip toward high school offensive linemen. You know who you are! You expect quite a lot out of that little jersey. It rides up to your ribs after every play and you gotta pull it back down each time. Off the field, you introduce yourself as a football star, but nobody recognizes you until you show people your belly button.

Now, you've blocked everybody out of the way to rake in your fifth helping of Thanksgiving dinner. However, remember that there is an amino acid called tryptophan, which seems to run wild in turkey, and it induces sleep. Back to Dr. Vaught's tip - Never sleep on your stomach! Gravity not only holds down buildings and oceans, it also pulls on your stomach and makes it even more curvular than it already is - if you sleep face down. So, unless you have aspirations of becoming a Sumo wrestler some day, stop snoring into the pillow at night. Sleep on your back. Exit valve!

Moraine Valley Soccer Team Plays International Tournament In Rotterdam

Moraine Valley's men's soccer team was able to kick up some Dutch dust in October.

Last January, the Moraine Valley Community College men's soccer team was invited to compete in the 2005 World Inter-University Championships, held in Rotterdam, Holland, from October 10-14. The tournament is organized by the International Student Football Federation (ISFF). As the first and only university or college from the United States to participate, the Moraine Valley team gladly accepted the invitation.

Bales, Skyway Conference Coach of the Year, also said that competing and playing only in the U.S. may give some American soccer programs an isolated view of how good their team may actually be.

"Our kids got to compete against some of the world's best at the university level, including some of their older players," Bales added. "Competitively speaking, it was about as challenging as we could make it. Being exposed to so many different styles and soccer cultures gives every student and team involved a better ability to adapt to changes and to discover different ways of beating opponents."

While there, the Moraine Valley group was able to meet and talk with players from all parts of the world—from Abakah, Siberia to Zaragoza, Spain—allowing the individuals and the teams to compare and discuss their lives both socially and athletically.

Saunders Leads No. 16 SXU Over Trinity Christian

Led by senior forward Jabari Saunders (Joliet/Joliet Township West) with game-highs of 24 points, 13 rebounds and 5 assists, the No. 16 ranked Saint Xavier University men's basketball team pulled out a thrilling 76-73 overtime road win over Trinity Christian College (Ill.) in non-conference action Wednesday in Palos Heights. With the victory, the Cougars improve to 2-1 this season, while the Trojans drop to 1-2 overall.

In addition to Saunders, freshman guard Jason Genova (Chicago/St. Patrick) also played well for SXU turning in 16 points and 4 rebounds, while junior guard James Hoffmann (Orland Park/Sandburg) finished with 10 points and 4 rebounds off the bench. Senior forward Lawrence Weller led Trinity Christian with 22 points and 12 rebounds.

The game stayed close throughout with neither establishing a comfortable lead. With 16 seconds remaining in the second half, TCC stole the inbound pass and scored the game-tying bucket to send the game to overtime, 68-68. In the extra period, the teams continued to trade baskets. With 30 seconds remaining and SXU clinging to a 1-point lead, the Cougars got a huge blocked shot and recovered the defensive rebound, which led to an immediate foul. After hitting its 2 free-throw attempts, SXU was able to hold in the final seconds to seal the 3-point victory, 76-73.

The experience was fulfilling for the members of the team, who were captivated by the beauty of the city, the friendliness of the population they encountered, the wonderful foods and the level of competition that the tournament provided.

Mockovak led SXU in total blocks this season with 142 (44 solos), while also finishing third on the team in kills with 307. Buchmeier paced the Saint Xavier offense this season with a team-high 459 kills in addition to her team-high 457. Looby was the Cougars' primary setter in 2005 totaling 1,098 set assists and led the team in service aces as well with 61. Pedigo finished second on the team in kills with 323.

SXU finished the 2005 season with a 21-19 overall record and finished in third place in the CCAC regular standings with a 7-2 mark. The Cougars fell in the first round of the CCAC Tournament with a loss to Illinois Institute of Technology (IIT).

Dolphin Born At Brookfield Zoo

It's a girl! Tapeko, a 23-year-old Atlantic bottlenose dolphin at Brookfield Zoo's Seven Seas exhibit, gave birth to a female calf in the late afternoon on Nov. 3, following just over three hours of active labor. Tapeko showed signs earlier in the day that she would soon deliver her calf—in the morning she refused food, which is a typical indicator of impending labor. The approximately 30- to 35-pound, 3-foot-long calf appears healthy and strong.

Following the birth, staff observed several positive behaviors, including the calf resting in the "slip stream" of Tapeko's dorsal fin. The slip stream is the hydrodynamic wake made by the mother as she swims. The calf stays close to the mom's body, using her energy to glide through the water. In addition, the calf began nursing regularly soon after her birth.

For approximately two weeks, volunteers and staff will conduct observations of mother and calf around the clock, using Etho Trak, an electronic behavior monitoring program. This program was developed by a team of Brookfield Zoo computer programmers and biologists and is now used by other zoos around the country. Observers will be recording the slip-streaming behavior and nursing bouts. After the two weeks, observations will continue to collect data on the development and behavior of the calf, including its growth spurts and increased nursing efficiency, when it starts to eat fish, and when it becomes weaned and independent from Tapeko as well as the social dynamics of the family group.

Tapeko's pregnancy was confirmed this past January and had been closely monitored by the zoo's veterinary staff, who conducted routine ultrasound exams throughout the 12-month gestation period. Due to the mutual trust and respect between trainers and animals, Tapeko voluntarily cooperated during these exams, thus allowing staff to provide her with the best possible care. DNA testing performed by staff in the zoo's Conservation Genetics Laboratory confirmed the father is Hastings. The calf is his first.

Like all mammals, dolphins have hair, but the few around the rostrum they are born with fall out for good after only a few months. Calves are born with a darker pigmentation in their skin than the adults. This top layer sloughs off shortly after birth. They also have several vertical, light-colored lines on their sides, a result of fetal folding. These lines disappear within six months.

Currently, visitors can see Tapeko and her calf in the Seven Seas underwater viewing gallery between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. daily. Dolphin presentations resumed on Saturday, Nov. 19. For now, the zoo's dolphins are residing in two groups. The first consists of all males—Lucky, 31; Hastings, 30; Kai, 11; and DJ, 9. The second group, which staff refer to as the "family group," includes Tapeko, her daughters Kaylee, 12, and Noelani, 2; and her grandson Micco, 4. Staff are managing the two groups in an effort to create a natural social environment for the calf and mother.

To support Brookfield Zoo's renowned dolphin research and Share the Care programs, call (708) 485-0263, ext. 341, or visit the zoo's Web site at www.BrookfieldZoo.org, where you can also find online dolphin activities. Additional information on the calf can also be found on the zoo's Web site.

Governor Signs All Kids Plan

Surrounded by elementary students and parents, lawmakers, health care providers and children's advocates at Nathan Hale School in Chicago, Governor Rod R. Blagojevich signed the landmark All Kids plan into law on Nov. 15th, making Illinois the only state in the nation to provide affordable, comprehensive health insurance for every child in the state. House Bill 806 won final legislative approval from the General Assembly in late October.

Parents can also sign up to receive All Kids enrollment information by going online to www.allkidscovered.com. Children enrolled in All Kids will begin enjoying benefits when the plan goes into effect on July 1, 2006.

The Governor's All Kids program offers children access to comprehensive health care, including doctor's visits, hospital stays, prescription drugs, vision care, dental care and medical devices like eyeglasses and asthma inhalers.

Participants in the new program will pay monthly premiums and co-payments for doctors' visits and prescriptions, but unlike private insurance that is too expensive for so many families, the rates for All Kids coverage will be based on a family's income. The state is able to offer All Kids insurance coverage at much lower than market rates for middle-income families by leveraging the significant negotiating and buying power it already has through Medicaid.

The state will cover the difference between what parents contribute in monthly premiums and the actual cost of providing health care for each child, expected to be $45 million in the first year, with savings generated by implementing a primary care case management model (PCCM) for participants in the state's FamilyCare and All Kids health care programs. Participants will choose a single primary physician who will manage their care by ensuring they get immunizations and other preventive health care services and avoid unnecessary emergency room visits and hospitalizations. Patients with chronic conditions like asthma or diabetes will have a single care manager to make sure they are getting the treatments and ongoing care they need to avoid acute care. Primary care physicians will make referrals to specialists for additional care or tests as needed.

More information about all Kids is available online at www.allkidscovered.com.

Students Purchase Laptop For Ailing Classmate

Members of the Queen of Peace High School Class of 2006 were thrilled to see classmate Leticia Razo of Oak Lawn arrive for their junior prom. They were even more ecstatic to see her for the first two weeks of class in August. Since then, though, "Leti" has not been well enough to return due to leukemia.

The senior class wanted to do "something" for their friend and classmate, noted senior class council President Isabel Dimas of Chicago, and they knew that Razo had expressed an interest in keeping up with her homework, though she could not write as easily as she once had. Their hope was that through some kind of fundraiser, they could earn enough money to purchase a laptop for Razo, allowing her to keep up with assignments and graduate with her classmates.

After many ideas were considered, it was decided upon and approved to hold a pajama day; students who brought in $2 could wear their pajamas to school instead of the regular uniform. On the pajama day, which was also the date of Razo's 18th birthday, the Peace Community wore necklaces created by the senior class with a picture of her on one side and a prayer written by her Christian Living class on the other side. The campaign was so successful, the senior class council raised over $2,000. The day of the fundraiser, twenty-five students in the senior class visited Leti at her home with flowers, a blanket they made, a giant birthday card, and a homemade cherry pie.

After working out technical needs with Razo's family and with the help of Queen of Peace's Technology Department, the council has purchased the laptop and will be delivering it to her home.

Members of the senior class council at Queen of Peace High School show the laptop they purchased for their classmate, Leticia Razo.

Theresa Nugent And Andrea Morrone Earn GLVC Honors

Lewis University junior outside hitter Theresa Nugent (Oak Lawn/Queen of Peace H.S.) has been named to the All-Great Lakes Valley Conference volleyball second team for a second consecutive season, while Flyer sophomore setter, Andrea Morrone (Palos Park/Stagg H.S.) made the league's honorable-mention list.

Nugent led the Flyers and ranked ninth in the GLVC in kills per game (3.47) this season, and she also led the team in total kills (368), attack percentage among hitters (.242) and attack attempts (991). She averaged 1.97 digs and 0.61 blocks.

Nugent tallied 20 or more kills four times this year, including a career-high 23 against Hillsdale (career-high 60 attempts) and Indianapolis. She registered a career-best nine total blocks against Northern Kentucky, tying her career high for block solos (three) and block assists (six) in that match.

Morrone led Lewis and ranked 10th in the conference in service aces per game (0.39). She also led the Flyers in attack percentage (.257), was second on the squad in digs per game (3.81) and committed just six reception errors.

Morrone, who earned the second GLVC Player of the Week award of her career August 29th, posted career highs of 57 assists against Indianapolis, 28 digs against Southern Indiana, eight service aces against Indianapolis and seven total blocks against Central Oklahoma. She recorded 20 or more digs seven times, including a stretch when she reached that mark in three straight and four of five matches.

Lewis was 17-13 this year, winning at least 16 matches for a 6th consecutive season.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

TOP TEN WAYS TO STAVE OFF WEIGHT GAIN ON THANKSGIVING DAY

It's Thanksgiving Day, you are reading one of the fourteen Southwest Messenger Newspapers, and the aroma of turkey and all its trimmings are around you. Soon you will "dive in" to one of your biggest dinners of the year. How can you cut the calories while still enjoying the splendors of the day?

Making a plan earlier in the week would have helped, but that is too late now. So you must improvise and take immediate action. Here are ten ways to help you out:

1. If it is still morning, go to the health club NOW (if it's open) or watch the parades while you are on the treadmill.

2. Walk or run the dog for a half hour.

3. At half-time of the football game, take a brisk walk. This is a perfect time to re-acquaint yourself with family or friends (or regain your composure with some quiet time).

4. If you are the chef, refer to one of my previous columns--which should be posted on your refrigerator--and cut portions and substitute lower calorie and fat products.

5. If this is not possible, and you are at "Aunt Mabel's," cut portions by a third.

6. Drink lots of water and several non-caloric beverages before putting any calories in front of you.

7. Choose wine over hard liquor, or request your mixed drink be made with your "favorite recipe" (while eliminating any discussion of your body fat) which includes a low cal beverage or juice as opposed to sugary mixes. You may want to "take over" as bartender to get what you are asking for.

8. Brush your teeth before going to the dinner table.

9. Write everything down that you have eaten after you get home and settled, and add up the calories. This may upset you enough to eat less over the weekend.

10. Double your time at aerobics tomorrow.

These are all tried and true suggestions from holidays past.

Good luck and have a blessed Thanksgiving!!

Urge Longer Medicare D Selection Period

Amid confusion and frustration surrounding the new federal prescription drug benefit, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich sent a letter to the Director of the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, Dr. Mark McClellan, urging him to back a proposal that would extend the enrollment period for the Medicare Part D program by six months. Nearly 1.6 million Medicare beneficiaries in Illinois will have to choose a new plan from among 42 different Medicare prescription drug plans.

Recently, the federal government sent wrong information to about 30,000 senior citizens who participate in the state's Senior Care program telling them they would not need to choose a Medicare Part D plan because they would be automatically enrolled. However, Senior Care members are, in fact, required to sign up for additional assistance with the Social Security Administration in order to continue receiving the state's wrap-around coverage. Now tens of thousands of seniors are at risk of losing out on the new benefit because they don't understand that they need to sign up.

In addition, many people with Medicare who have employer coverage still have yet to hear from their employer on how Medicare prescription drug coverage will impact their current coverage. Even though the deadline for issuing the notice of creditable coverage was Nov. 15th, 2005, many seniors do not recall receiving this document and now must call their health benefits administrator to find out if their plan will continue.

The Medicare Informed Choice Act would extend the deadline for enrolling in the new drug benefit program to the end of 2006, instead of May 15th, and would allow beneficiaries to make a one-time change in plan enrollment during 2006. Under current rules, beneficiaries will have to pay a penalty if they enroll after May 15th, and are prohibited from switching plans until 2007. In addition, the legislation protects retirees from being dropped by their former employer's plan during the first year of the new program's implementation.

Auxiliary Plans Events

The Little Company of Mary Hospital Auxiliary and Foundation has planned several events by their members in coming months. On Dec. 12th & 13th, members will hold the South Bend Chocolate Sale at Little Company of Mary Hospital, 2800 W. 95th St. in Evergreen Park.

On April 6, 2006, the auxiliary will host Reflections Fashion Show at Giorgio's Banquets in Orland Park. And on February 4, 2006, the Auxiliary will host the Crystal Heart Ball at the Field Museum featuring, "Pompeii: Stories from an Eruption"

Northwestern Hospital Appoints Director Of Breast Cancer

Nora Hansen, MD, a national leader in the field of breast cancer research and treatment, has been appointed the new director of the Lynn Sage Comprehensive Breast Center of Northwestern Memorial Hospital. Dr. Hansen, who will also be an associate professor of surgery at Northwestern's Feinberg School of Medicine, will have a crucial role in the development and growth of the Center, increasing the clinical research program, and transitioning the Center into Northwestern's new Prentice Women's Hospital.

Dr. Hansen's primary clinical focus is the management of both benign and malignant breast disease. She will be active in direct patient care, research and administration, with the goal of making the patient experience at the Lynn Sage Center as smooth as possible. She spent the last eight years at the John Wayne Cancer Institute in California, where she was associate director of the Joyce Eisenberg Keefe Breast Center.

Dr. Hansen said she was attracted by Northwestern's reputation as well as its commitment to its breast program, women's health and cancer care.

At the John Wayne Cancer Institute, Dr. Hansen was involved in several clinical trials including ones that focused on evaluating new techniques to reduce the extent of surgery, such as sentinel node biopsy and radiofrequency ablation of breast tumors. A less invasive but highly effective technique to search for cancer cells, the sentinel node biopsy is used to determine the stage of the patient's cancer by detecting if it has spread to nearby lymph nodes - without using radical surgery. The technique has become the standard of care for breast cancer patients and was pioneered at the breast center at John Wayne.

At the Lynn Sage Center, Dr. Hansen will support ongoing research into the causes and treatments of breast cancer and hopes to open up clinical trials to more patients. She is also a proponent of "translational research" where techniques or treatments picked up in the lab are used in the clinic. She says it "bridges the gap" between clinicians and the researchers.

Dr. Hansen also supports a focus on breast conservation. "If we can preserve a woman's breast, her sense of self stays more intact," says Dr. Hansen.

The multi-disciplinary approach at the Lynn Sage Center is also important, i.e. everyone involved in a patient's care - surgeon, radiologist, pathologist - communicates to develop the ideal course of treatment. "It really benefits the patients and provides them the best care possible," Dr. Hansen says. "That's why women should come to a breast center."

Dr. Hansen received her medical degree from New York Medical College in Valhalla, New York and went on to the University of Chicago, where she completed a general surgical residency program and a fellowship in surgical oncology. After completion of her training, Dr. Hansen spent a year on staff at Northwestern in the Dept. of Surgery before moving on to the John Wayne Cancer Institute in Santa Monica, Calif.

The Lynn Sage Comprehensive Breast Center of Northwestern Memorial Hospital affords women access to state-of-the-art clinical, diagnostic, rehabilitation and counseling services.

Tips For Getting Your Fireplace Ready

With cooler weather upon us, Hearth & Home Technologies, the nation's largest hearth manufacturer, urges homeowners to get their fireplace ready for the heating season. Through annual servicing of the fireplace by a professional and by taking a few proactive steps on their own, homeowners can ensure greater heating efficiency and safety, as well as prolong the life of the unit.

Many homeowners mistakenly believe their fireplace does not require any maintenance. The fact is all fireplace types from wood to gas to electric should undergo annual maintenance. For example, gas fireplaces need the fan, pilots and burners checked each year. And wood fireplaces require an inspection and chimney cleaning to remove creosote, which can build up and cause chimney fires. Homeowners should also check the chimney or vent before the season's first fire to see if birds or animals have built nests in it, or if leaves or other debris have accumulated. At a minimum, homeowners should also install a carbon-monoxide alarm in the same room as the fireplace and another one near the bedrooms.

Homeowners can handle much of the day-to-day maintenance. However, most tasks are better left to a professional. Here are some tips for getting the fireplace ready and keeping it in tip top shape this winter:

Wood Burning Fireplaces:

- Clean out the firebox at least every week when using the fireplace regularly, but leave an inch of ash in the bottom to act as insulation. Note: Never use a vacuum to clean out the firebox as coals can stay hot for several days after extinguishing a fire.
- Before removing ash, open the damper so that loose ash is drawn up the chimney rather than out into the room.
- Remove all ash during the months the fireplace is not in use.
- Burn only seasoned or hard wood in the fireplace. This will help minimize creosote buildup in the chimney. Burning small, controlled, hot fires rather than smoldering fires will also help keep creosote under control.

Gas Fireplaces

- Vacuum the firebox and heat exchanger regularly (only when the fireplace is cold, of course) to keep efficiency and air quality high.

- Consult a professional to clean the pilot assembly, purge trapped air from the gas supply line, and then test-fire the fireplace.
- Use only a soft brush to remove dust or spider webs from gas logs since they can be fragile. Make sure to position logs properly after cleaning to avoid sooting.
- Use glass cleaner made especially for gas fireplaces to clean the glass front - never use oven cleaner or abrasives.

Electric Fireplaces

- Clean the firebox and control compartment with a brush and vacuum.
- Never use glass cleaner to clean the back of the glass. Use only mild soap and water. Remove dust particles from glass by simply buffing lightly with a clean, dry cloth.
- Replace the light bulbs about every two or three years or when the flame and/or ember bed is dark on one side.
- Follow the manufacturer's instructions or consult a professional on cleaning the heater system to extend the fan's life.

Announce Landmark Immigrant Policy

Building on his commitment to integrate newcomers into the American mainstream, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently signed the "New Americans Executive Order," a landmark initiative that will move Illinois towards better helping immigrants and their host communities by creating an office to coordinate policies and programs to help newcomers fully assimilate to the state, provide more and better services to the growing number of immigrants living in Illinois, and to study the impact of immigration policy on the state. The office will work with an advisory group comprised of national and state experts to analyze changes in federal immigration law and make specific recommendations on issues of citizenship, human services, healthcare and education, among others.

The new state policy, the first of its kind in the nation, will bring together key policymakers, state and local advocates for newcomers, funders, and many others to address how Illinois can better assist new Americans and the communities that receive them.

The state's new policy has won major support from leading foundations and national organizations focused on immigrant issues. In Chicago, a two-year, $250,000 grant from the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation is providing major support for this work. The Carnegie Corporation of New York also announced that it will be supporting this effort.

Deceptive Credit Card Practices

Attorney General Lisa Madigan has filed a lawsuit against a Florida-based company for allegedly using telephone solicitations to target consumers with poor credit histories and deceptively market its advance-fee credit cards.

According to consumer complaints received in the past three years by Madigan's Consumer Protection Division, the Better Business Bureau and the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), telemarketers hired by the company allegedly claimed during calls that consumers could restore their poor credit histories by obtaining and using the company's credit cards. While the telemarketers represented during calls that they would help consumers obtain a Visa or MasterCard for an advance fee of up to $300, they allegedly failed to tell consumers that the credit cards could be used only to purchase products from the company's own catalog.

Madigan's lawsuit, filed on Nov. 10th in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, names as a defendant National Assn. Credit Services, Inc., a Florida corporation doing business as Liberty Group Services. The company is not registered with the Illinois Secretary of State to transact business in Illinois. Madigan's Consumer Protection Division has received seven complaints against Liberty Group Services from consumers in Cook and Kane Counties.

The lawsuit charges Liberty Group Services with multiple violations of the FTC's Telemarketing Sales Rule, the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act and the Illinois Credit Services Organization Act.

According to Madigan's lawsuit, Liberty Group Services charged consumers $150 to $300 for credit cards with limits ranging from $2,500 to $5,000. However, once the credit cards arrived, consumers realized the cards were not Visa or MasterCard credit cards and that the cards could only be used to purchase products from the company's own catalog.

In addition, consumers were allegedly told by telemarketers that they would receive gift certificates worth $300, but later found out that before the gift certificates could be redeemed, the consumer had to pay a 42 percent down payment on the purchase. Finally, the company allegedly failed to disclose to consumers that if no purchases were made from the catalog for a three-month period, the company would charge the consumer a $33 inactivity fee.

Madigan's lawsuit alleges that when consumers attempted to contact the defendant for refunds, the defendant refused to issue refunds.

The defendant also failed to register as a Credit Services Organization with the Secretary of State's office, failed to obtain the $100,000 surety bond legally required if credit services companies are paid a fee in advance of full performance of services and failed to provide consumers with written disclosure statements or contracts.

Madigan's lawsuit asks the court to prohibit the defendant from offering for sale and selling credit cards or credit card services in Illinois and from further violating Illinois' consumer protection laws. The lawsuit also seeks a civil penalty of $50,000 and additional penalties of $50,000 for each violation found to have been committed with the intent to defraud. Additionally, the suit seeks $10,000 per violation committed against a person 65 or older. Finally, Madigan's lawsuit asks the court to order the defendant to pay restitution to consumers.

'Umbrella For Peace'

Internationally known artist and sculptor Matt Lamb celebrated a message of love and peace at Moraine Valley on Nov. 5th as he brought his "Umbrella for Peace" project to the college campus in Palos Hills.

"Umbrellas for Peace" is a global art project that brings the ideas of love and peace to all people worldwide with the help of millions of children painting and decorating umbrellas. Children, ages 7 to 12, painted their own umbrellas and joined in a parade around the Moraine Valley Fine and Performing Arts Center.

Matt Lamb has worked tirelessly with children. Children and teenagers who have participated in this initiative have painted colorful umbrellas, freeing their creativity and spreading the message of world peace and love. On Sept. 11th, 2002, to commemorate the first anniversary of the 9-11 tragedy, "The Lamb Umbrellas for Peace" display, was exhibited at the Chicago Daley Center, and was followed by a parade with Chicago children that went through the downtown area. Navy Chief Petty Officer Robert A. Hammond, son of Carol and John Hammond of Midlothian, conducted strikes on a known Improvised Explosive Device (IED) production facility northeast of Baghdad during a scheduled deployment in support of the Global War on Terrorism while assigned to the aircraft carrier USS Theodore Roosevelt, home-ported in Norfolk, Virginia. Hammond is a 1990 graduate of Bremen High School in Midlothian and joined the Navy in July 1990.

Navy Seaman Recruit Erik A. Fiedler, son of Geraldine and James Fiedler of Chicago, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes. Fiedler is a 2003 graduate of Oak Lawn Community High School in Oak Lawn.

This week I received a letter from the Illinois USO...The Home Away From Home for our U.S. military. They said, take a moment to remember the brave men and women who are defending our freedom, and added:

As you welcome guests for a wonderful Thanksgiving dinner...A National Guardsman from Illinois will kiss her children good-bye at a USO supported Deployment Ceremony.

As you beautify your home with lights and decorations...A Coast Guardsman, in the middle of a 45-day tour protecting the Great Lakes will stop by for a warm cup of coffee at the USO Navy Pier.

As you shop for the perfect gift for everyone on your list...A young Sailor and his wife will wonder how they will afford a car seat for their new baby...and receive one from the USO Operation Car Seat Program

As you load the family in the car for a trip to visit Grandma...A Marine, on his way home from Iraq, will get stuck at the Airport as a snowstorm passes over Chicago and be welcomed by Volunteers at the O'Hare or Midway USO Centers.

As you celebrate the dawning of a new year...A family will cheer with pride as their daughter graduates from Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes...and then receive discounted and free tickets to area attractions as she enjoys liberty with her family.

The troops always count on the USO, and the USO counts on contributions from grateful Americans to carry out the services listed above. Many of you have probably benefited by the USO services. I know both of my sons were treated with thoughtful kindness when they were stranded and couldn't get home.

The address on the donation envelope I received is USO of Illinois, Inc., Navy Pier, 700 East Grand Avenue, #105, Chicago, IL 60611. Here are a few phone numbers: USO Navy Pier (312) 923-7070; USO Naval Station Great Lakes (847) 688-5591; USO O'Hare (773) 686-7396; and USO Midway (773) 582-5852.

The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs has decided not to review the cases of 72,000 veterans who are receiving disability payments for post-traumatic stress disorder. It is less than six months since a review found that some veterans' files had insufficient documentation. According to Secretary R. James Nicholson, the problems with these files appear to be administrative in nature, such as missing documents, and not fraud. Since there is no evidence of fraud, said Nicholson, they are not going to put the veterans through the anxiety of a widespread review of their disability claims. Joe Davis, a spokesman for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, called the move "a win for veterans everywhere."

Reportedly the VA planned to go back and review the cases of veterans who were already approved for 100 percent VA disability for post-traumatic stress disorder. Illinois Democratic Senators Barack Obama and Dick Durbin were pleased with the announcement as they have worked many months opposing the proposed review. Durbin said the decision is a victory for Illinois veterans. Obama said, "Since the day I heard about this wrong-headed, costly and unnecessary review, I have worked with Sen. Durbin and others in Congress to keep it from happening." Obama also said, "I'm encouraged that just before Veterans Day, the day when we call on all citizens to remember the sacrifices of those who fought to protect our freedom, the VA has decided to suspend it."

Prevent Meth Ingredient Sales In Illinois

Taking another major step to protect Illinois communities from a dangerous and highly addictive drug, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently signed a new law further restricting the availability of the main ingredient used to make Methamphetamine, or meth. Senate Bill 273, initiated by Attorney General Lisa Madigan, places more controls on the sale of products like pseudoephedrine and ephedrine, commonly used in cold medicines, which are the essential ingredients in meth.

SB 273, the Methamphetamine Precursor Control Act, was sponsored by Rep. John Bradley (D-Marion) and Sen. William Haine (D-Alton). The new law makes pseudoephedrine and ephedrine Schedule V controlled substances, thereby requiring that all products containing those substances must be kept behind pharmacy counters or, if a convenience package, in locked cabinets. Customers who wish to purchase those products must be at least 18 years old and show photo identification, as well as sign a log with their name, address, the date and time of the transaction, and a product description. The logs will remain confidential, but must be kept for at least two years, and must be made available to law enforcement upon request.

Additionally, no more than 7,500 milligrams of pseudoephedrine or ephedrine may be purchased in a 30-day period, and no more than 2 packages of medicines containing pseudoephedrine or ephedrine may be purchased at one time.

Retail stores that sell these products will be required to train their employees about these new restrictions. Violation of these controls by a worker is a Class A misdemeanor for the first offense, a Class 4 felony for a second offense, and a Class 1 felony for a third or subsequent offense. The store or pharmacy itself would be subject to a $500 fine on the first offense, a $1,000 fine on the second offense within 3 years at the same location, and a $5,000 fine for the third offense within 3 years at the same location. Customers who violate the act, including purchasing more than 2 packages at a time or more than 7500 milligrams in a month, are subject to a Class B misdemeanor for a first offense, a Class A misdemeanor on the second offense, and a Class 4 felony for a third or subsequent offense.

Meth is a powerful stimulant that affects the central nervous system, and is derived from ephedrine or pseudoephedrine, commonly used in cold medicine. Statistics show that meth is a growing problem in Illinois. In 1997, the Illinois State Police seized 24 meth labs. By 2004, that number increased substantially to 959. The drug has quickly become the most dangerous and perplexing problem for law enforcement, particularly in Central and Southern Illinois.

Toy Shower

The Celebration of Giving, which encompasses both Catholic Charities' Toy Shower and its Sponsor-a-Family Program, is a month-long effort to collect Christmas gifts for many of the children and families served by Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago. The goal is to create a memorable holiday for the nearly 12,000 children served through the Toy Shower and the more than 500 families assisted through Sponsor-a-Family, families that are unable to afford buying Christmas gifts for their children.

Through the Toy Shower, new, unwrapped toys in their original packaging will be collected now through Dec. 12th for children newborn to 18 years old at any one of the nine drop-off locations. To get involved, contact Erin Kavanagh at (312) 655-7912.

In a similar manner, Sponsor-a-Family reaches out to families who are most in need, responding to their basic wishes for items such as clothing, household items, books or school supplies. To sponsor a family, contact Shannon McCowry at (312) 948-6797. The Sponsor-a-Family gift drop-off is from Dec. 3rd to 5th at the Catholic Charities Toy Room at 1033 W. Van Buren, 3rd floor, in Chicago.

For more information and drop-off locations, visit www.catholiccharities.net/celebration.

Human Rights Activist To Lecture At Lewis

Lewis University will host a lecture by Human Rights Activist Kathy Kelly on Thursday, Dec. 1st. Free and open to the public, Kelly's lecture entitled "Creative Nonviolence & the War in Iraq" will be held at 5 p.m. in Room A133 of the Academic Building located on the Lewis main campus on Route 53 in Romeoville.

Her lecture will offer a personal narrative punctuated with the events of the times. Kelly will share anecdotes about her Missouri missile silo experience, being at Ground Zero on 9/11, being in Haiti, working in a soup kitchen in Chicago, going to the Middle East, and spending time with women in prison.

Following Kelly's lecture, a panel discussion on civil disobedience will be presented by Lewis University students and an alumnus. Panelists include: sophomore Katrina Binaku of Downers Grove; freshman Michael Grzyb of Brookfield; senior Karl Kiessling of Carol Stream; senior Rachel Kovach of Naperville; sophomore Ashley LeGrand of Grafton, Wis.; senior Pamela Lira of Homer Glen; senior Tiffany Millar of New Lenox; junior Judy Mrgan of Chicago; senior Vanessa Nomura of Homer Glen; freshman Steven Purri of Lockport; senior Jessica Rauch of Tinley Park; senior Carolyn Valois of Tinley Park; and alumnus Steve Weierman of Lockport, a 2002 Lewis graduate. A question and answer session will follow the panel discussion.

For more information on the lecture, call (815) 836-5861.

Moraine Valley Aids Hurricane Relief

When Hurricane Katrina devastated the Gulf, Moraine Valley pledged to help those whose lives were uprooted by the intense storm. During the following two months, faculty, staff and students generously responded by donating $6,594, which will be disbursed to the American Red Cross and the Salvation Army.

Donation buckets were placed around campus, and cash and checks made out to both of the relief agencies immediately started pouring in. The Sallie Mae Fund helped to increase the college's donation to the Red Cross by matching all checks worth $25 or more made out to that relief agency.

Various student organizations and college departments hosted fundraising events including bake sales, a charity basketball game and a pumpkin decorating contest. Old Dominion University, a partner in Moraine Valley's Center for Advanced Learning, also collected $481.

"I'm proud to be a part of this very caring and giving community that is Moraine Valley," said Dr. Vernon O. Crawley, college president. "It seems everyone on this campus has given of themselves to help those most in need. I thank them all for their generosity."

Lipinski Calls For Long Range Solutions To Help Small Businesses

Congressman Dan Lipinski called on Congress on Nov. 16th to address broad challenges in health care costs, energy prices, and trade policy which are continuing to hamper small businesses in America. Congressman Lipinski spoke at a press conference held by Democratic members of the House Small Business Committee to release the latest measure of the Small Business Index (SBI), which reveals serious weaknesses in business conditions.

The SBI — now at an eight-year low after dropping two more points since June — incorporates 17 key economic measures, including health care costs, energy costs, unemployment, and the trade deficit.

"In order to have a vibrant economy we need our small businesses to grow and create new jobs," Congressman Lipinski said. "But this report shows the difficulties small businesses face in the current climate of high health care and energy costs, as well as unfair foreign trade practices. Congress must look for long-term solutions to these issues in order to produce a strong and vibrant small business economy."

Noting that one bright spot in the SBI report was the uptick in manufacturing orders, Congressman Lipinski nonetheless expressed concern about the future. "This manufacturing report is good news, but it may be an aberration. At a recent roundtable discussion I held in my district, small manufacturers expressed considerable apprehension about staying competitive and maintaining jobs because of the current business climate. We have lost hundreds of thousands of manufacturing jobs in recent years and the U.S. trade deficit is on track to reach a record level for 2005."

Price increases for petroleum and natural gas are putting a strain on businesses, just as they are hurting families. "Natural gas prices are expected to jump by 50 percent this winter, increasing costs for all small businesses, from the mom-and-pop grocery store needing to heat its building, to the energy-intensive small manufacturer facing skyrocketing production costs," Rep. Lipinski said.

"We need to produce a real energy plan, not a quick fix and giveaways to the oil industry," said Congressman Lipinski. "Our country needs to start investing in alternative and renewable sources of energy, increase energy efficiency, and move toward becoming more energy independent."

The high cost of health care is another issue facing businesses. Small business owners want to provide health care for their employees, Congressman Lipinski said, but with five straight years of substantial cost increases, they are finding it more and more difficult.

The Small Business Index for the Third Quarter of 2005 stands at 69.99, well below its all-time high of 108.89 reached in March 2000.

Mayor Bennett Chairs Regional Planning Board

The Regional Planning Board (RPB) has elected its first slate of officers to lead the organization, which was created by the State of Illinois to integrate planning for land use and transportation in the Chicago region. The RPB's service area covers Cook, DuPage, Kane, Kendall, Lake, McHenry and Will counties.

By unanimous vote, the board selected its executive committee, with Palos Hills Mayor Gerald Bennett as its chair. Also elected was a pair of vice chairs: City of Chicago Deputy Chief of Staff, Rita Athas and New Lenox Mayor Michael Smith. In addition, the RPB's executive committee includes at-large members Elliott Hartstein (Mayor of Buffalo Grove), Al Larson, (Mayor of Schaumburg) and Nigel Telman (partner in the Sidley Austin Brown Wood law firm).

Passed unanimously in the General Assembly, the Regional Planning Act was signed into law on August 8th by Governor Blagojevich. It calls for creation of the RPB, which is to oversee consolidation of two existing organizations: the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS) and the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC). CATS was created in 1955 as the federally designated metropolitan planning organization (MPO) for the region and NIPC was created by the General Assembly in 1957 to conduct comprehensive land-use planning and generate official forecasts of population and employment growth.

The RPB will coordinate regional transportation and land-use planning while identifying and promoting regional priorities. By combining CATS and NIPC into a single planning agency, the RPB will help northeastern Illinois protect natural resources and minimize traffic congestion as the seven-county region plans for the 21st Century and beyond.

Among its first tasks is to hire an executive director who will oversee its daily operations. The executive committee will begin that search process and define by-laws that will govern the board's operations. The organization will also address personnel and operational issues of merging the CATS and NIPC staffs.

In October, the RPB began a 36-month transition period that will lead to the board's becoming fully operational. In September 2006, the RPB will report to the Illinois General Assembly with recommendations on a permanent structure and funding for the board. A four-fifths majority vote is required for any action by the board. The executive committee officers will serve until September 2006, after which new elections will be held. The RPB's members are: City of Chicago Appointments: Rita Athas, deputy chief of staff, City of Chicago; Frank Beal, executive director, Metropolis 2020; Raul Raymundo, executive director, Resurrection Project; Andre Rice, president, Muller and Monroe Asset Management; and Nigel Telman, partner, Sidley Austin Brown & Wood law firm. Cook County Appointments: Gerald Bennett, mayor, Palos Hills, (Southwest Cook); Anthony Calderone, mayor, Forest Park (West Central Cook); Zenovia Evans, mayor, Riverdale (South Cook); Calvin Jordan, highway commissioner, Rich Township (Cook); Al Larson, mayor, Schaumburg (Northwest Cook). Collar County Appointments: Elliott Hartstein, mayor, Buffalo Grove (Lake); Dan Shea, McHenry County board member (McHenry); Michael Smith, mayor, New Lenox (Will); Rae Rupp Srch, former mayor, Villa Park (DuPage); and Joint appointment pending (Kane/Kendall). Agency Representatives (non-voting members): Stephen Schlickman, executive director, Regional Transportation Authority (CATS) and Ed Paesel, executive director, South Suburban Mayors and Managers Association (NIPC).

Funding Company Sued For False Advertising

Attorney General Lisa Madigan filed a lawsuit on Nov. 15th against a Maryland company that allegedly preyed on consumers with bad credit histories by advertising affordable payment plans for personal computers and plasma televisions but then charging far more in total payments than the actual retail price of the electronics. The company also allegedly refused to refund any payments or provide the product if a consumer defaulted or cancelled.

Madigan's Consumer Protection Division has received 15 complaints against the company from Illinois consumers in Champaign, Cook, DuPage and Rock Island Counties. In one case reported to Madigan's office, a consumer was allegedly charged $2,773 when a comparable computer was available for $949 from the manufacturer.

The lawsuit, filed in Sangamon County Circuit Court, charges BlueHippo Funding, LLC, a Maryland corporation, and Joseph Rensin, Chairman and CEO, with multiple violations of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act and the Illinois Retail Installment Sales Act.

BlueHippo allegedly solicited consumers by placing advertisements on the radio, television and Internet, including on cable television channel BET and Chicago radio station AM 1390. The advertisements proclaimed, "We don't make the products we finance - we just make them affordable" and "Computers $35 per week."

Madigan's lawsuit claims that BlueHippo failed to disclose in its advertisements the actual sales price for the items, as well as the number, amount and due dates of payments. The omission of the number and amount of payments makes it difficult for consumers to comparison shop, Madigan said.

Consumers responded to the advertisements by calling a toll-free number. BlueHippo representatives then obtained a consumer's name, address, Social Security number, employment information and bank account information. Two to eight weeks after an order was placed, the consumer received a "Shipping Verification Form" in the mail. However, the form allegedly failed to meet the content and disclosure requirements of a retail installment contract as defined by the Illinois Retail Installment Sales Act.

Illinois Christian Singles

Illinois Christian Singles is a state sub-chapter of the largest and most successful nationwide Christian Singles group in America, the Christian Singles Information Exchange, which is on its 16th continuous year of business.

Now, instead of paying money for memberships, Illinois singles can earn up to 200 credits (equal to $200) by doing volunteer work in their own community.

Single persons interested in joining Illinois Christian Singles must still meet the eligibility requirements, but money is no longer an issue. Both the limited and full membership can be earned entirely by doing public service work, receiving five credits for each hour of work.

Anything from picking up trash along a highway, to babysitting at church, to helping out in a not-for-profit hospital, school or library will work. Even doing volunteer work for a nonprofit Pro-Life group or a local soup kitchen can be converted into membership credits, which are accepted as equivalent to money.

Membership in Illinois Christian Singles ranges from $25 for a limited membership to $200 for a full membership, or $525 for an unlimited membership. All memberships are paid once and are good until married. Furthermore, there is a substantial discount for teens and seniors.

Being able to join without having to pay any membership fees has already been welcomed by young and old alike, particularly by single moms, and by retired seniors living on fixed incomes.

To be eligible to join Illinois Christian Singles, one must be a person who:

1. is a marriage-minded single,
2. is at least 16 years old (no upper age limit),
3. is considered eligible for marriage in his or her own church and by civil laws (previously married members of religions denominations that require an annulment prior to remarriage, must have their annulment prior to joining),
4. believes in the basic Christian principles concerning marriage and family,
5. believes in a lifelong commitment to marriage,
6. believes in no sex outside of marriage,
7. shares a respect for all human beings from conception to natural death,
8. agrees to treat all other members in a courteous manner.

Illinois Christian Singles is dedicated to increasing the likelihood of successful marriages and decreasing the likelihood of divorce and troubled marriages in Illinois and America.

All memberships are guaranteed to work or your membership year is entirely free.

To contact Illinois Christian Singles, call 1(800) 869-2500 or visit the web site at www.christiansingles.org, then click on the "Illinois Christian Singles" link. Once on the Illinois page, go to "Volunteer Credit Method-C" and print the form to get started.

After the initial phone conversation, BlueHippo allegedly charged a set-up fee, a one-time payment, and then required 13 consecutive weekly payments to be debited from the consumer's bank accounts prior to shipping the merchandise. In the event that an electronics fund transfer failed because of insufficient funds in a customer's bank account, BlueHippo allegedly placed the customer in default of the contract and claimed that all previous payments were non-refundable. Madigan's lawsuit alleges that this practice amounts to a delinquency charge in excess of the amount allowed by Illinois law.

In addition, several customers who realized the actual cost and wanted to cancel their orders before they received delivery of the product were told they could not receive any money back because all payments were non-refundable.

In one complaint received by Madigan's office, a consumer allegedly paid $391.98 in weekly payments and cancelled the order but still has not received a refund. Madigan's lawsuit alleges that because BlueHippo did not provide customers with a copy of the retail installment contract conforming to the requirements of the law, a customer who has not yet received the product has the right to cancel and receive a full refund of payments.

Madigan's lawsuit asks the court to prohibit the defendants from advertising, marketing, selling and financing personal computers and plasma televisions in Illinois. The lawsuit also seeks a civil penalty of $50,000 and additional penalties of $50,000 for each violation found to have been committed with the intent to defraud. Additionally, the suit seeks $10,000 per violation committed against a person 65 or older. Finally, Madigan's lawsuit asks the court to order the defendants to pay restitution to consumers.

Courts Consider 'Best Interests Of Child'

Child custody is one of the biggest challenges divorcing parents face. In addition to dealing with their own anguish over the dissolution of the marriage, parents must cope with the impact on their children and the even greater challenge dealing with parenting issues, including custody.

Understanding how the legal system and courts work can help ease the pain for all involved, according to the presidents of the Illinois Judges Assn. (IJA) and the Illinois State Bar Assn. (ISBA).

Judge James M. Wexsten of Mount Vernon, a judge in the 2nd Judicial Circuit and president of the IJA, has spent his entire career helping abused and neglected children. He is the founder of the steering committee which established the Southern Thirty Adolescent Center, an emergency shelter for abused and neglected children, and is a past president and past member of the board of directors of Prevent Child Abuse Illinois.

ISBA President Robert K. Downs, a Chicago attorney who has practiced family law for 25 years with his wife and law partner Barbara, estimates he has represented more than 4,000 families in divorce and child custody matters.

Both agree that the primary consideration for all involved should be based on the "best interests of the child," but Downs says that "trying to get there can be a very difficult task."

While a judge's job is to apply and interpret the law, the attorney's role is to represent the client to the best of his or her ability.

During his years in private practice, Downs has observed that divorcing parents frequently try to "win" custody by proving they are the best parent. "The real secret to success in custody cases is to approach the case from the child's point of view; that is, which parent will best address the child's needs," he states.

Judge Wexsten and Downs note other factors with regards to custody and visitation:

- Only judges, not juries, handle divorce and family disputes. Furthermore, the judge is not an advisor but a decision-maker who often helps resolve custody matters through settlement conferences and mediation.
- In certain instances, the judge may appoint a licensed attorney as a type of guardian in the courtroom to represent the child's interests.
- Joint custody doesn't necessarily mean that the children physically spend equal time with each parent. Joint custody refers more often to sharing parenting responsibility and participation, not just parenting time.
- Unrestricted visitation is the rule, not the exception. Only when the child would be put at risk by a non-custodial parent's behavior would visitation be restricted or supervised.
- The non-custodial parent sometimes spends alternate weekends and a mid-week evening, split holidays and vacation time with the children. Extracurricular activities of the children cannot be a reason to prevent visitation but certainly should be given consideration by the parents.

Downs says that the ISBA and IJA are taking steps to elevate the court's role in family law, as well as overall professionalism issues. There are multiple ISBA task forces in place, which are drafting new legislation in the areas of custody, parentage, child support, professionalism and other issues.

Moraine Valley's Own Bring Aid

They listened, rescued and healed. "They" are the Moraine Valley staff and adjunct faculty who voluntarily assisted with relief efforts in the hurricane-ravaged Gulf. Maureen Farrell, director of Academic Outreach, spent two weeks navigating miles of Louisiana roads, while Fire Science adjunct faculty members Andy Hufnagl and Dave Fuerst were stationed in hard-hit southwest Mississippi, and Dave Haywood traveled to New Orleans for two weeks of challenging, clean-up work.

In the days following Katrina's landfall, Farrell, a nurse of 31 years, decided she wanted to help, so she volunteered her services to the American Red Cross. After an intensive two-day training, she was sent to Louisiana for two weeks where she visited evacuation shelters across the state and checked on the health of the volunteers. "They worked 12-hour days, and some didn't take very good care of themselves because they were so focused on helping the evacuees," said Farrell, who took sick people to the hospital, tended to black widow spider bites and cared for a broken toe. "But their never-ending spirit and compassion were my inspiration."

In addition to monitoring the volunteers' health, she also walked around the facilities to see if the kitchens & bathrooms were clean, or if the electric wiring was covered. "Basically, I made sure the environments were livable," she said.

Traveling from city to city gave Farrell real insight as to how much damage the hurricanes inflicted. "Katrina brought the water problems, and Rita brought the wind damage. I saw everything from a house with no roof to a huge casino boat totally ripped to shreds. Absolutely nothing was left untouched by these powerful storms."

Alsip firefighters Andy Hufnagl and Dave Fuerst agreed that nobody could have prepared for a disaster of this size. "Blocks and blocks of houses were totally gone," said Hufnagl. "We stood at least six blocks in from the coast and saw the ocean because nothing was left standing to block our view. Imagine everything you know being gone: stores, restaurants, jobs, houses. Even the street signs were wiped out. People gave us directions using landmarks like 'turn left at the huge barge in the road'."

The pair answered FEMA's national call for firefighters and spent almost all of September picking up the pieces Katrina left in Pearlington, Mississippi. Their priority was to pass out flyers with information on FEMA relief. After that, they were told to do whatever they could. "We asked people what they needed, and then tried to help them get it. We set up shelters, unloaded trucks and assisted the Red Cross, but more than anything else, we listened to the people's stories," Fuerst said.

Hufnagl and Fuerst said they were just doing what firefighters do, but added that they worked with some really amazing people. "The Red Cross volunteers were outstanding. They slept in the back of their trucks and worked nonstop. FEMA did everything they could possibly do as fast as they could, and the military was excellent."

Dave Haywood, the Blue Island fire chief and a member of the Illinois Incident Management Team, coordinated a different group of amazing people: a unified command of firefighters from Illinois, New York and New Orleans. During his two-week tenure in New Orleans' Algiers Parish, he searched for hazards, performed risk assessments and prioritized rescue activities from a command post. "Everyone down here worked long hours with no sleep to overcome extremely challenging obstacles," said Haywood. "But I'd get right back in my car and go back today if I got the phone call. One of the hardest things was working with the New Orleans firefighters. They stayed at the command post even when they were off-duty because their families were hundreds of miles away, they had no homes left and didn't even have a car to go anywhere."

Little Company Of Mary Annual House Walk

Little Company of Mary Hospital Auxiliary held its 11th annual Holiday House Walk on Saturday, Oct. 11th. The house walk featured five exquisitely decorated homes in the Evergreen Park and Oak Lawn areas. Visitors were blessed with a perfectly beautiful sunny fall day.

The event was chaired by Janet Boland and co-chaired by Marielyn Kill. It was a complete success with the help of numerous volunteers. They guided visitors through the homes that were marvelously decorated according to a theme by generous floral shops.

The event would not have raised almost $10,000 if it wasn't for the generosity of the homeowners allowing the public into their homes. The committees would like to thank all those who advertised in the program book and helped underwrite the costs.

Little Company of Mary Hospital's Mother/Baby Service will receive the generous donation. "Congratulations and thank you are extended to all the volunteers, donors, homeowners, florists, advertisers, committee members and of course, house walkers that contributed to this year's success," said a spokesperson.

Oak Lawn Boy Celebrates Role In "All That I Need"

Actor, Kevin Suscavage, who was born in Oak Lawn, had always been interested in a broad spectrum of things. Upon graduating college with a math degree, he dabbled, looking to find his niche: math (of course), but also pottery, painting, ridiculous stand up comedy, philosophy, black and white photography, poetry readings, the stock market, computer programming, writing, gobbling like a turkey on street corners while video-taping people's reactions, and animal rights presentations.

Some skills he picked up along the way include memorizing the capital of every country in the world, reciting the alphabet backward in under five seconds, memorizing pi to many digits, and a love for speaking in front of people. Of all his endeavors, it seems that his greatest interest is that of speaking to an audience.

After teaching math classes at a local community college for a few years and taking a couple years off to drive around the Midwest in his old rusty, blue '85 Chevy, Suscavage moved to LA to pursue that greatest audience of all: the film/TV audience.

Finally, he got the small part of Rhino Boy in the film, "All That I Need" that hits theaters Dec. 2nd. "It's a small but important (role)," Suscavage says. "It's the first feature length 'eating popcorn' movie that I have a speaking role in. This is only the beginning."

Suscavage has three credits on IMDb and has had offers from other filmmakers - not to mention All That I Need is rumored as possibly another Blair Witch at the box office. The film opens on Dec. 2nd at Regal Theaters, Lincolnshire, IL (847) 229-9100. For more on the film, visit www.allthatineed.net. For more on Suscavage, visit www.geocities.com/kevinsuscavage.

Caring For Natural Christmas Trees

The day after Thanksgiving is a day many families reserve for picking out their Christmas tree. The Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources (IDNR) is offering some tips to help you choose and take care of this year's tree.

"Fresh trees can make a wonderful addition to any holiday celebration, but they can also become a fire hazard if they aren't properly cared for. By following a few simple steps, individuals can help ensure that an enjoyable celebration doesn't turn into a tragic one," said Director Brunsvoild.

IDNR recommends that consumers take the following steps in caring for a real Christmas tree:

Select a fresh tree by looking for one that is green and sheds very few needles when it's shaken. Trees that are grown in Illinois or nearby states may be a better choice rather than trees being transported from elsewhere. This will reduce the amount of time the tree has been exposed to the weather or other environmental hazards, which may have caused it to dry out.

Natural trees that will not be brought indoors right away should be stored in a cool place such as a porch or unheated garage. Once the tree is ready to be displayed and decorated, make a one-inch cut from the base of the trunk to allow the tree to more easily absorb water and resist drying.

Place the tree in a sturdy stand that holds at least a gallon of water and replenish the water frequently. A healthy tree may use several quarts of water each day.

Check that Christmas tree lights are in proper working order before hanging them on the tree. It is important that consumers only use Underwriters Laboratory (UL)-approved lights.

Unplug all lights when no one is at home and when it's time to go to bed for the night.

Never use electrical cords that are frayed, or cords with cracked insulation or broken or empty sockets.

Never overload electrical circuits.

Keep natural trees away from fireplaces, wood stoves, furnace vents, space heaters and any appliances that generate heat and could cause a fire or accelerate drying.

"More than 400 residential fires each year involve Christmas trees. This season, I urge individuals to be mindful and take necessary precautions with Christmas trees and other holiday decorations in order to reduce the risk of fire," said Dave DeFraties, Chief of Staff for the Illinois State Fire Marshal.

Natural trees are a renewable, recyclable resource, unlike artificial trees, which are mostly made of petroleum and plastic that cannot be recycled. Once discarded, there are a number of uses for recycled trees including: chipping, beachfront erosion prevention, lake and river shoreline stabilization, fish habitat, and river delta sediment management.

Hynes Says $1 Billion To Healthcare Providers

State Comptroller Dan Hynes said the Comptroller's Office will receive $1 billion in short-term borrowing funds Nov. 22nd and immediately will begin processing the backlog of Medicaid bills, sending payments to facilities that have been waiting months to be reimbursed for health-care-related services they have provided.

"Doctors, pharmacists, hospitals, nursing homes and others who provided critical healthcare services this summer and have not yet been reimbursed can expect to receive payment within a few days," Hynes said. "It is critical that Medicaid patients continue to receive the care and treatment they need and I want to thank the many healthcare service providers for their patience during the last few months."

As of Monday, Nov. 21st, $2.8 billion in bills were awaiting payment, including $1.25 billion in Medicaid bills. The payments being made during the next few days should reduce the state's total Medicaid bill backlog to less than $250 million and provide much needed relief to a variety of vendors, who, in some cases, have been waiting to be reimbursed for services they provided in July and August. The state will receive about $500 million from the federal government as reimbursement for Medicaid bill payments, allowing additional bills to be paid.

Annual Parade Of Toys

Members of Chicago Fire Fighters Union Local 2 and their family will deliver more than 4,000 gifts for children in Catholic Charities' care during their sixth annual Toy Shower Parade. Mental Illness Support Group

A support group for relatives and friends of persons with serious mental illnesses (brain disorders) will meet at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 8th in the Church of Christ, 206th & Crawford in Matteson.

For further information about the meeting call John Rowley at (708) 798-3862

Hynes proposed the borrowing as part of an effective management plan to maximize cash liquidity and flexibility throughout the fiscal year. As required by law, both the Governor and the Treasurer agreed to the borrowing plan. The state will begin repaying the loan in March and will repay the entire amount by June 2006.

Chicago Bulls Join Lift Up America

The Chicago Bulls announced it will team up with Lift Up America for a series of efforts during December to bring the gifts of sight, food and hope to the city's less fortunate. The Bulls join 24 other professional teams and colleges in assisting Lift Up America with its nationwide effort that will benefit more than 500 agencies. Lift Up America partners are Tyson Foods, LensCrafters, Pearle Vision, Ty and the Give the Gift of Sight Foundation.

On Monday, Dec. 5, the Bulls will host an eyeglass drive at the team's home game versus the Dallas Mavericks. Fans attending the contest are invited to donate old, no-longer used prescription eyeglasses and any sunglasses by dropping them off on their way into the arena for the game. The collected items will be distributed to individuals living in developing countries through the Give the Gift of Sight Foundation.

In conjunction with the eyeglass drive, LensCrafters and Pearle Vision will conduct free vision screenings and eye exams to pre-selected Chicago area families. Those individuals in need of prescription eyeglasses will receive a free pair courtesy of LensCrafters and Pearle Vision.

On Thursday, Dec. 8, Tyson will deliver a truck of frozen protein in the form of chicken and turkey to the United Center. The Bulls will then distribute the items to approximately 35 food agencies, soup kitchens and homeless shelters throughout the city that provide nourishment for the hungry residing in the Chicagoland area. Bulls players will be on hand at the arena to assist in distributing the food items to agency representatives.

Also on Dec. 8, the Bulls will distribute 12,000 Beanie Babies® donated by Ty to children throughout the area in time for the holidays. Children who reside in group homes, utilize homeless shelters and soup kitchens and frequent local Boys and Girls Clubs will receive the plush toys courtesy of Ty.

Settle With Laser Eye Surgery Provider

Following a statewide advertising campaign that allegedly misrepresented the actual cost of corrective laser eye surgery, Attorney General Lisa Madigan announced on Nov. 28th that a settlement has been reached with a Florida company that performs the surgeries to ensure that future advertisements reflect the actual cost of its procedures.

Madigan's office filed the lawsuit again Lasik Vision Institute, LLC, on Monday, Nov. 21st and filed the settlement agreement on Nov. 28th, both in Sangamon County Circuit Court. The lawsuit charged Lasik Vision Institute with violations of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act and the Illinois Administrative Rules on Retail Advertising.

In signing the settlement agreement, Lasik Vision Institute agreed that all future advertisements would be in full compliance with Illinois law. In addition, the company has agreed to pay a voluntary contribution of $17,500 to the Attorney General Court Ordered and Voluntary Compliance Payment Project Fund for Consumer Enforcement and Education.

Madigan's lawsuit alleged that between June 2003 and June 2004, Lasik Vision Institute advertised surgeries for "as low as $299" in newspapers statewide, including The Springfield State Journal-Register, the Chicago Sun-Times, the Peoria Journal Star and the Rockford Register Star. After June 2004, advertisements promoted "Lasik $499 per eye." Madigan's lawsuit alleged that the advertisements did not adequately disclose the limitations on the advertised price nor did they disclose the range of prices of surgeries offered and the conditions for each. As a result, many consumers ended up paying more than the advertised price.

Madigan's lawsuit alleged that prospective patients were required to pay a $100 non-refundable deposit before learning if the lower-cost procedure was appropriate for their vision needs. The Nidek laser procedure is a lower-cost option for corrective laser eye surgery; however, patients with certain prescriptions as well as pre-existing medical conditions, such as cataracts, diabetes and glaucoma, may not be eligible to undergo the surgery. Finally, Madigan's lawsuit alleged Lasik Vision Institute advertised that screening exams would be conducted by a doctor of ophthalmology when, in fact, the exams were conducted by doctors of optometry.

The consent decree does not constitute an admission of guilt by Lasik Vision Institute.

Richard Nogal Passed Away

Former longtime Evergreen Park resident and past Orland Park Acting Mayor and Village Trustee, Richard F. Nogal, died suddenly of an apparent heart attack in the early morning of Saturday, November 19th. Mr. Nogal and his wife, Mary Jane, lived in Evergreen Park from 1960 to 1978 and were active in the Most Holy Redeemer Parish. Their family moved to Orland Park in 1978. Mr. Nogal began his public service to the village of Orland Park in 1981, when he was appointed to the Plan Commission. In 1983, he was appointed as a Village Trustee by former Mayor Doogan. Mr. Nogal subsequently won two terms as Village Trustee, serving from 1983 to 1993. In 1993, he served as Acting Mayor after the death Mayor Owens. Mr. Nogal was the second-place finisher to current Orland Park Mayor McLaughlin in the 1993 election. Mr. Nogal worked on a variety of village projects, including Centennial Park and Pool, bringing Chicago water and sewer to Orland Park and the new Village Administration Center.

Mr. Nogal was also active in numerous other civic and charitable organizations. He recently served as President of the Southwest Suburban Chapter of United Way. He also was President of the Orland Chapter of the Lions Club. He was a Director of Beverly Bank and Vice Chairman of St. Michael's Parish Ministry Council and a member of the Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Nogal worked for the same firm, YSD Industries, for fifty-three years. He was the Director of Sales Administration for the concern, which sold rail car doors and components. Mr. Nogal was a graduate of Weber High School and Sheil Institute.

Mr. Nogal was married to his wife, Mary Jane, for fifty years. He died on the day of the couple's fiftieth wedding anniversary. Mr. Nogal had three children: Richard, Garry and Alyce. Three grandchildren also survive him: Ricky, Katie and Hailey, two brothers and a sister. He was a devoted family man and husband who loved to spend time with his grandchildren. He was an avid White Sox fan and thrilled to attend the opening game of the World Series.

His son and namesake, Richard, said that his father was a wonderful man who epitomized the role of "public servant." The younger Nogal said that his father gave of his time and talents for all the right reasons, never expecting anything in return, except the common good. Mr. Nogal's son and family vowed to carry on their father's legacy. Mr. Nogal's son, Richard, currently serves as Chairman of the Board of Directors of Palos Community Hospital, vice president of the Board of Education of Palos School District 118 and a commissioner for the Palos Fire Protection District.

Mr. Nogal's life was celebrated at a Mass of Resurrection on Tuesday, November 22, 2005, at St. Michael's Church in Orland Park. He was interred at the newly consecrated Good Shepard Cemetery in Orland Park.

Tree Recovery Effort

The National Arbor Day Foundation has announced a special new campaign to assist in tree recovery efforts for the areas that were devastated by Hurricane Katrina. Through the KATRINA TREE RECOVERY CAMPAIGN, the Arbor Day Foundation, in cooperation with the National Audubon Society, is offering people across America the opportunity to support replanting trees in coastal Mississippi and Louisiana and begin the reforestation of neighborhoods and cities across the region. For every $10 donated to the KATRINA TREE RECOVERY CAMPAIGN, the Foundation will contribute 10 trees to be planted by Katrina victims.

The tree species to be planted include Baldcypress, Red Maple, Eastern Redcedar and Red Oak. Rosenow adds that not only will supporters have the satisfaction of donating these trees to people in need, but the Arbor Day Foundation will also provide to each donor of $10 or more a free membership, including a subscription to the Foundation's bimonthly publication, Arbor Day and The Tree Book with information about tree planting and care.

To help hurricane victims replant these devastated areas, send your contribution to the KATRINA TREE RECOVERY CAMPAIGN, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410 or contribute online at arborday.org/katrina.

Letter To The Editor

I recently found that in 2003 the Illinois legislature passed into law a plan to screen ALL children, ages birth to 18, for mental health. At first glance, it seemed harmless, but after some consideration, I am outraged.

Who will determine "mental health"? The state? Or the professionals who see this as a gravy train to their profession? Will all kids be considered at risk? What about those kids who "fail" to measure up to these vague standards? Will they be put on medication? Or worse yet, labeled for the rest of their lives? Will unfortunate family situations, such as abuse, parent's alcohol and/or drug use, divorce, peer pressures, loss of a close family member or a pet, loss of a parent's job, family financial stresses, etc., even be considered?

Let's face it, many of the emotional and mental problems facing our kids today stem from a breakdown of the family.

The thing that infuriates me the most is that unless parents know about these screenings, they will not be able to stop them. Where are my rights as a parent to raise and protect my children?

I have called my elected officials who helped create this mess and I urge others to call their state representatives and senators and tell them to stop this intrusive mental health-screening plan.

Lipinski Opposes Irresponsible Budget Bill

Congressman Dan Lipinski on Nov. 18th voted against the Republican budget proposal that slashes Medicaid, drastically raises the costs of student loans, cuts health care for our poorest children and fails to provide enough money for veterans.

"This budget shortchanges those who need help the most. It is neither fair nor fiscally sound and it will be Illinois families, our veterans and seniors on Medicaid, our children and the working class in our communities who will feel the effects of this heartless budget," said Lipinski.

The 2006 budget reconciliation bill, which passed 217-215 in the early morning hours of today, cuts mandatory spending by $50 billion. Unfortunately, all of the spending cuts, including such vital programs as student loans and health care, are not being used to reduce the deficit - instead they are being used to help pay for a second reconciliation bill containing $70 billion in tax cuts. The net result of the $50 billion in spending cuts and the $70 billion in tax cuts will be an increase in the deficit of $20 billion.

The budget package will pay for the $70 billion in tax cuts targeted to the wealthy by cutting key services, including the following:

About three-quarters of the $11.4 billion cut in Medicaid falls directly on enrollees. The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office (CBO) has estimated that most of the Medicaid cuts are achieved by requiring Medicaid enrollees to pay substantially more for the health care they need - allowing states to significantly increase cost-sharing and impose premiums on certain enrollees.

Nearly $8 billion of the $14.3 billion student loan cut falls directly on students and parents. CBO has estimated that under this budget there are nearly $8 billion in new charges to students and families that will raise the cost of student loans. The costs to the average student borrower will be increased by $5,800.

This Budget will result in $24.1 billion in reduced child support collections. CBO has estimated that the bill will lead to $24.1 billion in reduced child support collections upon which hundreds of thousands of struggling single parents rely, pushing more children into poverty and letting deadbeat dads off the hook.

"Illinois's hospitals, nursing homes, and community health centers depend on Medicaid funding that will be slashed under the current budget," said Lipinski. "In Illinois there are 1,100,574 children, 279,046 elderly, 300,341 people who are blind or disabled, and 396,185 low-income adults who rely on Medicaid for health coverage they otherwise would not have. I am fearful of what will happen when these men and women are left broadened with these costs because of the budget cuts and are forced to forego needed medical care."

Federal Jobs For Veterans

After the Senate passed his Reservist Access to Veterans Preference amendment, U.S. Senator Dick Durbin (D-IL) said members of the National Guard and Reserve who have served in overseas military operations are a step closer to receiving the same consideration as other combat veterans when applying for federal jobs.

Current law allows veterans to receive higher priority consideration in hiring for federal jobs. Because the law is unequally applied in federal hiring, some agencies have denied veterans' preference to Reservists who have returned from qualifying active duty in Iraq or Afghanistan and reverted to their part-time reserve service.

By clarifying the law, veterans will be able to maintain their service in the Reserves or National Guard and still be eligible for consideration as a veteran when applying for federal employment. Durbin was inspired to take action after an Army Reserve soldier from Fairview, Illinois was denied veterans preference in applying for a job with the Department of Justice despite serving two qualifying tours overseas.

"Members of the National Guard or Reserve who honorably defend and serve America overseas should not be penalized because of bureaucratic roadblocks. Reservists should receive the same consideration as other combat veterans when applying for a federal job. I continue to work to help guarantee this measure until it becomes the law of the land," Durbin said.

Durbin's measure was unanimously approved by the Senate as an amendment to the Fiscal Year 2006 Defense Authorization bill. The amendment is endorsed by the Reserve Officers Association.

Family Policy

Councils Back

Alito Nomination

At its annual gathering, the leadership of the nation's Family Policy Councils movement recently called on the United States Senate to fulfill its constitutional responsibility to advise and consent on the nomination of Judge Samuel Alito by holding hearings by Thanksgiving and a final vote in early December.

The leaders, representing 26 of the 33 active state-based councils, agreed the judge's extensive public record should allow the Senate to fulfill its responsibility sooner rather than later. The group called on Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist to work diligently toward a thorough yet timely review and then vote on the nomination.

The leaders also called on the Senate to quickly set aside any efforts to engage in a filibuster.

Cook County Sheriff Michael F. Sheahan's recent announcement that he would not seek re-election next year sent shock waves throughout the Cook County Democratic Organization. The four terms that Sheahan has served as the county's chief law enforcement officer equals the longest tenure of any modern sheriff (Richard Elrod 1970-1986) in Cook County history.

Sheahan was elected in 1990, during a period in which the sheriff's department was plagued by controversy and scandal. Sheahan set about changing the way his predecessors conducted business. He initiated random drug testing of employees and moved to diversify his workforce by stepping up the recruitment of minorities and female officers. The perennial problems of overcrowding in County Jail have been addressed. (For example, in 1992, Cook County Jail was nearly 2,500 inmates over capacity on a daily basis. Today the jail is less than 400 over capacity!) New programs were initiated, including the Sheriff's Work Alternative Program (for DUI offenders and others committing minor crimes) and the military-style boot camp detention center for youth offenders. Police officers were taken from behind desks and put into patrol cars offering more protection (nearly 50% more) to suburban residents. A Gang Unit was also introduced to apprehend gang members as they attempted to expand their territories into suburban areas.

To evaluate his contributions thoroughly would require a significantly more lengthy volume. Suffice it to say Sheriff Michael F. Sheahan has served the citizens of Cook County with dedication, professionalism and class. He will leave his watch profoundly better than when he arrived, quite an achievement.

Subsequent to the bombshell Sheriff Michael Sheahan dropped in the laps of the Cook County Democratic Party on Monday, Nov. 21st during the Slating Session, a hiatus of one week was necessary to resolve the question of which Democrat would be slated for the ballot position of Cook County Sheriff. This past Monday (Nov. 28th) a number of potential candidates presented credentials. When the smoke cleared, former State Representative and present protégé of Sheriff Sheahan, Thomas Dart, was selected to represent the Regular Democratic Organization in the primary and general elections next year.

Tom Dart is no novice to the sheriff's office, having served as Sheahan's top assistant since 2003. His professional background as a lawyer, former legislator, and political strategist should provide Mr. Dart with significant insight into the office of Cook County Sheriff. We'll keep an eye on him.

Congressman Bobby L. Rush and SCORE Counselors to America's Small Business announced that they will wrap up their year-long partnership of providing business training workshops with a graduation ceremony and networking reception for more than 80 participants who are seeking to either grow or establish their businesses in the First Congressional District. The event will take place on Monday, Dec. 12th from 5:30 until 8 p.m. at the University of Illinois Extension, Cook Chicago South Unit (Illinois Room), 8751 S. Greenwood in Chicago.

The graduation and business networking reception will include graduates, various chambers of commerce, representatives from the U.S. Small Business Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce, Minority Business Development Agency, Office of Illinois State Treasurer, small business development centers, procurement technical assistance centers, community and business organizations.

This event is free but requires pre-registration. For information, call (708) 385-9550 or email younus.suleman@mail.house.gov.

State Comptroller Dan Hynes tells us that the Comptroller's Office received $1 billion in short-term borrowing funds so that they can begin processing the backlog of Medicaid bills, and immediately begin sending payments to facilities that have been waiting months to be reimbursed for healthcare-related services they have provided.

"Doctors, pharmacists, hospitals, nursing homes and others who provided critical healthcare services this summer and have not yet been reimbursed can expect to receive payment within a few days," Hynes said. "It is critical that Medicaid patients continue to receive the care and treatment they need and I want to thank the many healthcare service providers for their patience during the last few months."

As of Monday, Nov. 21st, $2.8 billion in bills were awaiting payment, including $1.25 billion in Medicaid bills. The payments being made during the next few days should reduce the state's total Medicaid bill backlog to less than $250 million and provide much needed relief to a variety of vendors who, in some cases, have been waiting to be reimbursed for services they provided in July and August. The state will receive about $500 million from the federal government as reimbursement for Medicaid bill payments, allowing additional bills to be paid.

Hynes proposed the borrowing as part of an effective management plan to maximize cash liquidity and flexibility throughout the fiscal year. As required by law, both the Governor and the Treasurer agreed to the borrowing plan. The state will begin repaying the loan in March and will repay the entire amount by June 2006.

Sheahan To Step Down As Sheriff

Cook County Sheriff Michael F. Sheahan announced Monday, Nov. 19th, he will not seek re-election next year after serving a record four terms as the county's chief law enforcement officer.

"After several weeks of consideration and discussions with my family and friends, I have decided to retire when my current term expires in December of 2006," Sheahan said. "It's been a honor to serve the people of Cook County and lead the men and women of the Sheriff's Office. I will miss the job dearly, but I will leave with the satisfaction of knowing the department is stronger and more respected than it has ever been."

Sheahan took office in December of 1990, at a time when the department was mired in controversy and scandal. More than a dozen Sheriff's officials from the previous administration were facing criminal charges for fixing the test scores of job applicants, including former under-sheriff James Dvorak, who was also accused by the U.S. Attorney of taking bribes from organized crime figures.

Sheahan set out to change the reputation of the department by launching a massive effort to reclaim hundreds of deputy sheriff badges, which were handed out to untrained civilians as political perks by previous sheriffs. He also instituted random drug testing of sworn employees and sought to diversify the department's workforce by recruiting more minority and female officers. Currently, more than half of the sheriff's sworn personnel are minorities and women make up 27% of the workforce, ranking the department third in the nation for hiring female officers.

Throughout his tenure, Sheahan has worked to control overcrowding at Cook County Jail by establishing new programs for nonviolent offenders, freeing up space in the jail for inmates charged with more serious crimes. He opened a military-style boot camp detention facility for young offenders and started the Sheriff's Work Alternate Program, which forces DUI offenders and other convicted of minor crimes to work off their sentences in community service labor crews.

Thanks to the alternative programs put in place by Sheahan and the construction of three new jail divisions, the facility's historic overcrowding has been brought under control for the first time in decades. In 1992, Cook County Jail was nearly 2,500 inmates over capacity on a daily basis. Currently, the jail has less than 400 inmates over capacity on a daily basis.

Sheahan also worked to tighten security at the jail, which had developed a reputation for being plagued by frequent escapes. During a two-year period in the late 1980's, the jail experienced an escape nearly once every six weeks. Sheahan re-deployed personnel at the jail, added more security fencing and instituted stronger disciplinary measures against employees whose negligence led to escapes. As a result, the jail has experienced only one escape in the past ten years.

Police protection in suburban Cook County received a boost under Sheahan. He led an effort to bring 911 emergency telephone service to more than 300,000 suburban homes and businesses that previously had to dial separate seven-digit numbers for police and fire protection. The number of Sheriff's Police officers assigned to patrol duties was increased by 46% and a Gang Unit was established to track and arrest gang members as they migrated from the city to the suburbs.

Sheahan also launched an assault on illegal video poker, organized crime's most lucrative enterprise in suburban Cook County. During the last 15 years, the Sheriff's Police Vice Unit has conducted gambling raids on more than 200 suburban taverns and restaurants and seized more than 3,000 video poker machines. The Chicago Crime Commission estimates each machine grossed an average of $1,600 per week for organized crime and their related businesses.

Sheahan also utilized technology to improve the Sheriff's Office. He installed television cameras in Sheriff's Police squad cars to record traffic stops and established a computerized finger-printing network to help suburban police departments identify criminal suspects. And under Sheahan's direction, the Cook County Sheriff's Office became one of the first police agencies in the nation to post the names, addresses and mug shots of registered sex offenders on the Internet.

At the end of his term in December of 2006, Sheahan will have completed 16 years in office, joining Richard Elrod (1970-86), as the longest serving sheriff in Cook County history.

Ballet Chicago's "The Nutcracker"

Ballet Chicago, home of The School of Ballet Chicago and The Ballet Chicago Studio Company, continues its holiday tradition by presenting three performances of the charming Christmas tale, The Nutcracker. The performance will take place at the Athenaeum Theatre, 2936 N. Southport in Chicago, on Saturday, Dec. 17th at 2 and 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 18th at 3 p.m.

Ballet Chicago's The Nutcracker has become a wonderful family tradition. This two-act ballet begins on Christmas Eve at the Stahlbaum residence where they are hosting their annual Christmas party. During the festivities, young Marie is captivated by the Nutcracker doll she received from her mysterious uncle, Herr Drosselmeyer. After the guests have departed, Marie falls asleep with her Nutcracker doll. Suddenly, the room is filled with large mice led by the evil Mouse King. The Nutcracker doll comes to life and leads the toy soldiers to victory over the Mouse King. Marie is then whisked away to the Land of Snow where snowflakes dance and then is transported to the Kingdom of the Sweets where the Sugarplum Fairy treats her to many breathtaking dances by the characters of the Candy Kingdom.

Choreographed by Artistic Director Daniel Duell and School Director Patricia Blair, this production also features the classic Sugarplum pas de deux choreographed by George Balanchine. The Nutcracker is sponsored by Target with seasonal support from The Illinois Arts Council and The Chicago Department of Cultural Affairs.

Ticket prices for The Nutcracker are adults $18 and $25, children $12, and senior citizens $15 and $20. Tickets may be purchased by calling Ticketmaster at (312) 902-1500, online at www.ticketmaster.com or visiting the Athenaeum Theatre Box Office, 2936 N. Southport in Chicago's Lakeview neighborhood.

For more information, contact the Athenaeum Box Office at (773) 935-6860 or Ballet Chicago at (312) 251-8838.

Enjoy A Holiday Evening With Rockapella

Do you hear what I hear? It's the signature sound of the all-human, all-vocal a cappella group Rockapella, which will be performing a holiday show at Moraine Valley's Dorothy Menker Theater, 9000 W. College Parkway in Palos Hills, at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 13th. Tickets are $20 for adults and $15 for students and seniors.

Famous for their five-year run as the house band on the popular PBS show "Where In The World Is Carmen Sandiego?" and as the voices behind the Folger's Coffee commercial (the best part of waking up), the quintet will perform original and popular heartwarming holiday songs with a sprinkling of year-round songs for good measure.

The myriad players who comprise Rockapella include a Broadway star, a former member of Boyz II Men and a vocal percussionist, whose amazing drum sounds complete the group's arsenal of "human music." They have recorded six albums for North America and 10 for Japan, where they have a huge following. Their holiday recordings have appeared on Billboard's Top Independent Albums & Holiday music charts.

This performance is partially funded by a grant from the Illinois Arts Council.

Actor John Boss

John B. Boss of Oak Lawn is doing very well as a suburban resident while making a rewarding life as actor, entrepreneur and publicist. Like so many other actors Boss has a mentor.

His former school principal, Dr. Gelsimino, recognized his pupil had more than just an ordinary singing voice after he heard John's version of "My Country 'Tis Of Thee."

Because of his singing talent, the principal actually created a role for John as a narrator in a musical production at the school so Boss could show off his talents.

"My first professional break came when I got a part in "Pippin" at the former Drury Lane East at McCormick Place," said Boss. The show was a production of South Suburban College. During his career the Oak Lawn resident toured Indiana for four years (he said at times the state felt like the size of California) as a children's puppeteer. "There were times when my partner and I, to save money, slept in the van near the school grounds where we were performing the next day. In the morning we would awake to the sound of the kids' voices. Those were the lean days and I guess we really paid our due," Boss laughed.

In 2003, Boss received the "Best Actor" in an Indiana musical for "Babes in Toyland." He also does commercials and is a voice for a well known Chevrolet company. Once he did a cereal with three wrestlers in a ring. The premise was that he supposedly thought he was there for an audition for a Shakespearean drama role. Boss said in one scene he was hurled to the floor by a wrestler. "Ah, show business," he said.

Currently, Boss is excited to be in the Tony-award musical "The Sound of Music" at Theater at the Center, 1040 Ridge Road in Munster, Indiana.

John's other credits include: numerous shows under the direction of Martin Kappel, Gary Glorioso, and Michael Weber, as well as Charlie Misovsky, with Pritchard Theatrical Productions. His most recent credits include supporting roles in Light Opera Works' productions of "Carnival" and "The Merry Widow." Regionally, Boss has been seen as Hysterium in "A Funny Thing Happened..." at Illinois Theater Center, Captain Von Trapp in "Sound of Music" with Winnetka Theatre, Julian Marsh in "42nd Street" at Pheasant Run, Applegate in "Damn Yankees" with KVT, Don Quixote in "Man of La Mancha" with Drama Group, and as Herr Drosselmeyer in "The Nutcracker" with Ballet Legere for the last three years.

"The Sound of Music" opened Nov. 11th and closes Dec. 18th. Boss has the role of Franz the butler and is understudy to the second lead.

For tickets, call (219) 836-3255.

Since no holiday event would be complete without a visit from everyone's favorite North Pole-dweller, the evening includes a visit from Santa Claus. The Field Museum's friendly mascot, The Field Mouse, will also give holiday greetings.

Tickets to the Children's Holiday Celebration cost $7 for children, $12 for adult Museum members and $17 for adult non-members. Tickets will not be sold at the door, and reservations must be made by Dec. 5. Free parking will be available for the Children's Holiday Celebration in the Soldier Field North Garage. To reserve tickets, call (312) 665-7145.

The Field Museum is open daily, except for Christmas Day, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The last admission is sold at 4 p.m. The Museum is located at 1400 S. Lake Shore Drive. For more information, call (312) 922-9410 or visit www.fieldmuseum.org.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

THE AFTERMATH OF THANKSGIVING

The holiday season has now begun! You are still digesting last weekend's food, including that big Thanksgiving bird. It was great, but now you are miserable. My "top ten" ways to stave off weight gain in last week's column was put by the wayside. New body fat is surfacing! Your pants are tighter.

As you may have stumbled across in your recent holiday reading, the average Thanksgiving Day meal is over 2000 calories, and well over 100 grams of fat. What do you do to begin the repairs and enjoy yourself through the holidays? Here are some simple pointers:

- You can start by eating lower fat meals for the next couple of days, to make up for the weekend-long feast.
- Plan for tomorrow night's party with a low caloric, low fat breakfast and lunch. Look back and assess your diet over the past few days. If you were on the "party circuit," look ahead. What are your party plans for the future? Make some decisions now!
- Do not panic or feel guilty if your diet seems out of hand. When you balance your intake over several days, you have time to regain the control.
- Make physical activity a regular habit. Beyond burning calories, exercise is essential for good health and well-being.
- Have a salad, light soup or fruit before leaving home or prior to your meal.
- Select only special or favorite foods at a holiday buffet—leave standard fare, like potato chips, nuts and rolls, for the other guests.
- Space the party beverages—have a glass of sparkling water after a glass of wine or cup of eggnog.
- Practice portion control. A smaller serving of the real thing can be very satisfying.

A lot of this is repetitious. But reinforcement is the key! And if you have very special dietary issues, consult your physician. He may refer you to a dietitian who can work more closely with you to get you through this "high calorie" time of the year.

St. Francis Lincoln Silver Award

The Lincoln Foundation for Performance Excellence announces St. Francis Hospital & Health Center, Blue Island as a recipient of the 2005 Lincoln Silver Award for Progress Towards Excellence for demonstrating sound and notable continuous improvement processes. St. Francis will be formally honored, along with 13 additional recipients, at a recognition-ceremony, hosted by Michael J. Birck, Chairman Tellabs, Inc., held at 5 p.m. on Dec. 8, at Tellabs.

Celebrating 100 years of service to the community in 2005, St. Francis Hospital & Health Center in Blue Island is a 410-bed, Catholic, voluntary, not-for-profit health care institution, owned and operated by SSM Health Care, one of the nation's largest Catholic health care systems. St. Francis provides primary, secondary, and tertiary levels of care. St. Francis also offers a comprehensive range of medical, surgical, pediatric, and obstetrical care, and serves as a major treatment site for cardiovascular care. The hospital's cardiac program has been nationally recognized six times, most recently in October as a 100 Top Cardiovascular Hospital by Evanston-based Solucient.

Continuous quality improvement has been embraced by staff as a way for their system to fulfill its mission. "St. Francis Hospital & Health Center in Blue Island is thrilled to be named a Lincoln Silver Award winner for our commitment to the continuous pursuit of excellence in all areas of our health care organization," states Colleen Kannaday, President. "I'd like to recognize the more than 1,500 dedicated employees, physicians, and volunteers at St. Francis who accompany me on our quality journey every day at St. Francis Hospital & Health Center in Blue Island, and who thoroughly embrace the pursuit of excellence in all they do. Continuous quality improvement is an integral part of our culture at St. Francis Hospital, and it's wonderful to be formally recognized for this."

"I'd like to add that this award is especially significant to St. Francis Hospital as we celebrate our 100th anniversary of service to the community in 2005. Lastly, I would like to congratulate the other Lincoln Award recipients. St. Francis Hospital is indeed proud to be in the company of so many who are truly committed to the pursuit of excellence."

Mercury Emissions From Power Plants Report

A trade association representing state and local air pollution control officials released a report and model rule for states to use to limit mercury from coal-burning power plants. The model rule was necessitated by the promulgation earlier this year of a federal mercury rule that allowed power plants to avoid modern mercury pollution controls until well after 2018.

Mercury is a potent neurotoxin that can affect the brain, heart and immune system. Developing fetuses and children are especially at risk; even low-level exposure to mercury can cause learning disabilities, developmental delays, lowered IQ, and problems with attention and memory. EPA scientists estimate that one in six women has enough mercury in her body to put her child at risk should she become pregnant.

Power plants are the largest industrial source of U.S. mercury emissions. People are exposed when the mercury washes into our lakes and streams and accumulates in fish, which end up on our dinner tables. EPA data show that about one-third of the mercury deposited in the U.S. comes from U.S. power plants alone, and deposition can be much higher near individual plants, since local sources can account for 50-80 percent of mercury deposition at hot spots. In Illinois, mercury-related fish consumption advisories cover every body of water in the state.

Under the Clean Air Act, sources of hazardous air pollutants, including mercury, are required to install pollution control technology to reduce these toxic emissions by the maximum achievable amount. EPA acknowledged in 2001 that compliance with the law would require reducing power plant mercury emissions by about 90 percent by 2008. In March 2005, however, the EPA issued regulations that allow power plants to avoid the Clean Air Act's maximum achievable control technology (MACT) requirement, and sets much weaker and delayed pollution caps. At least 16 states, including Illinois, have taken legal action to challenge this weak mercury reduction program in court.

He is the son of Mary Beth Kwain of Palos Heights. The airman graduated from Brother Rice High School in Chicago in 2000.

Navy Seaman Recruit Joseph E. Veesaert, son of Charlotte Tobin-Myers of Alsip and Joseph Veesaert, Sr. of Oak Lawn, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes. Veesaert is a 2003 graduate of Alan B. Shepard High School in Palos Heights.

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Fredrick M. Lacey, son of Jeanette Strono of Blue Island, departed on a scheduled deployment in support of the Global War on Terrorism while assigned to the amphibious transport dock USS Austin home-ported in Norfolk, Virginia. Lacey joined the Navy in August 2002.

Navy Seaman Apprentice Jonathan B. McKinney, son of Andre Bonner of Chicago, and his fellow shipmates returned to sea after their two-month long in-port period while assigned to the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk forward deployed to Yokosuka, Japan. McKinney joined the Navy in September 2003.

United Spinal Association, a national veterans service and disability rights organization whose members are individuals with spinal cord disabilities requiring use of a wheelchair, offers a free pamphlet to interested persons titled Fire Safety for Wheelchair Users At Work and At Home. The pamphlet may be read or downloaded at www.unitedspinal.org. Single, free copies of it can be ordered at the same web address, or by telephone at 1-800-444-0120. Individuals or organizations interested in acquiring multiple copies of the pamphlet may call the above number for ordering instructions. The pamphlet is also available to the public in Spanish.

Members of Friends of Our Troops have been supporting the troops by writing letters for about four decades. Since Vietnam Mail Call was founded in 1965 many millions of pieces of mail have been sent to the troops both at home and abroad.

"Thank you for writing me. This is a quick note to let you know that I received your mail and that I appreciate your support." This was the message on a postcard a U.S. Marine wrote to the Friends of Our Troops office after receiving a package of fan mail to share with his buddies.

Writing has been underway all across the nation—by individuals and families, in schools and churches, with campus groups, scout troops, 4-H clubs and other youth groups, veterans groups and auxiliaries, etc., to prepare cards and letters for the Christmas 2005 Fan Mail for the Troops campaign.

Mail from all over the nation is now being received at Friends of Our Troops headquarters, where it will be thoroughly mixed, then prepared into well over 1,000 packages to be sent out. The fan mail goes to every branch of the military—Army, Navy, Marines, Air Force, and Coast Guard.

An overview of how the campaign functions has been posted in the online photo album, www.troopfanmail.net/album.htm. In addition, there are special pages for schools, colleges, churches, veterans groups, youth groups, Catholic, etc.

Your military friends and loved ones can be VIPs when they receive a big package of fan mail to share with their buddies. Send their name and complete military mailing address, along with your name, address, phone number and email address (if any). All military names/addresses are kept strictly confidential. It also helps to know how many are in the military unit, and until what date the military address will be valid.

Tens of thousands of veterans are now receiving their prescription drug refills from the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) with greater convenience, speed and security, thanks to a new service available to veterans over the Internet. More than 70,000 prescriptions have been refilled using the latest service added to VA's "MyHealtheVet," the personal online health record system designed for veterans in the VA health care system. The prescription refill service began on Aug. 31st.

The secure online prescription refill service has quickly emerged as one of the more popular features in the MyHealtheVet system, which connects with VA's widely respected electronic records system.

When a veteran orders a prescription refill, the request is routed through the VA computer system to be filled by one of the department's outpatient mail pharmacies. The refill is then sent directly to the veteran, eliminating the need for a trip to the pharmacy and a wait in line.

Since mid-October more than 100,000 veterans have signed up to use MyHealtheVet, which is located on VA's Web site at www.myhealth.va.gov.

I hope most of you have computers and access to the Internet. If not, ask a family member or friend to help you access the information you may need. I know it can be mind boggling when no phone number is listed for you to find the necessary information. Good luck. I hope this information is helpful.

Good-bye for now. God bless you and your family and God bless America.

Chicago Author Signs New Book

Chicago author and scholar Louise Knight will discuss and sign her new book, Citizen: Jane Addams and the Struggle for Democracy at the Chicago Public Library. The free program will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 6th, at 5:30 p.m. in the 7th Floor Chicago Authors Room at the Harold Washington Library Center, 400 S. State Street.

Jane Addams was the first American woman to receive the Nobel Peace Prize. In this biography, Knight writes about Ms. Addams' early development from the child of a wealthy family in rural northern Illinois, to an award-winning political activist and social philosopher.

Knight recounts how Ms. Addams broadened her horizons through reading, education and travel; and how after receiving an inheritance upon her father's death, she moved to Chicago in 1889 to co-found Hull House, Chicago's first settlement house which now enjoys a revered and international reputation as a neighborhood center for education and social gatherings.

Knight further describes how Jane Addams, tirelessly worked to bring about better working conditions in factories, expose political corruption and joined the campaign for women's rights and the right to vote. These experiences, according to Ms. Knight, solidified Ms. Addams philosophy for democracy and social activism.

For more information, call the Chicago Public Library's Press Office at (312) 747-4050.

WISCONSIN DEER HUNT: Not only is it a great tradition, a chance to renew friendships, enjoy the great outdoors, control a deer that is out of control, my family enjoys eating venison.

Here I was, for the fifty-fourth consecutive year, spending opening day of the Wisconsin gun deer season with my son-in-law Tom Noone, in a stretch of woods that brings back nothing but pleasant memories of past hunts.

This could be my last Wisconsin hunt. Surgery on the rotator-cuff in my left shoulder on July 19th has so far proved to be unsuccessful. The pain is gone, but lifting a gun or fishing rod is next to impossible. Five months of therapy will end on Dec. 19th at which time we will look into other possibilities for correcting the problem.

The first day of hunting, I had one deer pass within shooting range, but was unable to shoulder the rifle; the second day, a small buck stood long enough for me to brace the gun on a railing in my deer stand, and the fork-horn buck was mine. I was really looking for a "dry doe," one traveling without a fawn. My macho days of trying for that big buck are long gone; leave that for the guys and gals looking for a wall-hanger.

Kirby with what could be his last Wisconsin deer due to a shoulder problem.

Henry Rieckhoff, a proprietor of Mogasheen Resort on beautiful Lake Namakagon, came by and field dressed the deer; we took the mandatory photos, registered the deer and took it to be processed into tenderloins, butterfly chops, roasts and hamburger.

Henry got an eight point buck, his daughter Susan took a nice doe. Tom never got a clear shot, had to get home for a business meeting, so we cut the trip short and headed home. The deer we got processed is in Tom's freezer, to be shared by both families if I don't get my deer in Southern Illinois.

Henry and Susan had their deer and could concentrate on preparing Mogasheen Resort for the expected snowmobilers, ice fishermen, and cross country skiers. Mogasheen is a year-round resort situated in the heart of the Chequamegon National Forest near Cable, Wisconsin. For information: (715) 794-2113 or E-mail: mogres@cheqnet.net.

KANKAKEE RIVER UPDATE: "More and more Kankakee River fishermen just keep on fishin' when fall begins to turn into winter and until it's time for ice fishing. If the weather stays on the warmer side, the Kankakee River smallmouth bass will continue to feed for some time! I know they also feed when the cold arrives, but more are caught around Christmas into New Year when the waters are above freezing."

"Catches through the years by those who just keep on working the river for smallmouth bass are testimony those fish continue to feed! At one time, most people thought the bass went into total hibernation in the winter. Others swear they know they semi-hibernate as weather turns colder."

"We also hear that the smallmouth bass (and most of our river fish) feed more in the fall and early winter as they are storing up food and energy for winter when the availability of river food is at an all-season low."

"You can catch smallmouth bass at this time of the year with most of the same baits you offered to them during the summer months. Most fishermen do not use surface baits, although some smallies have been caught with top-water at some of the clear water cold weather fishing times." (Source: Ed Mullady's Sportsmen's Letter. PURINA INTRODUCES NEW SPORTING DOG WEB SITE: How often should I feed my hardworking dog? Does my dog require more calories when the weather gets colder? What items should a first aid kit for a sporting dog contain? Purina Pro Plan Dog Food has launched a new web site dedicated to the care and feeding of hardworking sporting dogs that answers all of the above and more.

Purina's web site, www.proplan.com/sportingdog, contains a wealth of information that will help working dogs reach their full potential. Updates are added to the site on an ongoing basis in order to provide additional information to sporting dog owners.

A sporting library section contains articles written by some of the country's top experts on such subjects as performance dog feeding, carbohydrate management and replacement, hydration strategies and pre-season conditioning. A Sporting Theater section contains video clips that cover everything from hydration and conditioning to hot weather care and traveling with your dog. Interviews and profiles of some of the top breeders and field trial competitors are included to help dog owners learn the tips and tactics that make them successful.

Sports Valve By: Brad Allen

Welcome again to the Sports Valve. Take a rest from the shopping for a moment or two and step inside. I just got done re-heating the last bit of Thanksgiving leftovers. Now, I'm preparing my Christmas wish list for our local sports teams.

Professional Sports Valve: Christmas wish #1 - Now that the Bears are a shoe-in for the post-season, I wish Lovie Smith would prioritize Bears fans' hopes above Kyle Orton's psyche. Give him a pat on the back for doing all he can do, but start working Rex Grossman back into the mix! 13 points won't win you many playoff games.

Christmas wish #2 - Loosen up the purse strings, Mr. Reinsdorf. Any hopes of a repeat vanish without Konercko. By the way, advantage Kenny Williams over Jim Hendry so far this offseason - again. With a limited budget a GM has to take chances and Williams' gambles have paid off. I'm betting that Thome, for instance, will at least double his lifetime Cellular Field home run total of 18 this season. As for the fuss over the departure of Rohan, come on! He's a good guy, but if you don't think that type of player grows on trees, be careful the next time you rake your lawn. Among the leaves, you're likely to see several decent fielding, .270-hitting outfielders with occasional power.

Christmas wish #3 - I wish Hendry would have a productive winter baseball meeting, which begins December 5th. To date, Hendry has shored up his bullpen with ex-White Sox pitchers to protect late inning leads that might never exist. Hitting and speed is needed. I'll settle for Furcal at short, Soriano at second, Pierre in center and either Mensch, Bradley or Giles in right. Get busy. Hey! It's not like I'm asking for Manny Ramirez and Damon Miller.

Christmas wish #4 - The Blackhawks have diplomatically arranged for the NHL Director of Officials to give Hawk players a clinic on penalty calling. I don't think such conscientiousness will assuage the wrath of the officials if that's what the Hawks are trying to do. And if you were to administer truth serum to this Director of Officials, it would be a very short seminar. He would stand up to speak and simply confess, "Hey, you guys aren't as skilled or as fast as other teams and, no matter what you do, we're going to keep the whistle in our mouths from the instant you step off the team bus before a game ... and we're going to blow on it until the pea flies out and hits you in the head while you're sitting in the box."

My wish is this ... The Hawks have a tough team if nothing else. Until they change their personnel, hit, hit and hit some more! They can't possibly be penalized any more than they already are, and intense hitting might just throw opponents off their game often enough to at least entertain a hope of making the playoffs.

Christmas wish #5 - I wish for the Bulls to keep up the good work. Skiles is getting everything he can out of that squad as evidenced by their recent stampede through Texas when they trampled San Antonio and Houston on back-to-back nights.

Amateur Sports Valve: Congratulations to the Lincoln Way East Griffins for winning the Class 8A Football State Championship in only their 5th year. Elsewhere, in ladies High School basketball, on an evening where seventeen teams throughout the area averaged just 47 points, the Providence Catholic Celtics rang up a resounding 98 points!

Sports Tip Valve: One word - Columbo! How did Columbo always nail his murder suspects? By getting them to underestimate him! That approach is incredibly applicable during sports competition. If you are a defensive end, for instance, make that blocker think he's manhandling you - at least, on plays when you are probably not going to be a factor anyway. Then, bring out the fake-and-spin at the right time.

In martial arts competition, if you deceive the opponent into thinking you have a limited arsenal, he will soon move in sloppily and be at your mercy.

In baseball, I've seen hitters swing and miss certain pitches and exaggerate how awkward and dumfounded they were supposedly made to look. However, it was merely an act designed to induce the pitcher to throw that same fat pitch in a more critical situation later on.

In hockey, how many times have you seen a goaltender show the shooter five-hole (space between the pads) simply to entice him into taking an easily savable shot?

There's just one thing I don't understand. Why strut like a peacock and talk trash like a smart aleck when all you have to do is feign stupidity to win.

Exit valve.

Amahl & The Night Visitors

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" is the perfect family experience for the holidays. This classic musical finds the young boy, Amahl, letting his imagination take away the pain of his crippled legs. He tells his mother so many fantasies that when he sees the light of a brilliant star, she does not believe him.

Enter the Three Kings. They seek shelter as they continue to follow the same star. They bring with them much gold as a gift to the place the star directs them. The plot thickens as Amahl's mother is tempted at the thought of how much good all the gold could do for her and her crippled son, Amahl.

"Amahl" is the perfect family holiday experience. It is also the type of production that every actor wants to include on his resume. Auditions found hopeful actors coming from as far north as Skokie and south to Lansing. A college student drove in from Normal. Also represented were Orland Park, Oak Lawn, Blue Island, Country Club Hills and Oak Forest.

This classic musical opens Friday, Dec. 9th and Saturday, Dec. 10th with a 7:30 p.m. curtain. The Sunday, Dec. 11th matinee has a 3:00 p.m. curtain. The production will be staged at the Performance Center of the Bethany Union Community Church located in the Beverly area, 1750 W. 103rd Street.

What also makes "Amahl" the perfect family event is the ticketing pricing. With an advance call to the Box Office: (708) 841-7396, the $12 Door Price Ticket is available for $10. Seniors and Students are $9. Children to the age of 12 are only $5. Cabaret seating will add to the comfort and enjoyment.

This is the first of the ArtCraft Theater Productions for the 2005-2006 season. The entire 5-show package includes comedy, Broadway musicals, 1940's Musical Nostalgia, a Salute to John Wayne, the Quiet Man and even a touch of Shakespeare. The 5-show subscription is only $40.

And, in keeping with the philosophy of producer, Glenn Pniewski, that theater should be family affordable, Season Subscribers may "Adopt-A-Kid." This allows the Season Subscriber to bring a young person FREE to every production. For more information on the entire 5-show season call Dan Flynn at (708) 952-0487. If you enjoyed "Amahl," you will receive full credit on your "Amahl" ticket to apply to the remaining 4 productions.

Students Help With Hurricane Cleanup

Fifteen Millikin University students will spend part of the winter break helping with hurricane cleanup in Moss Point, Miss. The students will be volunteering from Jan. 1st to 7th through the collegiate national student organization BreakAway.

The students along with two Millikin faculty advisors will be helping victims of this year's disastrous hurricane season. The Millikin group will be serving under the United Methodist Committee on Relief while working in Mississippi. The Millikin students will be helping with house construction, debris cleanup, putting tarps on roofs, business recovery activities, counseling homeowners and documenting human interest stories.

Local students among the 15 making the trip include senior Deanna Drechsler of Oak Lawn, junior Christine LaPorte of Oak Forest, and senior Rachel Wanderer of Lemont. Millikin faculty members making the trip include Mary Garrison of Bloomington, Assistant Professor of Social Work, and Dr. Larry Troy, Professor of Sociology.

Millikin's chapter of BreakAway travels during winter break to help others in need. BreakAway members are dedicated to lifelong active citizenship. In past years Millikin students have volunteered at the Anthony House Homeless Shelter in Zellwood, Fla. and worked at The Love Kitchen and Camp Grace in Pinetop/Lakeside, Ariz.

The Millikin BreakAway chapter is raising money to lessen the cost of their trip and to make a donation to the Mississippi Hurricane Recovery Fund. If you would like to make a contribution, contact Christine LaPorte at claporte@millikin.edu or mail your tax deductible gift to: Attn: BreakAway, c/o Christine LaPorte, Millikin University, 1184 W. Representative Addresses Criminal Justice Students

Illinois State Rep. Paul D. Froehlich spent some time with Northwestern Business College Criminal Justice students recently, when he visited the school's Chicago and Bridgeview campuses on Nov. 9th and 10th.

Froehlich was brought in as a guest speaker by NBC Assistant Professor Edward Hammer. "This was a great opportunity for NBC's Criminal Justice majors," Hammer stated. "The students were thrilled to hear Rep. Froehlich's interesting perspective, and learned a lot about new career options and employment opportunities."

Froehlich spoke candidly about issues such as corrections reform, and victim rights, and shared personal experiences that resulted from his years of work as a program manager in the Criminal Justice field. He also talked extensively about the rapid job growth taking place within the area of Corrections, and urged students to target this division of the Criminal Justice field in their job search.

Illinois State Rep. Froehlich's advice was essential to NBC students ready to put their career-oriented training to use in the workforce, as well as students still working towards completion of their program. This visit was memorable for everyone in attendance, and NBC is happy to have hosted such an invaluable event.

"Murphy's Giving Tree"

Cook County Commissioner Joan Patricia Murphy has joined the ongoing efforts of the Department of Child and Family Services, CEDA, Project Share and Ingalls Hospital to provide non-perishable food, new toys and other gifts to help brighten the holidays of local families in need.

Communities can make a difference in the lives of these families. Partner with Commissioner Murphy and sponsor a "Giving Tree." Start a "Giving Tree" collection drive at school, activities club, athletic team, church group or in your neighborhood. "Murphy's Giving Tree" is a great Community Service Project for students plus a wonderful way to learn the joy of giving.

Getting started is very simple. Contact Commissioner Murphy's Office to enroll in the "Giving Tree" Service Project. All groups will receive a You Make A Difference Certificate. Community service hours, if needed will be determined accordingly. Set up a Christmas tree or large tree branch in a central location. Hang new hats, gloves, slippers and socks as ornaments. Gift wrap NEW TOYS and indicate age and gender. Decorate a barrel or large container for non-perishable food items.

This year, Murphy's "Giving Tree" has added "Santa Stockings". Help by donating "Santa Stockings" stuffed with goodies and small items/toys to be enjoyed by children attending the D.C.F.S. Annual Christmas party. Stockings for all age groups, toddlers to teens are needed. Please indicate age and gender on all stockings.

Off-Track Betting Funds Grants

Two dozen Illinois museums, aquariums, park districts, conservation districts and cities will share in almost $3 million in grants funded by the operation of off-track betting parlors in the state, announced Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources Director Joel Brunsvoild recently.

In Chicago, the funds are distributed to museums and aquariums. In other areas of the state where off-track betting facilities operate, the money is made available for general purposes if the grant recipient does not maintain a museum.

"This grant is very, very important to the Village of Crestwood," said Mayor Chester Stranczek, whose village received $363,796.76 in grant money. "It provides, especially for the children, parks and picnic areas. The grant is very important to a small town because if we didn't have these parks, people would have to go out of town."

Other grant recipients from this area are: Chicago Academy of Science, $41,457.53; Chicago Adler Planetarium, $76,393.66; Art Institute of Chicago, $246,765.50; Chicago Historical Society, $76,510.11; Field Museum of Natural History, $246,765.50; John G. Shedd Aquarium, $176,893.25; Joliet Park District, $148,122.38; Mexican Fine Arts Center Museum, $25,852.72; Museum of Science & Industry, $246,765.50; Oakbrook Terrace Park District, $375,373.30.

All items collected will be delivered to local charitable organizations to be distributed directly to local families. There is no greater joy than the joy of giving, of knowing you have made someone's life a little better, a little happier. For that is the true meaning behind every "Giving Tree"

Donated items must be dropped off no later than Monday, December 19th at Commissioner Joan Murphy's District office located at 5405 W. 127th Street in Crestwood. Office hours are 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Special arrangements may be available for collection, pick-up.

We encourage your participation in "Murphy's Giving Tree" and look forward to growing strong roots in our communities as we continue to branch out to help one and other. Heating Assistance Is Now Available

State Rep. Bob Rita (D-Blue Island) is reminding low-income families that money to help keep their homes warm during the winter months is now available through the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP).

"With dramatically higher home heating bills expected this winter, many families can't spare the extra money to heat their homes," Rita said. "LIHEAP provides monetary assistance for paying home energy bills, which is especially important for households with young children and elderly residents."

LIHEAP, a state and federally funded program started in 1982, was designed to provide home energy assistance to the nation's lowest income-earners in a manner that minimizes bureaucracy by encouraging local civic organizations to assist with the program. Illinois utility companies, such as Ameren, Nicor, Peoples Energy and Commonwealth Edison, have also agreed to waive reconnection fees and security deposits for these customers.

According to the Campaign for Home Energy Assistance, the average energy burden (heating, cooling and all other energy uses) for all U.S. households in 2001 was $1,537 or 7 % of income. For recipients of LIHEAP, the average burden was $1,301 or 17.2%. Based on these statistics, LIHEAP recipients pay nearly 2.5 times their income more for energy than the average household.

"I want to make sure that everyone is able to keep their homes warm and their families safe this winter," Rita said. "Anyone who needs additional information or help applying for the program should not hesitate to contact me at my constituent service office."

Heating bills are expected to rise by up to 70% this winter. Last year, 292,075 Illinois households benefited from the program. Local LIHEAP offices determine eligibility and administer assistance, which varies based on income, household size, fuel type and geographic location. Payments are usually made directly to the utility company on the recipient's behalf.

For a LIHEAP application, city residents should contact the Chicago Department of Human Services, 1615 W. Chicago Avenue, at (312) 746-8545. Suburban residents should contact the Community and Economic Development Association of Cook County (CEDA), 208 S. LaSalle Street, Suite 1900 (LIHEAP Suite 2010) at (312) 795-8800 or (312) 795-8998.

A Healthier Chanukah

The festival of lights and the celebration of that small amount of oil that lasted eight days is a great way to remind us that a little oil can go a long way! As with most holidays we celebrate, food is an important part of Chanukah. Traditional favorites like potato latkes, dairy and noodle kugle can still be enjoyed with health in mind. Here are some tips to fit in your favorites this year:

Try preparing potato latkes with a variety of potatoes for color and added nutrition. For example, the bright orange sweet potatoes have more beta-carotene than white potatoes, and the colorful presentation will add to any table. When preparing the potatoes, make sure to strain excess moisture off prior to cooking. Reduce the amount of oil used in preparation and layer the latkes between paper towels to help absorb extra oil. The good news is that traditional olive oil is high in monounsaturated fat, which is great for the heart. Serve with fat-free sour cream and natural applesauce.

When choosing dairy products, try fat-free or 1% milk to help accommodate the fat that will be eaten during the course of the day in other holiday favorites.

Cheese blintzes can lighten up with lower fat versions of both cheese and sour cream.

Make your blintzes and jelly doughnuts smaller! Portion size can make all the difference during the holidays.

Hummus is a tasty favorite that provides great nutrition due to the traditional ingredients. In addition to fiber, using traditional olive oil adds a heart healthy monounsaturated fat to this dish.

Add fruit to noodle kugle to increase fiber and add more vitamins, minerals and phytochemicals, which are naturally occurring substances that are showing health benefits in addition to a splash of color on the table.

Balance a high fat meal with a crisp salad of mixed greens with flavorful vinegar for a lighter dressing. Enjoy the holiday favorites on the holiday and move on! Holidays come but once a year. Enjoying some seasonal treats when you typically eat a balanced healthy diet is a splurge most of us can accommodate.

Enjoying tradition with family is an important part of the holiday season. Making health a part of your celebration will help make holidays special for generations to come.

Classic New England Christmas

The town of Rockland will again put a special seaside spin on their holiday festival.

For the town's annual coastal Christmas celebration – the Rockland Festival of Lights – Santa will arrive by Coast Guard vessel, kicking off three days of revelry that includes all of the holiday season's most trademarked traditions.

Santa's arrival comes at noon on Friday, Nov. 25th, also known as Black Friday, a day when crowds of people around the nation flock to their local shopping centers in a holiday shopping frenzy.

But Roxanne Jobe, one of the event's organizers, says that Rockland will mark the day after Thanksgiving with a much more relaxed feel, ideal for family shopping and those looking to experience a friendly Maine holiday weekend.

After Santa's arrival, he will spend the afternoon in his village meeting with children and receiving wish lists. During that time, downtown businesses will be open and offering special perks like free gift wrapping to those getting a head start on their holiday gift buying.

Friday evening will end when Santa joins the town mayor to flip the candy cane switch and light the town's Christmas tree, as well as the downtown lights.

Festivities continue on Saturday when carolers and horse-drawn carriages take to the streets to spread holiday cheer. Also ongoing throughout the day is Eat, Drink and Be Merry, an informal restaurant tour showcasing the culinary skills of more than a dozen downtown restaurants.

On Saturday night, Rockland will be aglow with light as an evening parade of illuminated floats tour the town before ending in Harbor Park overlooking picturesque Rockland harbor. The parade route's end will be the home of a giant bonfire with hot chocolate, music and merriment.

Sunday features a pancake breakfast with local "celebrities" serving up flapjacks.

Later in the day, the town's historic inns will open their doors to the public, serving up treats and showing off magnificent holiday decorations. Many area inns also offer special packages for those who wish to make a weekend of the celebration.

For more information about the Rockland Festival of Lights, log onto www.therealmaine.com or call (800) 562-2529.

Top Ten Travel Tips

Wherever your next vacation may take you, heeding a few suggestions can help you stay happy and healthy on your trip. The experts at RBC Insurance, a leading provider of travel insurance and emergency assistance services, offer the following tips:

1. Keep credit cards and travelers' checks, passports and other identification in several different places. Use pockets or purses only for items you will need frequently. Otherwise, use a money belt or hotel safety deposit boxes so if your wallet is lost or stolen, you won't be left without identification or money. If you lose your passport, immediately call the nearest embassy or consulate, and the local authorities.

2. Travel arrangements are often nonrefundable, so don't risk losing your entire travel investment should something unexpected happen. Purchase cancellation and interruption insurance to help protect your investment; in case you have to cancel your trip, come home early or stay later at your destination. Make sure to carry proof of travel insurance with you, along with the company's name and phone number.

3. Check to see if any travel advisories or warnings have been issued for your destination by visiting <http://travel.state.gov>.

4. Provide your family and friends at home with a copy of your itinerary and keep them informed of any changes. Supply them with your contact information, copies of the identification page of your passport and travel insurance information.

5. Increased security at airports has led to longer waiting times. Go early to give yourself plenty of time to make your flight.

6. Make sure you're up to date on all your immunizations. Contact your doctor well in advance of your trip to see if you need any specific medication or immunizations.

7. Remember that medical treatment outside the United States can be very expensive and your health insurance or credit card may only cover a limited part of these costs. Find out exactly what you're covered for and purchase travel insurance to fill in any gaps.

8. Gastrointestinal illness is one of the most common illnesses affecting tourists. Eat foods that have been well-cooked, and fruits and vegetables that have been freshly peeled or cooked. Drink bottled or hot beverages, and avoid ice that isn't made with purified water. Wash your hands frequently and thoroughly.

9. Make sure your passport is current. Some countries require that passports be valid six months beyond expected departure dates.

10. Most importantly-relax, recharge and have a great time!

Handling The Holidays: Beyond Ordinary Time

Good-bye Thanksgiving - Hello Christmas!

We move so fast these days that time practically blurs as we race from one day's activities to the next. And that chunk of time known as The Holidays which stretches from Thanksgiving through New Year's Day rarely offers a respite, what with shopping, wrapping, decorating, cooking, partying and all the other obligations the season has come to demand. Even those of us lucky enough to have a "better half" to take on more than her fair share, it's still a big, dreaded hassle.

And these are the days we're supposed to be treasuring as precious memories? Yeah. Right!

If I sound like I'm complaining, I guess I am. We human beings are experts who are driving ourselves crazy. We manage to take something which should be wonderful, like Christmas, and instead of concentrating on celebrating its simple spiritual essence, we add on so many bells and whistles that a holy day reminding us of the birth of Jesus is barely recognizable under all the glitzy wrappings.

But I also know a solution - and a calendar can help. Not the part where we scribble all the places we are supposed to be and the things we are supposed to do, but the part that proclaims we are ready to leave behind us the liturgical season known as Ordinary Time and entering Advent, the start of a new Christian year.

I've always liked the term Ordinary Time, which actually refers to numbered or ordered time. To me, it's always seemed to be an oxymoron. Time is never really ordinary. This great gift from God is something that we can use, but never control. We can measure it, but not make it; spend it, but not save it. Time reveals to us the cycles of life from birth through growth and, ultimately, death. How extraordinary are the moments of our lives and how rarely we even notice.

Ordinary Time also reminds me of Thornton Wilder's play "Our Town." It's always been popular for school productions so I suspect you have seen some version of it. The part that sticks in my mind is near the end. Emily has died, but she's been given the opportunity to revisit a day in her life. And she finally sees the world and her part in it with the clear vision she never had in her day-to-day life. "Oh earth, you're too wonderful for anybody to realize you," Emily says. Then she asks the Stage Manager, "Do any human beings ever realize life while they live it? Every, every minute?"

Physical Activity Benefits

An unprecedented surge in research on the link between physical activity and cancer risk is transforming efforts to combat the disease, experts at the American Institute for Cancer Research (AICR) said.

The idea that regular physical activity benefits overall health is nothing new. An indirect association between physical activity and cancer risk has also been hypothesized for some time, because regular physical activity has an important role in preventing obesity. Obesity has been shown to be a risk factor for several kinds of cancer.

But the realization that activity level itself is directly linked to cancer risk is new, and is a result of an exponential growth in research that shows no sign of leveling off, according to AICR.

Evidence is currently strongest for colon and breast cancer and slightly less strong for endometrial cancer, say AICR experts. Because the research on prostate and lung cancer has been less consistent, links to these cancers are still graded "possible."

But AICR urged food marketers not to see the recent spate of findings as license to promote exercise alone, without regard to portion size, value marketing and other issues that contribute to U.S. obesity.

Karen Collins, R.D., AICR Nutrition Advisor, said that although there is clear evidence that physical activity is beneficial at any weight, exercise alone cannot compensate for the additional risk posed by being overweight.

"Positive messages about exercise are great, but they can't exist in a vacuum. Extra weight means extra cancer risk, and the best way to lose weight is to combine increased activity with reduced caloric consumption," Collins said.

She urged the public to examine recently stepped up efforts by food marketers to promote physical activity against a long history of food industry efforts to promote overconsumption.

"Messages about activity must always be paired with messages about choosing healthy foods in appropriate amounts," she said.

Just two decades ago, the association between activity level and cancer risk was purely theoretical. Since then, the number of studies on the activity-cancer link published in peer-reviewed journals has roughly doubled every five years and that pace is now quickening, according to an AICR review of the literature.

Well over 100 studies tracking cancer rates and physical activity levels in human populations were published between 2001 and 2005. Over half of these appeared in the last two years. Visit www.aicr.org/activity to read an in-depth summary of the research.

"No," he answers. "The saints and poets, maybe - they do some."

No, we don't usually realize the miracle of life while we're living it. We worry about it or complain about it, but appreciate every second of life God grants us? Not very much. That's why we plunge headlong through the days and seasons of our lives.

It strikes me that Advent would be a good opportunity to slow down, to examine the way we fill our days - to "realize life." After all, Advent means "coming" and it's our time to look forward to the coming of the Christ Child into our world, the time to think about ourselves and our relationship with God; to consider all that faith and hope and love mean to us and those dear to us.

By focusing on Christmas through the lens of Advent, we can prepare to welcome the Holy Child in His good time - and ours. And maybe, like the saints and poets, we, too, will realize life.

Warming Centers Available

As part of his Keep Warm Illinois campaign, Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced on Nov. 27th that he would make 122 state facilities available as Warming Centers starting December 1, 2005. The Warming Centers will provide Illinoisans a place to stay warm and comfortable if they turn down their thermostats during the day to lower their heating bills. Gov. Blagojevich will also send a letter tomorrow to all 1,116 Mayors in the Illinois Municipal League asking them to assist in this important effort by identifying suitable buildings that can serve as additional Warming Centers in their communities.

In his letter to the Municipal League members, Gov. Blagojevich urged mayors to reach out to local service agencies, community centers, churches, schools, libraries, hospital and other organizations to ask that their facilities be made available to local residents this winter.

As part of the Governor's Keep Warm Illinois campaign, the Department of Human Services (DHS) will open their 116 local offices statewide to the public and the Illinois Tollway will make the six Tollway oases in northern Illinois available as warming centers. State officials are encouraging Illinoisans to use these warming centers to help lower their heating bills. Homeowners can save approximately 3% on their energy costs for every degree the thermostat is lowered, although they should not be any lower than 55 degrees.

Last month, Gov. Blagojevich launched the Keep Warm Illinois campaign, a multi-agency, comprehensive effort to help families reduce their heating bills by conserving energy and weatherizing their homes, and offering warming centers throughout the state. The list of warming centers locations is available at the Keep Warm Illinois website www.KeepWarmIllinois.gov or at the Keep Warm Illinois hotline 1-(877) 411-WARM.

Warming centers will be located at DHS facilities and will be open during normal business hours, Monday through Friday.

Curator Interprets Paintings

Benedictine University art curator Fr. Michael Komechak, O.S.B. will interpret six scenes from the life of St. John the Baptist portrayed by 15th century Sienese master painter Giovanni de Paolo at 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 13th at St. Joseph Church in Downers Grove.

The six scenes, displayed together at the Art Institute of Chicago, depict St. John as a young man entering the wilderness, identifying Jesus as the Lamb of God, the imprisoned St. John visited by two disciples, Salome at a dinner party asking Herod for the head of St. John on a platter, the beheading of St. John and the head of St. John brought before Herod.

All scenes are based exclusively on Gospel texts related to St. John. Fr. Michael will describe the artistic achievement of these scenes and explain their spiritual meaning.

St. Joseph Church is located at 4824 Highland Avenue, one block east of Main Street and just north of the railroad tracks in downtown Downers Grove.

Tinley Park Man Dies In Car Crash

Michael Ingrassia, 28, of Tinley Park, died of an apparent heart attack on Friday, Nov. 25th, after he pulled his car over to the side of the road at 171st and LaGrange Road. His call to 911 was cut off according to reports and when an off-duty EMT found him, he was unresponsive.

Paramedics tried to revive him, but he was pronounced dead just before 2 p.m. at Palos Community Hospital.

The young man had spent Thanksgiving Day with his family. According to his father, who said that Ingrassia did have a history of heart related problems and heart surgery, reported that he seemed fine at the holiday celebration.

Ingrassia was a graduate of Richards High School in Oak Lawn. He was working as an assistant loan officer at Integrity First Mortgage. He was living with his girlfriend in an apartment near 167th St. and Oak Park Ave.

His girlfriend, Dianne Sisk, reported that Ingrassia didn't have any major health problems since his surgery. When she left for work, he was not ill, she said.

Funeral services were pending and being arranged by Colonial Chapels.

New Metabolic Syndrome Findings

A high level of fitness may extend the lives of women with metabolic syndrome, according to new findings presented today by a cardiologist at Northwestern Memorial Hospital at the annual American Heart Association Scientific Sessions.

Researchers followed nearly 6,000 women who had no signs of heart disease when the study launched in 1992. Over the next nine years, those with metabolic syndrome were 57% more likely to die than those who didn't have the cluster of risk factors that defines metabolic syndrome.

But when researchers controlled the study for women with metabolic syndrome who had higher level of cardiorespiratory fitness, this elevated risk nearly disappeared—both overall deaths and deaths specific to heart disease fell to rates similar to those of the group of women without metabolic syndrome.

Cardiorespiratory fitness can be determined by measuring the maximal oxygen uptake for a given workload and can be expressed in metabolic equivalents (METs). One MET is defined as the energy it takes to sit quietly. This study defined higher levels of cardiorespiratory fitness as women who are able to perform at greater than 8 METs (approximate to being able to run a mile in 12 minutes or faster).

Metabolic syndrome, which increases the risk of cardiovascular disease and diabetes, is defined as having three or more of the following risk factors: a waist circumference of greater than 35 inches in women; high blood pressure; elevated triglycerides; low levels of high-density lipoprotein (HDL); or high fasting glucose levels.

In August of this year, a related study by Dr. Gulati was published in the New England Journal of Medicine which found that otherwise healthy women whose exercise capacity was less than 85% the age-predicted value had twice the risk of death compared to women reaching at least 85%.

Born Alive Infants Protection

Concerned Women for America (CWA) of Illinois celebrates a new state law that protects infants who are born alive regardless of the circumstances. The Born Alive Infants Protection Act, recently signed by Governor Blagojevich, without ceremony and no media attention, now defines babies who are born alive regardless of the circumstances, as human beings under Illinois law.

Background. Nurse Jill Stanek heroically blew the whistle on Christ Hospital in suburban Oak Lawn, over six years ago and began working to change the law. After forced premature delivery abortions at Christ Hospital, babies were often born alive and left to die, sometimes in a soiled utility room.

In 2002, a federal Born Alive Infants Protection law, passed unanimously in the U.S. Senate and with little opposition in the House, was signed by President George W. Bush. Stanek's congressional committee testimonies were instrumental in that effort.

In the last legislative session, Representative Brandon Phelps and Senator William Haine successfully carried the bill through a bumpy ride in the General Assembly and on to the Governor's desk where it was signed on Aug. 12.

Serving as CWA of Illinois Pro-Life Coordinator, Nurse Stanek noted, "We are happy this law has finally been signed. It's been a long time coming. It's critical that all born alive babies are fully protected under both federal and state laws. The Born Alive Infants Protection Act will be vital to protecting babies and to re-establishing a 'culture of life' in Illinois."

Concerned Women for America of Illinois applauds this new state law and will continue to work toward that end.

Concerned Women for America is the nation's largest public policy women's organization.

"Keep Warm Illinois" Workshops

Moraine Valley will host "Keep Warm Illinois" workshops on Tuesday, Dec. 13, and Tuesday, Jan. 10, at 7 p.m. both days, in the college's Valley West Room (D236), second floor, Building D, on campus, 9000 W. College Parkway, Palos Hills. "Keep Warm Illinois" is a state-wide program that educates citizens about important do-it-yourself tips and energy-saving strategies to help reduce homeowners' and renters' heating bills this season.

Through a variety of conservation and weatherization techniques, participants will learn about cost-conscious home energy efficiency including information about insulation, weatherization, heating, water heating, energy-efficient appliances, and lighting.

The Moraine Valley "Keep Warm Illinois" workshop is part of a series of workshops Illinois community colleges are hosting in conjunction with the Department of Commerce and Economic Opportunity. Gov. R. Blagojevich is urging residents to participate in the "Keep Warm Illinois" workshops because with record natural gas prices anticipated for this winter's heating season, Illinois households will face significantly higher utility bills. While every family in Illinois will be affected, higher home heating costs will create a particular hardship for senior citizens and families already struggling to get by. Energy professionals throughout

Illinois have volunteered to lead the workshops, which will last approximately one hour and include written materials, a video presentation and a question-and-answer period. A limited number of coupons for a free programmable thermostat also will be available. For more information about the "Keep Warm Illinois," visit www.keepwarm.illinois.gov

Chicago Mother Acquitted

Chicagoan Victoria Travis was acquitted Thursday, Nov. 30th of attempted first-degree murder and aggravated battery charges stemming from a Sept. 2003 incident involving Oak Lawn clothing store assistant manager, Chadale Cathery.

Travis, 33, stabbed Cathery, 27, with a knife five times during an altercation in a DOTS store. Travis claimed that she was defending her 8-year-old autistic son. Allegedly,

Cathery had struck the boy and then headed toward Travis.

Cathery, who has a prison record, contended that she never touched the child, but was merely attempting to determine who the child belonged to because the boy was supposedly playing on a clothing rack which was about to topple over.

Travis, who is a banker and mother of three, expressed relief over the decision.

Eagle Scout Project

Zack Banko, from Troop 780 in Alsip, has attained what few young men accomplish: the rank of Eagle Scout. (Only 3 to 4 percent of Scouts achieve this rank.) His journey to this summit was never easy, and involved determination, planning and execution. Banko, however, is quick to point out that, "The project was hard while we were going through all of the steps and stages, but it really paid off."

The project certainly did "pay off" for the Crisis Center for South Suburbia. As a result of Banko's special collection drive, 20 large boxes of much needed items such as new blankets, sheets, baby items, towels, kitchen supplies and linens were delivered to the shelter. Items that were gently used were delivered to Neat Repeats Resale - 26 bags and 26 boxes of clothes, housewares and toys.

"This young man is certainly going to go places," noted the Crisis Center's executive director, Edward Vega. "His discipline, determination and drive - combined with his desire to make a difference - are admirable qualities. When I met him and spoke with him I could not believe he is a first-year high school student. He is a very mature young man. I look forward to hearing about his accomplishments well into the future."

To achieve the accomplishment of Eagle Scout, Banko researched various projects, sought approval from the district leader, created a plan, and then focused his drive to one subdivision - passing out flyers and arranging to pick up donated items one week later.

"We couldn't believe the amount, and the quality, of the items that were donated. We decided to separate everything and deliver only new items to the shelter, and those that were gently used to Neat Repeats. This way, the Crisis Center benefits either way," explained Banko's mother Pat.

When asked why he chose the Crisis Center to benefit from his Eagle project, Banko explained that he saw another article in the paper about donating things to the Crisis Center, and he wanted to help the women and children who come to the shelter. Banko also wants his project to encourage other Scouts to think about working toward the Eagle rank. "It is a lot of work, but you just have to keep focused and don't give up."

In addition to his involvement in Scouting, Banko is an excellent student at Shepard High School, where he is on the Student Council and the soccer team.

Scholarship Awarded

Nicte Aguilar-Arrigada, Maria High School senior and Bridgeport resident, received the HACIA scholarship at an Awards Luncheon on Nov. 3rd. The event took place at the Chicago Hilton & Towers in downtown Chicago.

A total of 22 high schools presented candidates for the awards, out of which 6 were Catholic. Four students received the awards: 3 from public schools and one from a Catholic school, Nicte Aguilar-Arrigada. "I was very happy to hear the news; since I want to pursue a double major, communications & theater, I certainly need the support from organizations like HACIA. HACIA is doing a great thing for young Latinos and Latinas," Nicte said.

This is the 3rd consecutive year that Maria's young women received the HACIA scholarship. These young women are now successfully pursuing college careers at prestigious universities like Harvard, University of Chicago and Northwestern University.

As Chicagoans begin to purchase wrapping paper and decorate their Christmas trees, the City of Chicago is pleased to announce the date has been set for the city's annual after the holidays recycling event, "Turn Green into Blue."

Chicagoans will be able to recycle their Christmas tree or a bag of recyclables at one of 23 locations on Saturday, Jan. 7th between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. In exchange for participating, Chicagoans will be given a year's supply of blue bags while supplies last. They will also be able to pick up a bag of mulch and a blue spruce sapling.

The trees brought to parks for recycling are placed into a chipper and turned into reusable mulch. To avoid damaging the chipping machine, residents are asked to remove all lights, ornaments, tinsel, wiring and other materials from their tree before recycling.

Bandit Sentenced

South Sider, Keith L. Washington, a former prison counselor and a man who was not many credits shy of a degree at Chicago State University, was sentenced to nine years in prison after U.S. District Judge James Holderman pronounced him guilty on thirteen counts of bank robbery.

Nicknamed by the FBI as the Bandaged Bandit, before each heist, Washington would conceal his face with gauze to hide a skin condition that left him badly scarred and easily identifiable.

Washington stated that his bank robbery spree, which began in December of 2003 and spanned the south side and southwest suburbs, was triggered by desperation. Already taking care of his pregnant fiancé and her young son and facing eviction, Washington took on the added financial burden of his cancer patient mother, all of which coincided with a cut in pay at his job.

Stroger Urges State Funding Of Judiciary

Cook County Board President John H. Stroger, Jr. recently concurred with recent efforts of the Illinois Judges Assn., Illinois State Bar Assn. and the Chicago Bar Assn. to seek adequate funding from the State of Illinois for the court system.

"Illinois is way behind the rest of the nation to ensure appropriate funding for its court system. More than 30 other states have figured out how to make this a reality. Illinois needs to be next," said Stroger.

In 1964, Illinois created a unified state court system that abolished the municipal court system. Prior to this change, each municipality, including Chicago, operated and funded its own court system. As a result of that change, Cook County Government today operates one of the largest court systems in the world with more than 300 courtrooms and 1.7 million cases filed annually.

"When this change occurred, the state provided little in terms of financial resources. That meant that counties were on their own to fund the court system making it likely one of the largest unfunded mandates in the history of Illinois and subject to available local resources," said Stroger.

The Illinois Judges Association's latest effort focuses on convincing the state that funding the court system would allow for a 'modern and efficient' court system fair to all its citizens and is a 'necessary step to maintain the judiciary as an independent branch of government.' The Association argues that in many counties throughout Illinois, one murder trial can easily absorb the court's allocated resources for that year.

In the case of Cook County, annual spending on the court system exceeds $600 million, with more than $170 million appropriated to the Chief Judge's office.

"This is not a simple solution and one that will likely take some time to achieve. But I stand here today to tell you that court-related costs in Cook County will continue to rise and continue to be a financial burden on our taxpayers unless something is done soon," said Stroger.

Lipinski Fights Gas Gouging

Congressman Dan Lipinski (IL-03) has taken action to tackle gas price gouging.

"I have joined Rep. Bart Stupak (MI-01) and several of my colleagues in introducing The Federal Response to Energy Emergencies Act of 2005 (H.R. 3936)," said Congressman Lipinski. "This legislation will help protect consumers from gas price gouging."

H.R. 3936 will give the President the authority to take immediate action in the face of an energy crisis by declaring a national energy emergency. It will provide the Federal Trade Commission with the authority to investigate and prosecute those that engage in predatory pricing - from oil companies on down to local gas stations - with an emphasis on those who profit most. The bill will also increase transparency in the whole sale petroleum market to prevent anti-competitive pricing practices.

H.R. 3936 was referred to the House Committee on Energy and Commerce and the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

Biggert Presents Funds For Grasslands

U.S. Rep. Judy Biggert (R-IL-13) recently presented officials from the Forest Preserve District of Cook County and the Village of Orland Park with $225,000 in federal funding for the Orland Grassland restoration project, a key ecosystem restoration project in the 13th District. At Biggert's request, the funding was included in the Energy and Water Development Appropriations Conference Report, which was signed into law by the President on Nov. 19th.

"The Orland Grassland restoration cannot be completed and reach its full ecological potential without this additional funding," Biggert said. "Few protected sites in northeastern Illinois can match the size, scale and habitat value of the Orland Grassland. The sooner the project is completed, the faster my constituents throughout the area can enjoy the restored natural beauty."

This is the second consecutive year that Biggert secured funding for the Orland Grasslands, which enjoys substantial local support from the communities and residents, as well as the support of regional conservation organizations. A longtime supporter of the Orland Grassland project, Biggert secured $210,000 and $225,000 for the project for fiscal years 2005 and 2006, respectively.

The Orland Grassland is owned by the Cook County Forest Preserve and is located on the 960-acre tract in Orland Township bordered by LaGrange Rd. on the east, 104th Ave. on the west, 167th St. on the north, and 179th St. on the south. The project is a joint, local-federal project designed to restore the area to its original prairie grassland ecosystem.

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

Last week former Illinois Governor Jim Edgar and his fellow Republican faithful got their Christmas gifts early as State Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka announced her candidacy for the state's highest office. Topinka has been a GOP stalwart, serving the citizens of Illinois for over 25 years and a favorite of Gov. Edgar for some time now.

While announcing his candidacy, Topinka made a number of promises which she states she will keep if elected. They include: the restoration of fiscal responsibility, auditing state government to identify waste and inefficiencies and make recommendations on streamlining state government.

In addition to her fiscal concerns for the state, Topinka plans to invest in the future of Illinois, outlining a plan to ensure the state's educational systems serve students from all income levels.

According to Topinka, "Children will be a priority of the Topinka administration. We will do a better job caring for and protecting our most vulnerable. A Topinka Administration will make education - all of education - a top priority. The state's education responsibility does not begin in kindergarten and end in high school. We must recognize the importance of early childhood education."

Topinka also shared her views on providing fiscally responsible health care for Illinois citizens, emphasizing preventative care.

Topinka began her political career as a State Representative from the Western Suburbs in 1980. She served two terms in the Illinois House before making a successful bid for the State Senate in 1984, where she served as State Senator for 10 years.

In November of 1994, Judy Baar Topinka became the first woman in Illinois history to be elected Illinois State Treasurer. She has since been re-elected in 1998 and 2002, becoming the first State Treasurer to win three consecutive terms.

U.S. Senator Dick Durbin (D-IL) alerted All Points that he is pleased that two provisions he authored to assist veterans were included in the final version of the Military Construction and Veterans Affairs Appropriations Conference Report which passed in the Senate recently. Illinois' junior senator, Barack Obama (D-IL), was a co-sponsor of both provisions.

The first provision will prevent the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) from proceeding with a review of the 72,000 cases where veterans receive the maximum amount of the post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) disability compensation until the department presents Congress with a detailed report. Most importantly, the provision prevents the VA from cutting veterans' benefits as a result of this review, unless there is evidence of fraud.

Earlier this month, the VA had announced that it had suspended such a review after pressure from Durbin and Obama, who expressed concern that veterans will face cuts in benefits and services.

The second provision will require the VA to notify veterans living in states such as Illinois with below-average disability compensation about the history of past under-compensation. The information campaign will be conducted in states whose average annual disability compensation payment was less than $7,300. In 2003, Illinois veterans received an average of $6,802. The information campaign will provide veterans living in these states with instructions for submitting new claims and requesting interviews.

Former State Representative and Palos Township Republican Committeeman Ann Zickus has alerted All Points that the Palos Township Republican Organization has John Minogue (of Palos Hills) as her successor. Zickus cited Minogue's hard work in developing a more effective Republican Party at the grass roots level as a deciding factor in the Cook County Republican Party's appointing Mr. Minogue to fill her unexpired term.

On Friday, Dec. 9th at 6:30 p.m., Committeeman John Minogue will host a Christmas meet and greet at the Mairs-Meyer American Legion Banquet Hall, 11001 S. Depot St. in Worth. All are welcome and grab bag gifts are requested. Non-perishable food items will also be collected for donation to local charitable food pantries.

John Minogue wishes to invite any citizens interested in building the Republican organization to contact him at (708) 599-4314.

The CBAI Foundation for Community Banking has announced its 2006 Annual Scholarship Program, which enables Illinois high school seniors to enter a statewide essay-writing contest. The goal of the program, sponsored by CBAI member banks and thrifts, is to increase public awareness of community banks and their contributions.

Again this year, the 20th anniversary of the program, the total amount of money offered is $16,500. A scholarship in the amount of $1,000 a year for up to four years of higher education will be awarded to the author of the best essay submitted to the CBAI Foundation by a participating Illinois high school senior. As many as 12 additional $1,000 awards are available, one in each of the remaining 12 CBAI-designated regions of the state. An additional $500 will be awarded to the high school of the statewide recipient.

All high school seniors, regardless of their financial need or plans for higher education, may participate via a sponsoring CBAI member bank. To acquire a list of participating CBAI member banks, visit their website at www.cbai.com. Remember, entries must be received by the CBAI Foundation via the sponsoring bank by Monday, Feb. 13th, 2006 to be eligible for judging. Scholarship funds will be awarded in April and May.

CBAI, a professional trade association, representing approximately 500 Illinois banks and thrifts, is headquartered in Springfield.

The Illinois Student Assistance Commission (ISAC) will again eliminate the guarantee fee on educational loans borrowed through the Federal Family Education Loan program and guaranteed by ISAC. The agency will waive the fee on all loans distributed on or after Jan. 1st, 2006 through Dec. 31st, 2006. Eliminating the fee will reduce students' costs of borrowing money to pay for a college education.

By federal law ISAC is authorized to collect a one percent fee on student loans to subsidize the agency's provision of loan insurance for borrowers. The Commission has chosen to waive the fee for borrowers since 1999 to ensure that more loan proceeds are available to apply towards students educational costs.

ISAC's student loan programs support and pay for all the agency's program administration and outreach activities focused on helping Illinois students and families gain access to a college education. For information, contact ISAC toll-free at 800-899-ISAC (4722) or visit the comprehensive college planning Website, CollegeZone.com.

Think Twice Before Giving Pet As A Gift

If you're thinking about giving a pet as a Christmas gift this season, animal experts have two words of advice about the idea: Think twice.

Giving pets as a gift can often be a present the recipient doesn't want, and both the animal and the owner end up unhappy, says Dr. Bonnie Beaver, an animal behavior expert at Texas A&M University in the College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences.

In a word, pets aren't like fruitcakes, something to be handed out that no one wants and is eventually discarded.

"If you think you might want to give someone a pet, make very sure the recipient wants a pet," Beaver says. "A person getting a pet as a gift should know about it beforehand and should be in the decision making process. He or she should have a say in the selection of the animal that the person will have for the next 10 to 15 years."

Another reason to think twice about giving a pet as a Christmas gift deals with the calendar — it's not the best time of year for dogs and cats as stocking stuffers because of wires and decorations.

Electrical cords are more prevalent at Christmas and these are often chewed on by puppies or kittens. Christmas tinsel can be an attractive toy but one that is deadly for animals if they swallow it, and plants such as the poinsettia can harm animals if they should chew on the ever-present red leaves.

"Often at this time of year, people haven't had a chance yet to 'kitty-proof' or 'puppy-proof' their homes," she continues. "Puppies and kittens like to eat things they shouldn't, and there are lots of these untouchables around at Christmastime. You have to be more careful about things left out than at other times of the year."

Beaver says if you are considering giving someone a pet, especially a child, show the recipient a picture of a pet at a pet store and let he or she go later to select one, or give a gift coupon to the person for a selection at a later date.

Sometimes giving a stuffed toy to a youngster lets the child know a pet is coming and he or she can be part of the decision on which one to select.

"If the child doesn't like the pet, the parents wind up caring for it, which often they don't want to do," she adds.

Unwanted pets at Christmas usually show up at animal shelters a few months later, Beaver believes.

"It usually takes a couple of months for the recipient to determine the pet is not something he or she wants to keep, and it's in the early spring that shelters see an increase in animals coming through their doors. The novelty has worn off and the animal is no longer wanted. A pet should be something people enjoy, and with holiday stress and not much time during Christmas, a pet is often just not a very sensible gift."

Composers Join Symphony Orchestra

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra announced that two leading international composers - Osvaldo Golijov and Mark-Anthony Turnage - will each join the Chicago Symphony Orchestra as Mead Composers-in-Residence for two-year residencies, spanning the orchestra's 2006-07 and 2007-08 concert seasons.

Golijov and Turnage succeed Augusta Read Thomas, the CSO's current Mead Composer-in-Residence, who concludes her impressive nine-year tenure with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in June 2006. As part of their residencies with the CSO, both Golijov and Turnage will have individual works programmed on the Chicago Symphony Orchestra's main subscription series and will work with CSO musicians to curate two MusicNOW new music concerts per season in collaboration with artistic staff and Cliff Colnot, MusicNOW's principal conductor. As Mead Composers-in-Residence, each artist will serve as an active advocate for the music of our time: interacting with CSO audiences and encouraging the exploration of new works of music; participating in pre-concert conversations and educational events, both at Symphony Center and in the community; and providing important counsel on CSO commissioning activities and the programming of contemporary works.

American-based Argentinean composer Osvaldo Golijov (b. 1960) captured international attention in 2000 with the premiere of his La Pasión según San Marcos, a dramatic work for orchestra and chorus, filled with an inspired blend of Spanish, Latin American and Jewish musical influences. Golijov grew up in Argentina, the son of Jewish immigrants from Eastern Europe. As a young man, he was surrounded by the sounds of classical music, Jewish religious and folk (klezmer) music, and the "new tango" of the great Argentine musician Astor Piazzolla - all of which had a great influence on his artistic development and compositions. Golijov moved to Israel in 1983, and then to the United States in 1986. Since 1991, he has been an associate professor at College of the Holy Cross, and he also serves on the faculties of the Boston Conservatory and the Tanglewood Music Center. His music is performed regularly by the most prestigious ensembles and artists around the world, including musicians such as Robert Spano; Miguel Harth-Bedoya; Dawn Upshaw; the Kronos, St. Lawrence, and Borromeo quartets; and orchestras such as the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Los Angeles Philharmonic. As part of his musical explorations, he has also collaborated with the gypsy band Taraf de Haidouks, Mexican rock band Café Tacuba, klezmer master David Krakauer, tabla virtuoso Zakir Hussain, and Argentinean musician and producer Gustavo Santaolalla. In January/February 2006, New York's Lincoln Center will present "The Passion of Osvaldo Golijov," a festival featuring multiple performances of Ainadamar, major works, and chamber music; late night concerts of tango and klezmer music; and a program at the Film Society of Lincoln Center. Golijov's works have been recorded on Nonesuch, Sony Classical, Hansler Classics, Naxos, Koch, and EMI. In addition, he has also composed music for film and is currently at work on a soundtrack for a new movie to be directed by Francis Ford Coppola.

British composer Mark-Anthony Turnage (b. 1960) is one of the most admired and widely performed composers of his generation. Turnage's highly inventive compositional style - which incorporates his love of jazz and themes inspired by a wide range of interests and concerns, including literature, the arts, politics, and everyday life - results in works with a dramatic musical language that is distinctly his own. A former student of Oliver Knussen and John Lambert at London's Royal College of Music, Turnage has achieved recognition both in the concert hall and the opera house, first attracting attention for the premiere of his opera Greek at the Munich Biennale Festival in 1988. He has served as composer-in-association with the City of Birmingham Orchestra, English National Opera, London Philharmonic Orchestra, and the BBC Symphony Orchestra and has worked closely with a long list of conductors, classical music groups, and jazz musicians with whom he has made significant recordings of his works. His collaborators have included conductors Sir Simon Rattle, Sir Andrew Davis, and Leonard Slatkin; jazz musicians John Scofield and Peter Erskine; saxophonist Martin Robertson; soloists Evelyn Glennie, Hakan Hardenberger, Christian Lindberg, and Yuri Bashmet; as well as the Berlin Philharmonic, Ensemble Modern, London Sinfonietta, and the Nash Ensemble. Turnage's music is recorded on the Decca, EMI, Deutsche Grammophon, Chandos, and Black Box labels. His recent recording, Scorched, co-written with John Scofield and released by Deutsch Grammophon, was nominated for two 2005 Grammy Awards.

Details of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra's 2006-07 season, including complete information about composer residencies with Osvaldo Golijov and Mark-Anthony Turnage, will be announced in February 2006.

Tall Ships To Set Sail In Chicago

The City of Chicago announces the return of the largest Tall Ships festival in the Great Lakes, when more than 20 vessels sail into Chicago this summer for Tall Ships Chicago 2006, Aug. 3rd to 9th. The festival brings the vessels to the shores of Lake Michigan docking along the Chicago River, Navy Pier and DuSable Harbor, providing a display that will be reminiscent of the majestic lakefront of the 1800s.

Tall Ships Chicago 2006 celebrates Chicago's rich maritime history and new waterfront developments by bringing this spectacular array of ships to Chicago with its incomparable skyline as the backdrop. In 2003 nearly 2 million people participated in Tall Ships Chicago.

On Thursday, Aug. 3rd, the festival kicks off with a breathtaking Parade of Sail, culminating in the ships docking in the three festival sites. Beginning Friday, Aug. 4th through Wednesday, Aug. 9th, festival attendees will have the opportunity to board vessels to learn about the ships and experience the sailing life (vessels remain docked). Festival grounds are free admission and boarding passes will be available for sale in advance of the event or at the festival grounds.

New this year, sailing enthusiasts will have an opportunity to purchase tickets for a "Sail Away," aboard selected vessels. Trips sailing in Lake Michigan will feature educational and entertaining rides, offering unique views of the city's skyline and fun for the entire family to enjoy.

Tall Ships Chicago 2006 is presented by the City of Chicago, Navy Pier and the Chicago Park District. For more information, visit www.tallshipschicago.net or call (312) 744-3315.

Winter Delights In Chicago

The concert series "Behind Glass Doors" returns to the Pritzker Pavilion in Millennium Park during Winter Delights with five free performances from Jan. 15th through Feb. 26th highlighting Chicago's rich history of jazz, gospel and blues music. Every Sunday afternoon from 3:30 to 5 p.m. (unless otherwise noted) features a one-of-a-kind concert as a special part of Winter Delights. Each concert focuses on a different aspect of the genre by celebrating both local talent and national performers.

Opening day, Jan. 15th, starts the series with a Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Birthday Commemoration. Delores Washington and Annette "Queenie" Lenox, accompanied by Eddie Robinson, honor the great civil rights leader with a tribute to gospel legend Mahalia Jackson.

The following week, Jan. 22nd, offers Chicago Jazz Jams: A Tribute to Little Brother. Erwin Helfer and Barrelhouse Chuck inspire with their own unique perspective on "Little Brother" Montgomery's blend of jazz and blues music during the 1950s in Chicago.

The Chicago Foundation puts forward some Delta roots with the performance of David "Honey Boy" Edwards on Feb. 5th. At the young age of 90, Edwards returns to his "Sweet Home Chicago" as an international performer, multiple award winner and one of the original performers of acoustic Delta blues-style guitar.

Blues Had a Baby and Called It Rock N Roll, don't miss guitarist and singer James "Blood" Ulmer performing on Feb. 12th. Ulmer's distinct blend of jazz, blues and rock and roll comes from his unique sound playing the electric guitar and soulful singing.

Join jazz musician Henry Butler in Going to Mardi Gras on Feb. 19th. Get ready for a New Orleans-style celebration with Butler's powerful piano and vocal performances that draw in elements of jazz, blues and R&B.

Two special performances for Winter Delights 2006 will move to the Harold Washington Library. In the spirit of legendary blues man Big Bill Hill who sang about "down in the basement, sittin' on an orange crate," these two events will not only include musical performances, but in-depth chats with the artist conducted by Blues Festival Coordinator Barry Dolins.

The first performance "down in the basement" is on Jan. 27th from noon to 1 p.m. and features jazz and blues great Elis Marsalis for an afternoon of the blues.

Then on Feb. 26th from 3 to 4:30 p.m. it's The Blues are All Right. Originally scheduled to close out the "Behind Glass Doors" series, blues greats Artie "Blues Boy" White and the friends of Little Milton, Tyrone Davis and Detroit Jr. perform a testimonial to the tradition and heritage of the Blues.

StreetMoves Is Moving In

Lia Montelongo (pictured), the creator of StreetMoves has just relocated back to her hometown on the south side of Chicago. After living in California for over four years and accomplishing many dance and fitness career goals, Lia felt now was the right time to pack up her things and come back home. She wanted to be able to dive even further into making her dreams come true. So, she packed up her clothes and dog, Storm, into her little car and drove 3,000 miles back to live with her mother in Merrionette Park in hopes to be able to open her first StreetMoves Dance Studio.

Lia has found a studio space in her hometown literally two blocks from the park where she first began her dance career on the Mt. Greenwood Colts. At a young age she learned the importance of self-discipline and teamwork. Lia has been involved in dance and fitness for over 15 years.

While working through many personal obstacles, physical, financial and pushing herself when she thought she couldn't do it anymore, she always felt a guiding hand along the way. Lia is passionate about kids, fitness and dance. She has volunteered since the age of 17 and has worked with numerous inner city programs. She has taught all over the country while developing StreetMoves, which is her style of hip hop dance combined with fitness fun-da-mentals to create a balanced body and fun for everyone.

Lia has been featured in magazines, on sports' shows and has even held her own workshops. She has been fortunate to have worked with thousands of students and choreographed hundreds of pieces.

Lia has made huge strides, as she is a well-recognized National Fitness Champion, Women's Tri-Fitness Champion and has been featured in numerous fitness magazines. She is currently filming her very own "How to Hip Hop Dance" DVD Series and is recording her first album "Come-n-Dance."

Lia says, "I am a self taught dancer, performer and choreographer. As a little girl I would dance in the park or in my garage and make up different moves to the music. It was just in me to do. There weren't any dance studio's close by to take classes and we really didn't have the money to do it. So when I came back home to my old neighborhood and saw that there was still such a need for a positive outlet for the kids, I just knew this was what I had to do! Being involved in fitness competitions at the age of 19 motivated me to get off the streets and stay out of trouble. It was a perfect outlet to utilize my God given talents and feel successful. I am committed to building StreetMoves as a community within a community. A safe place for kids to dance, sing, make music, write songs and even take fitness classes. This studio will be filled with possibilities and opportunities. I look forward to the future of StreetMoves!"

Currently, StreetMoves is preparing for a Holiday Fundraiser event, "Stella Starlight." Lia hopes to keep the doors open at Dance on One-Eleven located at 3333 W. 111th St. Suite D, as StreetMoves will call this home base as of Jan. 1st. StreetMoves needs to raise money and the community's awareness of this one of a kind studio. Open registration is Monday through Friday from 3 to 5 p.m. for StreetMoves "Where the World of Fitness Meets the Force of Dance. Moving Your Body & Soul."

StreetMoves will offer technical dance classes such as ballet, jazz, modern, tap and Irish as well as specialty classes like Senior Stretch and Mom's Can Dance 2. The StreetMoves classes will include B-Boy's only Breakdance, G-Girl's only Breakdance, The Band Jam and so much more.

Lia Montelongo would like to give a special thanks to the Original Dance Crew: Emily, Angela, Cathleen, Ashley C., Alicia, Ashley H. C.C., Renee, Shauna, Chris, Deanna, Sherman, Sam, Brittney, Lil' Chris, and to all the new dancers that will be a part of the holiday fundraiser event, "Stella Starlight." Lia says, "I couldn't have done any of this without them! I am so proud of this dance troupe. These kids are so talented! I can't wait until the show! I would also like to thank all the parents for their support as it continues to motivate me to believe in StreetMoves!"

"Amahl & The Night Visitors"

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" is the perfect family experience for the holidays. This classic musical finds the young boy, Amahl, letting his imagination take away the pain of his crippled legs. He tells his mother so many fantasies that when he sees the light of a brilliant star, she does not believe him.

Enter the Three Kings. They seek shelter as they continue to follow the same star. They bring with them much gold as a gift to the place the star directs them. The plot thickens as Amahl's mother is tempted at the thought of how much good all the gold could do for her and her crippled son, Amahl.

"Amahl" is the perfect family holiday experience. It is also the type of production that every actor wants to include on his resume. Auditions found hopeful actors coming from as far north as Skokie and south to Lansing. A college student drove in from Normal. IT COULDN'T HAPPEN TO A NICER GUY: Local outdoor TV personality and outdoor writer "Catfish Bill" Wesolowski of Tinley Park has been awarded the Mid West Outdoors Television Viewer's Choice Award. He was also voted one of the top ten outdoor writers in Mid West Outdoors Magazine.

In addition to being a licensed guide, Bill is a Pro Staff member of ProCats (Professional Catfishing Association of America). He got the name "Catfish Bill" as a result of a catfishing trip with another outdoor writer who was so impressed that he continued to refer to him as Catfish Bill, the name stuck.

Don't let the name fool you, Bill is a multi-species fisherman. I know, because over the years Bill and I have fished for bass, walleyes, salmon, perch and panfish as well as catfish.

This is why he's called "Catfish Bill."

Bill is one of those quiet, unassuming guys who loves being on the water with anglers of all ages and fishing experience. Having been involved with many kids fishing events, he has the patience to show youngsters a good time and preaches the old saying: "Get a Kid Hooked on Fishing, Not Drugs."

Bill trailers his easy to get-around in, comfortable boat with all the bells and whistles, to lakes and rivers within an easy drive from the Chicago area. He can furnish all the bait and tackle necessary for a successful fun-filled day on the water.

To book a fishing trip with Bill, or just talk fishing, he can be reached at (708) 532-3277. To subscribe to Mid West Outdoors or Fishing Facts Magazine (A great Christmas gift for a friend or a loved one that keeps giving all year 'round) call (630) 887-7722 or their website: www.midwestoutdoors.com.

In Chicagoland, look for exciting fishing and hunting segments on Mid West Outdoors Television every Saturday on CLTV, TV30 and TLN. Consult your TV Guide for listings in other parts of the Midwest. You might even see "Catfish Bill" in action.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING FOR THAT SPECIAL OUTDOOR PERSON: With only a few shopping days left, it makes sense to shop locally for outdoor-related Christmas presents and stocking stuffers.

As opposed to catalogue or Internet shopping, buying locally helps the economy in the form of employment and return of sales taxes to your local municipalities. Supporting the area sporting goods stores, just may help keep the small shop owners in business.

How nice it is to talk to a knowledgeable sales person as opposed to an over-the-phone order taker. Local sporting goods dealers can help you make the right decisions, and probably offer an exchange policy. When in doubt, a gift certificate is always appreciated.

Describing the type of outdoor activity the potential gift recipient engages in, enables the "real live" salesperson to make suggestions. The money spent on sales taxes often offsets the ridiculously high shipping and handling charges incurred with catalogue and Internet shopping.

Local shopping eliminates the worry about out-of-stock; back orders; late deliveries; lost or broken packages and the cost of returning merchandise.

ANTI-FISHING CAMPAIGN REJECTS NOTION THAT FATHER KNOWS BEST: Animal rightists have launched a new anti-fishing campaign that disparages dads who teach their children about angling.

PETA supporters began passing out graphic flyers to youngsters on Sept. 24, a day heralded by sportsmen as National Hunting and Fishing Day but recognized by anti's as Fish Amnesty Day. The explicit comic, "Your Daddy Kills Animals," instructs children to "Ask your daddy why he's hooked on killing."

"PETA is seeking out our children and using shocking campaigns to spread its anti-animal use agenda," said U.S.

Sportsmen's Alliance President Bud Pigeon. "The fact is, fishing is a fun, wholesome activity that gives families the opportunity to spend time together in the outdoors."

PETA is also campaigning against bowfishing. They label the activity as cruel and try to draw comparisons between it and the tracking and impaling of dogs and cats.

THE OUTDOORS IS BIG BUSINESS: Business generated by hunters and fishermen is often the lifeblood of rural communities.

BE KIND TO OUR FEATHERED AND FURRY FRIENDS: If you haven't already done so, now is the time to get those bird feeders going. People seem obsessed with keeping squirrels away from the feeders. Hey! They have to survive our cold winters too. The amusing antics of squirrels more than offsets the few bucks spent on bird feed.

Named Women's Soccer All-Region

St. Xavier University senior midfielder Jen Belmonte, sophomore forward Lissa Coby and sophomore Cassie Rumpf were all named to the 2005 NAIA/National Soccer Coaches Assn. of America (NSCAA) All-Region VII First Team when the honors were released recently by the regional office. In addition, Belmonte earned Region VII Player of the Year honors for her impressive 2005 campaign.

Belmonte recorded nine goals and 14 assists playing in all 20 games during her senior season. Coby led the Cougars in goals (12), assists (21) and total points (45) in 2005, but played in just 17 games due to injury. Rumpf played in all 20 games for St. Xavier at defender and tallied two assists, while anchoring a defense that allowed just over a goal a game (1.06).

The Cougars also had two players recognized on the 2005 All-Region VII Second Team in senior goalkeeper Melissa Painter and freshman defender Britney Kendzora. Painter started all 20 games for SXU and finished the year with 128 saves and 10 shutouts. Kendzora tallied three assists in 2005 and helped lead a defense that allowed just 22 goals over 20 games.

St. Xavier finished the 2005 season with an overall record of 14-4-2 and was named co-champion of the CCAC with an 8-1 mark. The Cougars also qualified for the quarterfinals of the NAIA Region VII Tournament.

Soccer Team Wins National Championship

The Trinity Christian College women's soccer team was crowned National Champions at the NCCAA National Soccer Tournament held in Austin Tindall Soccer Complex in Kissimmee, Florida. The Trolls, the No. 2 seed, defeated the top ranked Trinity International University (IL), 1-0, in the championship game.

This was the first trip to this tournament for the women's soccer program, which finished their season with a record of 21-5-3, and the first national title for the college.

The Trolls, who have had a hard time scoring against Trinity International in their previous meetings, took control of the game early on. They were aggressive offensively, totaling 13 shots-on-goal in the game and holding TIU to just three attempts. The one attempt that made the difference came 15 minutes into the first period. Jess Eenigenburg took the ball down the sideline and fed it to Mindi Harkema, who was open in the middle of the field. Harkema dribbled the ball, faced the goalie one-on-one, and finished with a shot that found the back of the net.

The team protected that lead throughout the remaining minutes. Each time Trinity International started a run, the Trolls took control and brought the ball back to their offensive end. As time wound down, the team maintained focus and composure, confidently making the win.

This contest was the fourth meeting between these two teams this season. The Trolls had lost to TIU in conference play, 2-1, were defeated on penalty kicks in the conference championship, and came up short, 1-0, in the NCCAA region finals. However, in the most important meeting, the Trolls produced the victory for the national title.

To get to the championship game, the team defeated Dallas-Baptist University (TX), 5-2, in the first round and Hope International University (CA), 2-0, in the semifinals.

The team was awarded with a championship banner and individual medallions. In addition, Tina Visser, Katie Visser, Natalie Buikema and Mindi Harkema were named to the All-Tournament Team. Jess Eenigenburg was named the tournament's Most Outstanding Player.

Lincoln Way East Champions

It didn't seem like it happened so fast! In fact, it was a downright long and arduous battle on the night of Saturday, Nov. 26th in Champaign where the Class 8A High School football title was decided.

The Lincoln Way East Griffins seemed to be off and running when Cebula rushed for a touchdown to take a first quarter advantage, but no so fast! The Maine South Hawks answered in the second quarter with a 15 yard run to the end zone to tie the score.

The Griffins then built a two touchdown lead as QB Kropp connected on a 14-yard touchdown pass to Mau just before the end of the half and Gerritsen rushed for a 5 yard score midway through the 3rd quarter.

Not so fast! With a dramatic 4th quarter rally, the Hawks soared back into a tie on touchdown runs by Borsellino and Bachmeier in the closing 6:47 of the 4th quarter.

Still, Lincoln Way East had a chance to win the game in regulation, but a potential game winning 41-yard field goal went just wide.

In the first overtime, the Griffins again appeared to have won the game on the strength of Lynch's 21 yard field goal, but the Hawks' Knight matched it with a 23 yarder for Maine South.

Finally, in the second overtime, Lincoln Way East's Kropp made a lunge toward the end zone, but not so fast! There were hundreds and hundreds of pounds of football players that the officials had to peel off the pile before it was finally revealed that the ball had indeed crossed the line for a 30-24 double overtime victory for Lincoln Way East.

As long as the game itself seemed to take, this is the fastest a new high school has ever won a state championship - being only the Lincoln Way East Griffins 5th year of existence.

Increased Deer Harvest

Hunters in Illinois harvested a preliminary total of 77,051 deer during the opening weekend of the state's 2005 firearm deer season, Nov. 18th to 20th, Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources Director Joel Brunsvold announced recently. The second portion of the firearm season is Dec. 1st to 4th.

The preliminary total for the first three days of the 2005 firearm season represents a 4 percent increase compared with the first weekend harvest of 73,819 in 2004. The preliminary first-season figures reported for each county include those deer taken on special hunt areas within that county as well as on private land.

For the first time in Illinois, hunters in most counties registered the deer they harvested by going online or by phoning 1(866) ILCHECK (1-866-452-4325) by 10 p.m. on the day of harvest. About 33,000 deer were reported on the first day of the season, with peak use of the system occurring early Friday evening when more than 4,000 deer per hour were registered. Hunters in seven northern Illinois counties where IDNR provided chronic wasting disease sampling took deer they harvested to county check stations.

Illinois issued more than 320,000 deer hunting permits for the 2005 firearm season, including free landowner and paid landowner permits.

Winter Related Injuries

Before you know it, snow will be falling and the wind-chills will be hovering down below zero. Now is the time to begin thinking about preventing winter sports and cold-related injuries. Dr. Trish Palmer, a sports medicine specialist and family medicine physician at Rush University Medical Center, says most cold-related injuries can be prevented with a little planning, preparation and proper equipment.

One of the most common winter related injuries is due to shoveling snow. "It is vigorous exercise and a big strain on the back that people don't appreciate," says Palmer. "The weight and position are really bad for two parts of your back. A disc could be compressed resulting in a pinched nerve. Also, the muscles in the lower back are small and easily strained."

Palmer suggests preventing problems with good positioning and exercise. When you lift 10 pounds close to your body, it exerts 10 pounds of pressure on the back. If you lift that same 10 pounds away from your body, as people often do when shoveling, it is seven times heavier exerting 70 pounds of pressure on the back.

The best advice is don't do it. "Our bodies are not built to shovel snow," says Palmer. "Get a snowblower or pay the neighbor kid to do it for you."

If you insist on shoveling yourself, Palmer suggests you start exercising now. "You need to get in shape and build up those back muscles before the snow falls."

That advice holds true for winter sports as well. Exercising in cold weather places extra demands on the body. If you haven't exercised regularly in months, you are more likely to suffer an injury on the ski slopes or at the ice rink. Palmer, who is also a physician committee member of the United States Ski and Snowboard Assn., suggests paying special attention to muscles particular to your chosen sport.

For downhill skiing, concentrate on strengthening the muscles of the upper leg, the quadriceps and hamstrings. You want both sets of muscles to be strong or you could expose yourself to injury. According to Palmer, a great exercise is the wall sit. Sit against a wall like you are in a chair. Make sure your upper legs are horizontal and your heels are directly beneath your knees. Try three sets of 30 seconds each. Try to hold the position a few seconds longer each time you do the exercise.

If you're hoping to be the next Nancy Kerrigan, or at least stay on your feet while ice skating, Palmer suggests working on strength and balance. "Proprioception drills are balance drills that can be done at home to help improve awareness of what your foot is doing while your eyes are closed," says Palmer.

In addition to strengthening the quads and hamstrings, condition the calves and the muscles in the front of the leg. Squats, lunges and calf raises are the most basic exercises for lower body strength. To strengthen ankles, use resistance bands wrapped around the leg of a table and your foot. Flex feet toward your body. Repeat the exercise moving your foot in a clockwise fashion, then move the foot counter-clockwise.

Snowboarding is gaining in popularity and as a result doctors are seeing more wrist and arm injuries, especially for beginners. On an up note, people with knee problems may want to transfer to snowboarding because it may be easier on the knees than skiing.

Once the skating pond freezes and the snow falls, the most important part of protecting yourself during winter activities is being prepared. Warm up before you go outdoors for activities to loosen muscles and expand your lungs to handle the cold air. Exercise and cold induced asthma can be worse in the winter so cover your mouth with a scarf to warm the air coming into your lungs.

Dress warmly in layered clothing, hats, warm socks and mittens. "Always be aware of frostbite and hypothermia," says Palmer. "During a bad wind-chill, you can get frostbite much more quickly than you may think." Participate in outdoor activities with a partner and check each other for signs of hypothermia, which include shivering, drowsiness and lack of coordination.

Don't forget to drink plenty of water before, during and after your outdoor fun. Dehydration can also occur in the winter months with strenuous activities. Don't drink alcohol, which can restrict blood vessels and increase your risk for hypothermia. Protect your skin from the sun and wind using a sunscreen or sun block. The sun reflects off the snow and is stronger than you think.

Palmer can't stress enough the importance of protective equipment and proper fit. Ensure that your skis, skates, shoes and other equipment fit you correctly. Helmets are a must for skiing, sledding and snowboarding. "You wouldn't allow your child to bicycle without a helmet, why would you allow them to do other high velocity sports without protection?" says Palmer.

And finally, enjoy yourself, but remember to stop before you get fatigued. Most winter related injuries happen in the afternoon as participants tire out.

Eenigenburg Named NCCAA Player Of The Year

Trinity Christian College senior Jessica Eenigenburg was honored as the 2005 Michelle Akers NCCAA Player of the Year on Nov. 17th. She was presented with this award, sponsored by the Gary Beck Foundation, at the NCCAA National Soccer Tournament kickoff event. Jess received a trophy and an engraved watch as well as a plaque for the college.

Each year, the award is presented to a women's soccer player who is highly skilled, shows excellence in competition, exhibits outstanding leadership qualities, including Christian service activities, and possesses a vital Christian testimony both on and off the field.

Her soccer accomplishments are equally impressive. Eenigenburg has broken almost every accomplishment in the college's record book. She led the NCCAA with 42 goals and 22 assists this season and has accumulated impressive career totals of 115 goals and 42 assists. In the past four years, she has received numerous post-season honors, including conference player of the year.

Her excellence on the soccer field is matched only by her achievements in the classroom, where she earned scholar-athlete recognition. In addition, she has shown leadership in many campus activities and in ministry outreach.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

My husband and I are 10-year residents of Oak Lawn and are proud and responsible owners of a 3 year-old Golden Retriever, Sargent. I am writing today as someone who attended the recent Oak Lawn Park District meeting where the majority of the board would not even consider a proposal to begin planning a dog park to benefit families of dog owners. As a resident, I'm looking for a safe, pleasant area to run my dog off-leash in the village.

The only park in Oak Lawn that allows dogs is Wolfe Wildlife Refuge and I would never allow Sargent off-leash without a safe-fenced area. We travel to the Mayfield Dog Park in Oak Brook and take him to the Montrose Dog Beach in Chicago. I have found the dog owners in both locations to be responsible and friendly with their animal companions.

While villages like Oak Brook, Park Ridge and the City of Chicago move forward with efforts to create dog-friendly areas, I have always felt that the Oak Lawn park district would rather keep investing money in other programs. While many of these programs are great for conventional families, there is a large contingent of residents who are currently not being served and would like to see our tax dollars go toward a program that would benefit many households with pets, including families with and without children, singles, and seniors.

Dog-park supporters vote and we have disposable income that we're now spending for dog-friendly activities, including additional expenditures on ourselves, in Oak Brook and Chicago. The budget proposal for the dog park is relatively small and would not raise taxes. By beginning the process of implementation, supporters of the dog park could have begun a fundraising drive to help defray the cost of the park's construction.

At the Mayfield Dog Park in Oak Brook, users pay for a yearly pass of $35 for those in-district, and $150 for those outside the district. We gladly pay the out of district fee to take our dog to the facility and had to show proof on the application of vaccinations and annual vet care, for safety purposes. A yearly fee in Oak Lawn would make the facility's annual costs self-sufficient on user fees.

This proposal is certainly a "win-win" situation for families of dog owners in Oak Lawn and the surrounding community.

Police Arrested Six Suspects

Two Oak Lawn robberies had four area police departments working on rounding up and arresting six suspects. The Oak Lawn Police department received a report at about midnight Friday, Dec. 2nd, from a man and woman who live in the 9100 block of Tully Ave. According to reports four teens took $600 in cash and a cell phone from the couple after they had parked their car in the garage. The couple was stopped by a teen that they thought had a gun.

They reported that after robbing them, the teen and four others ran to a white minivan and drove away. The van was discovered to be a stolen vehicle.

Hometown police chased the four teens until the van crashed after which, the teens fled on foot. Both the Hometown police and Chicago police captured them. Larry Gore, 16, Carlos Smith, 16, and Brandon Richardson, 16, were charged with two count of armed robbery and one count of possession of a stolen vehicle.

In another incident, the Oak Lawn police received a call from a man who said he was mugged and robbed after he bought a cup of coffee at a convenience store in the 9800 block of Central Ave. According to reports, when the man came out of the store, two men grabbed him and pulled his hood over his head. The victim was ordered to give the robbers money.

The victim tried to run, but was caught then punched and kicked. The robbers took his wallet and fled.

After an investigation, the police identified Alphonso Williams, 18 as one of the assailants. When Williams was arrested, near his home in Oak Lawn, he told police that his accomplice was James Walter, 21, of Blue Island.

Police arrested Walter later that evening. Both men were charged with armed robbery.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

by
Lucinda K. Lysen, RD, RN, BSN

HEALTHY FOOD GIFTS FOR THE HOLIDAYS

The holidays are a special time for gift-giving. Particularly attractive during these times, with people increasingly diet conscious, are foods which are low fat and healthy, yet have great flavor and appearance.

Modifying recipes to be lower in calories and fat can be easy by adjusting a few ingredients you may never have considered. For example, using light cream cheese instead of regular cream cheese in baked goods, can remove two thirds the calories and fat. Substituting three tablespoons of cocoa combined with one tablespoon of oil in a recipe, for an ounce of chocolate, cuts your calorie and fat intake in half. And greasing your baking pan with nonstick cooking spray rather than butter or oil will drop the calories to zero.

Consider using fruits, vegetables and cereal as the basis of your gifts. These foods are naturally low in fat and high in vitamins and minerals. Try arranging a platter of dried fruits—including apricots, figs, raisins, and prunes. Or prepare a trail mix from various cereals, dried fruit, and nuts. You can also add vegetables such as carrots, corn, and zucchini, to baked goods and to puddings made with nonfat or 1% milk. Also, don't be afraid to use oats and other grains in baked goods and casseroles.

Below is a fun recipe which has been "tried and true" for a number of years with friends and family, that will save you lots of calories and fat and looks good packaged and wrapped to go for anyone's holiday snack table.

PEANUTS AND CARAMEL POPCORN (This makes three quarts.)

10 cups popped corn, unpopped kernels removed
3/4 cup dry roasted unsalted peanuts
1 cup sugar
1/3 cup margarine
1/4 cup light corn syrup
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
2 cups seedless raisins

In a large bowl, mix popcorn and peanuts. Set aside.

In a heavy bottomed 2-quart saucepan, over high heat, stir sugar, margarine, and corn syrup until margarine is melted. Cook, without stirring, until mixture reaches 300 F, about 5 minutes. Stir in vanilla and baking soda. Quickly pour over popcorn mixture, tossing until well coated. Spread on baking sheet.

Bake at 250 F for 45 minutes, stirring twice. Remove from oven; stir in raisins. Cool on baking sheet. Break into pieces; store in airtight container for up to 2 weeks.

Nutrition information per serving (1/2 cup): 137 calories, 5 grams fat, 1 gram saturated fat, 0 milligrams cholesterol, 36 milligrams sodium.

Letter To The Editor

Editor:

Why look further when the answer is right under our nose? Umbilical cord stem cells! Success has been proven!

Russell Witck (Chicago) suffered from acute lymphoid leukemia. Five years ago he received a transplant of stem cells from donated umbilical cord blood and has been cancer-free from that day to this!

Nineteen-year-old Amanda Bryson of Scotland, who was wheelchair-bound for several years, has been walking daily since she received umbilical cord stem cell therapy! Her testimony: "A stem-cell solution was injected into my arm and neck to tackle the damage to my spine and brain. Within 10 minutes after the treatment I went to the bathroom on my wheelchair. I went to stand up and I thought I was jumping off my chair! - the nurse told me that it happens many times...it filled me with hope for the future! The therapy is "derived from babies' umbilical cords after birth...of no harm to them or anyone."

Russell's mother, Karen Witck, praised the "benefit of adult bone marrow (in that) you could go back and get more. But the benefit of cord blood was that the side effects were (minimal). The cells are so pliable and adjust to your system so well."

Dr. Peter Hollands, Scientific Director of Cells for Life (Markham, Ontario) states: "The public must know that adult and umbilical cord blood stem cells are available, proven and ready to use for a range of diseases. We must get away from the idea of the promise of embryonic stem cells... (they) have yet to be used to treat any form of disease...at present (they) are largely political rhetoric and scientific hype."

Smith Village Nears Completion

Smith Village is nearing completion on the first phase of construction for their $65 million continuing care retirement community (CCRC) at 113th St. and Western Ave. The first new building in the community will offer Beverly-area seniors state-of-the-art, spacious assisted living and memory care apartments.

Construction is expected to be substantially completed by mid-December, at which point the Graycor Construction Company hands over the structure to Smith Village. Outside the new building, road improvements to 112th Place are already complete. A new road surface, curbs and gutters offer a pleasing entryway for residents and visitors to the new Smith Village assisted living apartments.

Following current independent living residents' move to the new 82-unit building, the existing structure will be demolished to make way for the final phase of construction that includes 152 independent living apartments and a Community Commons building. The entire Smith Village community is slated for completion in the fall of 2007.

The independent living section of Smith Village will feature one and two-bedroom apartments with fully equipped kitchens, walk-in closets and comfortable areas for relaxing and entertaining. Each unit will have its own heating and cooling controls, as well as individual washers and dryers.

A sun-filled atrium will light the way to Smith Village Commons, where seniors can enjoy formal dining, a casual café and a private dining room to entertain guests. A hair salon, convenience store, housekeeping services and linen services all combine to make life easier. Additionally, an arts and crafts studio, business and computer center, library, club and game rooms, gardens and walking paths are great places to enjoy favorite activities and hobbies.

Another unique amenity at Smith Village is a comprehensive healthcare package that offers peace of mind for the future. If a resident requires additional care, it can be provided right on campus, according to Bunny Sugarman, director of marketing for Smith Village. Should a higher level of care be needed, independent living residents can accumulate up to 100 free days in either assisted living or skilled nursing care, after which they will receive a 15 percent lifetime discount.

Smith Village is part of the Smith Senior Living family of premier senior living communities in the southwest sector of metropolitan Chicago. An innovative leader in providing the finest services and care for seniors, Smith established its first community in 1924.

For more information about the new community, contact the information center at (773) 881-4950 or visit www.smithvillage.org.

Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg

Chicago Foundation for Women will host a special event honoring Ruth Bader Ginsburg, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court. "Honoring a Pioneer in Women's Rights: A Conversation with Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg" will take place on Saturday, Dec. 10th from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Chicago Public Library, Harold Washington Library Center, 400 S. State St., 9th floor, in Chicago.

The program will include the inauguration of "The Ruth Bader Ginsburg Award of Chicago Foundation for Women." Justice Ginsburg will make brief remarks in accepting the award. Following her remarks, Judge Ann Williams, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan, Attorney Fay Clayton and Attorney Tina Tchen will participate in a panel discussion with Justice Ginsburg. The program will also include an open microphone to provide audience members an opportunity to ask questions of Justice Ginsburg and the panel.

"As a lawyer, an academic, an activist and as a Justice, Ruth Bader Ginsburg has helped to create a pioneering body of law establishing women's rights in this country. As Chicago Foundation for Women celebrates its 20th anniversary this year, the establishment of an award in her honor is a fitting tribute to Justice Ginsburg and her decades of commitment to equal rights for women. We are exceedingly honored and proud to be able to provide this opportunity to hear from one of the most important people of our time," said Lois Lipton, board chair of Chicago Foundation for Women.

President Bill Clinton chose Ruth Bader Ginsburg as his first appointment to the United States Supreme Court in 1993. The first woman hired with tenure at Columbia Law School in 1972, she also became the first director of the ACLU's Women's Rights Project that same year. Ginsburg's star continued to rise as she joined many important committees and boards in various law associations across the country. During this time, she also began appearing before the Supreme Court where she would eventually argue a total of six cases for gender equality. She served as a federal appeals court judge from 1980 until she succeeded retiring Justice Byron R. White on the Supreme Court. If Judge Alito's nomination is confirmed, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor will retire. Ginsburg may then become the only woman remaining on the U.S. Supreme Court.

"Ginsburg's position on women's rights, and civil liberties in general, has had significant influence on the U.S. Supreme Court. During a time in which so much is at stake for women and the importance of replacing Justice O'Connor with a successor that will be fundamentally fair in making decisions around issues affecting women, it is important that we recognize the jewel we have in Ruth Bader Ginsburg as a member of the Court," said Hannah Rosenthal, executive director of Chicago Foundation for Women.

One of the largest women's funds in the world, Chicago Foundation for Women believes that all women and girls should have the opportunity to achieve their potential and live in safe, just and healthy communities. The Foundation supports the achievement of social justice through grant making and advocacy.

More information and tickets for this event can be found at www.cfw.org or by calling (312) 836-0126.

Brain Aneurysm Study

The Dept. of Neurological Surgery at Northwestern Memorial Hospital is participating in one of the world's largest aneurysm research studies to identify the genes that cause the development and rupture of brain aneurysms - "blisters" that form within arteries of the brain and can rupture and kill without a moment's notice. Sponsored by the National Institutes of Health, the Familial Intracranial Aneurysm (FIA) Study is a collaborative research effort involving 26 centers throughout the world. Nationally, doctors aim to enroll 475 families - or about 3,800 individuals - with multiple affected family members.

To be eligible to participate in this research study, families must have two or more affected siblings or three or more family members affected with intracranial aneurysms (IAs). Participants are asked to complete a family history questionnaire and a medical history questionnaire. They also have their blood pressure taken and have a small sample of blood drawn and sent for sophisticated statistical and genetic (chromosome) analysis.

In addition, certain family members are offered the opportunity to have a magnetic resonance angiogram (MRA) to look for undiagnosed brain aneurysms. MRA is non-invasive, essentially carries no risk and is able to detect IAs as small as 2 to 3 millimeters. Five millimeters is thought to be the critical size for intracranial aneurysm rupture, but smaller aneurysms can cause significant bleeding.

The most devastating complication of IAs is a subarachnoid hemorrhage (SAH), one of the three main subtypes of stroke. This rapid and massive bleeding in the space around the brain occurs in 16,000 to 17,000 people in the United States every year, killing nearly half within 30 days and leaving one-third of the survivors with severe disabilities.

"Accumulated evidence indicates that a genetic component plays an important role in the development of IAs. The goal of this study is to confirm a familial link, as well as identify which specific genes are responsible," said Hunt Batjer, M.D., Chair of Neurological Surgery at Northwestern Memorial Hospital, Professor of Neurological Surgery at Northwestern University, Feinberg School of Medicine, and the principal investigator on this study. "If we are able to identify those who are genetically at high risk for the development of IAs, then we may be able to prevent aneurysm formation and/or intervene and treat aneurysms early, significantly reducing the substantial premature mortality and morbidity associated with this type of stroke."

Individuals with a family history of polycystic kidney disease, Marfan's syndrome, Ehler Danlos Syndrome, or fibromuscular dysplasia are not eligible to participate in this study.

For further information regarding this research study, call (312) 695-8143.

On Veterans Day, Nov. 11th, MyHealthVet marked its second anniversary by adding three new health records that veterans can keep in a secure electronic environment and make available to other VA health professionals nationwide - blood oxygen levels taken from a pulse oximeter, daily food intake in the Food Journal, and physical activity and exercise in the Activity Journal.

Since mid-October, more than 100,000 veterans have signed up to use MyHealthVet, which is located on VA's Web site at www.myhealth.va.gov. Among the services available to veterans, their families and VA care providers through the online personal record are the ability to track health conditions - entering readings such as blood pressure and cholesterol levels - and to record medications, allergies, military health history, medical events and tests.

Veterans can also include personal information, such as emergency contacts, names of medical providers and health insurance information. They can access health information on the Internet from VA, MedlinePlus from the National Library of Medicine, and Healthwise, a commercial health education library.

Future expansion of MyHealthVet will allow VA patients to view appointments and co-payment balances, access portions of their medical records, and give access to their records to doctors, family members and others.

Good-bye for now. God bless you and your loved ones and God bless America.

Illinois Wins National Award

Efforts that have saved $529 million for Illinois taxpayers by making State government run more efficiently and effectively should serve as a model for other states to follow, a national good-government group announced recently. At its national annual meeting on Saturday, Dec. 3rd in Wilmington, Del., the Council of State Governments (CSG) presented the Illinois Dept. of Central Management (CMS) with a 2005 Innovations Award for successfully consolidating common administrative duties previously managed by many State agencies.

In 2003, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich instructed CMS to streamline the state's operations, share resources and save taxpayer money while improving the business services of state government. A recent report by Deloitte Consulting validated that efficiency efforts led by CMS to fulfill this mandate saved Illinois taxpayers more than $529 million over the past two years alone.

Budget Package

The Council for Citizens Against Government Waste (CCAGW) has encouraged Congress to pass a budget reconciliation package that achieves real savings for taxpayers. The original version of the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 (H.R. 4241) would have saved $53.9 billion over five years and opened up a small portion of the Arctic National Wildlife Preserve (ANWR) to oil exploration. House Democrats are united against any reconciliation measure and House GOP leadership has tried to placate Republican "moderates" by stripping the ANWR provisions, reducing the proposed savings to under $50 billion, and adding special interest spending measures to the bill.

"Members of Congress need to realize that there is nothing compassionate about letting wasteful entitlement programs grow at unsustainable rates," CCAGW President Tom Schatz said. "The reconciliation is a chance for this Congress to clean up some of the budgetary mess it is leaving to future generations."

Under 10 years of Republican leadership in Congress, spending and the deficit have skyrocketed. Between fiscal years 2001 and 2005, non-military and non homeland security spending has increased $303 billion and the deficit stands at $317 billion, while the federal debt has surpassed $8 trillion. Americans are now saddled with a Medicare drug benefit expected to cost $724 billion over 10 years, which rivals any program passed during the Great Society. Mandatory spending now constitutes 54 percent of the federal budget. Left unchecked, it will absorb 62 percent in just 10 years and will eventually crowd out all other federal priorities. Some members of Congress have also pushed for an amendment to resurrect the failed and counterproductive Milk Income Loss Contract Program, which could cost taxpayers more than $1 billion.

"The original bill would have restrained the growth in mandatory spending by just one-tenth of one percent over five years," Schatz said. "While any measure to curb entitlement spending is a step in the right direction, the modest savings proposed in this bill hardly warrant the doomsday predictions of its opponents."

Medicaid spending soared 85 percent from $160 billion in 1997 to $295 billion in 2004. A yearlong investigation by The original reconciliation bill would have slowed the program's average annual rate of growth from 7.7 to 7.5 percent over 10 years and would have prevented payments to illegal immigrants.

Joint Efforts To Keep Illinois Warm

Leaders from nearly 50 Illinois businesses, social service agencies and non-profit organizations joined Blagojevich administration officials and Lt. Gov. Pat Quinn for Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich's Keep Warm Illinois Leadership Summit in Chicago on Nov. 30th. The governor organized the summit to encourage private sector organizations — both non-profit and for-profit — to do their part in helping Illinois families make it through this winter's home heating crisis, which has been triggered by record-high energy prices. Joining the efforts, the United Way of Illinois and the Chicagoland Chamber of Commerce announced they are partnering with the state of Illinois to identify and assist other businesses and social service organizations willing to commit resources to the Keep Warm Illinois campaign's energy conservation and assistance efforts.

The Keep Warm Illinois campaign is a comprehensive effort to inform and prepare Illinois residents, especially the elderly, families with small children and persons with disabilities, for record-high home heating costs this winter. Reaching out and garnering the support of the business community is an integral part of the state's efforts to ensure as many households as possible are being helped this year.

The campaign's efforts, including clothing drives, energy saving workshops, winter assistance days, and statewide warming centers, are coordinated by the Governor's Office of Emergency Energy Assistance, the Illinois Departments on Aging, Healthcare and Family Services (HFS), Human Services (IDHS), Commerce and Economic Opportunity (DCEO) and the Illinois Emergency Management Agency.

During the course of the Leadership Summit attendees learned about various ongoing private and public initiatives geared toward increasing awareness on energy assistance programs and resources that are available in Illinois. There was also discussion on different recommendations to help Illinois families cut down on energy costs.

The United Way and the Chicagoland Chamber of Commerce announced that they have each formed a partnership with the Keep Warm Illinois campaign to help identify and assist businesses and social service organizations willing to commit resources supporting energy conservation and assistance efforts.

The Chicagoland Chamber of Commerce will promote Keep Warm Illinois' services to its members' companies and to the local chamber network throughout northeastern Illinois to help highlight the innovative steps companies are taking to help their employees and their communities.

"Snowbirds" Can Pay Property Taxes Early

Cook County Treasurer Maria Pappas said that "snowbirds," homeowners leaving for warmer climes over the winter, can prepay their property taxes that will be due early next year.

The deadline to pre-pay is Dec. 31, 2005.

Pappas' office mailed 2,705 bills to owners who had registered for the program to pay early on first-installment property taxes for tax year 2005, which will be due March 1, 2006. This ensures that the bills can be paid when owners cannot receive them at their winter address.

"Cook County 'snowbirds' can enjoy the sunshine without thinking about the next bill," Pappas said, adding that some 1.6 million bills will be mailed to other Cook County property owners at the end of January.

Persons who want to participate in the pre-payment program should send a written request to:

Attn: Winter Traveler
Cook County Treasurer Maria Pappas
118 N. Clark St., Room 112
Chicago, IL 60602

Pre-payments must be submitted by mail with a postmark no later than Saturday, Dec. 31, 2005, or submitted in person at the Treasurer's downtown Chicago office by the close of business on Friday, Dec. 30, 2005.

Financial Literacy Workshop

St. Augustine College will soon begin offering a series of financial literacy workshops to students and community members in three Latino neighborhoods in Chicago, thanks to a grant from Chase, the consumer and commercial banking business of JPMorgan Chase & Co.

The financial literacy training will be offered in both Spanish and English, and is designed to empower Hispanic residents to take charge of their financial future by understanding the basics of banking, saving, credit and mortgages.

The $24,800 grant will be used to offer a 10-module series of workshops. The curriculum used will be Money Smart, a program developed three years ago by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and available in both Spanish and English. The training will be offered in the three Chicago neighborhoods where St. Augustine operates campuses: Uptown, Westtown and South Lawndale. Workshops will begin in the Spring of 2006 and continue through the summer months.

Chase, the largest bank in Chicago, has made financial literacy a priority in its corporate philanthropy efforts.

For more information about the workshops or to register, contact Dr. Gustavo Saberstein at (773) 878-3235 or at gsaberstein@staugustine.edu.

United Way of Illinois and local United Ways will partner with the Keep Warm Illinois campaign by identifying community agencies that give utility assistance, referring people seeking energy assistance, helping individuals and businesses help others by directing donations for energy assistance, finding local agencies experienced in energy assistance, assisting in fundraising events or programs to support energy assistance and the Keep Warm Illinois campaign, distributing information regarding Keep Warm Illinois, energy assistance and conservation. The United Way has also agreed to utilize their partnerships with organizations like the Red Cross, Salvation Army, Catholic Charities and other local human service providers.

Across the state of Illinois, United Way has 50 independent community boards and is currently involved in energy assistance efforts at both the local and state levels. For example, the United Way administers the federal Emergency Food and Shelter program and oversees agencies that receive food, rent and utility assistance. Since 2002, it has administered the Ameren Dollar More Program, which will distribute $500,000 in energy assistance to Ameren customers this year.

Historic Mesker Buildings

More than one hundred Mesker buildings have been identified by citizens since the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency (IHPA) issued an appeal six months ago to locate these historic buildings with ornamental sheet-metal and cast iron facades.

"The public response to our request has been overwhelming," said IHPA Director Robert Coomer. "These local 'history detectives' have greatly expanded our knowledge of these types of buildings, while at the same time enriching their communities' heritage."

The IHPA is compiling a database of Mesker buildings, and a section on the Agency's web site tells people how to identify them. The goal is to locate as many Mesker buildings as possible and incorporate them into an ever-expanding database. This will help recognize the historic significance of the Mesker companies in the shaping of Illinois' architectural fabric.

"Meskers," as they are often called, are found across America. Because the companies were based in the Midwest, they are particularly plentiful in Illinois and are part of the state's rich architectural history. The Mesker Brothers Iron Works of St. Louis, Missouri and the George L. Mesker & Company of Evansville, Indiana produced prefabricated architectural elements and building facades from the late 1800s to the early 1900s. The Meskers specialized in ornamental sheet-metal facades and cast iron storefront components that were ordered through catalogs and easily shipped by rail to any interested building owner.

For an updated list of all Meskers in Illinois, visit www.gotmesker.com.

Cope With Loss Of Income

The Senate passed a measure sponsored by U.S. Senators Dick Durbin (D-IL) and Evan Bayh (D-IN) to help National Guard and Reserve members cope with the loss of income during long deployments. The amendment allows reservists mobilized for more than six months to receive up to $3,000 per month in extra pay to help close the gap between their military and civilian salaries. To qualify, a reservist must have a pay gap of at least $50 per month.

"Many active duty troops experience an increase in income during deployments," Durbin said. "On the other hand, reservists with civilian incomes higher than their military pay actually suffer a loss. That is unfair. Many of our Guard and Reserve members are worried about their families back home. These families have less money for the monthly budget, less money for the mortgage and less money to pay gasoline and heating bills. The Senate took an important step to help correct this unfairness."

Durbin said survey data from the Dept. of Defense Status of Forces Survey of Reserve Component Members clearly demonstrates the need for action by Congress. The report released in September 2004 revealed that 51% of the members of the National Guard and Reserve said they suffer a loss of income when mobilized for long periods of active duty because their military pay is less than the pay from their civilian job. The average reservist loses $368 per month but 11% report losing more than $2,500 per month.

The Durbin/Bayh amendment was included in the Senate Dept. of Defense Authorization bill. Durbin said that he was hopeful this critical provision will become law since the House of Representatives passed a similar measure earlier this year.

Push To Solve School Funding Problems

The Illinois Association of School Boards (IASB) has resolved to push for a statewide constitutional convention in order to obtain long-sought school funding reform. More than 300 local school board representatives adopted a resolution to pursue that goal in a vote taken at this year's largest statewide conference of school leaders on Nov. 19 in Chicago.

The decision to push for a constitutional convention was one of the key actions taken by school board representatives at the policy-setting delegate assembly of IASB. The 2005 delegate assembly was part of the 73rd Joint Annual Conference of the Illinois Association of School Boards, Illinois Association of School Administrators, and Illinois Association of School Business Officials. The conference also provided training to school board members through more than 115 expert-led presentations on school governance and education.

The school board delegates also voted to urge Congress to change a provision in federal law regarding military recruitment in schools. The aim is to replace an opt-out provision with an opt-in provision for parental consent required on forms used to prevent military recruiters from gaining access to student information from schools.

Marie Slater was elected for a one-year term as president of the Illinois Association of School Boards. She has served on the Wheaton Warrenville CUSD 200 Board of Education since 1987. From 1990-94, she served as Program Chairman of the DuPage County Division of IASB. She has been a member of the IASB Board of Directors since 1994, at various times serving on the Nominating Committee, Joint Annual Conference Committee and the Executive Director Search Committee. Before being elected president of IASB she served two terms as vice president.

Mark C. Metzger was elected as Vice President of IASB for a one-year term. He has been a member of the Indian Prairie CUSD 204 Board of Education since 1991. He has served as President, Secretary and Committee Chair of every committee of his local board. Mark previously served on the IASB Nominating Committee and as an Alternate Delegate to the 2004 NSBA Delegate Assembly. Mark is frequently an invited adjunct presenter at IASB Leadership offerings and holds both Leadership Academy membership and Master Board Member status, which he has maintained since 1997.

Joseph Alesandrini was selected by the IASB board to serve as treasurer of the association. He is vice president of the Pekin CHSD 303 Board of Education, and director of the Central Illinois Valley Division of IASB. He has served as interim treasurer of IASB since May.

Launch Keep Kids Warm & Safe Drive

As they lit the holiday tree at the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich, First Lady Patti Blagojevich and their daughters Amy and Annie launched the third annual Keep Our Kids Warm and Safe giving campaign, an effort to collect winter clothing and car seats for children who need them the most.

First launched in 2003, the governor's Keep Our Kids Warm and Safe campaign is an annual statewide clothing and car seat drive. Citizens, businesses and state employees are encouraged to donate new or gently used gloves, mittens, hats, scarves and new car seats. As they come in, donations will be taken to charities in communities around the state. These charities will then distribute the donations to needy families in their area. Citizens can donate clothing at the Illinois Dept. of Human Services and Illinois Dept. of Employment Security offices located throughout the state. Last year's effort netted more than 44,000 winter clothing donations from thousands of state employees, private citizens and corporate sponsors. The items were distributed to more than 100 charities around the state. During the ceremony, the governor presented Kathy Goebel of Springfield and her five-year-old twin girls, Zaria and Zandria, with new coats, hats and gloves, as well as new child safety seats.

The Oak Lawn Village Board Of Trustees

Pass 2006 Budget

The Oak Lawn Village Board passed the 2006 budget at the regular village board meeting on Tuesday. It was stated that expected revenues totaled $86,397,070 while expected expenditures totaled $88,181,164. The general fund, it was explained, was balanced at $38,330,571 but a deficit in other funds added up to $1,784,104. It was explained that in most of the funds the deficit would be covered by "using accumulated assets currently available in each fund."

The board also passed the annual tax levy ordinance for 2005 taxes. The levy is in the amount of $16,568,897 which is the same amount levied in 2004. It was reported that the ordinance "provides not increase in property taxes."

Several ordinances were passed that would increase building fees and sewer rates. Building permit fees will be increased from $10 per $1,000 of value to $12.50 per $1,000 of value. Other related permits will be increased by the same amount. Sewer and water rates have been increased by four percent. The residential sewer charge was $6.45 per month; it has been increased to $6.70 per month. Commercial and industrial charges went from $5.15 per month to $5.35 per month. The sewer charge increase is to cover an increase in the cost of operations.

The cost of receiving a P-ticket in Oak Lawn has increased as well. P-ticket fines were $25; they have been increased to $50. P-tickets are given for parking and license violations.

In other business, the board approved a preliminary TIF eligibility analysis report for the redevelopment plan for the proposed development at 111th and Cicero. The board accepted the proposal from Kane, McKenna and Associates to prepare a "preliminary TIF eligibility analysis" of the area in order to recommend the specific boundaries for one or more TIF Districts or other redevelopment programs that may be applicable. The cost of this study will range from $15,000 to $17,500.

Much discussion was held on the liquor license request from the owners of the Oak Lawn Citgo at 9856 S. Cicero. The license would have allowed the convenience store to sell packaged liquor. However, the board asked if there were other gas stations in the village that actually sell liquor. Trustee Hurckes said that he was under the impression that gas stations could not sell any kind of liquor. It was explained that the convenience store was a separate building from the gas pumps. The owners were under the impression that it would be okay to sell liquor there. Hurckes asked that this be tabled until the village could determine if any gas station in the village was selling liquor. The request was tabled until the first meeting in January.

Much discussion was held on the Napleton Honda request for parking on residential streets. Bob Costa of 95th and Normandy as well as a representative from the area's homeowners association addressed the board. Costa related that he had video taped Napleton employees making illegal right turns into the neighborhood as well as having no dealer license plates on the vehicles and other violations. He said that he is now being harassed by Napleton employees after he tried to talk to management. The resident's association was afraid that if the board let Napleton use parking up to Kolb School, which the dealership abuts, it would interfere with school busses and parents dropping off children at the school. The association was also fearful of the 'test driving' that is done down residential streets.

Mayor Heilmann reported that he would ask Ed Napleton to sit down with himself and residents to see if something equitable could be worked out. As he understood the concerns of both sides, he said that Napleton did need parking for his employees. The meeting would address the concerns of both sides of the situation. Any action on this would come after the meeting.

Mayor Heilmann reported that he, Congressman Daniel Lipinski and Senator Edward Maloney would co-sponsor a Medicare Presentation on the Drug Prescription coverage on Dec. 28th at 10 a.m. at the Oak Lawn Municipal Center, in the auditorium.

Trustee Rosenbaum reported that there is a 4th district meeting on Jan. 17th at the Salem United Church.

Village Clerk Jane Quinlan reported that Village Hall will be closed for Christmas Dec. 23rd; and for New Years on Dec. 30th and Jan. 2nd. The next meeting of the village board will be on Jan. 10th as the meeting that was scheduled for Dec. 27th has been cancelled.

She also reported that the Metra Train Station and Garage had officially opened on Dec. 5th. The dedication ceremony for the station is scheduled for Dec. 21st at 8:30 a.m.

Saint Xavier University Commencement Ceremony

Dr. Norman C. Francis, president of Xavier University in New Orleans, will be the commencement speaker at Saint Xavier University's Winter Commencement Ceremony, which starts at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 18, at the Shannon Center Main Arena at Saint Xavier University's Chicago campus at 3700 W. 103rd St.

Francis will talk about the impact that Hurricanes Katrina and Rita have had on the nation's only historically black Catholic university, and efforts to reopen the university by January 2006. Listen to Francis' first-hand account of what it was like to endure the destruction of the hurricanes (all but one building on campus took on four to six feet of water) and efforts to rebuild.

Francis has also been appointed to Louisiana Governor Kathleen Blanco's Louisiana Recovery Authority, which is working to rebuild after the hurricanes. As president of Xavier University since 1968, Francis has guided Xavier's growth both in size and dimension. During his tenure, the university has more than doubled its enrollment, broadened its curriculum, expanded its campus, and strengthened its financial base.

New Payday Loan Protections

Attorney General Lisa Madigan reminded Illinois consumers looking for extra cash to finance their holiday spending that a new law, effective Dec. 6th, protects consumers from the outrageous finance charges and interest rates previously associated with payday loans.

Madigan, whose office helped draft the Payday Loan Reform Act of 2005, said shoppers looking to borrow extra money to pay for holiday gifts are protected by the new law, which includes a repayment plan option that stops the interest clock from ticking after 37 days of continuous debt. The new law will save Illinois consumers an estimated $45 million a year in fees that they are currently paying for this very expensive form of short-term credit.

While payday loans remain among the most expensive form of short-term credit, consumer protections provided by the Payday Loan Reform Act of 2005 work together to limit how much and how long a consumer can be in debt. The following are the law's key provisions, which apply to every payday loan issued on or after Dec. 6th:

- A lender may charge a fee of no more than $15.50 for every $100 loaned;
- If a consumer repays his or her loan within two days, the lender must return the consumer's check, with the lending fee;
- A lender cannot make a payday loan if the loan would result in the consumer's being in payday loan debt for more than 45 consecutive days;
- A lender cannot make a payday loan to a consumer who has an outstanding balance on two payday loans;
- A borrower cannot borrow more than $1,000 or 25 percent of his or her gross monthly income, whichever is less;
- When a consumer pays off the balance of all payday loans taken out in a period of 39 or more consecutive days, a lender must wait seven days before issuing that consumer a new payday loan;
- After being in payday loan debt for 35 days, a consumer is entitled to enter into a repayment plan that permits him or her to pay off any outstanding payday loans in installments, with no additional fees, interest, or charges of any kind; and
- The law provides additional protections to members of the military, including a ban on wage garnishments, deferral of collection activity for personnel deployed to a combat area, and a prohibition on contacting a consumer's commanding officer.

Madigan reminded consumers that some community banks, credit unions and small loan companies make short-term loans without exorbitant fees and interest rates. These banks will make short-term loans at comparatively low interest rates, and they require little more paperwork than the payday lenders to qualify the consumer for the loan. These lenders may prove to be far more affordable for the consumer when it comes to paying back the loan.

Clean Air In Illinois

Illinois Environmental Protection Agency Director Doug Scott announced on Dec. 7th that Illinois experienced a record best for outdoor air quality in 2004.

The Illinois EPA released its 2004 Annual Air Quality Report showing air quality in Illinois as the best since the Agency began monitoring for air pollutants. This 34th Annual Air Quality Report showed outdoor air conditions across the state were good or moderate 98 percent of the time last year.

In 2004, there were no days when air quality was deemed Unhealthy (category Red), and there were only seven days when air quality was considered Unhealthy for Sensitive Groups (category Orange), compared to 19 days in 2003. Additionally, there were no days when air quality exceeded the federal 1-hour or 8-hour standard for ozone in 2004.

Long-term trends continue to show reductions in all air pollutants, including ozone, down nine percent and particulate matter, down ten percent.

The improved air quality is being partially attributed to 2004's mild summer, during which temperatures stayed below 90 degrees for the most part. Meteorology also played a significant role in the cleaner air Illinois citizens have been breathing.

The 2004 Annual Air Quality Report consists of data collected from more than 80 different sites, using more than 200 monitoring instruments. The IEPA monitors for numerous pollutants, including federal criteria pollutants - ozone, particulate matter, sulfur dioxide, nitrogen dioxide, carbon monoxide and lead. The 2004 Annual Air Quality Report is available on the Illinois EPA web site at www.epa.state.il.us. Printed copies may be requested from the Illinois EPA's Bureau of Air at (217) 782-9315.

Human Rights Day

As millions of people all over the world observed Dec. 10th as International Human Rights Day, the Illinois Dept. of Human Rights commemorated the occasion with an informative and educational display in the James R. Thompson Center. The display features the accomplishments of human rights activists and advocacy groups, the work and achievements of the Department, and new laws recently signed by Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich that strengthen the Illinois Human Rights Act.

On Dec. 10th, 1948, the General Assembly of the United Nations adopted and proclaimed the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. This declaration represents a common statement of goals regarding human rights and other fundamental freedoms. It recognizes among other things: the fundamental rights of all people to life, liberty and the security of person; the right to an adequate standard of living; the right to own property; the right to freedom of opinion and expression; the right to education, freedom of thought, conscience and religion; and the right to freedom from torture and degrading treatment.

IDHR enforces the Illinois Human Rights Act, which prohibits discrimination on a variety of bases including race, sex, age, color, national origin, disability and against sexual harassment - in employment, housing, public accommodations, financial credit. The Agency provides individuals with an avenue to address unlawful discrimination and through education and outreach; it increases awareness among individuals and helps them recognize forms of unlawful discrimination. The Department constantly monitors its operations to ensure that staff members are trained to rapidly and effectively respond to issues of discrimination and to seek appropriate remedies for affected parties.

In 2004 alone, IDHR received over 4,000 charges of discrimination and responded to more than 17,000 inquiries. During the last three years, IDHR trained over 6,000 people on how to avoid discrimination in the workplace and in housing, and have audited public contractors and other state agencies to ensure that they follow Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) and Affirmative Action guidelines.

Any individual wishing to file a discrimination complaint can do so in writing, by phone, or in person with any IDHR office, generally within 180 days of the date of the alleged discrimination. More information, as well as complaint forms, are available through the IDHR web site at <http://www.state.il.us/dhr>.

CATS Approve Funding For Local Projects

The Policy Committee of the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS) has approved its fiscal year 2006 Congestion Mitigation and Air Quality (CMAQ) Improvement Program. Seventy-six projects totaling more than $105.2 million were approved for the north-eastern Illinois region, including $53,531 for the Lake Katherine Drive/Lake Katherine bike path extension in Palos Heights.

CMAQ is a federally funded program of surface transportation improvements designed to improve air quality and mitigate congestion. CMAQ was created in 1991 as part of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA). Continuation of the program with increased funding was authorized by the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA-21), signed into law in June 1998. The new SAFETEA-LU authorization, passed in August, continues the CMAQ program and expands its scope to include more projects to reduce particulate matter pollution.

The Village of Palos Heights was awarded CMAQ funds to construct a bicycle lane and bicycle path linking the village's existing bicycle facility on 76th Ave. to the Harlem Ave. bridge over the Cal-Sag Channel. The link will improve access to the Metra Southwest Service station in Worth.

Other projects in this area that received funding through CMAQ include:

- A commuter and bicycle bridge over LaGrange Rd. at Southwest Highway in Orland Park ($464,000);
- Traffic signal interconnects on State St. from 127th to Illinois Sts. in Lemont ($341,798);
- Traffic signal interconnects on Illinois Route 171/83 (Cal-Sag Road) from the Robert Kingery Highway to Bell Rd. near Lemont ($442,704).

The full list of approved projects for northeastern Illinois can be read at the CATS web site, www.catsmpo.com. Questions or comments about CMAQ should be directed to Ross Patronsky, chief of the CMAQ

Program, at (312) 793-3474.

CATS is currently seeking project proposals for the FY 2007 CMAQ program. The deadline for submissions is Friday, Jan. 27th. Complete details are available on the CATS web site.

Compact Discs Alert

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently alerted consumers that Sony BMG compact discs containing copy protection software raise privacy concerns and could potentially leave computer vulnerable to certain viruses. Madigan urged consumers who have purchased these compact discs to protect their computers.

Madigan said Sony BMG Music Entertainment recalled and stopped manufacturing compact discs containing extended copy protection (XCP) software after security concerns were identified. Prior to the recall, Sony BMG distributed 52 compact discs titles containing the XCP software. A complete list of titles is available online at <http://cp.sonybmg.com/xcp/english/titles.html>.

Madigan said her office is investigating the consumer protection and privacy issues related to this matter and has requested information from Sony BMG regarding its compact discs and the problematic software.

Although Sony BMG has recalled its compact discs containing XCP software, there are reports that some of these compact discs may remain on stores' shelves. Consumers are advised not to purchase any XCP compact discs that may remain on the shelves. Recalled compact discs can be identified by looking at the back of the compact disc case. If a black and white grid and the words "compatible with" appear on the back of the case, then the compact disc contains copy protection software. If "XCP" appears in the Web address at the bottom of the grid, then the compact disc contains XCP software.

Consumers who have purchased XCP compact discs should not play the compact discs on their computers because the program that must be downloaded to listen to the compact discs contains hidden technology that can leave computers vulnerable to certain viruses. If consumers already have played the compact discs on their computers, that means the XCP software has been downloaded and their computers may be vulnerable to certain viruses.

To remove the XCP software, consumers must download a customized uninstall program available on Sony BMG's Web site at <http://cp.sonybmg.com/xcp/english/updates.html>. The program cannot be removed by using standard uninstall options provided by Microsoft Windows. Sony BMG is offering an exchange program for consumers who have purchased compact discs containing the XCP software. For more information, visit <http://cp.sonybmg.com/xcp>.

Winter Storm Control

With the metropolitan region threatened by the season's first major snowstorm, the Cook County Highway Dept. was in high alert mode for winter-storm control operations - including tackling snow, ice and other roadway hazards on hundreds of miles of suburban roads. Dozens of Highway Dept. trucks were deployed, and were prepared to work through the night and prepare for the morning rush.

The Highway Dept. maintains and ensures the safety of 486 centerline miles of Cook County roads - the equivalent of more than fourteen hundred lane miles of roads. Many County roads are part of the major arterial network that leads to and from area expressways and toll roads - including two-lane highways that present unique challenges during salting and plowing operations because of limited visibility and oncoming traffic.

At the beginning of the winter storm season, Cook County activated its round-the-clock winter operations plan, and County Highway trucks and workers have been providing road salting and plowing as needed and as weather conditions dictate. Those operations, which utilize over 100 pieces of equipment and a comprehensive emergency winter storm plan, go into high gear in the wake of warnings or alerts about impending winter storms, which could wreak havoc on local transportation needs without prompt County intervention.

Winter Ecology Walk

Two "Winter Wonder Walk" programs, sponsored by the Forest Preserve District of Will County, will be Wednesday, Dec. 28 and Saturday, Dec. 31 at 10 a.m. for each program, at Monee Reservoir. The walk, for persons of at least seven years of age, requires registration by Dec. 21 and a fee of $3.

Life abounds during the cold winter season if you know where to look. Come out and explore nature's wonders of winter. Topics may include snow blankets, animal tracking, wildlife adaptations during winter, interrelationships of animals and plants, and plant survival tactics. If weather conditions permit, "Winter Wonder Walk" will take place on snowshoes (included in the program fee).

Upon returning from the hike, participants will be able to warm themselves before a wood-burning stove in the Monee Reservoir visitor center, and hot chocolate, coffee and refreshments will be available for purchase.

These hikes will take place over a potential snow-packed surface and varied terrain.

Monee Reservoir is located on Ridgeland Ave., west of Route 50 and south of Pauling Road, 2.0 miles south of Monee.

To register or to learn more, call (815) 727-8700, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Provides Legal Services

Since November, Catholic Charities' newly formed Legal Referral Program has been providing a way for its clients to meet with pro bono attorneys, paralegals and law students for advice. After a preliminary interview, clients' issues are evaluated to determine an appropriate referral to a legal aid agency or pro bono attorney. As the largest private social service agency in the Midwest, Catholic Charities also provides a continuum of services to help clients address their needs. This program was created as a response to a growing need the agency has seen in the lives of its clients in recent years.

According to a February 2005 report by Timothy L. Bertschy and Jennifer T. Nijman, The Legal Aid Safety Net: A Report on the Legal Needs of Low-Income Illinoisans, approximately 383,000 low-income households (those with incomes below 150% of the federal poverty guidelines, or with an income of less than $27,600 for a family of four) experienced over 1.3 million legal problems in 2003, but received no legal assistance for more than 1.1 million of these legal issues. During this time period, low-income households received legal assistance for only one out of every six legal problems encountered.

"Each day, Catholic Charities social workers receive clients with pressing legal needs and little knowledge of where to go to have those problems answered," said Rev. Michael M. Boland, Catholic Charities Administrator, President and CEO. "It has been our goal to find a way to address those issues, and I am extremely grateful to the many members of our legal community who have come forward to help those in need."

Currently, caseworkers or clients can contact Catholic Charities' Legal Referral Program through a 24-hour hotline, (312) 948-6821. If an attorney or paralegal is not immediately available, the Legal Referral Program will return calls within 24 hours. In addition, volunteer attorneys have office hours on Tuesday from 2 to 5 p.m. and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at 721 N. LaSalle St. in downtown Chicago. (As more volunteers are found to staff the office, its days and hours will be expanded.) The program also offers assistance at a help desk at Catholic Charities' Tuesday Night Supper Program for the hungry and homeless, held at Catholic Charities' 721 N. LaSalle St. location.

Persons interested in volunteering for Catholic Charities' Legal Referral Program can contact Antoinette Eugene of Catholic Charities' Legal Services Dept. at (312) 612-6754.

Good Samaritan Initiative

As part of the Keep Warm Illinois campaign, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently announced the start of the Good Samaritan Initiative for the 2005-06 winter season. The initiative provides more affordable reconnection terms to Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) recipients who are customers of Ameren, Nicor Gas and Peoples Energy.

Thousands of low-income households across the state have been disconnected from utility service due to heating bill arrearages. The Good Samaritan Initiative will help many of these disconnected low-income customers by reducing the amount that the utilities require to restore service. LIHEAP beneficiaries, whose outstanding balances are too high to be covered by a LIHEAP grant alone but less than $3,000, will need to pay only $250 or 20 percent of the remaining balance, whichever is less, to have their service restored. Customers must also set up payment plans with their utilities for the remainder of the arrearages. The agreement with Ameren, Nicor Gas and Peoples Energy to make the Good Samaritan reconnection terms available for the 2005-06 heating season was announced by the governor in October.

Lt. Gov. Pat Quinn encouraged Illinois citizens to contribute to the Good Samaritan Trust Fund. The fund, which was established by law in 2003, allows Illinois residents and businesses to voluntarily contribute money toward the heating bills of low-income families. Contributions will benefit low-income residents of the county from which funds were donated and are tax deductible. To voluntarily contribute to the Good Samaritan Energy Trust Fund, send tax-deductible donations to the Good Samaritan Trust Fund, P.O. Box 19154, Springfield, IL 62794.

Biggert Secures $525,000 For Local Ecosystem Restoration Projects

U.S. Rep. Judy Biggert (R-IL-13) has announced the securing of $225,000 in federal funding for the Orland Wetlands restoration project and $300,000 for the Lockport Prairie Nature Preserve, two key ecosystem restoration projects in the 13th District. At Biggert's request, the funding was included in the Energy and Water Development Appropriations Conference Report, which passed the House on Nov. 14th by a vote of 399 to 17.

Orland Wetlands

"The Orland Wetlands restoration cannot be completed and reach its full ecological potential without this additional funding," Biggert said. "Few protected sites in northeastern Illinois can match the size, scale and habitat value of the Orland Tract. The sooner the project is completed, the faster my constituents throughout the area can enjoy the restored natural beauty."

This is the second consecutive year that Biggert secured funding for the Orland Wetlands, which enjoys substantial local support from the communities and residents, as well as the support of regional conservation organizations. A longtime supporter of the Orland Wetlands project, Biggert secured $210,000 and $225,000 for the project for fiscal years 2005 and 2006, respectively.

The Orland Wetlands is owned by the Cook County Forest Preserve and is located on the 960-acre tract in Orland Township bordered by LaGrange Rd. on the east, 104th Ave. on the west, 167th St. on the north, and 179th St. on the south. The project is a joint, local-federal project designed to restore the area to its original prairie grassland ecosystem.

Lockport Prairie Nature Preserve

Biggert also secured $300,000 for the 365-acre Lockport Prairie Nature Preserve, a unique ecosystem that consists of wetlands and dolomite prairie situated between the Des Plaines River and its bluffs. The funding will allow the Army Corps of Engineers to process the site-specific data collected in order to complete a project report for the restoration of the Lockport Prairie Nature Preserve. This is necessary to stabilize and protect the unique ecosystem that is the Lockport Prairie Nature Preserve and the protected species it supports.

In collaboration with a technical advisory group made up of representatives of various federal and state regulatory agencies and experts on the several endangered and threatened species inhabiting the site, the Forest Preserve District of Will County (FPD) in 2000 initiated a detailed hydrologic monitoring program. The FPD collected key data on the Lockport Prairie Nature Preserve and now seeks to establish a restoration plan with the help of the technical advisory group and the Army Corps of Engineers. With the funding secured by Biggert, the Corps will be able to continue the process of developing a restoration plan.

The Senate passed the fiscal year 2006 Energy and Water Appropriations Conference Report on Nov. 14th. Now it goes to the President's desk for his signature.

Reduce Shortfall

Cook County Board President John Stroger announced recently that his administration has reduced the County's projected shortfall for 2006 from $307 million to $95 million. Stroger plans to release his 2006 budget next week without a property tax increase.

"I am pleased that once again we are able to balance the County's budget without an increase in the property tax levy," Stroger said. The County's property tax levy has not risen above $720.5 million since Stroger took office in 1994. As a result of holding the levy at that level, officials estimate that the County has saved property taxpayers more than $1.8 billion over the past 10 years. Stroger pointed to the County's bond rating as evidence that his administration has been responsibly managing County funds throughout his tenure. "This is the highest bond rating this government has had in nearly 30 years and as a result has saved taxpayers millions of dollars."

The initial shortfall of $307 million was a combination of rising expenses, requests for additional funds by elected officials and an expected $70 million reduction in Medicaid reimbursements. "Today's shortfall is the result of my finance team eliminating growth in the budget to less than 2% which is well below the rate of inflation and reducing funding for vacant positions," Stroger said. Additional reductions on the expense side include overtime and impersonal accounts such as office supplies, professional memberships, training and travel.

"We have cut everywhere possible without impacting services. But if we are to fulfill our mission of providing vital public health and public safety services, we will need new revenues just like other units of government have adopted," Stroger added. "At a minimum, we need to replace the $70 million that we are losing from the federal government."

To offset the remaining $95 million shortfall, Stroger will propose a $1 increase on the tobacco tax and a 2% hotel tax, which combined are expected to raise $95 million for 2006.

"I will continue to work with state and federal officials to seek additional resources but at this point we need to move forward. No one likes taxes but the County Board has an obligation to keep the healthcare system, the courts and the jail operating. These new revenues are necessary as more and more people are losing their healthcare coverage and turning to our system," he added.

Stroger is scheduled to present his 2006 budget recommendation on Monday, Dec. 19th at 11 a.m. in the County Board Room, 118 N. Clark, Room 567, in Chicago.

All Points Southwest

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

The race for the governor's mansion in the state's Republican primary is finally shaping up as Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka has announced that DuPage County State's Attorney Joseph Birkett has agreed to join with her as a candidate for Lt. Governor. Topinka will seek the governor's office; this tandem seems to be a strong contender for the March primary prize. They will be opposed by another strong duo - gubernatorial hopeful Ronald Gidwitz and State Senator Steve Rauschenberger for Lt. Governor, as well as a possible host of individuals running for the governor's chair at-large.

State Republican Chairman Andrew McKenna Jr. has urged several potential contenders to reappraise their campaign chances so that a viable Republican ticket can develop momentum for the fall campaign against Democratic Governor Rod Blagojevich. We'll keep you posted.

U.S. Senator Dick Durbin (D-IL) has informed All Points that the Senate missed an opportunity to revise the military retirement system to make it more equitable to members of the National Guard and Reserve and a more powerful incentive to continued service.

Currently, a reservist who completes 20 years of service is eligible to receive retirement pay but not until the age of 60. Durbin offered an amendment, which received 40 votes during debate on the Department of Defense Authorization Bill, offered a one-year reduction in the retirement age for each year of service beyond 20 years. Under Durbin's proposal, a reservist would have been able to begin to draw retirement pay as early as age 55 if he or she serves an additional five years.

"Today, a member of the Guard or Reserve can retire at age 38 after serving 20 years, but must wait until age 60 before receiving the first penny of any retirement pay. That's just too long. Our reserves are making enormous sacrifices, risking their lives in combat zones and dying for their country. The age to draw retirement pay must be lowered. I am disappointed that the Senate did not pass this important measure, but the fight is far from over," Durbin said.

State Comptroller Dan Hynes made it official - he's running for a third term as Illinois State Comptroller in 2006. "I run because I am convinced the state faces difficult challenges and I must do all that I can to continue a strong record of fiscal leadership in Illinois," said Hynes.

"Public service is a privilege," said Hynes. "And public service is all about priorities, about choosing, about values. I am proud of the values reflected in our accomplishments so far - promoting a state government that is more fiscally responsible, more accountable and more efficient."

Hynes reminded his audience that effective public service and straight talk on the state's pressing set of fiscal issues will continue to be a hallmark of a Hynes' Administration in its third term. He cited a variety of accomplishments recorded during his first two terms including increased efficiency in the state payment process. "Today the office processes more than 6.1 million electronic payments annually nearly double the number when I first took office." Hynes was first elected in 1998 and then re-elected in 2002.

Cook County Board President John Stroger has another fellow county commissioner coveting his job. Commissioner Forrest Claypool formally announced last week that he is a candidate for the County Board presidency. Claypool, a former head of the Chicago Park District in the 1990s, contends that his well-run campaign organization and its resources will make him an "alternative" to the Stroger machine. Commissioner Claypool joins fellow Commissioners Michael Quigley as candidates challenging present President John Stroger in the March Democratic primary election.

State Rep. Bob Rita (D-Blue Island) will host a community blood drive at the district office in Crestwood on Saturday, Dec. 17th. Life Source Blood Center will run the drive from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Rita has been recognized as "Legislator of the Year" by the Illinois Coalition of Community Blood Centers for his work in encouraging high school students to organize blood drives. Earlier this year, he introduced and passed a law allowing many employers across the state one paid hour of leave to donate blood.

"Blood is not just needed in times of disaster. Every three seconds someone will need a transfusion," Rita said. "Please give back to your community this Christmas by donating blood. Your gift can save up to three lives."

If you would like to schedule a donation time, call Rep. Rita's district office at (708) 396-2822 or drop in at 13543 S. Cicero Ave. in Crestwood (next to Walgreen's) on Dec. 17th.

Orland Township is sponsoring a "New Year's Eve Dinner Dance" for seniors age 55 and over. The dinner dance will be held on Thursday, Dec. 29th at the Orland Chateau, 14500 S. LaGrange Rd., from 5 to 10 p.m. Tickets are necessary and may be purchased at the Orland Township Office, 15100 S. 94th Ave. Resident tickets are available for $15 each and non-resident tickets are $19 each. Ticket price includes a family style meal and entertainment by the Jimmy O & Rhonda Lee Duo. Door prizes and a 50/50 raffle will be offered. For more information, contact Ellen Friedl, Senior Services Coordinator or Kathy Kenyeri, Senior Services Assistant at (708) 403-4222.

Moraine Valley Community College seeks nominations for its 2006 Pacesetter and Distinguished Alumnus awards.

Pacesetter nominees must have received a degree, diploma, or certificate from Moraine Valley after June 30, 2001 - within the past five years. Distinguished Alumnus nominees must have received a degree, diploma, or certificate from Moraine Valley before June 30th, 2001 - more than five years ago.

The selection committee considers such factors as outstanding success and distinction in his/her chosen field; humanitarian service that has proven beneficial to society; and continued interest in and support of education and community colleges.

The deadline for nominations is Friday, Jan. 27th. For more information or to obtain a nomination form, call the College and Community Relations Office at (708) 974-5375.

Urge Motorists To Buckle Up

Citing preliminary statistics for fatalities on Illinois highways, Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) Secretary Timothy W. Martin and Illinois State Police (ISP) Director Larry Trent are urging Illinois drivers and their passengers to use extra caution as 2005 draws to a close. Preliminary statistics show ten more people were killed in traffic crashes through November of 2005, than for the same time period last year. State highways and interstates have seen a reduction of fatalities by 9%, while traffic deaths on local roads have increased by 10%.

Secretary Martin recently mailed letters to police agencies throughout Illinois detailing the current fatality information for all Illinois counties. In his letter Secretary Martin urged local agencies to step up their efforts on removing impaired drivers from our roadways and to take a zero tolerance approach to safety belt enforcement.

Last year saw the lowest number of traffic deaths on Illinois highways in more than 60 years with 1,356 people killed. Through the first six months of 2005 Illinois was on track to record its lowest number of traffic fatalities since 1924.

Through the first six months of this year there were 597 deaths, compared to 638 deaths during the same time period a year ago. Between July and November of this year, the number of traffic deaths has increased to 1,238, ten more than the same time period from last years, 1,228.

IDOT and ISP are urging motorists and police agencies alike to take a tough stand against impaired driving during this last month of 2005. In Illinois, 45% of our traffic fatalities are alcohol related. One way to battle the problem is a regional approach. A dozen agencies are running DUI saturation patrols along a 30-mile stretch of IL 21 (Milwaukee Ave.) from Gurnee to Chicago.

IDOT Secretary Martin noted that there were some communities making positive strides in reducing traffic deaths in their areas. He pointed out that Peoria County has seen one of the largest decreases, from 39 fatalities last year to 12 through November of this year.

Bethlehem At The Farm

The Children's Farm will host an afternoon living nativity pageant called "Bethlehem at the Farm" on Sunday, Dec. 18, from 1 until 3 p.m. The Children's Farm is located at 12700 Southwest Highway in Palos Park.

Visitors will tour through the barns where they will find the animal pens staffed by shepherds in Judean robes. Far back in the barn, they will find Mary and Joseph, and Baby Jesus lying in the manger, surrounded by singing angels. Wilbur, the farm donkey, will be there too.

A free will offering will be taken in lieu of farm admission. Punch and cookies will be served. For further information, interested persons should call The Center at (708) 361-3650.

Since Governor Blagojevich signed the primary seatbelt law in July of 2003, fatalities have decreased while seatbelt usage has increased. Before the primary enforcement law, police could not pull a driver over based solely on a seatbelt violation. At that time, seatbelt usage was just 76%. Since the Governor signed the law in July of 2003, safety belt usage climbed to 83% in June of 2004 and 86% in June of 2005.

Touch-N-Go Service

Adding value to and checking balances on Chicago Transit Authority Chicago Cards is now more convenient with new locations for reloading available throughout the CTA service area. CTA officials announced 65 locations began offering the new Touch-n-Go reloading service on Dec. 1st. Along with a promotional fee waiver period which also began on Dec. 1st, the Touch-n-Go pilot was initiated to encourage customers to make the switch to smart card technology and avoid a CTA fare increase for cash paying customers scheduled to take effect on Jan. 1st.

The 65 retail outlets participating in the Touch-n-Go pilot are Currency Exchange stores located throughout the CTA service areas. A specially designed portable device - similar to a credit/debit card machine at retail checkout counters - allows each retail outlet to provide the service. Customers give the clerk the Chicago Card and cash. The clerk uses the device to electronically add value to the card. The card along with a receipt is returned to the customers. Customers can add as little as $1.75 to their Chicago Cards using the Touch-n-Go device.

In addition to the new 65 neighborhood locations, customers can continue to add value to Chicago Cards at the vending machines at CTA's 144 rail stations in neighborhoods throughout the service area.

Currently, more than 200 non-CTA outlets such as Currency Exchanges, Jewel-Osco and Dominick's Finer Food stores that already provide other types of CTA fare media are also offering Chicago Cards.

Chicago Cards are also available at CTA's main office at 567 W. Lake St. from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., via mail, online at CTA's web site www.transitchicago.com, or by calling 1(888) 968-7282 Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Information on the pilot locations for reloading Chicago Cards are posted on the CTA web site, www.transitchicago.com. Customers also may find a location by calling 1(888) 968-7282.

"Typosquatting" Scheme

With the online holiday shopping season in full swing, Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently filed a lawsuit against a Chicago-area jewelry store that unfairly took business away from its competitors and deceived online shoppers by using copycat Web addresses to redirect consumers from their intended Internet destinations.

Perpetuating a scheme known as "typosquatting," a Chicago jewelry store targeted consumers seeking to do business with its competitors by registering several Web addresses that mimic and are almost identical to the Web addresses of other local jewelry stores. If an online shopper accidentally misspelled or mistyped another Chicago jewelry store's Web address, there was a good chance the consumer would be redirected to www.diamonds-chicago.com, Madigan's lawsuit alleges.

Madigan's lawsuit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, names as defendants Chicago Diamonds, Inc., doing business as Diamonds Chicago, and the company's president, Michael Kelly. The lawsuit charges the defendants with violations of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act and the Illinois Uniform Deceptive Trade Practices Act.

The fraudulent practice of "typosquatting" occurs when a business registers a domain name, or Web address, similar to that of its competitor to increase traffic on its own Web site and away from the Web site of its competitor. In this case, Madigan alleges Chicago Diamonds usually only added or subtracted a single letter from the legitimate domain names of its competitors.

Madigan said her office's Consumer Protection Division received complaints from 10 Chicago-area jewelry stores alleging copycat Web addresses had been created to divert traffic away from their Web sites to the Chicago Diamonds site. For example, La Ron Jewelers in Chicago claimed that Chicago Diamonds created a copycat Web address to redirect traffic to www.diamonds-chicago.com by deleting one letter from the actual La Ron Jewelers Web address of www.laronjewelers.com.

Madigan's lawsuit asks the court to prohibit the defendants from continuing their deceptive practices and further violating Illinois' consumer protection laws. The lawsuit also seeks a civil penalty of $50,000 and additional penalties of $50,000 for each violation found to have been committed with the intent to defraud. Finally, Madigan's lawsuit asks the court to order the defendants to transfer the registration of all relevant domain names to the affected competitors and pay restitution to consumers.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

ORGANIC TURKEYS: ARE THEY SAFE?

This Christmas when you are turkey shopping, you may be considering a different kind of Tom turkey—the organic Tom! In response to growing concerns for public safety regarding antibiotics in poultry, Americans are consuming organic turkeys in record numbers. Organic birds are raised without antibiotics, fed 100 percent certified organic feed, and packaged without artificial flavors or colors. According to the organic trade association, “organic poultry sales – which includes turkey – are forecasted as the fastest growing category of organic products sales, with an anticipated annual growth of 33.2 percent through 2008.”

Antibiotics are commonly used in conventional agriculture to speed livestock growth and prevent some diseases. Public health authorities link this use of antibiotics to more persons contracting infections which resist treatment with the same drugs.

Consequently, the American Medical Association adopted a resolution in June, 2001, opposing the use of antimicrobials at non-therapeutic levels in agriculture, or as pesticides or growth promoters, and urged that such uses be ended, based upon scientific risk assessments.

Several large poultry companies announced that they will phase out one particular poultry antibiotic that the US Food and Drug Administration suspects could be to blame for generating antibiotic-resistant bacteria.

But despite the promise, farmers are not required to report antibiotic use, and consumers have no way of knowing if their poultry purchases are supporting it.

Consumers can be sure of avoiding the use of antibiotics in food production by buying organically produced meat. Antibiotics, growth hormones and artificial flavors and colors are forbidden in certified organic foods, which must comply with strict national standards.

For the health-conscious consumer, low fat, high protein organic turkey is a popular choice year-round, and it tastes the same as regular turkey. Nationwide, over 15 percent of the turkey consumed at Thanksgiving, and over 8 percent at Christmas, is organic.

Flu Shots Available

It's not too late to get your flu shot. The Cook County Department of Public Health still has vaccine at some of its clinics for those meeting eligibility requirements and urges those who have not gotten their shot to do so soon.

“Vaccinations are available at no-cost to residents,” said Cook County Board President John H. Stroger Jr. “No one's health should be at risk because they didn't get a flu shot. The flu puts thousands in the hospital every year and causes 36,000 needless deaths.”

The flu is caused by a virus that infects the nose, throat and lungs. Generally, the flu includes symptoms such as fever, cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, headache, muscle aches and fatigue. Flu is highly contagious and spreads easily from person to person, primarily when an infected person coughs or sneezes. Typically flu season occurs between October and March, with peak season in February.

CCDPH is recommending flu shots for: people two to 65 with chronic illness (heart, lung, kidney disease, asthma); residents of long term care facilities; people 65 years of age and older; infants six to 23 months of age and anyone who lives in a household with an infant between 0-23 months of age; anyone who lives in a household with a person with chronic disease or cares for a person with high risk medical conditions; health care workers who provide direct patient care; and pregnant women.

Clinic hours and times for the remaining clinics are: Bridgeview, 5th District Courthouse, 10220 S. 76th Ave., open Thursday afternoons from 4 to 6 p.m. and the first Thursday morning of each month from 9 to 11 a.m.; Markham, 6th District Courthouse, 16501 S. Kedzie Parkway, open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and until 7 p.m. on Tuesdays; Maywood, Eisenhower Tower, 1701 S. First Ave., 1st floor, open Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the first Thursday afternoon of every month from 4 to 6 p.m.; and South Holland, 52 W. 162nd St., open Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Clinics will be closed on Jan. 16, Feb. 13 and 20 in observance of federal holidays.

“Top Ten List” For Holiday Visits With Seniors

The holidays offer families a special opportunity to celebrate common bonds. But what about elderly individuals who live alone or in nursing homes? It is always important to include these individuals in family celebrations. By organizing well-planned and enjoyable visits, friends and family members can help elderly people make the 2004 holiday season memorable and meaningful. The Illinois Council on Long Term Care, a state nursing home association, offers its “Top Ten List” on how to make visits with seniors during the holidays more rewarding for everyone involved.

Help with Holiday Decorating – Visitors can help elderly individuals put up a Christmas tree, place decorations on walls, or hang up lights. Decorating could become a fun activity for several generations of a family. For seniors in nursing homes, visitors can bring holiday decorations with them to make these individuals' rooms more festive and home-like. In addition, the elderly individual may enjoy working on a craft project, such as creating an ornament for the Christmas tree or a stocking to hang on the fireplace. A simple craft activity would be a fun project for the senior to do with children.

Tape Stories or Create a Life Story Book – Seniors have a wealth of interesting stories to share. Consider tape-recording these stories for future generations to enjoy. Or try creating a life storybook, which would consist of photographs, announcements, newspaper clippings, memorabilia and text placed in a three-ring binder that showcase the senior's life history.

Bring in Photo Albums or Other Memorabilia – During a visit, consider bringing in family photo albums as a way to spark conversation, including pictures of holidays past. Provide meaningful pieces of memorabilia that will elicit positive memories, such as small antique items, a coin collection, a favorite book, or other objects that reflect the background and the interests of the individual.

Assist with Writing Holiday Cards or Letters – Because of arthritis and vision impairments, many elderly persons find it difficult to write cards and letters. During the holidays, consider helping an elderly person prepare cards for family and friends. It may be beneficial to volunteer reading letters the elderly person has received and offering to transcribe any replies back. In the nursing home, the elderly person may find it challenging to get needed supplies, so consider bringing cards, stationery, pens and stamped envelopes.

Organize a Visit or Call from Clergy – This holiday season marks a good opportunity to organize a visit or even a phone call between a senior and a favorite clergy member, especially if they haven't had a recent opportunity to visit. They can also discuss news in the congregation, describe this year's holiday events or simply catch up.

Bring in a Recipe Book and Plan Several Menus – Many seniors have a long history of holiday entertaining and would enjoy dispensing advice on what to prepare for holiday menus. Bring in some cookbooks and review the various recipes. It may be a fun activity to bring in food supplies for preparing holiday fixings together, such as preparing no-bake cookies with a person who lives in a nursing home.

Listen to Favorite Music Tapes or Old-time Radio Shows – Bring in some of the elderly person's favorite music, including holiday music from the artists of years past, and listen to it together during a visit. A tape player would be a wonderful gift for a senior who doesn't already own one. A creative approach would be to visit the local library to check out audiotapes of old-time radio shows, such as Amos and Andy, Jack Benny, or Fibber McGee and Molly. Holding a carol sing-along and recording it would be another memorable way to mark the holiday season.

Do Some Holiday Shopping from Catalogs – If the elderly person is unable to go out shopping, bring the shopping to them.

Take over a variety of catalogs and peruse the pages for holiday gifts. Ask for advice on what to get for various members of the family. Assist the senior in making his or her own purchases.

Read Aloud from Newspapers, Magazines or Church Bulletins – As elderly persons may have hardships with reading, consider reading aloud articles from the person's favorite newspapers and magazines. Large print books and periodicals make wonderful gifts for seniors during the holidays. Church bulletins can also serve as an excellent source of conversation.

Listen, Listen, Listen – Probably the most important piece of advice is to truly listen to the words the senior person has to say and to hear the feelings behind these words. Too often, visitors end up doing most of the talking during a visit, because they feel uncomfortable and may be in a rush to get several things done that day. Taking the time to really listen is one of the most generous gifts we can offer to an elderly person, helping this individual to feel appreciated, valued and loved. If the person is unwilling or unable to talk, holding a hand or giving a hug goes a long, long way.

While visits during the holidays are very important, don't forget about the rest of the year. It is important that family and friends take an active role in helping seniors who live alone or in nursing homes feel valued and appreciated. Consider buying a calendar for the elderly person for the year 2006, and marking down dates planned for future visits.

Thanks And Giving Campaign

For the second year, Westfield has partnered with St. Jude Children's Research Hospital® to raise funds through the Thanks and Giving campaign at all Chicago Westfield Shopping Centers through Dec. 31. The national promotion benefits St. Jude, the world's premier pediatric cancer research center. During this promotion a set of two unique cause bands will be available for $2 a set at the Shopping Concierge Centers. Thanks and Giving encourages consumers to give thanks for the children in their lives who are healthy while giving to those children who are not, with the hope that some day all children will be healthy.

The Thankful for You bands are unique because they are sold in sets of two, including one adult and one child bracelet per package. This distinctive concept offers the opportunity for adults to show how thankful they are for the children in their lives and to share the concept of public support of a cause near to their family's heart.

The dual Thankful for You bands are a bright peridot green, symbolizing health and vitality. The energizing color is the symbol for this year's Thanks and Giving campaign. All proceeds from band sales going directly to St. Jude. More than 60 Westfield Centers in the United States, including the seven in Chicago, will sell Thankful for You bands at the Shopping Concierge stations to raise funds and awareness for this vital cause.

Give Lasting Gifts This Holiday Season

In the spirit of the holiday season, the United Spinal Assn. is calling upon all Americans to remember the approximately 250,000 of their fellow citizens with spinal cord injury and the nearly half a million people with multiple sclerosis or other diseases of the spinal cord.

"It's a season of giving and we urge everyone to consider meaningful and lasting gifts," said United Spinal's Executive Director Gerard M. Kelly. "We can change an entire life forever with the gift of our time and our money to help individuals with spinal cord injury or disease."

Nearly 60 years ago a group of paralyzed World War II veterans joined together to assert their fundamental civil rights to the same opportunities their countrymen enjoyed and they dedicated themselves to building meaningful, productive lives for all of their paralyzed fellow soldiers. Through their efforts to secure better health care, accessible public buildings and transportation, and equal opportunities in the workplace, these veterans continued serving their country long after leaving the battlefield and today that legacy lives on in the United Spinal Association's expanded mission to serve not just our brave veterans but all Americans living with paralysis or other mobility impairments.

"As United Spinal approaches its 60th Anniversary

Year, we are proud to announce that we are the fastest growing organization dedicated to spinal cord injury and disease in the country. We ask our fellow Americans to bear in mind that the security and the comforts we enjoy this holiday season were – and continue to be – purchased by the sacrifice of our young men and women in uniform around the world and that if the season prompts a spirit of giving, there are few better causes than our veterans and all of our fellow citizens living with spinal cord injury and disease," Kelly said.

For more information on how to make a lasting gift this holiday season, visit United Spinal at www.unitedspinal.com.

Active Military Identity Theft

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently urged active duty military personnel to take full advantage of their rights under the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) to protect their identity.

Madigan said that under the FCRA, active duty personnel can contact any or all of the three national credit reporting companies to place an "active duty alert" on their credit reports. Madigan said this assures military personnel that a business or financial institution must verify that a person applying for credit is not using a service member's credit history to run up bad credit card debt and committing other financial crimes in their name.

Military personnel can contact the three national credit-reporting companies at:

Experian, P.O. Box 2002, Allen, TX 75013, (800) 297-3742, TTY (800) 972-0322, www.experian.com

Equifax, P.O. Box 740241, Atlanta, GA 30374, (800) 685-1111, www.equifax.com

TransUnion, Two Baldwin Place, 1510 Chester Pike, Crum Lynne, PA 19022, (800) 888-4213, www.transunion.com

Madigan said that under the Act, the "active duty alert" remains in effect for one year unless cancelled by the individual or designee.

A recent amendment to the FCRA, known as the Fair and Accurate Credit Transaction Act (FACT), established the free credit report program. The program requires the three national credit-reporting firms to provide consumers, at their request, with a free copy of their credit report every 12 months.

For additional information, veterans can call Madigan's Veterans Rights Bureau Assistant Chief James Capparelli at 1(800) 382-3000.

Address Adolescent Mental Health Issues

More than 50 suburban high school counselors gathered Friday, Dec. 9th to learn about the Mental Health Association of Greater Chicago's (MHAGC) innovative Mental Health Awareness in Education (MHAE) initiative, a progressive way for schools to address the serious and all-too-often overlooked mental health issues facing today's youth.

"Now more than ever, today's school counselors and teachers are dealing with mental health issues that impact the learning and lives of many of their students," said Dr. Bruce Lane, president of the Directors of Counseling and Student Services of Suburban Chicago. "Educators must seek the necessary tools to appropriately understand and address these issues if they are to assure the success of all students."

The first of its kind in the country, MHAE includes workshops, training sessions and a comprehensive Adolescent Mental Health Handbook to teach school personnel how to respond appropriately and effectively to the most common mental health disorders in adolescents. The unique program fills the educational gap for teachers and counselors, many of whom have no experience in dealing with mental illness; and for schools that need community mental health resources to fill the deficit between student need and the mental health resources available in schools.

As a member of the State of Illinois Children's Mental Health Partnership, Schriver's program teaches professionals, families and adolescents how to identify but not diagnose mental illnesses such as eating disorders and depression; what to say and what not to say to those who suffer; and, how to halt the downward spiral of untreated mental illness. More than 25 schools throughout the state have been involved in the program.

The MHAGC has a strategic partnership with Chicago Public Schools and has worked closely with the Institute for Juvenile Research at the University of Illinois to develop the Adolescent Mental Health Handbook, which is regarded by the UCLA Center for Mental Health in Schools as the first comprehensive mental health publication for school teachers and counselors in the country. The MHAGC has also created a 15 week Mental Health curriculum for student health education and psychology classes that is currently being piloting in three Chicago schools.

The Mental Health Association of Greater Chicago (MHAGC) is an independent, not-for-profit, volunteer Association founded in 1957. MHAGC advocates for the social and emotional health of children and families, and provides practical tools and educational training for identification, prevention, and referral of mental illness.

The 82nd Airborne Division Association is looking for veterans who served in airborne units from WW II to today's troopers. Veterans from all the airborne units are members of the association, including the 11th, 13th, 17th, 101st, today's Special Forces as well as in the 82nd Division. They hold regular monthly meetings, picnics, dinner dances, many mini-reunions, a National Convention, WW II School Programs and participate in local parades. Their motto Once Airborne – Always Airborne still applies after sixty years. Airborne is the only requirement to join. For complete details on reunions and membership material write to Airborne Activities, 5459 Northcutt Pl., Dayton, Ohio 45414, or call (937) 898-5977 or email argabn@aol.com. On Dec. 7th, at a full Veterans' Committee oversight hearing on claims processing at the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA), Chairman Steve Buyer (R-Ind.) heard testimony of excessive wait times for claims decisions and clear indications that VA needs more claims adjudicators.

The backlog of pending claims and the time it takes VA's Veterans Benefits Administration (VBA) to process a claim has increased over the past two years. Major concerns cited at the hearing beyond the backlog of claims included: A lack of quality in claims decisions; A need for medical staff who conduct disability examinations to have a greater knowledge of health issues specific to veterans; The perception that some claims processors have a complacent or dismissive attitude about their work.

"Veterans just want to be treated well. They recognize that something is not right and they are making a claim. How they are treated is important. It is about quality and attitude," said Chairman Buyer.

Buyer, at the hearing's conclusion, asked representatives of veterans groups who had provided testimony, including the VFW, The American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, Paralyzed Veterans of America, and AMVETS, if they thought that VA needed more claims adjudicators.

Hearing their unanimous agreement that additional VBA staffing would help resolve the claims backlog and problems with quality decisions, Buyer said, "The increase in disability claims can be directly related to the increase in U.S. military operations abroad. Doing more with less is not a strategy of success."

"We will need to increase the staffing at both the regional compensation office level and at the Board of Veterans Appeals to attack this backlog and prepare for the anticipated increases in additional claims," Buyer said. "I look forward to working with Ranking Member Lane Evans, veterans groups, and the Administration to come to a viable solution to resolve this pressing concern."

Testimony was provided by William B. Jones, M.D., Col. United States Air Force Reserve (Ret.); Honorable James P. Terry, Chairman of Board of Veterans' Appeals; Ronald R. Aument, Deputy Under Secretary for Benefits, VBA; Donald Mooney, Assistant Director for Resource Development Veterans Affairs and Rehabilitation Commission at The American Legion; James Doran, National Service Director of AMVETS; Brian E. Lawrence, Assistant National Legislative Director for DAV; Blake Ortnier, Associate Legislative Director of PVA; Quentin Kinderman, Deputy Director, National Legislative Service VFW.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS DEER HUNTING - A TRIP DOWN MEMORY LANE: For the past 15 years, Jim Grady, Orland Park, and I have hunted deer during the second season, on the south end of Rend Lake, near Benton, Illinois. We were guests of Cyril Bowlin who I befriended as the result of a spilled fishing tackle box and a cold six pack of Stag beer (but that's another story).

Over the years, Cyril and I hunted quail, rabbits, pheasants, doves, ducks, geese, and enjoyed fishing the many lakes that Cyril guided on in the area. But the highlight of our outdoor activities was deer hunting with his dad Bud, Uncle Wendall and Cyril's many friends.

Cyril had the knack of being able to place hunters in stands that complimented the location of the other hunters, so that everybody had a good chance of getting a deer. The Bowlin family owned a large stand of woods that Cyril knew like the back of his hand, and had a pretty good idea as to what the deer would do under varying conditions.

Sadly, that all came to an end on Oct. 17th, 2004, Cyril passed away as a result of complications that had been plaguing him for quite some time. My wife Mary and I were in northern Wisconsin celebrating our anniversary (Oct. 17th), grouse hunting and muskie fishing. We didn't hear about Cyril's untimely death until our return home.

Phone calls were made to Cyril's family expressing our condolences, and expecting our deer hunt to be canceled, his family wanted to continue the tradition in Cyril's honor. The property had been sold, but the new owner gave hunting privileges to Cyril's family and said Grady and I could hunt that year.

To our surprise, Grady and I were invited back this year. Opening morning, I had a shot at a six-pointer. Just as I pulled the trigger, my left shoulder gave out, the gun dropped, and thankfully it was a clean miss. The hunter's prayer (Dear Lord, if I can't kill clean, let me miss clean) came into play here. Right then and there I resolved to give up gun deer hunting, for fear that I would wound a non-retrievable deer. I'm still in therapy after a shoulder operation on July 19th but see no improvement.

Rather than give up hunting, the boys suggested that I look into hunting with a handgun, which is perfectly legal with certain restrictions. Since coming home, I have been practicing holding and aiming a handgun - it works for me. If invited back to hunt next year, I will be using a handgun, unless a miracle happens and I get back the use of my left shoulder.

Jim Grady with his "Spike Buck"

Grady shot a nice spike buck that's being processed at Czimer's Wild Game and Seafoods on 159th St. in near-by Homer Glen, Illinois. Grady is having the deer made into butterfly chops, loins, roasts and hamburger. And being the gentleman that he is, he has offered to share the meat with me.

Throughout our hunt, the good times we had with Cyril kept cropping up. We even had dinner with his wife Gay, and daughter Adena. We learned that the Historical Society in Benton had a wall dedicated to Cyril. This I had to see, there it was with his photos, awards, mounted fish and trophies. Proclamations from the Governor and other dignitaries extolled his accomplishments and gave him credit for making Rend Lake the "fishing jewel" of Southern Illinois.

Cyril Bowlin's "Wall of Fame" in the Historical Society Of Benton, Illinois

During his years as a top fishing guide, his clients included sports stars, politicians, TV and radio personalities, as well as just plain folks who wanted to have a good time, enjoy Cyril's sense of humor and, yes, catch some fish.

During 2004, Cyril was inducted into the "Fresh Water Fishing Hall of Fame" in Hayward, Wisconsin as a "Legendary Guide," the only one so honored from the state of Illinois.

In addition to his guiding service, "CB" as he was affectionately known to his friends, Cyril starred in many TV series, radio programs, won fishing tournaments and published Southern Outdoor Recreation News magazine.

Belmonte Women's Soccer All American

St. Xavier University senior midfielder Jen Belmonte was named a 2005 NAIA Women's Soccer Second Team All-American when the selection committee recently announced the honors. In addition, sophomore forward Lissa Coby and sophomore defender Cassie Rumpf both earned honorable mention recognition on the NAIA All-American Team in their respective positions.

Belmonte recorded nine goals and 14 assists playing in all 20 games during her senior season. She is the first women's soccer player in the nine-year history of the SXU women's soccer program to earn a spot higher than honorable mention on an NAIA All-American Team.

Coby led the Cougars in goals (12), assists (21) and total points (45) in 2005, but played in just 17 games due to injury. Rumpf played in all 20 games for St. Xavier at defender and tallied two assists, while anchoring a defense that allowed just over a goal a game (1.06).

St. Xavier finished the 2005 season with an overall record of 14-4-2 and was named co-champion of the CCAC with an 8-1 mark. The Cougars also qualified for the quarterfinals of the NAIA Region VII Tournament.

Best Deer Harvest Ever

Hunters in Illinois harvested a preliminary total of 114,209 deer during the seven-day firearm deer-hunting season from Nov. 18th to 20th and Dec. 1st to 4th. The preliminary harvest total compares with the record-setting harvest total of 116,675 deer taken during the 2004 firearm season.

Hunters took a preliminary second-season (Dec. 1st to 4th) harvest total of 37,158 deer compared with last year's second-season harvest total of 42,856. This year's preliminary first-season (Nov. 18th to 20th) deer harvest was 77,051 compared with a first-season harvest of 73,919 in 2004. The figures include deer harvested in the 98 counties in which firearm hunting is permitted and deer harvested on state sites where special permits are issued.

Preliminary harvest reports for the 2005 firearm season show that Pike County led the state with a total harvest of 3,737.

Deer hunters in most downstate counties registered their harvest through the new DNR Direct harvest reporting system by going online or calling a toll-free number to report their harvest.

Illinois' muzzleloader-only deer hunt was from Dec. 9th to 11th, while the Late Winter Firearm Antlerless-only Deer Season in 51 counties is from Jan. 13th to 15th. Permits were issued previously for these seasons. Resident landowners with unfilled "Property-only Hunting" landowner/tenant permits for the firearm season may use those permits to take antlerless deer on their property during the Late Winter Firearm Antlerless-only Deer Season if the property is located in one of the 51 counties open for the late winter season. Other unfilled firearm season permits will not be valid for the Late Winter Firearm Antlerless-only Deer Season.

The statewide archery deer-hunting season continues through Jan. 12th.

"Affinity Fraud" Victims

Attorney General Lisa Madigan and Secretary of State Jesse White recently announced that a Chicago-area man who used his religious ties with pastors and fellow church members to lure them into a web that snared 144 victims in nine states with promises of big investment returns has pleaded guilty to numerous felonies and has been sentenced to serve 7.5 years in prison.

Madigan and White said James E. Upshaw of Oak Brook pleaded guilty during a morning arraignment to the charges against him. Although some of the charges are consolidated in the plea, Upshaw originally was indicted on four counts of theft of over $100,000, a Class One Felony; six counts of theft of over $10,000, a Class Two Felony; and 16 counts of securities fraud, a Class Three Felony.

Upshaw's victims included a destitute woman who took her last dollars and won $812,000 at a casino only to be taken in by the con artist, a woman represented by famed lawyer Johnnie Cochran who won a medical malpractice settlement and a pastor who invested church funds. Several of Upshaw's victims were older than 60.

Holding himself out as a preacher, praying during his presentations and implying that his investment decisions were communicated to him by God, Upshaw duped his victims into "investing" $6.5 million with him between 2001 and 2004. Upshaw paid out approximately $4.5 of the $6.5 million to investors as purported returns on their investments, and in some instances, as a return of principal. Upshaw used the remaining $2 million to run his business, pay himself and his wife, make a down payment on a $1 million house in Oak Brook and pay other debts. It appears from thousands of records that only about $80,000 of the $6.5 million actually was invested. All the investors' funds were deposited in Illinois banks. Upshaw managed to pay money to early investors by using money that came in from new investors, a classic pyramid scheme. However, his failure to invest the money and his lavish lifestyle eventually caught up with him and his checks to investors started bouncing.

Known as an "affinity fraud," in which a criminal or con artist convinces people to trust him because they share a common religious or ethnic background, Upshaw not only hit Chicago-area churches but made numerous presentations across the country to preach his special brand of investment gospel.

While Madigan's office is seeking restitution for investors, at this time, there are no known assets with which to repay victims roughly $3 million they are owed. In a civil case last year, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) seized Upshaw's home and other assets.

Bad Check Program

State's Attorney Richard Devine warns merchants during the holiday season that more bad checks are written than at any other time of year. "In spite of taking all the right precautions, sometimes bad checks slip through the cracks and result in higher consumer costs and increased taxes to offset the costs of law enforcement and prosecution," Devine said.

To assist local merchants in their efforts to reduce the number of bad checks, the State's Attorney's Bad Check Restitution Program helps local merchants who are victimized to obtain full restitution, and holds check writers accountable for their actions without creating an added burden on the criminal justice system.

Since January 2005, nearly 34,000 checks have been processed through the program, resulting in $655,119 in restitution paid to merchants. To avoid prosecution, over 1,800 first-time offenders have voluntarily participated in a diversion program in which they pay full restitution and costs; pay for and attend an educational class; and pay an administrative fee. More serious offenders, repeat offenders, or those with a criminal history not suitable for diversion may be prosecuted.

How the program works:

1. The victim makes personal contact with the check writer.
2. If unsuccessful in collecting money, the victim contacts the program by calling (800) 365-2960 or by emailing tocookil@checkprogram.com. Additional information is available on the Bad Check Restitution Program web site: www.checkprogram.com/cookcountyil.
3. The victim fills out a crime report, attaches originals of checks and notification documents and mails it to the Cook County Bad Check Restitution Program, P.O. Box A3984, Chicago, IL 60608-3984.

A check is eligible for this program if:

1. The amount of the check is no more than $5,000 (or multiple checks do not exceed this limit). There are no minimum dollar restrictions.
2. The check was received in Cook County, deposited in a bank in exchange for goods or services, and was presumed "good" at the time of acceptance.
3. A courtesy notice was sent to check writer allowing 10 days to make the check good.
4. The check is submitted to the program within 90 days from the date of the check.
5. A photo I.D. (driver's license, state identification card) was recorded at the time of transaction.

In operating the program, the State's Attorney's Office partners with the American Corrective Counseling Services (ACCS). ACCS operates similar programs in about 60 counties in a dozen states. In Illinois, ACCS operates bad check programs in 19 counties.

For further information on the Bad Check Restitution Program, merchants can contact the State's Attorney's Office at (312) 603-8700 or the Victim Hotline at (800) 365-2960.

Gidwitz Chooses A Running Mate

Republican Gubernatorial Candidate Ron Gidwitz welcomed State Sen. Steve Rauschenberger (R-Elgin) as his running mate dramatically shifting the dynamics of the Republican Governor's race with a match-up that challenges the status quo with a platform for renewal and reform in the state Republican Party and Illinois state government.

"It's time for a new day here in Illinois and that's why Steve and I are here uniting for reform," Gidwitz said. "We are the ticket of leadership, the ticket for change and our Party's best hope for a victory in November. If we are going to defeat Rod Blagojevich, we've got to have a team that can carry the ethics torch and contrast with the pay-to-play politics that have led to the erosion of public trust in our state government. Steve and I can carry that torch."

Said Rauschenberger: "I am excited about this team because, while it may be an initial surprise to some, it challenges the imagination of Republican primary voters and it breaks down stereotypes about craven all-or-nothing politicians." - The Gidwitz-Rauschenberger ticket brings together Gidwitz' chief executive experience and job creation background and Rauschenberger's legislative and budgetary expertise. Together they have worked on behalf of job creation, education and fiscal discipline for more than a quarter of a century and together they are a formidable team in the Republican primary and the General Election.

"I have known Steve for a long time and he is someone I truly respect and admire. He is a man of great intellect and a man of high principles and his legislative and budgetary experience are an invaluable asset to this campaign," Gidwitz said. "We share the desire to restore fiscal sanity back into our state government, put Illinois folks to work in better-paying jobs and better educate our children. But we recognize that before we can have progress on these issues we must have reform."

Rauschenberger added: "We now have a consolidated reform ticket with unequalled legislative and business experience; with indisputable independence; and with a vision for Illinois that speaks to the real interests and needs of our citizens. I hope Republicans throughout Illinois will be encouraged by the formation of our leadership team knowing that the battle for reform has been joined and, for the first time in a long time, a real challenge has been laid at the doorstep of those who seek to protect the status quo at the expense of progress."

Grant Lights Up Beverly Arts Center

The Beverly Arts Center will be lit up like a Christmas tree this holiday season, and the lights will stay on all year. That's because the Center's new electronic signs were installed on Nov. 30, and messages about performances, classes, art exhibits and special events are now visible 24/7 to the more than 50,000 vehicles driving by 111th and Western every day.

Purchased with funds raised through a matching grant from First American Bank, 11821 S. Western Ave., and a benefit performance by the Beverly Theater Guild, the $30,000 signs are located in large windows that can be read from both 111th St. and Western Ave.

"Christmas, Kwanzaa and Hanukkah all came early this year," said Beverly Arts Center Executive Director Michael Nix. "The signs are a wonderful gift for the Center. The generosity of First American Bank in offering the matching grant was incredible; the talent and commitment of the Beverly Theater Guild in creating and performing the benefit was amazing; and the way the community stepped up to the plate to purchase tickets and make donations to the sign fund was outstanding."

First American Bank is a privately held community bank with 40 Chicago area locations and more than $2 billion in assets. In addition to their Oak Lawn location on 95th Street, they've recently expanded in southwest Chicago with branch locations in Morgan Park and Matteson, and in the South Loop at Wabash and Roosevelt. Locations will open in Evergreen Park and Archer Heights in 2006.

The Beverly Theatre Guild has been an important supporter of the Beverly Arts Center since the late 1960s when the Guild joined with other area community organizations in raising funds for the original Beverly Arts Center on the campus of Morgan Park Academy. Since its first production on the Center's stage in 1969, the Beverly Theatre Guild has performed its regular, three-play season at the Beverly Arts Center. The Guild was also active in raising funds for the new Center, which opened in 2002.

For more information on the Beverly Arts Center call (773) 445-3838, go visit www.beverlyartscenter.org, or, better yet, drive by the corner of 111th and Western Ave. and read the sign!

"Design Innovations in Manufactured Housing" will be on display through Monday, Jan. 16th, in the Field Museum, 1400 S. Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

Maquettes and large-scale architectural drawing created exclusively for the exhibition by eight noted architects and industrial designers are the focus of the exhibit.

Renderings depict the homes in a variety of setting, and the designers' notes explain the design of their projects. Crimes Against Senior Citizens

Not everyone is full of goodwill during the holidays. Unfortunately, the holidays are prime time for financial crimes - identity theft, robbery and fraud - and seniors are often the target.

According to the National Crime Prevention Council, seniors fall prey to fraud for a variety of reasons. They are generally more accessible by telephone and mail; are trusting and willing to listen; have limited experience with investments; and are deeply concerned with maintaining finances to last them throughout their lives. Furthermore, many older people are complacent or forgetful of details and may be embarrassed to admit they've been "had" by a scam artist.

"Consumers are reminded to Shred, Signup, Suppress and Be Sensitive" says James E. Baumhart, President/CEO of the Chicago BBB. "Shred any private documents; sign up for automatic payroll, Social Security and SSI payments through direct deposits; suppress the amount of key paperwork left in mail boxes and other accessible areas; and be sensitive to protecting your passwords and financial information from anyone without a specific reason to have that information."

To safeguard against financial crimes this holiday season the Chicago Better Business Bureau offers these time-lapse tips for seniors and those who care for them:

- Hang on to your personal information. Do not give any personal information over the phone or Internet to an unfamiliar company or caller. This includes your credit card numbers, but also the credit card expiration date, your Social Security number, driver's license number, bank account numbers, and personal information, such as your mother's maiden name. Even if you are told it is only for "identification" or "verification" purposes, this information can be used for unauthorized credit card charges or bank account debits. Tell the person to send their request to you in the mail and that you will check out their record with the Better Business Bureau.
- Use direct deposit. Your mail - both incoming and outgoing - can be vulnerable, especially during the holidays when criminal activity is heightened. If your Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) check or other payments is delivered by mail to an unlocked box, you may be at risk for theft. Direct deposit eliminates the risk of lost or stolen checks, reduces fraud and gives people faster access to their money on payment day. Direct deposit also protects against identity theft. For more information about enrolling in direct deposit of your Social Security or SSI payment, call the Go Direct helpline at 1.800. 333.1795 or sign-up online at www.GoDirect.org.

Karen Garrett Speaks

President John Stroger, Jr. of the Cook County Board of Commissioners announced Karen Garrett, a Naturalist with the Cook County Forest Preserve District, will speak before the Commonwealth Edison Retirement Club of Chicago on Wednesday, Dec. 21st at 9 a.m. in the Oak View Center Board Room, 4625 W. 110th St.

Donald Delany, coordinator, said that Karen will share her expertise on conservation and activities within the forest preserves that can be enjoyed by all.

A graduate of Governors State University with a degree in biological sciences, Ms. Garrett is enjoying gardening for wildlife and caring for the animals at Sand Ridge Nature Center in South Holland, where she began her career in 2005.

- Pay the safest way. Many older Americans enjoy the convenience of online holiday shopping. If you're one of them, remember it's best to use a credit card as your payment option and to check that the Internet connection you will be using is secure. Under federal law you can dispute the charges if you don't get what you were promised, or if the product is not delivered within the stated time period. Many credit card issuers also have a "zero liability" policy for unauthorized charges in the event your credit card number is stolen.
- Arm yourself with information. The Better Business Bureau offers safe shopping advice and other helpful tips at the www.bbb.org Web site. When in doubt, always check things out. Consult with trusted family members, friends or neighbors before making a major purchasing decision. Whenever you have a question or concern regarding a merchant or marketplace transaction, contact your local Better Business Bureau or check the consumer tips and alerts at www.bbb.org.

Heating Appliances Leading Culprit Of Home Fires

Frigid temperatures and rising heating costs have many looking at ways to lower home-heating bills. Safe Electricity urges extreme caution for those planning to use space heaters to help warm homes this winter.

Approximately one-third of all house fires nationwide occur during the cold home-heating season of December, January and February. According to the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), the major cause of these winter fires can be attributed to faulty and improper use and maintenance of supplemental heating equipment, such as space heaters.

Some cities have banned the use of many types of portable space heaters, including some fuel-based heaters. Before purchasing or using any type of space heater, check with your local fire department to find out if it is legal in your community. Electric space heaters can be a good option for supplemental heating in your home.

Safe Electricity offers the following precautions when using electric space heaters:

- Purchase only space heaters that have been safety tested and rated. Make sure the unit is equipped with automatic shut-off features and heating element guards. Read and follow all of the manufacturer's instructions for operation and care.
- Before use, check to make sure the heater is in good condition, and have all problems professionally repaired.
- Place heater out of high-traffic areas and on a level, hard, non-flammable floor surface - NOT on carpets, furniture or countertops.
- Remember to keep space heaters at least three feet from all flammable items such as draperies, blankets and sofas.
- Do not overload circuits. Don't use extension cords or multiple plugs with a space heater, and make sure the unit is not plugged into same circuit as other electric appliances.
- Never leave space heaters unattended. Turn off your space heater and unplug it before leaving the room or going to bed.

Many people also use electric blankets to keep warm during cold winter nights. Before plugging in electric blankets, check for any damage and inspect cord for frays, cracks or cuts. Electric blankets should not be tucked under the mattress and nothing should be placed on top of the blanket while it is in use, including comforters and bedspreads. Also, pets should never be allowed to sleep on the electric blanket.

Safe Electricity also reminds everyone to make sure smoke alarms in the home are installed and working properly.

For more electrical safety information, visit the Web site www.SafeElectricity.org. Safe Electricity is an electrical safety public awareness program created and supported by a coalition of several dozen organizations, including electric companies and cooperatives, the University of Illinois and other entities committed to promoting electrical safety.

LOCAL SCHOLARS

Illinois State Scholars

Ten Mt. Assisi Academy students have been named Illinois State Scholars: Ailia Ali (Burr Ridge), Brittany Bataoel (Oak Lawn), Mary Ellen Brown (Beverly), Kalina Dziadowiec (Garfield Ridge), Bridget Farrell (Orland Park), Jessica Kunz (Palos Heights), Lisa Piazza (Palos Heights), Kathleen Richert (Orland Park), Kathryn Rosenbaum (Oak Lawn) and Abigail Szram (Lemont). The Illinois State Scholar program recognizes students for outstanding achievement. Students ranking in the top 10 percent of the state's 139,500 graduating seniors are recognized as Illinois State Scholars. Rankings are based on a combination of ACT test scores and class rank at the end of the sixth semester in high school. "The students should be very proud of their accomplishments. The Commission congratulates them and wishes them the best as they continue their education," stated Larry E. Matejka, ISAC's executive director.

Mt. Assisi Academy principal Sr. Mary Francis Werner, OSF, said, "We are all very proud of the students. Being selected in the top ten percent of the state is an outstanding accomplishment. Mt. Assisi Academy students have always done well in the Illinois State Scholar competition, consistently having ten or more students recognized. This year was no exception. We are confident that these women will leave Mt. Assisi Academy next year ready to succeed at their chosen universities."

Oak Lawn Fire Dept. Receives Grant

On Nov. 21 the Mesirov Financial and Fireman's Fund Insurance Company awarded the Oak Lawn fire department a grant of $10,788 to purchase 30 and 60 minute air bottles. The bottles contain approximately 21% oxygen and are worn as part of a firefighters self-contained breathing apparatus. These bottles allow firefighters to breathe in a toxic environment and are also used to provide air for extrication equipment.

"Unfortunately, air bottles have a limited life span and there is a time when they can no longer be used," stated Chief Ed Folliard of the Oak Lawn Fire Department. "The Fireman's Fund Heritage Grant allows us to update our air bottles to the current lightweight technology, making it much easier for our firefighters to carry this equipment. There is no question that having sufficient, breathable air in these bottles saves lives and keeps our firefighters protected when they enter smoke-filled rooms."

The grant was funded by Fireman's Fund Insurance Company, a premier property and casualty insurance company that also provides grants to fire departments through its Firemen's Fund Heritage program. Under this program, local brokers like Mesirov Financial are able to direct grants to assist and support their local communities. The Fireman's Fund Heritage program is the company's philanthropic mission to support firefighters for safer communities. Grants are awarded for the purchase of equipment, fire prevention tools, firefighter training, fire safety education and community emergency response programs. Since 2005, Fireman's Fund and its network of independent agents have awarded more than $5 million in grants to local fire departments, national firefighter organizations and non-profit fire and burn prevention organizations across the country.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 18

10:00 a.m. The Sunday before Christmas the Church School will present their annual Christmas Play, Santa Gives Back Christmas during the morning worship. This is a wonderful way to let our children lead us to the excitement of Christmas.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 24 - CHRISTMAS EVE

11:00 p.m. The annual candlelight service of scriptures and carols welcomes Christmas Day in a way that is both traditional and joyous. Communion at this service celebrates Christ's presence with us and opens our hearts to receive God's gift to us in Christ. All who have known God's love revealed in Christ and who are trying to live in harmony with their neighbors are welcome to join us at Christ's Table.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 25 - CHRISTMAS DAY

10:00 a.m. We will celebrate Christmas Day with carols and songs as we listen once again to the incredible story of God's love coming to share with us our common lot in the baby of Bethlehem. There will be a nursery for young children during worship, but no Sunday School on Christmas Day.

We welcome all who are looking for God to join us in celebrating God's love in these events and each week on Sunday at 10:00 AM.

U.S. Technological Competitiveness

Congressman Lipinski announced his co-sponsorship of two new pieces of legislation that will help keep the U.S. a competitive leader in the global economy. Both bills follow recommendations put forth in a recent report on global competitiveness by The National Academy of Sciences (NAS), Rising Above the Gathering Storm: Energizing and Employing America for a Brighter Economic Future. It found that the U.S. has significant work to do to maintain our global competitive edge and outlined a number of specific actions to improve innovation and education here at home.

"America has always been the world's leader in technology and we cannot afford to lose this edge," stated Lipinski. "As a former teacher and an engineer, I especially understand that Congress must take action to ensure our nation's continued dominance in science and engineering and to secure our economic future. I have worked on this legislation with my colleagues in the House Science Committee to address these issues and promote a stable and secure economic future for our children."

H.R. 4434, The "10,000 Teachers, 10 Million Minds" Science and Math Scholarship Act, will help increase the number of math and science teachers by 10,000, providing college scholarships to science, math, and engineering students who commit to becoming science or math teachers at elementary and secondary schools upon completion of their degrees.

"We have some of the best and brightest students and teachers in the country, but we have not adequately invested in them," said Congressman Lipinski. "H.R. 4434 will greatly improve our commitment to science and math education, putting additional teachers in the classroom to inspire the next generation of innovators."

A competitive and secure economy also requires the development of a new generation of energy technologies. America is the global leader in technological innovation and nowhere is that more apparent than in university, industry, and federal laboratories where some of the world's best minds are devoted to revolutionizing "energy" as we know it. Unfortunately, there is little incentive for private and public research programs to assume the sizeable cost and risk required for developing true long-term, transformational technologies.

H.R. 4435, The Advanced Research Projects Agency - Energy (ARPA-E) Act, will speed the commercialization of energy technologies to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign energy by 20% in the next 10 years. It establishes an agency within the U.S. Department of Energy modeled after the successful Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) in the Department of Defense.

"H.R. 4435 will encourage the development of high-risk, high-return technologies to promote cleaner and more stable energy resources for our economy," added Lipinski. "We have the most innovative and creative workforce in the world and we must ensure that these great ideas are put to use."

Environmental Summit

Scores of community and business leaders, elected officials, concerned citizens, interested students and scientists are expected to attend the third annual DuPage Environmental Summit from 1 to 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 12th in Scholl Hall Room 101 on the campus of Benedictine University.

The topic of this year's summit is "Breathing Easier and Living Healthier - How Native Landscaping is Healthier for People, the Environment and Our Pockets" and will focus on how native landscaping reduces or eliminates the use of lawn chemicals and reduces the amount of air and water pollution created by gas mowers and over-applied fertilizer.

Speakers will discuss the aesthetic benefits of native landscaping; how varieties of native flowers attract butterflies, birds, dragonflies and hummingbirds; how homeowners can save money by eliminating water and fertilizer costs; how native landscaping reduces flooding and improves water quality; and how native plants can be incorporated into any existing landscape.

The summit is free and open to the public, but advance registration is appreciated. For more information or to register, call (630) 428-4500, ext. 10.

Appeal To Gaming Board To Consider Alternative Plan

When in 1999 the Illinois State legislature passed a law that compelled the 10th casino license holder to provide a 20% ownership stake to blacks, Latinos and women, Chicagoans like Connie Payton, Al Johnson and Althea Knowles were ecstatic. For nearly 15 years they had raised the funds and lobbied to have Illinois become the first state where minorities and women were owners of a casino and while they did not win the license, they agreed to part-ownership status and invested the millions of dollars they had saved or borrowed to comply with the legislature's mandate.

Five years later, however, rather than presiding over the opening of a casino of which they are owners, Payton, Johnson, Knowles and 15 other so-called "Statutory minorities" find themselves in grave danger not only of losing ownership but also of losing their entire $33.5 million investment, which for many of those involved represents their entire life savings.

On Dec. 8th, with the fate of the 10th license, to which their fate is tied, in limbo, many of the 18 Statutory minorities and their attorneys appeared before the Illinois Gaming Board to urge that the Board take a path that would save their multi-million dollar investment and, as important, bring an immediate infusion of $600 million to Illinois.

Speaking on behalf of the 18th "Statutory minorities" he represents, Attorney Langdon Neal said: "We are here to propose an alternative - a lawful alternative to revocation - not only because it is necessary to resolve the issue of the 10th license, but because simple revocation, while it might punish those determined to have engaged in wrong doing, does even greater damage to those who have done no wrong - the minority shareholders who will lose more than $33 million of their hard-earned money and the people of Illinois who will lose more than $600 million this year and many more million every year after - millions that mean education, health and other essential services."

According to Attorney Neal, not only will the proposal bring more than $600 million to the State of Illinois and make the minority shareholders whole, it also will meet all the requirements that Attorney General Madigan has put forth for proper settlement of the issue.

Among the provisions of the proposal are:

1. Appointment of a trustee (through bankruptcy court) to dispose of the license as provided for by the law.
2. Amendment of the current plan of reorganization (in bankruptcy court) to facilitate the transfer of the license to a valid bidder.
3. Waiver of all equity and other legal claims by Emerald as codified in the December 2003 agreement forged by the parties and the Attorney General, except those exceptions recommended by the Gaming Board.
4. The requirement that if Rosemont continued to press a claim it must be proved in bankruptcy court and accept the court's determination.
5. The barring of any further gaming activity in the State of Illinois by those persons or entities that have been determined to have violated the provisions of the Gaming Act.
6. The claims of the statutory applicants and other creditors whose claims are not challenged by the Trustee will be allowed as currently provided in the Plan of Reorganization.
7. The Illinois Gaming Board will conduct a suitability review of Midwest Gaming and if Midwest Gaming is determined to be suitable for a gaming license in Illinois will approve the sale of the Emerald license to Midwest Gaming in accordance with its bid in the bankruptcy auction.

Neal explained that Emerald Casino has already agreed to the proposed settlement and that indications from Rosemont in the press and elsewhere are that they would not litigate a settlement of the 10th license issue.

Putting responsibility on the Gaming Board to resolve the issue, State Sen. Emil Jones made the issue very clear: "They [the statutory minorities] followed the law that the legislature passed to ensure that minorities had the opportunity to participate. It is now the Board's responsibility to ensure that their faith in government was not ill-placed!"

Midway Airport Tragedy

Thursday, Dec. 8th, not only brought a record snowfall of up to 10 inches in the Chicago area, it also brought an airplane tragedy to a busy intersection adjacent to Midway airport. An airplane slid off the runway and ended up in the intersection of 55th and Central.

The Boeing 737 with about 100 passengers aboard proceeded to land at around 7:15 p.m. after a delay, however, the weather seemed to be playing with the plane. It was snowing nearly 2 inches an hour according to some reports and the visibility was poor. As the plane tried to land, it skidded off the runway, through a runway barrier and into the intersection. The airplane struck a parked car and collided with a second car that became trapped beneath the nose of the plane.

A six-year-old boy who was later identified as Joshua Woods of Indiana was killed in the crash. He was a passenger in the car that was trapped beneath the plane's nose. His mother, father and two brothers were in the car. Joshua's father was released on Sunday from Christ Medical Center in Oak Lawn, where he was taken after the accident. He was found to have fractures to his face and head. An autopsy showed that Joshua died from the impact of the plane hitting the car, according to a Cook County medical examiner's report. Joshua's two younger brothers only suffered cuts and bruises. Approximately 10 other people who were injured on the ground were taken to area hospitals and later most were released. None of the passengers on the plane were seriously hurt. They were taken off the plane by emergency chutes and then bussed to the terminal.

The National Transportation Safety Board sent investigators to the scene on Saturday. Although the National Transportation Safety Board is continuing to investigate the cause of the accident, reports have said that the plane's reverse thrusters did not function as soon as the pilot tried to deploy them. It was felt that the delay in deploying the thrusters could have played a role in the accident. Reports also stated that although the automatic break system seemed to be working, the crew had to go to manual and 'hit the brakes hard'. Reports also cite the short length of the runway and snowy weather conditions could have contributed to the accident.

The plane remained in the intersection until Saturday afternoon when it was taken with the help of a giant crane to a nearby hangar where it will be gone over. Reports state that this is the first fatal crash in the history of Southwest Airlines. NTSB representatives stated that it could take up to a year to complete its findings on the accident.

Arrangements for Joshua Woods are to be announced. A memorial fund has been set up. If you would like to make a donation, send it to The Joshua Woods Memorial Fund, c/o Centier Bank, 1276 N. Main St., Crown Point, IN.

Letter To The Editor

Many universities are abandoning academics, eliminating the history of Western civilization, even the requirement of a core curriculum. When cut off from the past, one cannot understand the present. It is so important that students understand the philosophical and cultural currents that shaped our country. Naturalism is a philosophical assumption that binds modern science, allowing the pursuit of truth uninhibited by philosophy. Students must know the true history of our own civilization to produce character and truth in the marketplace.

Our modern universities do not and cannot cultivate character in their value-free environment. When they believe there is no truth, there is no standard of ethics by which they can measure character.

Martin Luther King, Jr. once said that "education which stops with efficiency may prove the greatest menace to society...education is not enough. Intelligence plus character - that is the goal of true education."

Gwen McNatt
Berwyn, IL

On Thursday, Jan. 26th, the group will meet at the Brighton Restaurant, 4550 S. Pulaski, at 7 p.m. for good food and conversation. For more information or to register, call John Bobek at (773) 585-8242. This is the deadline to purchase tickets for the World Champion White Sox as they make their run at back-to-back championships! The games are for June 10th and Aug. 26th.

For more information about the group, or to receive a copy of the newsletter, call John at (773) 595-8242 or Lucy at (773) 778-8239 after 7 p.m.

Brother And Sisters United Against HIV/AIDS Campaign

In order to address alarming trends that show HIV/AIDS disproportionately impacting African Americans, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced on Sept. 15th an expanded social marketing effort designed to reach the African-American community with education, prevention and testing.

The campaign is called BASUAH - (Brother And Sisters United Against HIV/AIDS) - a Gov. Blagojevich initiative to fight the spread of HIV/AIDS. Numerous media outlets statewide have agreed to partner with the State of Illinois to boost this effort geared toward the African-American community. The state will increase funding efforts ten-fold to $2.5 million, build media partnerships and form key partnerships with churches, colleges and South Africa to address this public health crisis.

In 2004, the number of reported AIDS cases declined by four percent compared to the previous year. African Americans accounted for 54 percent of the cases (772), whites 27 percent (383) and Hispanics 17 percent (241).

But while AIDS cases declined, the number of HIV cases grew. In 2004, a total of 2,662 persons reported HIV infection in Illinois, an increase of nearly 16 percent over the previous year. African Americans accounted for more than half the reported cases with 1,406 (52.8%), although they represent just 15 percent of the state's population. Whites consisted of 26 percent of the reported cases and Hispanics made up 15 percent.

Of those reported cases among African Americans, 66 percent were male and 34 percent were females. Among all female reported cases of HIV, nearly 70 percent were African Americans. Among males reported with HIV in 2004, 46 percent were African American. Nearly 72 percent of African-American females and 64 percent of African-American males, with HIV infection reported in 2004, were under 40 years of age.

A campaign targeting African Americans includes public service announcements to air on radio stations throughout the state and print PSAs will appear in newspapers statewide. Posters, transit ads, printed materials, and events will feature the campaign's slogan, web site and Illinois' HIV/AIDS hotline for testing sites and prevention information.

Indecency Forum

Focus on the Family Senior Analyst for Media and Sexuality Daniel Weiss praised Federal Communications Commission (FCC) Chairman Kevin Martin for urging greater efforts by the television industry to protect American families.

In his statement at an Indecency Forum convened on Capitol Hill by U.S. Senator Ted Stevens (R-Alaska), Martin outlined his view that protecting children and society from indecent media requires cooperation and involvement from parents, industry, and the government. He urged the television industry to provide more tools and better education for parents to control what their children watch and said the industry's lack of action was "notable."

"Kevin Martin has been a strong advocate of the family since he first became a commissioner," Weiss said. "As chairman, he has worked tirelessly to reform how the FCC handles and considers indecency complaints."

"Chairman Martin clearly understands the dangers posed to children by highly sexualized media and he also recognizes that the industry has not been acting in the best interests of children. The time has come for industry leaders to start working to find solutions to the problems they've created, rather than pushing the responsibility back to parents only." In addition to calling for greater responsibility, Martin offered three possible options to address growing concerns about television indecency: 1) that cable and satellite operators offer "family-friendly" packages of channels; 2) permit consumers to pay for only the channels they want; or 3) apply decency standards to subscription television.

"Chairman Martin is committed to working with the industry to find the best-possible solution for families," Weiss said. "We hope the industry will have the same dedication."

Poetry Contest

The Famous Poets Society announces that more than $75,000 in cash and prizes will be awarded this year to amateur poets. Poets from the Midlothian area, especially beginners, are encouraged to enter for a chance to win.

To enter send one poem of 21 lines or less to Free Poetry Contest, 1626 N. Wilcox Ave., #126, Hollywood, CA 90028. Or enter on-line at www.famouspoets.com. A winner's list will be sent to all entrants. The deadline for entering is Dec. 17.

"Any poet, whether published or not, can be a winner," says Executive Director Mark Schramm. "When people learn about our free poetry contest, they suddenly realize that their own poetic talent can win cash prizes, as well as garner national recognition." Famous Poets Society has awarded more than $400,000 in cash to amateur poets over the past eight years, more than any other poetry society. The society is helping Poetry, the Cinderella of the Arts, find her glass slipper.

Child Support Office On Illinois/Iowa Border

As part of his continued efforts to increase child support collections in Illinois, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Oct. 14th announced that the state of Illinois will join forces with the state of Iowa to increase enforcement of child support laws through the opening of a new, jointly staffed child support enforcement office in Rock Island, IL. Located close to the state line, the new facility will have one full-time employee from each state that will work together to ensure improved interstate information sharing, faster collection of court-ordered child support and more efficient enforcement of child support laws.

Interstate child support cases make up about 12.3 percent of the entire Illinois child support caseload, but they represent about 22 percent of the debt. The differences in Illinois and Iowa laws and the delay in handing off cases make it more difficult to establish child support payments in interstate cases than in same-state cases. The two employees staffing the new office will have access to the other state's computer system to enhance communication between both states and increase child support payments. The shared information will also improve each state's ability to track parents who avoid their child support responsibilities by frequently moving from one state to another.

Iowa's child support program is operated by its Dept. of Human Services (DHS) and Illinois' child support program is operated through its Dept. of Healthcare and Family Services (HFS).

Chicago State Students Thank State Legislators For Their Support

On Dec. 7th, students from Chicago State University (CSU) shared the benefits of the Chicagoland Regional College Program (CRCP) with members of the Illinois General Assembly during a breakfast reception held to recognize the legislators' commitment to higher education and the program. The breakfast was hosted by CRCP and took place at Chicago State University.

CRCP brings together Chicago State University, Moraine Valley Community College, Morton College, Prairie State College and United Parcel Service in a partnership to benefit hardworking, focused students attending those educational institutions. Students who enroll in the program receive a tuition waiver, fees, books, housing allowance, transportation assistance, financial bonuses for academic excellence, a stipend and full-time employment with UPS.

CRCP, which began in the fall of 2003, presently has 481 students enrolled. "CRCP's growth has been realized, in no small part, as a result of the support provided by the Illinois General Assembly, under the leadership of Illinois Senate President Emil Jones, Jr.," said Dr. Elnora D. Daniel, CSU President. "I thank the legislators for enabling CSU to cast our net wider to enroll more of the state's deserving students in our University."

Senate President Jones was joined by several members of the Illinois General Assembly who also met with the students, some of whom live in their districts. The state legislators in attendance include Representatives Monique Davis, William Davis, Connie Howard, Kevin McCarthy, David Miller, Robert Rife, and Eddie Washington and Senators Jacqueline Collins, Kimberly Lightford, Edward Maloney and Kwame Raoul.

State's Early Intervention Program

The Illinois Dept. of Human Services (IDHS) recently released a six-year plan for the state's Early Intervention program. The Part C State Performance Plan outlines the accomplishments and improvement activities for the state's Early Intervention program for young children with disabilities.

"The Early Intervention program assists families who have infants and toddlers, birth to three, with diagnosed disabilities, developmental delays or substantial risk of significant delays," said IDHS Secretary Carol L. Adams, Ph.D. "More than 16,300 children and their families receive resources and supports that assist them in maximizing their child's development, while respecting the diversity of families and communities."

The Part C State Performance Plan has been posted for public input on the IDHS Early Intervention web site at www.dhs.state.il.us/ei. The plan is also available at each of the 25 Child and Family Connections offices located throughout the state.

Interested persons are invited to submit written comments on the plan to the IDHS Bureau of Early Intervention, 222 S. College, 2nd Floor, Springfield, IL 62704. All comments must be received by Feb. 2nd. Annual performance reports and any changes to the State Performance Plan will also be posted on the IDHS Early Intervention web site.

Letter To The Editor:

Editor:

As stated in Bill Federer's AMERICAN MINUTE.

President Thomas Jefferson, author of the phrase "Separation of church and state," asked Congress to ratify a treaty with the Kaskaskia Indians, which they did on Dec. 3rd, 1803.

The treaty, negotiated shortly after the Louisiana Purchase by future President William Henry Harrison, stated: "And whereas the greater part of the said tribe have been baptized and received into the Catholic Church, to which they are much attached, the United States will give annually, for seven years, one hundred dollars toward the support of a priest of that religion, who will engage to perform for said tribe the duties of his office, and also to instruct as many of their children as possible, in the rudiments of literature."

The treaty concluded: "The United States will further give the sum of three hundred dollars to assist the said tribe in the erection of a church."

The notion that the state cannot be involved in church issues was clearly not the intention of Thomas Jefferson. The strong Christian influence in the founding of our nation is not being taught in schools and for the most part, adults are equally misinformed.

Prepare Homes For Winter

Before winter arrives with its higher home heating bills, the Safe Electricity program encourages people to take steps now to improve both home energy efficiency and safety during the home-heating season.

Energy dollars can pour out of homes through drafty doors, windows, un-insulated attics, walls, floors, and basements while safety risks to unnoticed. A small investment of time now can pay big dividends in keeping your home safe and warm this winter.

Approximately one-third of all house fires nationwide occur during the cold, home-heating season. Many of these winter fires can be attributed to faulty and improper use and maintenance of heating equipment.

Before firing up your heating system, make sure furnace and heaters are in good working order, and check ducts, flues and chimneys. Have a professional inspect and service your furnace each Fall for safety and efficiency. Regularly clean or replace furnace filters during high winter use. An efficient heating system means greater comfort at lower cost. Keeping heating equipment clean and in good repair will ensure peak efficiency and safety.

If an electric space heater is used, make sure the wiring is adequate, and check for fraying cords, splitting wires or overheating. Don't place a portable heater in high-traffic areas, and keep it clear of flammables such as curtains, bedding, clothes and furniture. Never use extension cords with electric heaters.

Safe Electricity offers information year-round to help consumers use electric energy efficiently and safely.

Simple Ways To Reuse & Recycle

The holidays are upon us and, with the festivities, often come an increase in the amount of garbage we all produce in our homes. It has been estimated that Americans throw away 25 percent more trash between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day than during any other time of the year. In fact, 38,000 miles of ribbon alone is thrown out each year - enough to tie a bow around the Earth!

The Illinois EPA would like to help offer some simple ways for you to cut waste and conserve resources during this busy holiday season. Many of the ideas can be used year-round!

When you go shopping, bring your own reusable bags from home. When buying gifts, consolidate your purchases into one bag rather than getting a new bag at each store.

Think durable! Consider how long an item will last before you make a purchase. Often, a cheaper item will wear out long before its more durable equivalent.

Not sure what to get someone? How about a gift certificate to a favorite store or restaurant? That way, you know the gift will be used.

Consider wrapping gifts in recycled or reused wrapping paper or funny papers. Also remember to save, or recycle used wrapping paper.

If you send holiday cards, buy recycle-content cards and envelopes. Or, make your own cards out of last year's cards and the wrapping paper you saved.

Buy rechargeable batteries to accompany your electronic gifts, and consider giving a battery charger as well.

Take the foam peanut and bubble wrap from your purchases and take them to a mailing or shipping store where they can be reused. Save boxes and bows for reuse.

Got a new microwave, toaster, clock radio, toy or coat? Consider giving away your old appliances, toys, games, or clothing to a local charity or thrift store.

Give cookies and baked goods in holiday tins that can be reused.

Consider using energy saving, solid-state LED (Light Emitting Diode) holiday lights and strands that use about 99 percent less energy than larger, traditional incandescent holiday bulbs.

If you plan on entertaining, have clearly marked recycling containers at your party for guests to recycle their cans and bottles. Send leftover items home with guests in reusable containers.

If you're shopping by mail order catalog, remember to cancel the ones you don't need.

After the holidays, look for ways to recycle your tree instead of sending it to a landfill. Check with your local solid waste department and find out if they collect and mulch trees.

Additional tips for making your holiday season "greener" can be found on Illinois EPA's web site at www.epa.state.il.us.

Conserve Energy And Save Money On Heating Bills

With energy costs on the rise this winter, it is more important now than ever to conserve energy and save money on your holiday heating bills. You may already know about ways to save energy, including investing in a new furnace and winterizing your windows. But have you heard of these simple and very economical ways of cutting down on your heating bills?

Bathroom vents and range hood fans can drain your entire house of heated or cooled air in just one hour. Make sure to turn them off as soon as you are done using them.

Remember to close the chimney flue when the fireplace is not in use. An open flue is like an open window, allowing warm air to escape - 24 hours a day!

On windows that face the sun, leave draperies open during the day. At night, close drapes to help keep heat inside.

Consider a humidifier. Properly humidified air makes your home feel warmer and more comfortable, so you can keep your thermostat setting lower. A humidifier can make a 68-degree room feel like it is 76 degrees.

Lower your thermostat temperature. Every one degree results in savings of between four and five percent on your energy bill. For example, lowering from 72 degrees Fahrenheit to 68 degrees Fahrenheit could save you 18 cents on the dollar. For an average size home, the annual savings would be approximately $131.

For more information on conserving energy or to sign up for one of Nicor's budget-assistance programs, visit Nicor's web site, www.nicor.com.

Lipinski Will Host Medicare Seminars

U.S. Rep. Dan Lipinski (IL-3rd) will host three Medicare Prescription Drug Seminars in the next two weeks to assist seniors in enrolling in the new program.

"I invite my constituents to come to these seminars and ask questions and discuss the Medicare drug plan," Congressman Lipinski said. "No one should feel pressured into making a bad decision about enrolling in this program. Given the current confusion, it is imperative we allow beneficiaries to take their time, check their facts, and know their options without being rushed to choose."

At 10 a.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 28, the Congressman and his staff will join Oak Lawn Mayor Dave Heilmann and experts on the new drug program in providing assistance in registering at the Oak Lawn Senior Center, 5330 W. 95th St. At Noon on Dec. 28, Rep. Lipinski will join Hometown Mayor Donald Robertson in assisting seniors applying for the program at Hometown City Hall, 4331 Southwest Highway.

At 10 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 3 the Congressman's staff will be at the Bedford Park Library, 6721 W. 65th Place, with Village President David Brady to assist seniors in enrolling.

Governor Launches New Mortgage Program

Building on his commitment to help working families realize the American Dream of homeownership, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich on Dec. 11th launched a new mortgage program designed to help hardworking, taxpaying individuals and families from the immigrant and minority communities. The program, called Opportunity I-Loan, will help those individuals and families who do not have a traditional checking account or have not been able to establish a credit history, qualify for low-interest mortgage loans and buy their first home. This program will make Illinois only the second state in the nation to provide affordable, 30-year fixed rate mortgage loans for qualifying individuals and families that live and work and pay taxes but have no credit history or Social Security numbers. The program will also offer further protections from predatory home loans.

The Opportunity I-Loan will target populations that live and work in a cash economy, under the radar of credit reporting companies. These groups are traditionally wary of banks and prefer to cash their paychecks at the local grocery store and pay their bills in cash. Because mainstream financial institutions cannot qualify them for mortgages, they are at the highest risk for predatory loans, unaffordable ARM and interest-only products, and other loans that threaten the safety of working families and the prosperity of the communities where they live and work.

Applicants to this program must show that they have paid income taxes for the past two years. The Illinois Housing Development Authority (IHDA) will accept tax returns with Social Security numbers or ITINs.

Opportunity I-Loans have a below market interest rate (currently 5.95%) for a 30-year fixed rate mortgage. The interest rate varies depending on market interest rates but is always at least a half of a percentage point below market interest rates. Through the program, homebuyers are eligible for $1,000 down payment assistance for a slightly higher interest rate. Additional down payment assistance is available through community organizations including Spanish Coalition for Housing and LUCHA.

Homebuyers using Opportunity I-Loans do not need a bank account or a Social Security number to qualify for the loan, removing major obstacles to homeownership. IHDA expects to help 100 families buy homes with $15 million in Opportunity I-Loans in 2006.

IHDA does not originate loans directly to consumers. Rather, to receive a home mortgage through this program, borrowers must go through an IHDA-approved partner bank that originates IHDA's loans. Currently, seven banks are trained to accept applications for Opportunity I-Loans. The seven banks that currently originate the Opportunity I-Loan are:

First Bank Mortgage, Frank Montanez, 5310 W. Cermak Rd., (708) 656-6330

Harris Bank, Roselyn Lockett, 111 W. Monroe St., Chicago, IL 60603, (312) 461-6394

Mother McAuley Entrance Exam

Any eighth grade girl interested in attending Mother McAuley High School should take the entrance exam on Saturday, Jan. 14th at 8 a.m. The entrance exam that will be used for acceptance and admission into Mother McAuley will be the EXPLORE test, developed by ACT. This test will be used to assess the student's academic standing.

As a high school intake measure, EXPLORE gives educators the means to structure high school planning and career exploration for students and parents. It serves as a baseline to monitor academic progress. EXPLORE consists of four timed tests: English, Mathematics, Reading and Science.

There is a $25 test fee and students should bring two #2 pencils and a pen. Students are allowed to use calculators. Along with the entrance exam, McAuley also relies upon the student's 6th, 7th and 8th grade report cards and elementary standardized test scores.

For more information, contact Colleen Quinlan White, Recruitment Coordinator, at (773) 881-6511.

Healthy Choices Need Encouragement

According to recent research, Parenting-styles may affect children's food choices. More than 200 African-American and Hispanic parents of children participating in Head Start completed a questionnaire that assessed family food choices as they related to two feeding styles: Authoritative (encouraging) and Authoritarian (controlling). The encouraging style included behaviors such as reasoning and giving choices, and was associated with offering more fruits and vegetables; more attempts to get children to eat fruits, vegetables and dairy; and an increase in children's dairy and vegetable intake. In contrast, the controlling style included behaviors such as restricting certain foods and forcing children to eat other foods and was associated with offering fewer fruits and vegetables and a decrease in children's vegetable intake. The authors suggest that parents who use encouraging feeding style may have more success helping children to enjoy a variety of healthy food.

Careers In Technology Open To Female Students

The male-dominated field of computer-aided design (CAD) used to be a bit intimidating for Moraine Valley student Dory Moeller. But the college's Women in Technology dual mentoring program is giving her the support and tools she needs to succeed in a technical career.

The Women in Technology project was developed four years ago to increase female students' interest and enrollment in Moraine Valley's new and revised mechanical design programs, specifically Mechanical Design/Drafting and CAD courses. Students in the group get support and guidance from female industry professionals working in technical fields and from peer student mentors who have participated in the program for at least a year.

Industry mentors are paired with students who have similar career goals, so they can tell the student specific information about opportunities, job descriptions, salary, which classes to take, and programs on the market that are most important to companies in their field.

The student mentors, of which Moeller is one, are another resource for incoming students to ask questions about classes and other college-related issues. "I volunteered to be a peer mentor because I've been here for a year now, and I think I can help other women who are coming into the program," she said.

Sixty-eight students and mentors have benefited from the program since its inception in 2002. "Women in Technology is a worthwhile resource tool for students who decide how much they want to get out of it," said Maria Vlamakis, the Women in Technology coordinator and associate professor of Computer Integrated Technology. "We have definitely seen an increase in female participation in the mentoring groups, suggesting this kind of networking is fulfilling certain needs. So, we're planning to expand this program to other areas in the department."

For more information about Women in Technology, visit www.morainevalley.edu/cad/nsfmentors. To learn more about the Computer-Integrated Technology courses offered at Moraine Valley, call J.C. Malitzke, department chair, at (708) 974-5454.

Respect Life - Choose Life

Respect Life - Choose Life is the title and message of the latest free News Note published by The Christophers. It is designed to inform people about the often-overlooked practical and moral support that exists for those facing unplanned pregnancies.

This latest issue in the continuing series of Christopher News Notes points out that there are over 3,000 crisis pregnancy centers throughout the U.S. These centers are ready to assist by providing alternatives to abortion while offering friendship, emotional support, and medical referrals within comfortable and reassuring environments. There are also over 2 million couples waiting to adopt children. Choosing to give a baby up for adoption offers an immeasurable gift to so many people.

Respect Life - Choose Life also examines some social positions that do not receive much attention. For example, Feminists for Life (FFL) has campaigned to create more choices for women facing unfair situations. While one out of every five abortions is performed on a college woman, society has not responded to the crisis with specialized housing, on-site daycare, or even maternity coverage in health insurance that would allow women to continue their studies without having an abortion. The News Note also examines how both men and women are profoundly affected by abortion and what support groups exist to help them cope.

To obtain a free copy of Respect Life - Choose Life, write to: The Christophers, 12 East 48th Street, New York, NY 10017, email mail@christophers.org, or call toll free 1 (888) 298-4050. Be sure to mention the News Note by title or number (#481).

The Christophers is a non-profit media organization that encourages people to use positive and constructive action to make a better world. The Christopher motto is, "It's better to light one candle than to curse the darkness." Visit www.christophers.org to learn more.

Native American

Bag Making Workshop

"Native American Bag Making," a multi-session workshop sponsored by the Forest Preserve District of Will County, begins Wednesday, Jan. 11, and meets on seven successive Wednesdays through Feb. 22, with each session running from 6 to 8 p.m. Registration by Jan. 10 and a fee of $25, which covers all sessions, are required.

Participants will learn to make a beautiful, colorful, and fully woven bag. Native American woodland cultures made many types of containers for storing their goods. Early European accounts of these storage containers describe beautiful baskets and bags woven from natural fibers and trade cloth when available. This workshop will explore the technique of twining with yarn, a very common style of pouch or bag making in the 1700s here in the Midwest.

The workshop will provide a loom, yarn, and instruction in this ancient art. Participants are free to bring their own yarn if they wish, two skeins of any two-colors of a heavier weight wood yarn.

Classes will meet on Jan. 11, 18 and 25, and Feb. 1, 8, 15 and 22.

To register or to receive additional information, call the Forest Preserve at (815) 727-8700, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Isle a la Cache Museum is fully accessible and is located at 501 E. 135th St. (Romeo Road), 0.5 mile east of Route 53, in Romeoville.

"Breakfast Meeting Focuses On Partnership"

The Chicago Regional College Program recently held a breakfast at Chicago State College, 500 E. 95th St., in Chicago. The breakfast was held for students and legislators. This program (CRCP), a public/private partnership between higher education and business, enables Illinois residents to further their education and gain sustained entry into the Illinois workforce. The program provides its goal-oriented participants, a comprehensive student assistance package, to obtain a degree at an Illinois college/university. Furthermore, the employment component of the program provides students with valuable work experience and transportable skills, while meeting the needs of business. With their newly-acquired skills, program graduates will be able to fill employment shortages across the state.

The CRCP has a goal to provide each student with a quality educational experience leading to the achievement of individual academic goals in life skills.

The benefits of those who participate in this program are many. The program started back in July of 2003 and has served 1,300 students since its inception. There are four partner schools, Chicago State U (CSU); Moraine Valley Community College (MVCC); Morton College (MC); and Prairie State College (PSC). Over 25% of the students are UPS management.

Genevieve Lopardo, Executive Director of the council introduced Dr. Vernon Crawley, President of MVCC; Dr. Elnora Daniel, President of CSU; and John O'Neill III, a representative of UPS. Johnny Brown, a student of CRCP, addressed the audience.

Illinois State Senate President Emil Jones Jr. has played a major part in this educational program.

Cook County Statement On The Arrest Of Former POET Employee

In early 2005, management in the President's Office of Employment Training (POET), a federally funded program within the Cook County Bureau of Administration, identified an active bank account that had not been reported as a depository account pursuant to the Cook County Taxpayers Interest Assurance Ordinance. POET, through the Chief Administrative Officer, asked the Office of the County Auditor to review the situation.

Subsequently, the Office of the County Auditor reviewed financial activity pertaining to the said bank account to determine the source of deposits and the nature of disbursements.

Prior to fiscal year 2001, the purpose of this account was to provide supportive services to participants enrolled in the Job Training Partnership Program (JTPA). The JTPA program was replaced by the Workforce Investment Act (WIA) during fiscal year 2001. A separate bank account was opened at the time to provide supportive services for the WIA program. It was assumed by POET administrators that within a short appropriate time when JTPA activity ceased, that said bank account would be closed.

During its review, the Office of the County Auditor identified several irregularities. Among them was the ability of an employee to authorize requests for checks and deposit them into the account in question. Furthermore, the Office of the County Auditor identified approximately $180,000 in questionable transactions for purposes unallowable by federal regulations.

Upon the conclusion of the Office of the County Auditor's review, President Stroger immediately ordered that the matter be turned over to the County's Inspector General and the Cook County State's Attorney's Office. Subsequently, a joint criminal investigation has been underway between the Cook County Inspector General's Office and the State's Attorney's Financial Crimes Unit. Activity on the account in question has been suspended.

The employee was suspended without pay in June of 2005 and has subsequently resigned from Cook County Government.

"I applaud the quick action on the part of the POET Director, the Cook County Inspector General, County Auditor, the State's Attorney and all involved in bringing rapid closure to this matter," said Cook County Board President John H. Stroger, Jr. "Moreover, I urge the State's Attorney's Office to do everything possible to reclaim the funds to help underscore the fact that corruption and impropriety will not be tolerated within Cook County Government."

Silence The Silent Killer

The heater is on and your house is warm and cozy, but if you use a gas furnace or heater, carbon monoxide could secretly be leaking into your home.

Known as the silent killer, carbon monoxide kills more than 200 Americans each year, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. It also sends several thousand people to emergency rooms with carbon monoxide poisoning.

To keep you warm and safe this winter season, follow these suggestions:

- Install a carbon monoxide detector.
- Repair leaks promptly.
- Don't use a stove or fireplace that is not vented.
- Never heat your house with a gas oven or range.
- Consider purchasing a vented space heater.
- Don't warm your car up or keep it running inside a garage, even with the garage door open.
- Have a trained service technician annually inspect your heating system, including chimney and vents.

But all year long, be on the lookout for these warning signs that carbon monoxide is seeping into your home:

- Gas flames that usually burn blue are orange or yellow instead.
- Appliances get sooty stains on them.
- Fires become difficult to light.

Bid To Attract Clean Coal Project

Chances for the Midwest attracting the $1 billion FutureGen project got an important boost with the signing of an agreement on Dec. 14th through which Illinois and Indiana will make a united bid to attract the breakthrough clean-coal development to the Illinois Coal Basin. The Memorandum of Understanding between Illinois Gov. R. Blagojevich and Indiana Gov. Mitch Daniels states that Illinois' strong financial support and appealing geologic features make the state the ideal host for the federally supported FutureGen project - the near-zero emissions power plant that will also provide hydrogen fuel and allow capture and possible use of carbon dioxide.

Through the agreement, Indiana supports Illinois' application to site the state-of-the-art, public-private electric generating facility in Illinois, while Illinois supports carbon dioxide sequestration projects related to FutureGen in Indiana. An ongoing collaboration over the past two years will continue to develop sequestration in Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky to ensure that FutureGen can meet its near-zero emissions goal.

The FutureGen Industrial Alliance, an industrial consortium, was recently designated by the U.S. Dept. of Energy (DOE) to choose a site for what is being described as the coal-fueled power plant of tomorrow. The Alliance also will select technology for the project, hire a design-construction team to the facility and operate it when it is complete.

The Alliance and DOE will launch the site selection effort in 2006, with an aggressive schedule to start construction within three years and have the plant in operation by 2012. The Alliance is a non-profit coalition of the world's largest coal and energy companies. Its members have committed more than $250 million to project development. The U.S. government would invest about $700 million.

Public and private entities in 14 states have expressed interest in hosting or participating in the project, according to the Alliance. Gov. Blagojevich recently joined with U.S. Sen. Richard Durbin (D-IL), U.S. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL), U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello (D-Bellefonte) and U.S. Rep. John Shimkus (R-Collinsville) in sending a letter to the Alliance emphasizing Illinois' advantages as a site for the prototype facility.

Rosa Parks Stamp

Congressman Bobby L. Rush (D-IL) along with original co-sponsors, Congressman John Conyers (D-MI) and Joe Barton (R-TX) came together in support of H.R. 4343, which calls for a commemorative postage stamp in honor of Rosa Parks, the late mother of the Civil Rights Movement.

Joining the ranks of distinguished and celebrated heroes, Rush said it is a befitting tribute for a luminary such as Rosa Parks to be immortalized in American history with her own postage stamp.

Having just celebrated the 50th Anniversary of Mrs. Parks' historic December 1, 1955 day of refusal to move to the back of the bus in Montgomery, Alabama, Rush expressed a sense of urgency for passage of this legislation.

MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL!

In churches and homes, in city streets and stores, across the countryside - the spirit of Christmas spreads its joy and its contentment. Soon now, the last-minute hustle and bustle will give way to the highest moments of holiday celebration. It's a time for fun and feasting, a time for light-hearted laughter and heartfelt prayer, a time when friendships are renewed and family ties are strengthened.

Throughout this community, and indeed throughout all the communities where Christmas is celebrated, the spirit of the season finds expression in innumerable ways - among them, the gladness of the gift-giving, the merriment of parties, the happiness of hearth and home and, above all the solemn hush of midnight, traditionally the symbolic time for heralding the Birth of Christ.

From the holly wreath on the door to the packages under the tree, from the gaily decorated scenes in the churches, the customs of Christmas contribute to the meaning of the Day - just as early Christian leaders meant that holiday customs should.

When Christmas first began to be observed on December 25th, churchmen welcomed the idea of incorporating ceremonies and traditions from earlier beliefs into the celebration. They thought that people would feel closer to the new religion if former ways and rituals were not abolished, but instead united with the new rites to honor the birth of Christ.

Today, nearly everyone celebrates Christmas because Christmas belongs to everyone.

For the Christian believer, Christmas is cherished as a religious holiday of paramount importance and as a time meant for joy and festivity, too.

For people of many different faiths, Christmas is beloved as a happy holiday, a secular celebration that gives meaningful expression to universal good will and good cheer.

None of us, in our human limitations, can fully comprehend the meaning of the coming of the Christ. The event is too big, too overwhelming, too tremendous for us to completely understand. But if we are aware of this fact, we are already on the road to understanding. We know, for instance that in the coming of the Child is to be found the clue to the meaning of life, that in Jesus' life is the secret of the universe. It was Bishop Robinson, the author of HONEST TO GOD, who said that in Jesus Christ we have a window into ultimate reality itself, into God, and that in Christ we reach rock bottom - that rock of love on which the whole universe is constructed.

In our secularized society today, we are prone to celebrate Christmas in a most materialistic fashion, often with no understanding at all of the religious significance of the day, and so often we take the great gifts of life without even thinking of what they mean. We accept the love of parent or mate and do not realize what it has meant until they are gone. We accept food and clothing and shelter without ever knowing what it means to be hungry and cold and homeless. We accept the Divine Love without ever thinking what life would be like without it.

But in unexpected moments of revelation, we are struck with wonder and love and praise. Christmas can be such a moment, and to those who receive this revelation, all of life takes on new meaning and purpose, and we receive with humble gratefulness and a new sense of responsibility, God's gifts to us.

ALL POINTS ANNUAL Christmas story was written by Elmer Lysen, Messenger Newspapers Editor, who passed away in 1976.

"Good Tidings Of Great Joy" The Gospel According To St. Luke King James Version

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed.

And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria. And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

And Joseph also went up to Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem (because he was of the house and lineage of David), to be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child.

And so it was that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered.

And she brought forth her first born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country, shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and round about them and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people.

For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger.

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of heavenly hosts praising God, and saying:

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the Shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known to us.

And they came with haste, and found Mary and Joseph and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning the child.

And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds. But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart.

And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, as it was told unto them.

And when eight days were accomplished for the circumcising of the child, his name was called Jesus, which was so named of the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

Online Wish List

Warm bedding. Socks for little feet. A wished-for baby doll or basketball. Because simple gifts can mean so much, on Nov. 25th, Target and The Salvation Army launched their partnership for the Target/Salvation Army Wish List, an online site to provide essential items for those impacted by recent hurricanes, and other individuals and families in need across the country.

From now through Jan. 25th visitors to www.Target.com/salvationarmy can view and purchase clothing, household items, personal products and Gift Cards to be donated to families across the country. Visitors to the site will have the opportunity to ship items to any of 13 designated Salvation Army distribution centers across the country, each serving large regional areas with items specific to that region. Moraine Valley Assists Divorced, Separated Women In Job Training

Women who have lost income due to divorce, separation, death, or the primary earner becoming disabled or laid off can access education and training needed to re-enter the workforce and become economically self-sufficient through Moraine Valley's Illinois Support Training and Employment Program (ISTEP) for Disabled Homemakers.

Funded through the Illinois Department of Labor, ISTEP offers financial assistance, support services such as transportation or childcare, individual counseling, peer support groups and help with finding or upgrading employment.

All of the college's credit and non-credit vocational education and career exploration classes are open to participants who can receive financial assistance with items such as tuition and books. To receive assistance through this program, a displaced homemaker must have been married and must show a loss of income. Those who are still married must show proof of their spouse's disability or unemployment.

Displaced homemakers in the program meet with a case manager who helps them plan their education and employment paths and provides them with information about other services that may be beneficial such as domestic violence programs or food stamps. Participants also attend workshops and support groups where they can talk to others who are going through similar situations. Moraine Valley's center is one of 10 in Illinois and serves about 120 people annually.

Registration for the spring semester is currently underway. Classes begin the week of Jan. 17. In-district tuition is $64 per credit hour plus fees and books. Students can register in person at the Admissions, Records and Registration Office, located in the College Center on campus, 9000 W. College Pkwy., Palos Hills, or by calling (708) 974-2110; TT/TDD for the hearing impaired (708) 974-9556. Previously enrolled students also can register online at www.morainevalley.edu.

Information on all classes is available in the spring 2006 class schedule or online at morainevalley.edu.

Celebrate 40 Years Of King's Chicago Dream

It was a sweltering Chicago afternoon in mid-July. Newspapers reported temperatures reaching into the 90s. The vendors charged with supplying refreshments to the growing crowd at Soldier Field were overwhelmed by the demand for ice cream, cold drinks and straw hats. But the heat could not stifle the excitement and determination of the thousands of people gathered in the stadium seats. It was July of 1966, and Martin Luther King Jr. was about to speak.

"(We) must declare our own emancipation and make any sacrifices necessary to change Chicago," King declared from the middle of the massive arena. With those words, King launched the Chicago Freedom Movement, the earliest, most comprehensive civil rights campaign to tackle racism in the northern states.

In commemoration of the 40-year anniversary of this illustrious movement, The Field Museum is proud to present a four-day event designed to spotlight King and his civil rights initiatives. The event will be sponsored by Ariel Mutual Funds, and will take place at 2 p.m. on Friday, Jan. 13th; Saturday, Jan. 14th; Sunday, Jan. 15th; and Monday, Jan. 16th (Martin Luther King Jr. Day). The program is being held in collaboration with Fulfilling the Dream, a series of programs designed to commemorate the 40-year anniversary of King's Chicago Freedom Movement.

The event features actor and singer Kevin McIlvaine, who is known for his enthralling portrayals of Dr. King. McIlvaine's performances combine the intensity of King's words with the power of gospel music. He will be joined by The Metropolitan Apostolic Community Church Choir of Chicago.

Last year, thousands of visitors came to The Field Museum to hear McIlvaine's moving renditions of King's speeches. This year, event organizers anticipate the program's new focus on the Chicago Freedom Movement will draw an even bigger crowd.

The Martin Luther King Jr. Day-centered event is only one of the cultural programs and exhibitions offered by The Field Museum.

This event is free with general museum admission. General museum admission for Chicago residents is $10 for adults and $6 for children ages 4-11, seniors and students with ID. The cost for non-Chicago residents is $12 for adults and $7 for children ages 4-11, seniors and students with ID. For more information, call (312) 922-9410 or visit www.fieldmuseum.org.

Chicago Symphony Orchestra Fellowship Auditions

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra Assn. has announced the fourth year of its Orchestra Diversity Fellowship Program, a training initiative for promising, young orchestral players from diverse backgrounds. The 2006-07 Diversity Fellowship Program offers fellowships for violin, viola and cello. Applications for the program are due on Jan. 13th with live auditions at Symphony Center scheduled for February. In an effort to increase ethnic and cultural diversity in American orchestras, special consideration for this program will be given to fellowship candidates who are African-American, Latino or from other groups that are traditionally underrepresented in symphony orchestras. The Chicago Symphony Orchestra Diversity Fellowship Program receives generous support from the Lewis-Sebring Family Foundation. The CSO is pleased to name one 2006-07 fellow the Lewis-Sebring Fellow.

Through this fellowship, the Orchestra hopes to interest these musicians in auditioning for permanent positions in major symphony orchestras and increase the pool of musicians qualified to contend for those positions. This program is part of the CSO's ongoing education, community relations and diversity efforts, designed to break down the barriers, both real and perceived, that limit opportunities for musicians from diverse backgrounds.

The CSO's Diversity Fellowship Program will be open to musicians ages 18-32. Up to two fellows will be selected for the yearlong program, which will provide multiple opportunities for participants to work closely with members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and to perform in concerts with the Orchestra on a substitute basis during the 2006-07 season. Fellows may also participate in training activities with the Civic Orchestra of Chicago, the CSO's training orchestra for young, pre-professional musicians.

Two fellowship options will be made available, based on the level of musical performance demonstrated during the live auditions. The CSO Fellowship will include: rehearsing and performing as a substitute with the CSO for a significant number of weeks during the season; coaching and mentoring from members of the CSO; and participating in the Orchestra's education and community relations activities. The stipend for the CSO Fellowship is $36,000, with additional allotments for medical coverage and travel allowance for auditions. The CSO Apprentice Fellowship will include: participation in Civic Orchestra performance and training activities; coaching and mentoring from members of the CSO, including specialized preparation for auditions; and involvement with the music programs of local universities and other educational institutions. The stipend for the CSO Apprentice Fellowship is $12,000. Both fellowships will be customized to best suit the needs and interests of the individuals selected to participate, and may be extended for an additional year by mutual consent.

REWARDS OFFERED FOR INFO ABOUT ECO-TERRORISTS: The FBI and a building advocacy group will offer monetary awards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of eco-terrorists, especially those involved with the Earth Liberation Front (ELF). It was ELF activists who claimed responsibility for recent construction site fires in the state of Washington.

Authorities in the FBI's Seattle office and the Building Industry Association of Washington (BIAW) have posted $100,000 rewards to combat eco-terrorism, particularly ELF attacks. For more than a decade, ELF has claimed responsibility for dozens of arsons and eco-terror attacks that have caused upwards of $100 million in damages.

The FBI and BIAW officials are concerned about the escalating severity of ELF's alleged activities. They fear future eco-terror attacks could result in injury or death. The FBI considers ELF and other radical environmental activist groups the top domestic terrorist threats in the United States.

NEW MICHIGAN FISHING REGULATIONS APPROVE DROP SHOTTING: Changes to the gear restrictions order were made to allow anglers to suspend a weight below a hook tied directly to the main line, without using a 3" dropper line, on certain waters.

The method is called "drop shooting" and will now be legal to use on inland lakes, the Great Lakes and connecting waters. However, the gear restriction is still in effect on all rivers, streams and drowned river mouths where snagging potential is highest.

ILLINOIS DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES EMPLOYEES HONORED: The IDNR honored 101 Department employees during the 2005 Service Awards Ceremony conducted at the IDNR headquarters in Springfield. Employees recognized were honored for state service of 25, 30, 35 and 45 years.

"Our employees make valuable contributions each day to help us achieve our mission of managing, protecting and sustaining the state's natural and cultural resources," said Joel Brunsvold, IDNR Director. "The long-term employees we are honoring merit the thanks of those of us who work with them and the citizens of Illinois who have benefited from their service."

"Added together, these 101 employees have provided nearly 2,700 years of service to the people of Illinois. We are all impressed by their effort and dedication to our constituents and the help they provide to each other in getting their jobs done," added Brunsvold.

SOUND AND BUBBLE BARRIER DETERS CARP: Research experts with the Illinois Natural History Survey have found that an underwater acoustic barrier is effective in deterring Asian carp. These researchers tested sound-bubble technology in fish raceways where it proved 95% effective in causing bighead and silver to turn around. Continued work should get the effectiveness closer to 100%. If funding becomes available and the technology continues to prove effective, an acoustic barrier may augment the electric barrier at its site, or downstream where it can protect the Chicago Sanitary and Ship Canal as well as the Des Plaines River.

SNOWMOBILES CAUTIONED AGAINST WILDLIFE HARASSMENT: As snowmobilers get out and enjoy the winter landscape, this is a reminder that winter is a very stressful time for wildlife.

Snowmobilers running their machines near, through or around winter habitat such as thickets, cattails, and wooded areas, may inadvertently scare wintering wildlife, causing them additional and unnecessary stress or injury. Snowmobilers were being asked to take this into consideration and to give wildlife a little comfort space when out enjoying their sport. (Credit: Great Lakes Basin Report.)

OFF-HIGHWAY VEHICLE RECREATIONAL TRAIL GRANTS: Governor Blagojevich awarded more than $1.3 million in grants from the state's Off-Highway Vehicle (OHV) Recreational Trails Program to fund improvements at three facilities in downstate Illinois.

The OHV Recreational Trails Program is funded through the title fees on all-terrain vehicles and off-highway motorcycles, and through the sale of public access stickers. The program provides up to 100 percent reimbursement for approved project costs, which may include land acquisition, construction and maintenance of OHV trails and related facilities, restoration of areas damaged by OHV use, and for education and safety programs.

At the risk of being politically in-correct, I want to take this opportunity to wish you and yours "A Very Merry Christmas."

Dooley To Be Inducted Into Hall Of Fame

St. Xavier University baseball coach Mike Dooley will be officially inducted into the Illinois High School Baseball Coaches Assn. (IHSBCA) Hall of Fame at the Hall of Fame Dinner and Induction Ceremony on Saturday, Feb. 4th at the Hickory Ridge Marriott Conference Hotel in Lisle. Dooley was chosen for this prestigious honor for his selfless efforts and longstanding commitments to improving high school baseball in Illinois.

Dooley has directed the SXU baseball program since 1993 and has been associated with the team for 25 years. As head coach, he has had plenty of success compiling a career record of 520-305-1 over 13 seasons (.630 winning percentage) and sent 15 players on to professional careers. Last spring, Dooley had one of his best seasons at SXU with the team finishing 39-23 overall and advancing to the NAIA Super Regional for the first time since the new post-season format was adopted in 2000.

Dooley's success as a coach has not been limited to the baseball diamond. He has coached eight NAIA All-American Scholar-Athletes during his tenure and, as an instructor in the physical education department at SXU, is committed to teaching and the values of higher education.

Tony D'Anza and John Morrey, assistant baseball coaches at SXU under Dooley, have already been inducted into the IHSBCA Hall of Fame. Dooley was inducted into the Chicagoland Collegiate Athletic Conference (CCAC) Hall of Fame in 2002 for his outstanding coaching career at St. Xavier.

SXU Drops Tough Game

Despite a career-high tying 17 points by freshman forward Adam Gregoriou (Burbank/Brother Rice), the No. 19 ranked St. Xavier University men's basketball team lost a tough, non-conference game to Calumet College of St. Joseph (Ind.), 68-59, on the road Thursday in Hammond, Ind. The Cougars (8-5 overall) had trouble shooting the ball the entire game hitting only 35 percent (18-for-51) of its shots from the field, while the Crimson Wave (6-9 overall) shot an impressive 54 percent (25-for-46).

Gregoriou shot 7-for-9 from the field to lead SXU and pulled down six rebounds, while senior guard Jason Reiter (Lemont/Lemont) was the only other Cougar in double figures with 14 points and five boards. Freshman guard Jason Genova (Chicago/St. Patrick) led St. Xavier on the glass with seven rebounds to go along with his seven points. Senior forward Mike Oppland, who finished with a game-high 24 points, led Calumet College of St. Joseph.

Millikin Letter Winners

Millikin University's football team has named its 2005 varsity letter winners. The Big Blue finished the 2005 season with a 5-5 record.

Letter winners from this area are: Matt Renderman (Chicago/Marist) received one letter; Troy Stuewe (Oak Forest) received two letters; and Jake Polich (Burbank/Reavis) received one letter.

Mobile Cyber Cafe

A $5,000 SBC Beyond the Call grant awarded to Moraine Valley will enable the college's Blue Island Education Center to create a mobile Cyber Café, which will consist of a mobile storage unit for 10 new laptop computers and a wireless network.

The addition of a mobile Cyber Café will more than double the number of computers that are available for students, providing greater access to the college's library and additional online resources. More technology classes also can be offered at the center because the Cyber Café can be moved to different classrooms.

The Blue Island Education Center was chosen for a mobile Cyber Café because a majority of students who attend classes there do not have computer access outside the center; therefore, it will help decrease wait times to use a computer.

Out Of The Darkness Overnight Walk

The American Foundation for Suicide Prevention (AFSP) has announced their plans for the upcoming National Out of the Darkness Overnight Walk (www.theovernight.org) in Chicago. The 20-mile fundraising walk will benefit AFSP, the only national organization dedicated to funding suicide prevention research, education and awareness programs and to supporting survivors of suicide loss.

The Overnight in Chicago will begin at sundown on Aug. 12 and end at sunrise on Aug. 13. A similar overnight walk will also take place in San Francisco on July 22-23. Registration is open for both walks at www.theovernight.org or by calling 888-NIGHT-05.

Last summer, more than 1,700 people from across the country journeyed to Chicago and walked through the night raising over $1.35 million for suicide prevention. Funds supported the dissemination of an educational video to college campuses, new treatment research, and new training programs for survivor support group leaders. Funds are also being used to establish a regional office in Chicago in early 2006. Funds from next summer's walk will be earmarked for research aimed at improving knowledge of biological, genetic and psychosocial factors that contribute to suicide, expanding AFSP's National Survivors of Suicide Day Program and advancing the development of national centers to evaluate the effectiveness of suicide prevention interventions and treatments.

In the U.S. suicide is a serious national health problem. It is estimated that close to one million people make a suicide attempt each year and that every 18 minutes someone dies by suicide. Untreated depression is the leading cause of suicide. More than 20 million people suffer from depression each year. Tragically, suicide is the third leading cause of death among teens and young adults, the second leading cause of death for college students and accounts for 20 percent of deaths among people over age 65.

Many of the participants in The Overnight will be walking or volunteering in memory of loved ones they have lost to suicide or that have suffered from depression, while many others will participate because they have personally battled with depression themselves. Each walker must raise a minimum of $1,000 to participate. Volunteer "crew" positions are also available and do not have a fundraising requirement. Walkers must be over the age of 16 to participate.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

HOLIDAY WEIGHT MAINTENANCE REVISITED

We are coming in to the "home stretch" of the holiday season, with Christmas and New Year's right around the corner. Planning ahead is the name of the game when it comes to sticking to your weight goals and avoiding excess weight gain, as I have emphasized in previous columns. Here are some friendly reminders for healthy eating:

*Plan ahead. Know your limits on portions before festivities begin. If this is done, you can avoid impulse eating at a gathering.

*Limit portions. An entire meal can consist of over 1500 calories if you do not do this. You will also feel better that day and the next day if you don't overeat.

*Design a fruit and cheese tray for yourself. Try low fat cheeses which taste good and low fat crackers. Use dips made with fat free yogurt, cottage cheese, or fat free sour cream.

*Don't forget to exercise. Try not to stray from your exercise routine despite the busy holiday season. Walk an extra ten minutes daily to burn an additional 500 calories per week. The extra exercise can help compensate for added calories from holiday treats.

Ideas for recipe modification include:

*Using applesauce, crushed pineapple or non-fat yogurt in baked goods instead of butter, oil, or margarine.

*Using low fat soups in recipes which called for condensed cream soups.

*Using evaporated fat free milk instead of heavy cream in recipes will save 620 calories per recipe.

*Using 8 ounces of fat free ricotta cheese or cream cheese instead of regular cream cheese can save about 600 calories per recipe.

*Substituting one pound of lean ground turkey for one pound 80% lean ground beef can save about 850 calories per recipe.

*Healthy choices for foods at the party are:

*Low fat cheese and low fat crackers

*Pretzels

*Fruit

*Finger sandwiches made with lean meat

*Shrimp cocktail with minimal cocktail sauce

Don't let the holidays budge your weight or increase your size in clothes for the New Year! Good planning, motivation, and sticking with an exercise routine will help control the extra pounds.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!

Dairy's Role In Diets

A new clinical trial published recently in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition by researchers at Purdue University found that women burned more fat and more calories after a meal when their diets included 3-4 servings of dairy daily.

"From the results of this study, we put together a rough calculation based on the increased fat burned from a meal that suggests a high dairy diet followed over a year could potentially result in the loss of 10 pounds of fat a year," commented Dorothy Teegarden, Ph.D., lead investigator and professor of nutrition at Purdue University.

The purpose of this study was to investigate the mechanism by which dairy and calcium may impact body composition through the body's ability to burn fat and use calories. This study was not designed to induce weight loss. In the yearlong study, researchers compared the effects of a prolonged low dairy (1-2 servings) diet to a prolonged high dairy (3-4 servings) diet among 19 normal-weight women (aged 18-30 years old). The study participants' ability to burn fat and calories after a meal was measured at the beginning and end of the trial to determine the impact of increasing dairy and calcium consumption during the one year trial. They found that women who consumed 3 servings of dairy each day over the course of a year burned more fat and calories from a meal compared to women who fell short of government recommendations, consuming less than three servings of dairy per day. The subjects who consumed more dairy over the year burned more fat and calories after a meal.

Results from this study add further support to the body of research on dairy's role in weight management providing insight into the mechanism of fat metabolism. Increased calcium decreases parathyroid hormone (PTH) and Dr. Teegarden discovered that the decreased PTH that occurs with increased dairy consumption increases fat burning. Dr. Teegarden's discovery builds on other research demonstrating the role of calcium regulating hormones as potential mediators of the relationship between an increase in dietary calcium and greater fat burning.

Laser Treatment Brings Relief For Varicose Veins

If you are one of the millions of Americans living with unsightly and uncomfortable varicose veins, you'll be glad to know that St. Francis Hospital now offers a revolutionary new laser treatment that puts an end to the discomfort once and for all.

Varicose veins are recognizable by their blue, twisted appearance and usually are accompanied by small red and blue spider veins. They develop when the valves in the veins, as well as the vein walls, weaken or fail. Normal veins have one-way valves that keep blood moving, against gravity, up toward the heart.

When these valves function ineffectively, blood flows backward and pools in the veins leading to a build-up of pressure. This weakens them and they become twisted, enlarged and uncomfortable.

The development of varicose veins is progressive. In the earliest stages, they can be treated with regular exercise, compression stockings, and leg elevation.

If the condition worsens, interventions are available including a new, minimally invasive laser treatment at St. Francis.

Done on an outpatient basis, the procedure utilizes a thin, thread-like catheter that is fed into the malfunctioning vein. Laser energy is sent through the catheter, sealing the vein and redirecting blood flow to healthy veins in the leg. The procedure takes about 45 minutes and patients can walk immediately. There is no scar, minimal pain, quick recovery, and almost immediate relief from symptoms.

Address Adolescent Mental Health Issues

More than 50 suburban high school counselors gathered Friday, Dec. 9th to learn about the Mental Health Association of Greater Chicago's (MHAGC) innovative Mental Health Awareness in Education (MHAIE) initiative, a progressive way for schools to address the serious and all-too-often overlooked mental health issues facing today's youth.

The first of its kind in the country, MHAIE includes workshops, training sessions and a comprehensive Adolescent Mental Health Handbook to teach school personnel how to respond appropriately and effectively to the most common mental health disorders in adolescents. The unique program fills the educational gap for teachers and counselors, many of whom have no experience in dealing with mental illness; and for schools that need community mental health resources to fill the deficit between student need and the mental health resources available in schools.

As a member of the State of Illinois Children's Mental Health Partnership, MHAGC Executive Director Martha T. Schriver's program teaches professionals, families and adolescents how to identify but not diagnose mental illnesses such as eating disorders and depression; what to say and what not to say to those who suffer; and, how to halt the downward spiral of untreated mental illness. More than 25 schools throughout the state have been involved in the program.

The MHAGC has a strategic partnership with Chicago Public Schools and has worked closely with the Institute for Juvenile Research at the University of Illinois to develop the Adolescent Mental Health Handbook, which is regarded by the UCLA Center for Mental Health in Schools as the first comprehensive mental health publication for school teachers and counselors in the country. The MHAGC has also created a 15 week Mental Health curriculum for student health education and psychology classes that is currently being piloting in three Chicago schools.

The Mental Health Association of Greater Chicago (MHAGC) is an independent, not-for-profit, volunteer Association founded in 1957. MHAGC advocates for the social and emotional health of children and families, and provides practical tools and educational training for identification, prevention, and referral of mental illness.

The procedure itself is virtually pain-free. A local anesthetic numbs the leg; then a small needle is inserted on the inside of the knee. The laser fiber, which is comparable in size to a piece of angel hair pasta, is introduced.

After the thermal energy of the laser is deposited in the wall of the vein, it becomes sealed. At that point, another network of veins in the leg easily takes over blood flow to the heart.

Recovery is much quicker than other methods of treatment.

Compared to surgery, the recurrence rate is much lower, the complication rate is lower and it is more cost-effective.

For more information about laser treatment for varicose veins at St. Francis, call (708) 597-2000, ext. 5343.

May Your Holiday Season and New Year be as Exciting, Magical and Fulfilling as our October 2005.

On Dec. 19th, House Committee on Veterans' Affairs Chairman Steve Buyer (R-Ind.) hailed the decision by Congress to exempt the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) budget from the 1 percent across-the-board reduction that was applied to other fiscal year 2006 discretionary spending. "America's veterans have safeguarded our liberties and made possible the blessings we give thanks for this holiday season," Buyer said. "Safeguarding the funds our nation has generously provided for veterans' health care was a top priority for me and the members of the Veterans' Committee."

Veterans' health care is funded each year through discretionary budgeting, which reflects budget proposals made by the Administration, and then considered and developed in Congress. Spending for veterans' health care has risen from $19.3 billion in FY2001 to approximately $30 billion in FY2005, a 55 percent increase. President Bush just signed into law the appropriations bill providing VA more than $70 billion in total funding for FY2006, which includes an increase in veterans' medical care spending of 18 percent over the past two years.

In addition, Chairman Buyer led the effort to provide VA $1.5 billion in supplemental funds in August 2005 after a health care funding shortfall was discovered. VA, unable to use the entire amount in FY2005, will roll more than a billion dollars into FY2006.

"We thank the leadership of the House of Representatives for sharing this priority and ensuring that veterans will continue to be able to count on their VA to be there for them," Buyer said. "More important, we thank our nation's veterans and those who serve in our armed forces this holiday season for their faithful service to America."

Good-bye for this week. May you and your family be blessed with joy and peace during this holiday season. God bless you and God bless America.

All Kids Health Insurance Coverage Bill

U.S. Senator Durbin (D-IL) and Congressman Rahm Emanuel (D-IL) have introduced the All Kids Health Insurance Coverage Act of 2005, modeled after Illinois Governor Rod Blagojevich's All Kids health insurance legislation. Durbin and Emanuel's bill will help states provide access to health insurance for all children by expanding the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP).

"Of the 9 million uninsured children in this country, a majority come from families where at least one parent is working full time. These families are often ineligible for Medicaid and unable to afford private health insurance. It is time for Congress to act," said Durbin. "This bill will create a way for states and the federal government to work together to provide every uninsured child in the country with access to affordable, comprehensive health insurance."

The All Kids Health Insurance Coverage Act proposes to eliminate the federal eligibility cap of 200% of the federal poverty level so that all children can be eligible for SCHIP, regardless of family income. States that commit to offering every uninsured child in their state with access to SCHIP or Medicaid will receive additional federal subsidies in the form of a five percent increase over their current SCHIP or Medicaid matching rate for children above 200% of the federal poverty level.

The All Kids bill also provides incentives for states to expand enrollment of eligible kids in their SCHIP programs by providing more money to states that implement simplification measures and streamline the SCHIP enrollment process. States that implement the following policies will receive an additional five percent increase in their current SCHIP matching rate: presumptive eligibility, 12 month continuous enrollment, automatic renewal and eliminating the asset test. This will greatly assist states in providing health insurance for the 6.8 million children who are currently eligible for SCHIP or Medicaid but not enrolled.

The All Kids Health Insurance Coverage Act will be fully funded by eliminating two expensive tax cuts that have not yet taken effect. Approximately 97% of the benefits of the repeal of the Personal Exemption Phaseout (PEP) and the "Pease" provision, named for its author, the late Rep. Donald J. Pease (D-Ohio) will go to families with annual incomes exceeding $200,000. These tax cuts are scheduled to begin in 2006. Eliminating these cuts will generate approximately $30.6 billion in revenue between 2006-2010. It is estimated that the All Kids Health Insurance Coverage Act will cost $21 billion, which will be more than covered by canceling the tax cuts. Funds generated but not expended on the All Kids program will be dedicated to deficit reduction.

Pet Proofing Your House

It may be the season to be jolly, but for your pets it's the season for curiosity, and that can lead to trouble, says Dr. Raquel Brown, a veterinarian at the College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences at Texas A&M University.

Decorations make your house look festive, but they can be hazardous to your pet. "Decorations are interesting things to investigate for your pet," says Brown. "Pet-proofing your house for the holidays is very important."

She suggests that pet owners: keep candles, potpourri pots and decorations out of reach; anchor the top of the Christmas tree to the ceiling so it will not fall on your pet; put away children's toys; make sure small objects, medications, chocolates, etc. are kept out of reach.

Holiday plants also pose a threat to your pets. "The most notable poisonous plants are holly, poinsettia, mistletoe, ivy and hibiscus," says Brown. "If your pet ingests a plant or decoration, you should immediately call your local veterinarian or the ASPCA emergency hotline at 1-888-4ANI-HELP."

Turkey and stuffing may be your favorite holiday meal, but don't share it with Sparky or Fluffy, she adds.

"Bones can cause serious injuries, even death if the bones perforate the intestinal tract," says Brown. "You should also avoid feeding animals table scraps because the high fat content may predispose pets to pancreatitis, or an inflammation of the pancreas."

With all of the guests coming in and out of your house, it is likely your pet may get out. "It is a good idea to make sure your pet has proper identification especially during the holidays," Brown says.

If you're thinking about giving a puppy or kitten as a present, Brown advises against it. "A pet is a lifetime commitment, maybe as much as 18 years," she says. "Taking on a responsibility of such magnitude is a personal decision and must be made with great forethought." Instead, Brown recommends giving a person pet supplies or a gift certificate for veterinary care if he or she decides to get a pet.

If you already have a pet and want to reward him or her with a gift, Brown recommends giving the gift of attention. The most important thing you can give your pet is your time," she says. "Whether it's a walk in the park, a good belly rub, or just some quiet time sitting or playing ball, your pet will appreciate it."

She says that holidays can be a stressful time for both you and your pet. "Remember to provide your pet with adequate attention and activities," says Brown. "If it has something to do, it will be less likely to get into trouble investigating all of the new surroundings."

MVCC Offers Associates Degree

The U.S. Dept. of Labor has estimated that employment in information technology will grow faster than average through 2010. Moraine Valley is preparing students to successfully enter and excel in that field by offering a Management Information Systems Associates of Applied Science degree and 11 certificate programs: AS/400 Specialist, C++ Programmer, E-Commerce Generalist, Java Programmer, RPG Programmer, Software Developer, Microsoft Application Developer, Visual Basic.NET Programmer, Website Designer, and Website Developer.

Required coursework for the Management Information Systems degree, which requires 62 credit hours, includes Programming Principles, Networking for Business, Systems Analysis and Design, and Internet Technologies.

In addition to the required career courses, students will choose a concentration in E-Commerce Development, Midrange Application Development, PC Application Development, or Web Development.

Another feature of the degree program is the Internship/Seminar component that provides on-the-job training and offers students who are new to the field the opportunity to work in and evaluate a professional setting. Employers also can assess students' performance for possible full-time employment upon graduation.

Graduates of the Management Information Systems program will be qualified to work as applications trainers, technical support staff, software support staff, and programming and Web applications trainees. Because information technology skills are in high demand for all industries, jobs may be found in a variety of fields such as hospitals, schools, manufacturing, and financial institutions.

Management Information Systems certificate programs vary from 15 to 36 credit hours, and each has its own set of required courses. For specific information about the certificates, visit www.morainevalley.edu/IMS.

United Methodist Church Hosts Blood Drive

To maintain an adequate blood supply, Heartland Blood Center, a not-for-profit medical organization serving 34 hospitals in a thirteen-county region in Illinois and Indiana, urges all area residents to donate the gift of life this January at local blood drives.

During January, blood centers tend to struggle with blood collections because holiday vacations, poor weather conditions, and higher incidents of colds and flu can prevent donors from giving. To help increase donations, January has been declared National Blood Donor Month. Every two seconds, someone in the United States will need blood. Make it your New Year's resolution this year to donate blood every eight weeks.

Founded in 1943, Heartland Blood Centers' mission is to provide and maintain an adequate supply of blood and blood products for area hospitals to draw upon to meet the needs of patients. For additional information, call (800) 7 TO GIVE or visit www.heartlandbc.org.

In our area, blood donations will be taken at the First United Methodist Church, 10000 Central Ave., on Jan. 7th, from 9 to 2 p.m.

To be a blood donor, individuals must be at least 17 years old or 16 with written parental permission; weigh at least 110 pounds; be symptom free of cold, flu and allergies; and be in general good health. Donors who have traveled outside the United States within the past 12 months should contact Heartland to determine eligibility.

Open Road Tolling

On Sunday, Dec. 11th, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich was joined by Indy 500 champion Bobby Rahal at the Touhy Avenue toll plaza on the Tri-State Tollway to debut the three new Open Road Tolling lanes that will allow drivers with I-PASS to get to their destinations faster on I-294 because they no longer will have to slow down or stop at tollbooths. Rahal christened the new lanes by driving north on I-294 from the O'Hare Oasis, after receiving the all-clear signal from Gov. Blagojevich to drive through the new, non-stop tolling lanes in a red 2005 Indianapolis 500 Chevrolet Corvette Pace Car provided courtesy of General Motors.

The Touhy Avenue Plaza is the fourth of eight toll plazas to deliver Open Road Tolling lanes by the end of 2005 which also include Irving Park Road on I-294, Boughton Road on I-355 and Edens Spur on I-94. Drivers will also soon be able to drive through without stopping at the following plazas: Cermak, 2nd St., 83rd St. (I-294) and at Army Trail Rd. (I-355), with the remaining mainline plazas to be converted by fall 2006. Illinois is the first state in the nation to convert a barrier toll plaza system to the new Open Road Tolling technology.

The conversion of the Tollway's traditional toll plazas to a barrier-free system allows I-PASS users to travel at highway speeds while their tolls are collected electronically by a monotube overhead, reducing congestion and travel times. Vehicles with I-PASS or that need to exit shortly after the plaza will pull right into smaller traditional toll plazas where they can pay cash to toll collectors or use I-PASS, and not impact the free-flow of traffic on the mainline. Separating I-PASS traffic from vehicles paying cash also improves safety at toll plazas.

Rahal is an I-PASS customer and Tollway user. He is only the second person ever to win the Indianapolis 500 as a driver (1986) and as an owner (2004) when driver Buddy Rice took the crown for the Rahal Letterman Racing team.

Gary Sinise And "Operation Iraqi Children" Receive AT&T Grant

Actor and Chicago-area native Gary Sinise was in Chicago Sunday, Dec. 11th to accept a $25,000 donation from AT&T on behalf of Operation Iraqi Children (OIC), an organization he co-founded in 2004. Operation Iraqi Children brings school supplies and other basic essentials to the children of Iraq.

"Basic school supplies like pencils and notebooks bring such big smiles to the children of Iraq, who are the innocent victims of a nation in conflict," said Sinise, who envisioned OIC after a USO tour of Iraq in 2003 where he witnessed a lack of basic essentials. "Many Americans want to know how they can help with the rebuilding efforts in Iraq. OIC offers this opportunity by allowing citizens and businesses like AT&T to contribute to this effort in a simple yet profound way."

AT&T's $25,000 donation to Operation Iraqi Children will help the organization provide Iraqi children with the basic learning tools they need to learn and grow.

"We are thrilled to be working with Gary Sinise to support Operation Iraqi Children's efforts to bring school supplies to the children of Iraq," said AT&T Midwest Vice President Brendan Reilly. "Every September, American school children return to their classrooms with rulers and scissors, pencils and notebooks. But most Iraqi school children lack these basic essentials. OIC is making a difference by working with U.S. and Coalition troops to distribute supplies across the country - providing these children with some basic necessities, while helping our troops build a rapport with the Iraqi people."

Packages of school supplies and other items like teddy bears, shoes and soccer balls, are delivered by American soldiers throughout Iraq. "Bringing OIC packages to the children who need them, American soldiers are building the bonds of friendship between our nations," said Sinise. "Our troops become the messengers of goodwill, and it benefits everybody."

"AT&T has a long and proud history of supporting the brave men and women of the U.S. military. By contributing to the efforts of Operation Iraqi Children, we are also supporting our soldiers who are serving as ambassadors of education by helping these children while risking their lives for freedom," said AT&T's Reilly.

Drunk Driver Can Face Criminal Charges

Enjoy the holidays and be of good cheer, but don't drink and drive. Illinois has stiff laws for those charged with a DUI or "driving under the influence." Furthermore, penalties will become even stiffer beginning Jan. 1st, especially for drunk drivers responsible for fatalities.

If you are arrested and convicted of a DUI, and it is your first offense, you nonetheless can lose your driver's license for up to one year, face possible imprisonment of up to 12 months, be required to perform 100 hours of community service and pay a fine of up to $2,500.

Furthermore, you may have to lose work time, have your vehicle impounded and be required to carry high-risk auto insurance for 36 months. The penalties are more severe for second and third convictions. A fourth conviction will result in the driver's license being permanently revoked. If the impaired driver is involved in an auto accident involving great bodily harm or one or more deaths, the penalties are even more severe.

According to Illinois law, if the driver fails, or refused to submit to a blood alcohol test, the driver will be issued a law enforcement sworn report, notifying him or her of a Statutory Summary Suspension. In Illinois, when you get a driver's license, you consent implicitly to take a breath or blood test if requested. Failure to do so, when asked by a police officer with probable cause, can result in a statutory suspension no matter what the ultimate result of the case would be.

In some cases, a driver may request a judicial hearing to challenge the suspension within 90 days after the first notice date. If applicable, such a hearing must be conducted within 30 days of the request or on the first court date scheduled.

The sentence which the court imposes is affected by a number of factors, including what transpired leading up to the DUI charge, policies of the local court, and weaknesses in the case uncovered by a person's defense attorney. The punishments take into consideration whether the person charged had a prior DUI conviction within the last seven years, whether the person was speeding, whether there was a child under age 14 in the car and other matters.

The next "Nature Works Café," sponsored by the Forest Preserve District of Will County, will be held on Thursday, Jan. 12, 7 p.m., at Plum Creek Nature Center, in Beecher.

The selection to be discussed at the program is Original Wisdom: Stories of an Ancient Way of Knowing, by Robert Wolff and Thomas Hartman. Participants should read the book beforehand and bring a copy to the program.

Pastries and gourmet coffee, tea, and hot chocolate will be served. Plum Creek Nature Center is located in Goodenow Grove Forest Preserve, 1.25 miles east of the intersection of Routes 1 and 394 on Goodenow Road, south of Crete. The nature center is fully accessible.

Jackson Plan For New Airport Foiled

Any hopes that U.S. Rep. Jesse Jackson Jr. (D-2nd) had regarding his plans to build a south suburban airport have been halted by Attorney General Lisa Madigan. In a 37 page opinion released last week, Madigan's office contends that Jackson's airport commission group failed to follow state bidding guidelines when choosing two developers.

According to reports, Madigan's office also stated that they could not legally transfer land acquired for the Peotone airport to Jackson's Abraham Lincoln National Airport Commission. The document, it was stated, did not 'shut the door' on combining Jackson's plans with those of the proposed airport in Peotone.

Jackson was attempting to gain a favorable opinion that would prompt the governor to hand over land acquired for the Peotone airport to his commission and to partner with Jackson to build the Lincoln airport. Although the Madigan opinion was not totally favorable to Jackson's plans, he is urging Blagojevich to negotiate with his group.

Jackson's commission presented a model of the airport that would have one runway with five gates. These plans would have to start from scratch. According to Madigan's opinion, the commission 'violated state procurement laws when picking SNC Lavalin and LCOR to design and to build the airport.' The team was chosen by Jackson's commission to oversee the development. The Madigan document stated that for any partnership to be legal, Jackson and his commission needed separate design and construction contracts.

However, statements issued by Gov. Blagojevich stated that his office will continue to work with Jackson and others who share the goal until a south suburban airport in Peotone is a reality."

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 18

10:00 a.m. The Sunday before Christmas the Church School will present their annual Christmas Play, Santa Gives Back Christmas during the morning worship. This is a wonderful way to let our children lead us to the excitement of Christmas.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 24 - CHRISTMAS EVE

11:00 p.m. The annual candlelight service of scriptures and carols welcomes Christmas Day in a way that is both traditional and joyous. Communion at this service celebrates Christ's presence with us and opens our hearts to receive God's gift to us in Christ. All who have known God's love revealed in Christ and who are trying to live in harmony with their neighbors are welcome to join us at Christ's Table.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 25 - CHRISTMAS DAY

10:00 a.m. We will celebrate Christmas Day with carols and songs as we listen once again to the incredible story of God's love coming to share with us our common lot in the baby of Bethlehem. There will be a nursery for young children during worship, but no Sunday School on Christmas Day.

We welcome all who are looking for God to join us in celebrating God's love in these events and each week on Sunday at 10:00 AM.

Statewide Study On Homeless Youth

The Illinois Department of Human Services (IDHS) and the Chicago Coalition for the Homeless (CCH) youth committee, in collaboration with the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) released a statewide study on homeless youth recently. The results of the survey were released at the Statewide Youth Homelessness Conference at the UIC Student Center West.

"Homeless youth are often forced out into the streets by poverty or an abusive home life. They may be runaways, abandoned by parents or left alone after the death of their parents, leaving them to survive in the streets," said IDHS Secretary Carol L. Adams, Ph.D. "This survey is important as it provides us with a clear picture of the scope of youth homelessness in Illinois."

The study, conducted by researchers Ingrid S. Graf and Tim Johnson of the UIC Survey Research Laboratory surveyed 215 providers of services to youth. The providers reported information regarding the members of unaccompanied youth at a specific point in time, April 26, 2005 and during the course of a full year.

Key findings include the following: the total number of unaccompanied homeless youth in Illinois on April 26, 2005 was estimated at 4,102 (an additional 1,891 children of homeless youth were also homeless that night; the total number of unaccompanied homeless youth in 2004 was estimated at nearly 25,000 (this number may include some duplication of youth being counted by more than one provider).

In addition to surveying providers, the study interviewed 169 homeless youth throughout the state about their reasons for homelessness, their experiences while homeless, and their service needs.

Key findings from the youth survey include: 62 percent had experienced some form of victimization in the past 12 months; 38 percent were neglected or abused by parents; 27 percent experienced police harassment; 41 percent had either a diagnosis of mental illness or had been hospitalized for a mental health condition; 28 percent of youth needed help finding a job and did not get it; and 40 percent of youth needed help with medical care and only 56% of those received it.

Letter To The Editor:

Editor:

Recently the Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that parents do not have the fundamental right to control when, where and how their children are taught about sex. This right is now the prerogative of the courts and activist judges are self-imposing their authority for forfeit parental rights. In effect they are saying that they know better how to raise our children and grandchildren. This is outrageous!

Think it won't happen in Illinois? Legislation has again resurfaced in Illinois that would emphasize curriculum focused on comprehensive sex education rather than abstinence - SB 457.

Here's an example of the curriculum SB 457 promotes. From "Be Responsible! Be Proud!" pages 78 and 79, for 6th-8th graders. "Invite [students] to brainstorm ways to increase spontaneity and the likelihood they'll use condoms...examples...store condoms under mattress, eroticize condom use with partner...use a condom as a method of foreplay...hide a condom on your body and have your partner find it. Wrap as a present and give to partner before a romantic dinner. Tease each other manually while manually putting on a condom."

This encourages reckless sexual behavior instead of self-control, prudence and responsibility. No wonder sexually transmitted diseases continue to soar among our youth!

The Supreme Court will ultimately decide on the Ninth Circuit case. But I would encourage Illinoisans to voice their strong objections to their elected State Reps. and Senators regarding SB 457.

Massage Therapy At Your Fingertips

Let your fingers do the walking as you begin earning credit toward a Massage Therapy certificate at Moraine Valley Community College this spring. Students are trained in the art of touch and the application of pressure to sore muscles to induce relaxation, assist in rehabilitation and contribute to overall physical and emotional well-being.

Program participants will get hands-on training with a variety of people in a supervised student clinic that is open to the public. They also will learn a code of professional ethics coupled with a foundation of business skills.

Required courses include Basic Swedish Massage, Sports Massage, Human Movement, and Wellness Professions. The certificate requires 31 credit hours.

Registration is currently underway. In-district tuition is $64 per credit hour plus fees and books. Students can register in person at the Admissions, Records and Registration Office, located in the College Center on campus, 9000 W. College Pkwy., Palos Hills, or by calling (708) 974-2110; College Pkwy., Palos Hills, or by calling (708) 974-9556. TT/TDD for the hearing impaired. (708) 974-9556. Previously enrolled students also can register online at www.morainevalley.edu.

The Chicago Coalition for the Homeless makes several recommendations based on the report's findings including increased access to employment, keeping youth in school, accessing housing and other assistance, pregnancy prevention, violence prevention and healthcare. The report also notes that more than one-third of homeless youth are former wards of the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services. The Coalition recommends prevention measures while youth are in state care to avoid future homelessness and tracking of outcomes for wards who are aging out of the state system.

IDHS currently provides $4.6 million to support 950 homeless youth. DHS runs 23 programs for youth ages 14 to 21 that provide emergency shelter, transition to independent living, drop-in/outreach and special services for pregnant and parenting teens.

The Chicago Coalition for the Homeless (CCH) organizes and advocates to end homelessness based on the belief that housing is a human right in a just society. The CCH Youth Committee is a collaboration of homeless youth service providers and homeless and formerly homeless youth.

Additional findings are available in the full report posted on the DHS website: www.dhs.state.il.us and on the CCH website at www.chicagohomeless.org.

Illinois Insurance Hotline

Q: I received a life insurance policy illustration during a sales presentation. What should I be looking for?

A: An illustration is a year-by-year projection of how your policy will develop over time. It includes information on premiums, guaranteed and non-guaranteed death benefits, guaranteed and non-guaranteed cash values, and other factors about the product you're considering. It is not a legal document.

Points to remember as you assess the policy illustration:

1) The proposal page should accurately describe you, identify the type of policy presented, and state the face amount; 2) There should be a distinction between guaranteed and non-guaranteed benefits and values. You can count on the guaranteed figures, providing premiums are paid and you don't borrow against the policy; 3) Realize the illustration is based on the insurer's current rates and practices. Non-guaranteed values, benefits, credits and costs could be higher or lower depending on the insurer's future financial results; 4) Evaluate the premium payment requirement. Some policies have premiums that increase over time. Others policies have "vanishing premiums" that use earnings to pay the premium. You may have to resume paying at some point in the future; 5) Find out if the death benefit is guaranteed or will fluctuate according to interest rates or other factors.

Complimentary educational materials on life insurance can be requested from the Illinois Insurance Hotline.

Q: The repair shop says they can adjust the damage estimate from my fender bender so that I won't have to pay my collision deductible. This doesn't sound right. What should I do?

A: Exaggerating the cost of repairs causes the insurance company to pay more than the actual damages owed. This is known as claim "padding" and is fraudulent, criminal activity. Make the insurance adjuster or company representative aware of your suspicions.

Insurance fraud occurs when someone deliberately deceives an insurance company or agent to achieve financial gain. There are a variety of fraudulent activities commonly committed against insurance companies. For example, prospective policyholders sometimes misrepresent facts on their applications (garaging location, number of miles driven, driving record). Other types of claim-related fraud include submitting a loss for an injury or damage that never occurred, exaggerating the amount and value of items stolen from a home or business, or turning in old damage as part of a recent accident.

Fraud remains an ongoing problem despite attempts to identify and prosecute perpetrators. In fact, property/casualty insurance fraud cost insurers about $29 billion in 2003 according to Insurance Information Institute estimates. Policyholders ultimately absorb these costs through higher insurance premiums.

Insurance fraud is a crime. Don't be a willing participant. Illinois Insurance Hotline is a monthly column based on questions consumers ask the Illinois Insurance Hotline. The Hotline is a consumer resource sponsored by insurance companies doing business in Illinois. Those with questions about insurance, should call the Illinois Insurance Hotline toll-free at 1-800-444-3338 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. We're here to help!

Champions Of Character

Calumet College of St. Joseph has been named a "Champions of Character" institution by the National Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics. The designation recognizes the school's commitment to the "true spirit of competition."

That "spirit," as defined by the NAIA, is achieved through creating an environment of respect, integrity, responsibility, servant leadership and sportsmanship.

"Our Crimson Wave teams strive each day to achieve that goal," said CCSJ Athletic Director Andy Juscik. "We are proud of our athletes' service to the community."

Juscik said that the CCSJ cross-country team recently participated in the "Lung Run," a Chicago marathon to benefit cancer research. Athletes also have helped an environmental group clean Lake Michigan's Whiting shoreline.

Fatality Free Holiday Season

Members of Illinois' traffic safety community, including representatives of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) and Illinois State Police (ISP) announced a crack-down targeting impaired drivers during the 2005 holiday season. Last year, 1,356 people were killed on Illinois roads, and almost half of those people were killed in crashes where alcohol was a factor.

The holiday mobilization will run through Jan. 1st. IDOT and ISP will be teaming up with more than 100 local agencies to conduct approximately 1,100 saturation patrols. Saturation patrols target a specific area for heightened enforcement and are proving very effective in Illinois' battle to reduce highway fatalities.

2004 saw the lowest number of traffic deaths on Illinois highways in more than 60 years with 1,356 people killed. Through the first 11 months of 2005 Illinois traffic deaths in Illinois stood at 1,238, ten more than the same time period from last year, 1,228. On state highways, interstates, and U.S. routes, traffic deaths have decreased by 54 or 9% during the first eleven months of 2005 compared to the same time period last year. However, on city streets, county and township roads, fatalities have increased by 66, or roughly 10%.

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich has proclaimed December, Drunk and Drugged Driving Prevention month. In Illinois, alcohol is a factor in nearly 45% of all traffic fatalities. During the holiday season IDOT will commemorate the 25th anniversary of MADD by placing silver ribbons with "MADD Celebrates Life" printed in red on all IDOT fleet vehicles. IDOT will also be giving away palm cards with safe party plans for guests and hosts alike that provide safe party tips to help make this a "Fatality Free Holiday Season."

IDOT and ISP remind you that the simplest thing you can do to save your life in a car crash is to buckle your seatbelt. Since Gov. Blagojevich signed the primary enforcement law in July of 2003 safety belt compliance has risen by 10% and fatalities have dropped by nearly 100.

St. Francis Athletes

The University of St. Francis Men's Basketball Roster includes many area residents: Adam Kielbasa, graduate of Brother Rice High School; Mike Applegate, graduate of Carl Sandburg High School; Mike Smith, graduate of Alan B. Shepard High School; and Don Hackstock, graduate of Oak Lawn High School.

During a game played on Dec. 7th, junior Mike Smith (Shepard High School) scored USF's final seven points in a recent game against Calumet, Ind., to pull the Saints back from a one-point deficit in the game's final minute and lead them to a 72 to 69 victory over Calumet College.

Smith finished with a team-high 26-points and tallied 18 of those in the second half. He also led the Saints in rebounding with 12 as he recorded his third double-double of the season and the sixth by a Saint in the campaign's first nine games.

Penalties For Underage Drinkers

There are numerous laws in Illinois that apply to drinking. Buying beer or liquor is considered a privilege rather than a right. In Illinois, the drinking age is 21 for alcoholic beverages. Some states have different ages for drinking beer and liquor.

Underage drinkers violate the law when they: possess alcohol on a public street or in a public place; drink alcohol, unless as part of a religious service or ceremony; lie about their age to get alcohol; occupy a residence and knowingly let someone under 21 possess alcohol; rent a hotel or motel room, knowing that the room will be used for illegal drinking; carry, make, or obtain a copy of a false identification card; operate a motor vehicle with any alcohol in their system. Illinois's "Use It & Lose It"/zero tolerance law became effective on Jan. 1, 1995. It set the acceptable blood alcohol concentration (BAC) level for drivers under the age of 21 at .00.

Penalties for violating the laws are stiff. For illegal possession, the fine can range from $500 to $2,500 or 364 days in jail. The use of a false I.D. card can lead to a fine of $25,000 or three years in jail.

Adults over age 21, who provide alcohol to or for minors, also violate the law and face criminal penalties. For the illegal sale or furnishing of alcohol to minors, there is a penalty of up to $2,500 and/or 364 days in jail.

For further information about law-related issues, contact an Illinois Bar Association-member lawyer in your area or visit www.illinoislawyerfinder.com.

Letter To The Editor

Editor:
Samuel Alito's conservative record of judicial restraint and his respect for the Constitution as an unchangeable document qualify him to sit on the Supreme Court.

With Alito's credentials, his confirmation should be a breeze. Only a lack of qualifications or ethical problems should block his approval in the Senate. His strong record indicates neither.

Lighting a firestorm would be a big mistake for liberals.

Donation For Food Pantry

Worth Township Supervisor Jack Murphy and the Board of Trustees would like to express their appreciation to Mei Diab, owner of Running for Kicks, in Palos Heights for organizing a four mile run through Palos Park on Thanksgiving Day as well as the numerous participants who gave so much to benefit the Worth Township Food Pantry. This year they collected over 4,000 cans of food and were able to donate the cans along with a $1,000 check to the Food Pantry. It is especially gratifying knowing how generous the community has been in response to all the requests for donations for this past horrific Hurricane season. With each of us working together, elected officials, staff, local business and our dedicated residents, we can accomplish so much more than any of us working alone. The generosity of Worth Township residents and businesses make a profound difference in the meaning of Christmas.

CUB Unveils Cell Phone Guide

Citizens Utility Board (CUB) on Dec. 16th unveiled a new publication created to help consumers sort through all the confusing terms and offers when shopping for cell phone service.

The publication, "The Cell Phone Shopper's Guide," gives consumers the information they need to sort through all the jargon and hyped marketing and choose the calling plan that best suits their needs. The guide is designed to help shoppers ask the right questions and avoid common pitfalls.

As wireless prices continue to drop and the list of features grows in the highly competitive cell phone market, complicated packages and limited promotional deals can overwhelm the consumer. CUB's guide walks customers through the process of choosing the right cell phone and calling plan in a straightforward manner.

"Cell phones are wonderful devices that provide great benefits to consumers," CUB Executive David Kolata said. "But consumers need straightforward, sound information in order to make the right choices. Otherwise, its buyers beware."

The guide addresses a wide variety of issues including the difference between "prepaid" and standard monthly billing plans, the pros and cons of dropping a landline, the question of insuring a phone, and the importance of "trial periods" to test both the reliability of the phone and the calling plan.

A chart that compares prices, a checklist that lays out important questions to consider, and a list of other helpful references also are featured.

The guide equips the consumer with information on how to keep costs down. For example, customers who have wireless minutes left at the end of the month could use those minutes to make long-distance calls and lower their bills from their long-distance companies. Consumers also are advised to beware of extra features, such as text messaging or Internet access, that can cost extra even if they are not needed or wanted.

"Consumers need to understand what their options are in order to determine what they need," Kolata said. "This publication helps fill that information gap and allows them to make good choices."

To receive a free copy of the brochure, call CUB's Consumer Hotline at 1-800-669-5556 or visit the Telecommunications section of the Consumer Information page on CUB's website at www.CitizensUtilityBoard.org.

Resolve To Be Safe In 2006!

We all enter the New Year resolving to improve ourselves, yet we often neglect to take the steps that could literally save our own life, or the life of someone we love. This year, focus your resolutions on family safety by zeroing in on carbon monoxide, commonly known as the "silent killer."

Carbon monoxide (CO) poisoning kills 2,000 Americans every year, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association, and you can't see it, smell it or taste it. A CO alarm is the only way to safely detect if the deadly gas is in your home. Yet, only 27 percent of homes in America have carbon monoxide alarms, according to the Hardware/Homecenter Research Industry. Safety experts recommend that you install an alarm on every level of your home and in sleeping areas.

Clip these resolutions and put them on your refrigerator

so you are reminded every day to protect your family from CO dangers: 1. I will not "borrow" the batteries from my CO alarm to use in toys, remote controls or other household items that suddenly need batteries. 2. I will not ignore the CO alarm if it sounds in my home. If it alarms, I will get my family out of the house immediately.

3. I will have my furnace and fireplace checked this year, and when it is cold outside, I will not warm up my car in an attached garage or carport. 4. I will check the manufacturer's date on the back of my CO alarm to make sure it was purchased in the last five years, and has the latest sensing technology. 5. I won't wait 'til it's too late: I will act to protect my family from these dangers by installing CO alarms on every floor and near sleeping areas now!

Holiday/Winter Tips For Pet Lovers

With the holiday season now in full swing, Cook County Board President John Stroger urges pet lovers to take heed to the timely advice offered by the County's Animal Control Administrator, Dr. Dan Parmer. As in previous years, Parmer urges people to be mindful of the potential hazards the otherwise joyous season can bring for pets.

"Pet owners often decide to feed their animals food from the dinner table because they want to include them in the holiday festivities," Parmer said. "Although well-intentioned, feeding pets portions of the holiday meal - foods to which they are not accustomed - can lead to gastrointestinal distress or other problems requiring veterinary care. Common problems veterinarians address this time of year are stomach or intestinal disturbances that occur when pets consume holiday leftovers. Bones, in particular, can easily get stuck in a pet's mouth or digestive tract."

Parmer also stresses that chocolate is toxic to practically all animals because it contains theobromine, a substance that causes severe heart problems. "It may be hard to believe, but a lethal dose for a 20-pound dog is only about six 'bite-sized' pieces of baking chocolate, or eight times that amount of milk chocolate," Parmer warned.

Even holiday decorations can pose additional risks for pets. "It is widely known that cats are fond of tinsel and ribbon," Parmer noted. "If these objects are consumed, they can cause intestinal blockages or ruptures, requiring major surgery to repair." Many decorative plants are poisonous as well. Mistletoe, holly and poinsettias, in particular, have been known to cause distress to the stomach.

Both dogs and cats have been known to chew on electrical cords, causing electrocution or serious mouth burns.

Cats have been known to climb the Christmas tree and knock it over causing a fire hazard.

Parmer also suggests that pet lovers omit preservatives from the tree-stand water and to be aware that low-hanging ornaments, with their easily swallowed hooks, also are potential hazards.

Finally, with the long winter season ahead, Dr. Parmer reminds pet owners that anti-freeze (Ethylene Glycol) is highly toxic to all animals - and humans. Dogs, cats, birds and even children have been known to be attracted to the fluid due to its sweet taste. "One teaspoon of 95% ethylene glycol can be lethal to an eight-pound cat, and 17 teaspoons can be lethal to a 10-pound dog," Parmer warns. "When changing auto fluids, clean the area well and do not leave fluid where pets or children can consume them."

If a pet does get sick, Dr. Parmer stresses that it is important to consult a veterinarian before administering any medication. Several over-the-counter drugs are toxic for animals even though they are safe for humans.

Governor Encourages Continued Donations

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced that since Hurricane Katrina made landfall in late August, Illinoisans have generously donated more than one million items to hurricane victims. Many of the donations, which include clothing, household and other items, were given directly to hurricane victims, and the remainder continue to be distributed to needy families throughout the state. The Governor also encourages Illinoisans to continue to help families in need by donating new or gently used winter clothing to this year's Keep Our Kids Warm and safe campaign. Donations can be made at all Illinois Department of Human Services and Illinois Department of Employment Security offices throughout the state.

First launched in 2003, the campaign is an annual statewide clothing and car seat drive. Citizens, businesses, and state employees are encouraged to donate new or gently used gloves, mittens, hats, scarves and new car seats. As they come in, donations will be taken to charities in communities around the state. These charities will then distribute the donations to needy families in their area. Several charities have already received items, including Boys & Girls Clubs in Springfield, Inner city Mission in Springfield, and Catholic Charities in Chicago.

This year, 21st Century donated 100 brand new car seats to Keep Our Kids Warm & Safe. Illinois State Police officers are educating parents and caregivers on how to use and install the seats, and distributing "Child Safety Seats: A Parent's Guide" to explain proper seat installation and use. The guide, available in English or Spanish, can be obtained free of charge at safety fairs, by contacting the company's corporate headquarters at 1-800-211-SAVE or by visiting www.21st.com.

Sign Agreement

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently announced the signing of an agreement with ConocoPhillips aimed at curbing the sale of tobacco to minors. Madigan is joined by 39 Attorneys General, all of whom have reached similar agreements relating to the sale of tobacco at Phillips 66, Conoco and 76 gas stations in their jurisdictions.

The agreement covers the 10,463 ConocoPhillips stores in 37 states and Washington, D.C., including 327 stores in Illinois.

Under this agreement, all corporate-owned ConocoPhillips stores - including Phillips 66, Conoco and 76 gas stations - will be required to establish new policies and procedures aimed at reducing the number of minors who illegally purchase tobacco products at their stores. ConocoPhillips also will take steps to ensure compliance by its franchisees and will, among other things, revise its franchise contracts to specify that tobacco-product sales to minors can result in loss of the franchise.

This agreement is the result of a five-year, nationwide investigation of retail stores' sales of tobacco to minors conducted by the offices of many Attorneys General. The investigation revealed that ConocoPhillips made sales of tobacco to minors.

In recent years, Illinois has signed similar agreements with five other nationwide tobacco retailers: 7-Eleven, Wal-Mart and SAM's Club, ExxonMobil, BP Amoco and Walgreens.

Madigan said research indicates that every day in the United States, more than 2,000 people under the age of 18 begin smoking and one-third of those persons will one day die from a tobacco-related disease. Young people are particularly susceptible to the addictive elements in cigarettes, with research showing that 80 percent of all adult smokers began smoking before the age of 18.

Under the agreement, ConocoPhillips also agreed to pay the Attorneys General $125,000 for the costs incurred by the states in investigation and negotiation.

Letter To The Editor:

Catholic Charities not only believes in our clients, we journey with them. This is a phrase we say often at Catholic Charities, but I have seen it so poignantly illustrated by our community of board members, donors and staff during this past year. On behalf of our clients, I wish to express my gratitude.

Catholic Charities began seeing the results of Hurricane Katrina firsthand during the first week of September. Families began coming to our office at 721 N. LaSalle St. in order to get shelter and food after driving to Chicago from what were their homes in New Orleans. Soon after, we saw a second set of victims: middle-class families who originally had been able to come to Chicago and check into a hotel for housing, or who had been living with family members in the Chicago area, and who had completely run out of resources. An incredibly dedicated group of volunteers worked long hours to help these evacuees get food, clothing and housing. Donors provided monetary assistance, sponsorship for apartments, and towels, sheets and toothbrushes so that they could have staples to begin their new lives.

After such a huge outpouring of help for our friends from New Orleans, Catholic Charities' friends and benefactors still did not forget the poor in their own neighborhoods. Through the help of hundreds of volunteers and donors, our Celebration of Giving has been able to bring more than 25,000 clients in Cook and Lake Counties gifts for Christmastime. Because of the generosity of their communities, thousands of parents were able to place gifts under their Christmas trees for their children. This generosity truly is what the holidays are about.

In addition to those who aided our special projects during the year, I wish to thank those who have supported our daily efforts to help the poor through foundation grants, individual donations and financial responses to our Mother's Day and Year-end Appeals. Because of this assistance, we have been able to bring more than 870,000 parents, children, seniors and individuals help during the hardest times of their lives.

Our mission is based on a commitment to the value and dignity of each human life. I see this mission lived each day by our board, donors and staff, and I am so grateful to our community during this year especially for its support to our mission. May God bless you during this Christmas Season, and may you have a Happy New Year!

Host An Exchange Student This Year

World Heritage Student Exchange program, a public benefit organization, is seeking local host families for high school boys and girls from Spain, France, Germany, Thailand, Japan, Mexico, Switzerland, Denmark and Italy. Students are already waiting word on their host family for the 2006-07 academic school year. Host families provide room, board, and guidance for a teenager living thousands of miles from home. Couples, single parents, and families with and without children in the home are all encouraged to apply.

The exchange students arrive from their home country shortly before school begins in fall 2006. Each World Heritage student is fully insured, brings his/her own personal spending money and expects to bear his/her share of household responsibilities, as well as being included in normal family activities and lifestyles.

Celebrate the New Year by choosing to host an exchange student. For more information, call Frank Suerth at 1(800) 888-9040 or visit the web site at www.world-heritage.org

Open Road Tolling Lanes

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently debuted Open Road Tolling lanes at the Cermak Road Toll Plaza on the Tri-State Tollway (I-294), which means there are now 9 mainline toll plazas where I-PASS users can travel at highway speed while their tolls are collected electronically and will no longer have to slow down or stop at tollbooths.

Open Road Tolling debuted recently at the Cermak Road plaza, following the opening of non-stop tolling lanes at the 82nd St. and 83rd St. toll plazas on I-294. The Army Trail Road plaza on I-355 now offers Open Road Tolling lanes northbound and southbound. In time for holiday travel, the Illinois Tollway achieved its 2005 congestion-relief goals of providing commuters with Open Road Tolling lanes at nine mainline toll plazas.

Earlier this year, Open Road Tolling lanes debuted at the Irving Park Road and Touhy Avenue plazas on I-294, the Edens Spur on I-94, the Aurora plaza on I-88 and the Boughton Road plaza on I-355. Illinois is the first state in the nation to convert a barrier toll plaza system to the new Open Road Tolling technology.

The conversion of the Tollway's traditional toll plazas to a barrier-free system allows I-PASS users to travel at highway speeds while their tolls are collected electronically by a monorail overhead, reducing congestion and travel times. Vehicles with I-PASS or that need to exit shortly after the plaza will pull right into smaller traditional toll plazas where they can pay cash to toll collectors or use I-PASS, and not impact the free-flow of traffic on the mainline. Separating I-PASS traffic from vehicles paying cash also improves safety at toll plazas.

Open Road Tolling is just one of the projects underway as part of the Congestion-Relief Plan that will reduce average travel time on the Tollway by at least another 10-15 minutes one way. Construction has also started on the Extension of I-355 south to Will County; the Reconstruction of the Reagan Memorial Tollway (I-88); and the Rebuild & Widen of the South Tri-State (I-294) from the Kingery Expressway (I-394) to 167th St.

In addition to delivering Open Road Tolling at nine toll plazas, other projects scheduled to be completed in 2005 include the Rebuild & Widen of the "washboard" section of I-88 in DuPage County and the rehabilitation of 32 miles of pavement on the far end of I-88 in Lee & Ogle Counties. The Rebuild & Widen of the northbound lanes on the first 5 miles of the South Tri-State is nearing completion and is scheduled to be finished in January 2006.

Home Invasions

Chicago Police have released a warning to residents of the Southwest Side concerning a number of home invasions. It has been reported that the offenders have posed as utility or other workers to gain entry to the homes of elderly residents to rob them.

Police believe that the newest reports may be linked with similar home invasions on the city's Northwest side.

It was stated that the men who pose as utility workers will get into the resident's homes, distract them, sometimes with a phone call, then take whatever valuables that they can find. Some victims have reported that they have been physically threatened, according to the police.

The suspects have been described as white or Hispanic males who range in age between their 20s and 50s. They were reportedly seen leaving in a white van, police said.

Police urge residents to verify the identity of people who want to enter their homes. They are encouraged to write down vehicle information if they see suspicious activity and to call 911 immediately.

These incidents have been reported between Dec. 7th and 16th in the 8600 block of South Keating; the 4800 block of South Wood; the 3900 block of West 62nd St.; the 3100 block of West 83rd Pl.; the 8600 block of South Kolmar; and the 4500 block of S. Montgomery.

Better Identity Theft Protection

On Jan. 1st, thousands of Illinoisans will be armed with new tools to shield themselves from the risk of identity theft as several laws signed by Governor Rod R. Blagojevich to offer a significantly wider range of consumer protections go into effect. The laws will help victims recover from identity theft more quickly and better protect individuals' personal information.

Last summer, the Governor signed into law several pieces of legislation that deal with identity theft, including:

HB 1633, which makes Illinois only the second state in the nation to require companies to notify Illinois consumers if personal information is compromised;

HB 1058, which allows victims of identity theft to freeze their credit reports;

SB 123, which requires the Illinois Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to phase in new Conservation ID (CID) numbers to replace Social Security numbers on hunting and fishing licenses.

These new laws will help provide Illinoisans with peace of mind and protection from the fastest growing crime in the country. Last year alone, identity thieves cost consumers $550 million. On average, victims will spend about 600 hours and $1,500 repairing their credit. These laws will help individuals take steps to protect their assets and identities before thieves wreak havoc on their credit.

HB 1633 is the result of Governor Blagojevich and Attorney General Lisa Madigan working very closely with the Illinois Public Interest Research Group (PIRG) and state legislators to create the Personal Information Protection Act. Sponsored by Rep. John Fritchey (D-Chicago) in the House and Sen. Ira Silverstein (D-Chicago) in the Senate, the new law requires any entity that collects personal data to notify those consumers affected by a breach in security without delay. The legislation came in response to an October 2004 incident in which Georgia-based ChoicePoint sold the personal information of more than 145,000 people, including 5,000 Illinoisans, to identity thieves who pretended to be legitimate businesses. Even though officials at ChoicePoint were aware of the breach, consumers weren't notified of the situation until months later, when officials, prompted by an existing California law requiring the disclosure of any security breach that puts Californians' personal information at risk, revealed the information.

HB 1058, sponsored by Rep. Marlow Colvin (D-Chicago) and Sen. Mattie Hunter (D-Chicago), allows people who have been victims of identity theft to place a security freeze on their credit report, preventing the release of the report to any party without their consent. This law also acts to prevent a thief from opening additional credit card accounts with the person's information, and from changing crucial information in the credit report such as a person's name, date of birth, Social Security number, or address, without the consumer being notified in writing by the credit reporting agency within 30 days of the change.

SB 123, sponsored by Sen. Todd Sieben (R-Geneseo) and Rep. Bill Black (R-Danville), requires the Illinois Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to phase in new Conservation ID (CID) numbers to replace Social Security numbers on hunting and fishing licenses as applicants renew. This change will be a part of DNR's new automated licensing system as it is phased in over the next year. The law requires DNR to keep a record of the Social Security number on file, although that number will not appear on the license.

Even after the new laws take effect on January 1, there are steps every person should take to protect themselves and their identities from theft. IL Public Interest Research Group has provided a series of suggestions for ways to protect personal information, and therefore, better protect against identity theft:

- Obtain a free credit report and look for and report any inconsistent information.
- Properly dispose of bills, monthly statements, credit offers and convenience checks.
- Never give out account numbers or social security numbers to strangers.
- Never write your social security number on checks or use as a password.
- Make sure your full credit card number or expiration date does not appear on receipts.
- Do not respond to emails asking for personal information (Example: Bank info update).

Give The Gift Of A Temporary Home

Aunt Martha's Youth Service Center is seeking caring foster parents from Will, Grundy, Kankakee and South Suburban Cook Counties who are willing to help youth in need of shelter. Aunt Martha's will pay $25 a day per youth to qualified individuals willing to provide a temporary (up to 21 days) home for runaway and homeless youth between the ages of 10 and 17 years of age. Interested individuals must be willing to become licensed foster parents.

Individuals who are interested in providing temporary shelter for these youth may call (708) 535-2934 for more information.

Those who provide temporary shelter to a youth in need will be providing a valuable service, according to David Betz, Aunt Martha's Tri-County Counseling and Outreach Administrator. "All these youth need is a safe place to get themselves back together," Betz said. "They need a quiet haven of peace and shelter - a chance to get some security and stability back into their lives - until they can be reunited with their families. It is only for a short-term basis.

"We encourage area residents who have extra room in their heart and home to help make a difference in the life of a child," Betz added. The temporary home providers are not expected or asked to counsel or provide solutions for the youth in their care. Such services - including individual, family and group counseling, school and court advocacy, crisis intervention, emergency transportation and follow-up care - are all provided through Aunt Martha's programs.

The goal is to help these runaway or homeless youth return home, reestablish a healthier relationship with parents and family, and empower them to help build happy and successful lives for themselves.

Three News Laws Take Effect

Three important pieces of legislation initiated this year by Secretary of State Jesse White will take effect as new laws on Jan. 1st. White said the measures would lead directly to more lives being saved each year through an increase in donated organs; safer roads through the limitation of court supervision; and greater accessibility for disabled persons through increased fines and penalties for those who violate parking laws. All three measures received strong support from the Illinois General Assembly.

Public Act 94-0075 (HB 1077) creates a First-Person Consent Organ/Tissue Donor Law in Illinois. This new law will make a person's decision to donate organs and tissue following death binding under state law. Currently, an individual's organs and tissue may not be donated without the consent of the person's next of kin, even if he or she has joined the state's donor registry.

According to Gift of Hope, an organ and tissue procurement organization covering much of Illinois, 40 percent of families say no to organ and tissue donation when approached for permission. Families also say no to donating organs and tissue 19 percent of the time even when they are told that their loved one had joined the state's donor registry. Gift of Hope estimates that a first person consent law could save at least 100 additional lives each year. Similar legislation has been approved in 42 other states.

While 5,000 people are waiting for transplants in Illinois, one donor can save or enhance the lives of more than 25 people. Although Illinois has the largest donor registry in the country, approximately 300 people in the state die each year waiting for a transplant.

Public Act 94-0330 (HB 1483) will limit drivers to two court supervisions for moving violations in a 12-month period. Any other moving violations a driver is found guilty of during that time frame would result in convictions reported to the individual's permanent driving record.

White said the new law is necessary because a small percentage of Illinois drivers have received too many court supervisions in recent years. Some drivers have been granted court supervision more than a dozen times in a single year, keeping the offenses off their permanent records so their driving privileges can't be suspended for committing too many moving violations.

In 2004, 3,785 drivers received court supervision for more than three offenses, 128 drivers received court supervision more than six times and one driver received court supervision 14 times. Over the past three years, 28 drivers have received court supervision 10 or more times in a 12-month period.

Public Act 94-0619 (HB 1316) will increase fines against those caught improperly parking in a disability parking space to $500 as well as allow the Secretary of State to suspend their driver's licenses. It also increases penalties against those that illegally alter or fraudulently manufacture disability placards or plates.

White has directed the Secretary of State Police to conduct stings at shopping malls throughout the state during the busy holiday shopping season to ticket drivers who violate disability-parking laws. The effort has netted more than 200 violators. There are more than 550,000 disability parking placards and 90,000 disability license plates assigned to motorists throughout Illinois.

District 218 Wins $317,000 Grant

District 218 has become the only school system from Illinois to win an Emergency Management and Crisis Response (EMRC) grant from the federal government.

The district, which has partnered with seven elementary districts and all fire and police departments of the communities it serves, will receive a total of $317,000 from the grant. Assistant Superintendent for Technological Services Dr. John Byrne wrote the grant application for District 218 and its partners.

Consultants will meet with the representatives of the districts participating in the grant to find the best uses for the money. Each district will have its own budget from which to choose how to allocate funds. The consultant will provide each partner district with a Security and Vulnerability Assessment to help with the decisions.

Possible uses for the funds include automated external defibrillators (AEDs), walkie talkies, emergency kits, and parent notification systems such as PhoneMaster.

Aside from the police and fire departments from Alsip, Blue Island, Calumet Park, Chicago Ridge, Crestwood, Merrionette Park, Oak Lawn, Palos Heights, Robbins and Worth (representing all the communities of District 218), participating school districts include District 123, District 125, District 126, District 127.5, District 128, District 130, District 143.5, and District 218.

Lincoln Penny Bill Passes Congress

U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL), co-chair of the Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial Commission, recently announced the passage of legislation which will issue a series of one-cent coins to honor the 200th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. The Lincoln Commission was established by Congress in 2001 to organize the national observance of the 200th anniversary of Lincoln's birth and to recommend activities that will best pay tribute to Lincoln on the occasion.

The redesigned pennies will be issued in 2009, the year of Lincoln's bicentennial, and will feature four designs on the reverse side of the coins, each representing a different aspect of the life of Abraham Lincoln. The different designs would depict his birth and early childhood in Kentucky, his youth in Indiana, his professional life in Illinois and his Presidency in Washington, DC. The present image of Lincoln would stay on the front of the penny.

Issued in 1909 on the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's birth, the "Lincoln cent" featuring Victor David Brenner's likeness of the 16th president is one of the most recognizable designs in American currency. In the nearly 100 years of production of the Lincoln cent there have been only two designs on the reverse side: the original featuring two wheat-heads, which was phased out in 1958, and the current representation of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, DC.

The Durbin bill instructs the Secretary of the Treasury to issue four one-cent coins during the year 2009. The designs will be chosen by the Secretary after consultation with the Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial Commission, the Commission of Fine Arts, and the Citizens Coinage Advisory Committee. After Dec. 31st, 2009 the image on the reverse of the penny will be permanently changed to one that represents President Lincoln's preservation of the United States as a single, united nation.

The Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial One-Cent Coin Redesign Act (S-341) was co-sponsored by Barack Obama (D-IL), Jim Bunning (R-KY), Richard Lugar (R-IN) and Evan Bayh (D-IN). The Durbin bill was approved on Dec. 13th by the U.S. House of Representatives as part of a larger package of legislation.

Secretary Of State Offices Closed

Secretary of State offices and facilities normally open Monday through Friday will be closed Monday, Jan. 2nd for the New Year's holiday, Secretary of State Jesse White announced. They will reopen Tuesday, Jan. 3rd.

Driver Services facilities outside of Cook County and also the Chicago West, Midlothian, Diversey Express and Niles facilities, which are normally open Tuesday through Saturday, will be closed Saturday, Dec. 31st. They will resume business hours Tuesday, Jan. 3rd.

Candidates Aspiring For Sheriff's Position

The Cook County Democratic primary for the sheriff's office will see three new men looking to succeed present Cook County Sheriff Mike Sheahan, who will finish his term in December 2006. Party-backed candidate and former State Representative Tom Dart, the chief of staff to Sheriff Sheahan since 2003, is being challenged by Richard L. Remus and Sylvester E. Baker, Jr.

Remus was a former employee (trained guard) at Cook County Jail who was suspended and eventually quit over an alleged prisoner abuse case in 1999. He denied all accusations that he mistreated inmates and filed his own lawsuit, still pending, that he was forced to resign. Remus is a resident of the 19th Ward, home to both Sheahan and Dart.

Sylvester E. Baker Jr. worked for the sheriff's office for 22 years before retiring in 2003. He presently is a licensed real estate broker. Baker previously was unsuccessful in his pursuit of the Southside's 6th Ward aldermanic seat in 1999.

The lone Republican candidate for sheriff, Peter Garza, is unopposed in the primary.

Chicago Public Libraries Closed

All branches of the Chicago Public Library, including the Harold Washington Library Center, Woodson Regional and Sulzer Regional Libraries, will close at 3 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 31, and be closed on Sunday, Jan. 1 and Monday, Jan. 2 in observance of New Year.

Brother Rice Entrance Exam

All Points Southwest

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

Elmer Lysen wrote many columns during his 45 years here at the Messenger and this is one we think is most appropriate at this time of the year. Originally it appeared 29 years ago this month prior to his death.

Back in the days before chain saws came on the scene, the Christmas-New Year vacation saw a lot of time sawing by many youngsters who had to help stock the wood pile. It was during such times, however, that many world problems, as well as family problems, were discussed.

Our father was in the construction trades, as well as farming, so the cold winter months resulted in his being home much more than in the summer. If you haven't pulled a long cross-cut saw through a 16-inch log you have no idea how much conversation you can carry on during the session. You stopped often to rest, of course, and to drive a little wedge into the cut to make the saw move easier.

The wood sawing experience is just about over. John Balcauski who cuts and sells wood from his location at 115th and Ridgeland made a chain saw available to me. It cuts through logs in seconds, but in the process the noise it makes deadens your ears so that you can't carry on a conversation even when you are not cutting wood.

I thank John for the saw, because it does make cutting trees and logs a pleasure, rather than a job.

But the reason I started to tell you about the wood cutting sessions is that I gained much information and learning from my dad during our wood cutting ordeals.

A topic which came up often for discussion was the matter of time, which we agreed to call a "Succession of events." After one of these long wood cutting sessions I made lengthy notes, and just this week, some 40 years later, I came across them. And with a New Year ready to make its debut, I thought I'd record a few of them. On top of that, the new chain saw here on the farm probably means my son Ronnie and I never will enjoy those quiet cutting sessions of yester-year.

Even though I was young at that time I agreed with dad that time creeps too slowly for youth. We want it to hurry as we dream of future glories; we want the days and years to pass swiftly; we are in a hurry to say goodbye to today, and eager for tomorrow to come—and come fast.

But them as we grow older we ask time to stay, to grant us a little more of the sun's light, a little longer to repair the mistakes. We would, if we could call back yesterday and bid time to return.

But we can't, and the sun rolls too swiftly through the skies causing the night to follow the day, and the changing seasons to come and go with lightning speed.

At 50, a man thinks of what he will do during the 30 years he has left to live—perhaps.

But at 70, he knows the time is fast approaching to close his books, balance his accounts, and get ready to bid farewell to the days and years that once promised to last forever.

As we agreed "Time is a succession of events." If you go to sleep and wake in a minute or wake in 15 hours, it's the same, so far as you know. When you sleep, time slips by.

If death is sleep, followed by awakening, it will make no difference to us whether we wake instantly in another world, or a thousand years later in another universe.

Time is a succession of events. The length of our life depends on what we do, how much we pack and crowd into our hours. The man of genius, with an intensively active, working mind, may actually live more in one hour than another many will live in 75 years.

The average old man in his three score and ten, lives a thousand times longer, in actual events, than a monstrous turtle that exists five and six hundred years and never lives at all.

Scholars have said that we live in "time and space." Time measures the length of our existence. Space measures our earth, controls our elements, tells us where and how far we may go—within reason.

No man has been able to tell us what time is or what space is.

One scientist has said that time never could begin and never can end. Another tells you "There is no such thing as time."

All we know, or rather think we know, is that apparently time passes. But the truth is, as had been said, that time remains, and we pass.

Life and time can be worthwhile or not worthwhile. Life is worth whatever we make of it. We cannot change nature, or change old age back into youth.

Letter To The Editor:

Editor:

I applaud a recent court decision that came out of New York. It's a solid victory for the family.

On Dec. 8th, the New York Appellate Court upheld the state's marriage laws in a 4-1 decision, reversing a lower court's ruling that ruled that the state's marriage laws were unconstitutional.

The appeals court said it's not the role of judges to redefine the terms "husband" and "wife." The court said that it was troubled that the lower court "proceeded to rewrite [the statute] and purportedly create a new constitutional right." Furthermore, the appeals court chastised the lower court ruling, stating that the trial court's ruling "was an act that exceeded the court's constitutional mandate and usurped that of the Legislature."

Judges should not rewrite the law. It's not their job. Their role is to interpret law as it's applied to the Constitution. It is the right of the people, not judges, to create social policy. And every time the people are allowed to vote on marriage, they have chosen one man and one woman.

Natural marriage is the bedrock of healthy families. Healthy families raise, nurture and protect children. Society becomes stronger and ultimately, everyone benefits.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Karen Nunheimer
Morris, IL

Moraine Valley Honors Two Faculty Members

Dr. Margaret Lehner (left), professor of Communications and Literature and director of Education Programs, and Aileen Donnersberger (right), instructor of Education, received Moraine Valley's 2005 Master Teach Award for their contributions to the classroom aide and teacher education programs at the college and to educator training at the state and national levels. The duo also helped to develop three degree programs: an Associate of Arts in Teaching Secondary Mathematics, an Associate of Arts in Teaching Secondary Science, and an Associate of Arts in Teaching Special Education.

Lehner of Lemont was a leader in enhancing Moraine Valley's paraprofessional educator, or classroom aide, program. As chair of the state's Paraprofessional Educator Curriculum Development Committee, which was charged with revamping the Paraprofessional Educator Certificate and developing an Associate of Arts in Applied Science degree for the paraprofessional educator, Lehner also knew that paraprofessionals could prove they were highly qualified by passing an exam that tested their knowledge of writing, reading and mathematics and proficiency and their ability to teach these skills.

Lehner and Donnersberger also revised the paraprofessional educator certificate classes, so that all courses now conform to the state teaching standards for elementary and secondary education and the American Federation of Teachers standards for the paraprofessional educator.

Lehner also helped area superintendents and special education cooperative directors by setting up training programs for paraprofessionals in their school districts and organizations. These programs also are offered in Moraine Valley classes at Argo High School and at the college's Education Center in Blue Island. Donnersberger mentors faculty, shares materials and offers her expertise. Through the Center for Teaching and Learning, Donnersberger also has conducted sessions on classroom management and other staff development programs.

In addition to their work on Moraine Valley's paraprofessional educator degree and certificate programs, Lehner and Donnersberger have been active developing three Associate of Arts in Teaching degree programs - the first in Secondary Mathematics, the second in Secondary Science, and the third in Special Education. Lehner chaired the state committee in Secondary Science, and the third in Special Education. Lehner chaired the state committee that developed the general education and technology components for the A.A.T. in Secondary Mathematics degree, and Donnersberger also served on several state committees to help steer the math, science and special education focuses of each degree program. Donnersberger also took a leadership role in the revision of the education courses related to these degree programs.

Currently, the A.A.T. in Secondary Science degree is completed and ready for submission to the state for approval. The A.A.T. in Special Education degree is being developed during the 2005-06 academic year.

Irish Dance Company Performs

Progressive Irish dance will meet traditional reels and jigs during the world-champion Trinity Irish Dance Company performance at Moraine Valley's Fine and Performing Arts Center, 9000 W. College Pkwy., Palos Hills, at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 14. Tickets are $20 for adults and $15 for students and seniors.

The unique, Irish-American company combines traditional Irish movement, modern dance, ballet, tap, flamenco, performance art, African and other World Beat rhythms, a mélange of Irish, rock and multicultural music, and narrative choreography.

Artistic director Mark Howard founded The Trinity Irish Dance Company in 1991 to provide professional career opportunities to Irish dance competition champions. Born in Yorkshire, England and raised in Chicago, he began his dancing career at age nine, and became a North American champion Irish dancer. At age 17, he founded the prestigious, Chicago-based Trinity Academy of Irish Dance, the largest dance school of its kind. The company has won 22 world titles at the World Championships of Irish Dance in Ireland.

Many of the dancers, who are ages 18 to 28, have come through the ranks of Howard's academy. Their years of rigorous training are evident in every perfectly paced spin, leap and click, making them a lethal powerhouse of speed and sound that has electrified audiences around the world. The group of 20 women and two men are constantly searching for original means of expression while maintaining a high regard for old traditions.

Invasive Species Exhibit At Shedd

Asian carp and other invasive species have the potential to devastate the Great Lakes, and for the first time at the Shedd Aquarium, 1200 S. Lake Shore Drive, the public can see these invasive species above the surface. Shedd Aquarium opens a new permanent exhibit on Thursday, Jan. 5, highlighting numerous invasive species - including the Asian carp, round gobies, zebra mussels, and others - which threaten the Great Lakes. The exhibit is an important part of Shedd's public awareness mission to draw attention to the value - and the vulnerability - of the complex Great Lakes ecosystem.

ILLINOIS PLAN TO CONSERVE WILDLIFE, NATURAL AREAS ACCEPTED: All states and territories agreed to develop a Wildlife Action Plan and submit it to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service by Oct. 1st, 2005, as a condition of accepting State Wildlife Grant Program funding for non-game conservation. Thanks to more than 150 agencies and organizations that assisted in developing the document, the Illinois Wildlife Action Plan is among the first ten to be accepted nationwide.

The Illinois Wildlife Action Plan identifies goals for fish and wildlife conservation, and priority actions to address problems affecting wildlife. A committee of Illinois Department of Natural Resources staff and representatives from the Nature Conservancy, Illinois Audubon Society, the National Wild Turkey Federation and Ducks Unlimited provided oversight of the planning process. The DNR has welcomed public participation through workshops and other opportunities to review the plan.

Wildlife-associated recreation generates nearly $4 billion in economic activity in Illinois each year. Fishing and hunting provide about 40 million days of recreation, with a value of $2.5 billion. Non-consumptive activities, such as bird watching and photography, generate about $1.3 billion in economic activity and support more than 13,000 jobs.

HUNTER HARASSMENT RULED NOT FREE SPEECH: Thanks to Indiana's hunter harassment law, two anti-hunters could now do jail time for harassing and intimidating bow hunters. A jury found two people from Beverly Shores guilty of two counts of hunter harassment.

The couple claimed that Indiana's hunter harassment law, which is based on a draft model written by the U.S. Sportsmen's Alliance, violated their right to free speech. The prosecutor successfully argued that the First Amendment does not give them the right to threaten sportsmen and disrupt legal hunting activities. Hunter harassment laws have been enacted in all 50 states, and upheld in several court rulings.

Mercury Found In Fish

Attorney General Lisa Madigan is calling on the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to heed the findings of a recent Chicago Tribune investigation that found high levels of mercury in fish on Chicago supermarket shelves when the federal agency regulates mercury-emitting power plants.

In comments submitted on Dec. 19th to the EPA, Madigan cited recent Tribune findings in calling on the agency to reverse its decision against requiring the tightest available restrictions on power plant mercury emissions. Madigan additionally joined comments filed by a coalition of states opposing EPA's decision. In her comments to EPA, Madigan said that while mercury in fish is a nationwide concern, she was "particularly troubled" by the Tribune's findings because they are drawn from samples of fish purchased in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Mercury emitted by power plants contaminates fish when it falls from the air into bodies of water that they inhabit. Consumption of mercury has been linked to neurological damage and diminished IQ in infants and young children.

Madigan's comments were submitted as she continues her ongoing challenge to the EPA's regulations issued earlier this year governing mercury emitted by power plants. Although EPA made a finding in 2000 that mercury from coal-fired power plants is extremely detrimental to public health, and that the most stringent type of regulation allowed by law was "appropriate and necessary," EPA reversed that finding when it issued the final version of the regulations this year. The agency decided instead to regulate through more lenient standards that allow power plants to buy and sell the right to emit mercury.

EPA regulators say they took a second look at their year 2000 conclusions and determined that they had overestimated the hazards associated with power plant mercury emissions, and that they now believe that mercury reductions incidental to other types of required pollution controls are sufficient to protect public health.

Illinois and the other states, as well as many environmental organizations, contend that deeper and more prompt cuts in mercury emissions can and should be made using technology that controls for mercury specifically.

In her comments, Madigan also criticized EPA's decision to consider only public consumption of freshwater sport-caught fish, and not commercially caught fish, in deciding whether power plant mercury is sufficiently dangerous to warrant the stricter type of regulation. The EPA had found that mercury contamination of commercial catch resulting from power plants is only a "small concern," a finding that Madigan said was contradicted by the Tribune's findings.

In the comments submitted together with the coalition of states, Madigan also criticized EPA regulators' decision to set a less stringent mercury emission standard for plants that burn western coal rather than Illinois coal. Burning of Illinois coal emits lower levels of mercury, and coal power plants should be encouraged to use Illinois coal. The states' comments criticized EPA's approach, which sets a more lenient standard for western coal, and thus will encourage plants to switch to western coal, resulting in greater overall mercury emissions.

Argo High School Wrestlers Suspended

Three Argo Community High School wrestlers have been suspended in a hazing incident, which was reported to have occurred on Dec. 1st during a bus ride home from a meet at Bremen High School. On board the bus were the freshman Junior Varsity and the Varsity teams.

It was reported that parents of several of the team members brought charges of hazing on Dec. 9th. It was reported that at least one senior allegedly committed a sexual prank known as "teabagging" against several members of the freshman team. It was reported that the senior apparently shoved his testicles in the faces of his teammates as a hazing prank.

Reports stated that the students did not report the incident sooner because they were afraid of reprisals.

School officials reportedly suspended the three students from school and from sports for 10 days after a meeting with parents. The suspensions began on Dec. 12th. However, school officials are still unclear about what happened on the bus, so the incident is still under investigation.

It was stated that both the police and the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services were notified about the school's investigation. The incidents were reported to the Summit police, but the parents who reported them were relying on the school to handle the punishments. They just wanted the incident to be a matter of record.

Teabagging would only be considered a misdemeanor battery charge, according to the police. Many students who were on the bus were interviewed, but not much information was gathered. Officials stated that not all interviewees would tell what happened during the incident or many would tell conflicting stories.

Reports showed that the students who were suspended did not confess to the incident and as more information was gathered, their punishments would be "adjusted."

SXU Sports News

Cougars 80-78 Victory

For the second straight game, junior guard Candis Jackson put the No. 21 ranked St. Xavier University women's basketball team on her shoulders late in the game. Jackson scored eight of her game-high 25 points in the final three minutes as the Cougars picked up a 80-78 victory over Baker University (Kan.) on Monday, Dec. 19th in the final day of the Point Loma Nazarene University Tournament in San Diego, Calif. With the win, SXU improves to 8-3 overall, while Baker drops to 6-5.

In addition to her eight points in the final stretch, Jackson also recorded two assists, a rebound, a steal and a blocked shot in the last three minutes of play. She led St. Xavier with game-highs of six assists and six steals. The Cougars had three other players score in double figures in the win with sophomore guard Sarah Wilson finishing with 14 points. Sophomore forward Jackie Heine and junior guard Angie Brown tallied 11 and 10 points, respectively.

SXU got off to a slow start falling behind 14-3 in the first five minutes of the game before a 16-5 scoring run capped by a three-pointer by Wilson tied the score, 19-19, with just under 20 minutes remaining in the first half. The two teams battled back and forth for the lead for the remainder of the half with the Cougars coming out on top with a narrow 33-32 lead at the break. Baker came out firing in the second half and built a 10-point advantage, 57-47, with just over 12 minutes remaining in the game.

St. Xavier slowly chipped away at the lead over the next 10 minutes and was able to pull ahead, 75-74, with 1:34 remaining on a lay-up by Jackson. Another lay-up by Jackson and a three-pointer by Brown were enough in the final minute to secure the Cougar win. Although Baker was dominant on the boards out-rebounding SXU, 61-31, SXU used tough defense again to rack up 20 steals and help force 35 Baker turnovers.

SXU Wins

Midwest Tournament

Senior guard Jason Reiter scored 18 points and pulled down eight rebounds to help lead the No. 19 St. Xavier University men's basketball team to a 92-80 victory over University of St. Francis (Ind.) on Friday, Dec. 23rd in the championship game of the 2005 SXU Midwest Tournament at the Shannon Center in Chicago. Reiter was named the tournament Most Valuable Player following the win as the Cougars improved to 11-5 overall.

In addition to Reiter, sophomore forward Dan Bolger and freshman guard Jason Genova also earned mention on the all-tournament team. Bolger finished the night with 16 points and seven rebounds, while Genova contributed a game-high 21 points. St. Xavier shot an impressive 62 percent (33-for-53) from the field in the game, including 64 percent (16-for-25) in the second half to pull away. SXU also was dominant on the glass out-rebounding USF, 41-25, in the game.

In other tournament action on the day, St. Ambrose (Iowa) University defeated East-West University (Ill.), 99-78, behind senior Andrew Bryant's 17 points and 17 rebounds. St. Thomas Aquinas College (N.Y.) picked up a big victory over Concordia University (Neb.), 75-60, with sophomore Willis Kendrell pacing the Spartans with 20 points. In the third place game, senior Brian Biggs led Siena Heights (Mich.) over Aquinas College (Mich.), 83-77, with his team-high 22 points.

The 2005 SXU Midwest All-Tournament Team included: senior forward Andrew Bryant, junior guard Jon Ziegler, freshman guard Chris Williams, sophomore guard James Telman, senior forward Perry Gilbert, junior guard Trey Eaton, Genova, Bolger and tournament MVP Reiter.

SXU returns to action on Friday, Dec. 30th to face St. Edward University (Texas) on the road in Austin, Texas.

SXU Rallies Past TIU

Led by a game-high 22 points by sophomore guard Matt Marino, the No. 19 ranked St. Xavier University men's basketball team was able to take the lead when it counted rallying past Trinity International University, 81-76, on Dec. 17th in Deerfield. The Cougars improve to 9-5 overall with the win, while the Trojans fall to 8-8.

Marino shot well from the field hitting seven of his 12 shots (58 percent) in the game, including an impressive 5-for-9 clip (56 percent) from beyond the arc. Senior forward Jabari Saunders and freshman guard Jason Genova each finished with 17 points for the Cougars, while senior guard Jason Reiter chipped in 15. Saunders also led SXU on the glass with a game-high 10 rebounds.

The Cougars fell behind early in the first half with the Trojans shooting 49 percent (16-for-33) in the first frame to take a 37-30 advantage into the break. TIU kept the pressure on through the first 10 minutes of the second half leading by as many as nine points on four different occasions before SXU made its run. Shooting 57 percent (17-for-30) after halftime, the Cougars rallied and took the lead, with just under eight minutes remaining in regulation. Although the game remained tight over the final stretch, St. Xavier was able to hit key shots in the waning minutes to keep Trinity International at bay.

Man Found Shot

Evergreen Park Police are investigating the death of a man that they found in an alley in the 9700 block of Pulaski Rd. The police found an unidentified black man, who was unresponsive on Thursday, Dec. 22nd at about 5:30p.m. The man was shot once in the leg and left to bleed to death when the bullet severed a major artery in the man's thigh. Police found no identification or wallet at the scene.

The man was taken to Advocate Christ Hospital in Oak Lawn, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

According to police reports no one in the neighborhood heard or saw anything unusual before the discovery. The investigation has been taken over by the South Suburban Major Crimes Task Force. They have yet to make a public statement.

Richards National Honor Society Reaches Out To Less Fortunate

The National Honor Society at Richards High School, with the help of many clubs, classes, teachers and students, once again helped make the holiday a bit brighter for needy families with young children living in District 218.

Through "The Miracle Tree," which the NHS has sponsored for years, the Richards school community worked in the weeks leading up to the holidays to collect for impoverished families. Faculty sponsors Tim Prost and Karen Warmbir and NHS members decorated the tree - a paper one - hanging from a door in the main office in early December with paper ornaments.

Each ornament lists the needs of a family with a student enrolled at Childs School in Robbins. Richards teachers then take the ornaments and "adopt" the families, working with their students to gather food, gifts, money and other essential items.

The items then are dropped off at Childs School and distributed to families.

Feature Dal Ponte Exhibit

Lauren Dal Ponte of Oak Lawn will exhibit intaglio prints and hand-made books at the Illinois Artisans Shop at the James R. Thompson Center, 100 W. Randolph St., Suite 2-200, in Chicago from Jan. 2nd to 31st. Dal Ponte will display etchings that feature a sense of place. Her work is based on photographs of the Illinois and Michigan Canal, and Chicago's Historic Pullman District. The research and exploration of these places is a very personal and important part of her creative process. Dal Ponte says, "The subject of place has always interested me; the places that one comes from, places that one has gone. I am particularly interested in the places that have been forgotten, those places that have fallen victim to decay. I find beauty in these places because they are neglected. Much of my work is based on places in which the history has been lost."

Dal Ponte works with intaglio, woodcut and screen-printing processes after exploring and photographing sites she is interested in. She chooses to use darker, lonelier colors to depict the neglected sites. For this exhibit she will show primarily etchings and an accordion-style foldable book consisting of etchings.

Dal Ponte grew up in Oak Lawn and graduated from Grand Valley State University in Allendale, Michigan with a B.A. in Art and Design. She is currently working on a series of prints with intentions of entering an M.F.A. program in Printmaking. Dal Ponte's prints will be on view and available for purchase at the Illinois Artisans Shop in Chicago throughout the month of January.

The Courage Program Founder

In 1980, Maureen Shields founded The Courage Program, a family ministry built on compassion and Christian values advocating for pregnant young women and their families. A Chicago native, Maureen attended St. Ethelreda Grammar School, Mercy High School and St. Xavier University. Maureen remains involved with the Sisters of Mercy as a Mercy Associate. Much of her vocation in Courage comes from the example and inspiration of the Mercy nuns.

Maureen was a senior in college when she took up the cause of young women who were pregnant with no place to go for support. Feeling she had sound, common sense and was good with kids, Maureen soon found herself as adviser, counselor, advocate and teacher to these young women and their children.

More than 25 years ago, Maureen saw the beginning of Courage, "flying by the seat of my pants," as she says, to build a grassroots organization based on compassion and Christian values that today has become a well known and respected resource to the South Side. Blessed with countless volunteers - many of whom have been with the program since it began - and with the support of her parish, St. Germaine, Maureen forged ahead, trying to bring those who needed their help together with those who could help them.

Today, Maureen is married to Mark Shields and they had four children, Tim Dan, Molly and Kevin and now have seven grandchildren and two on the way. As the founder of Courage, Maureen has been recognized by the Sertoma Club, The Association of Chicago Priests, Today's Chicago Woman, and the Paluch Foundation. Maureen also has received the Distinguished Alumni Award from St. Xavier University.

Service Award Recipients

Recognizing their service to the university, the church and the community, Laura LeCompte and James Bruton received the 2005 Mother Mary Paulita Morris, RSM Service Award at Saint Xavier University's Founders' Day celebration on Dec. 2.

Each year, the award is given in honor of Mother Paulita Morris, a Sister of Mercy who served on Saint Xavier's Board of Trustees for 24 years - longer than any other trustee. In addition to the merciful service she extended to those in need, Mother Paulita was known for her scholarship, leadership and sincere interest in people and the development of personal spirituality.

LeCompte, a sociology major with two minors - religious studies and anthropology - "exemplifies the qualities of scholarship, leadership and active involvement in the university community with a sincere interest in people's spirituality and well-being," said one nominator. The Oak Lawn resident has a 3.3 grade point average.

Not only is LeCompte a member of the Service Club, but she has held several positions in it. She has been involved in peer ministry both with residential and social justice events. She also participated in several Spring Break service trips and was a Freshman Focus leader, having served on the planning committee and as an assistant for leaders. She also served as social chair, treasurer and Peace and Justice Chair on Christian Students for Peace and Justice, and most recently has been a resident assistant in Morris and McCarthy Halls and a peer mentor in the Freshman Seminar with Michael O'Keeffe, associate professor of religious studies.

During a semester of study at the University of Notre Dame Australia, LeCompte served as a residential representative, planning prayer services and community dinners for her house. She has also volunteered at an aged-care facility where she worked as an activity coordinator and helped with projects to build community and comfort among the residents.

LeCompte, a junior, plans to do yet another semester abroad, this time on a Native American reservation in South Dakota, where she will engage in social service work and teaching.

Bruton, a senior majoring in religious studies, is also in the Pastoral Ministry Certificate Program. He is currently vice president of the Service Club, after serving as president last year. He has participated in SXU Service Day each spring, is a member of Christian Students for Peace and Justice and the Chapel Choir. He has served as lector and Eucharistic minister in McDonough Chapel and has participated in the Campus Ministry's Spring Break service trips since his first year. During his second year, he served as a peer minister for Campus Ministry, focusing his ministry on Bible study, liturgical ministry, and especially writing prayers of intercession for use in Chapel services.

Bruton has led at least a portion of every retreat he has been on, including a Service Club overnight retreat in fall 2004, which he planned and facilitated entirely on his own. He assisted the Regina Hall Chaplain with the inaugural first-year and transfer student weekend retreat, and has assisted with prayer services in McDonough Chapel for a variety of occasions.

New Video Game Industry Program

Northwestern Business College is pleased to announce a new Associate in Applied Science Degree designed to help students take advantage of growing employment opportunities in the video game industry.

NBC's new Video Game Design and Development degree program begins March 8th when the school's Chicago, Bridgeview and Naperville campuses kick off their spring quarter. It provides an introduction to the theory and practice of game design and development, and gives students the benefit of personalized, hands-on training in programming, modeling and animation.

The video game industry is growing in leaps and bounds, with hardware and software sales in the United States reaching a combined total of $4.1 billion in the first six months of 2005. The demand for home console, portable and PC games is increasing at a rapid rate, creating a greater need for people with the skills necessary to design and develop new titles. Northwestern Business College's new degree fulfills this need, and was created in order to offer students seeking career-oriented education yet another option for achieving professional success.

For years, Northwestern Business College has built a reputation for staying on top of hiring trends, and adapting its curriculum according to the demands of the job market. The Video Game Design and Development degree is an example of this, and is a testament to the school's commitment to creating a lifetime of opportunities for its graduates. Police looking For Robber

Police have announced a description of a robber who held up a credit union in an armed robbery.

According to police, a man carrying a legal pad, wearing a pair of wire-rimmed glasses, a tweed hat and a brown sweater walked into the Health Care Association Credit Union, 9640 S. Pulaski Rd., on Dec. 16th, asking for a manager.

According to reports, he stated, "I just want what the hospital owes me." He then showed the manager that he had a .45-caliber handgun beneath his shirt.

The robber announced his willingness to use the weapon that he had as he took money from the cashier's drawer. He also took money from a second drawer before he fled the building on foot. Police are assuming that the robber could have been an ex-employee or a patient who was not satisfied.

The credit union is used by employees of Christ Medical Center as well as by all hospitals that are part of the Illinois Hospital Association, the Illinois Health Care Association and the Life Services Network of Illinois.

Oak Lawn police are asking that anyone with information about the man, call (708) 422-8292.

Drug-Eluting Stents May Cause Allergic Reactions

Drug-eluting stents have greatly reduced the risk of repeat blockage of heart arteries, but researchers from Northwestern Memorial Hospital have found that in some patients, the stents can cause allergic reactions that can have serious consequences. They stress that physicians and their patients should be aware of this potential and know the symptoms. The findings have been published online will be published in the Jan. 3rd issue of the Journal of the American College of Cardiology.

"This paper provides evidence for the first time that instances of allergic reactions, presumably to the polymer in the stent, can occur. In some instances, these events have serious consequences-including stent closure and subsequent death," says one of the study's authors, Charles Bennett, MD, an epidemiologist and oncologist at Northwestern Memorial Hospital and professor of medicine at Northwestern University's Feinberg School of Medicine. Dr. Bennett developed and directs the Research on Adverse Drug/Device Events And Reports (RADAR) Project, which compiles information from reports submitted to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) database as well as reports by drug companies and independent researchers throughout the world. RADAR has previously successfully identified a large number of serious drug reactions associated with 15 commonly used drugs.

For this study, RADAR investigators from 10 centers around the country reviewed 5,783 reports available from April 2003 through December 2004 for hypersensitivity-like reactions associated with drug-eluting stents. From these reports, researchers identified 17 cases of hypersensitivity reactions that were classified as probably or certainly caused by stent, four of which resulted in death. Symptoms included rash, difficulty breathing, hives, itching and fevers. They also concluded that the polymer coating on the stent itself is the most probable cause of hypersensitivity in the majority of cases rather than the medications the stent is coated with.

"It is important to keep the findings in perspective," says Charles J. Davidson, MD, an author on the paper and medical director of the Cardiac Catheterization Lab at the Bluhm Cardiovascular Institute of Northwestern Memorial Hospital and professor of Medicine at Northwestern University's Feinberg School of Medicine. "Drug-eluting stents are a life-saving advance used by hundreds of thousands of people that have greatly reduced the risk of restenosis. We are in no way recommending they be used less, but we do think that health professionals should be vigilant in watching for this problem."

Another concern, say the authors, is that in many instances, blame for the allergic symptoms is placed on other medications that treat their heart conditions, such as Plavix® and anti-platelet agents, and these are discontinued. Premature discontinuation of Plavix® can increase the risk of dangerous blood clots.

"Physicians should be cognizant that allergic reactions to the polymers in drug eluting stents can occur and all such events should be reported to the FDA. Six months after the approval of the first drug-eluting stent, the FDA issued a letter to physicians identifying 50 hypersensitivity cases associated with drug-eluting coronary artery stents, but retracted an assertion of causality a month later. That retraction may have been premature," says Dr. Bennett.

The paper also concludes that further research is warranted to better understand this risk and to develop a skin test to identify people who might be at high risk for hypersensitivity to drug eluting stents.

This study was supported by grants from National Institutes of Health.

Tips For Seniors To Stay Healthy And Warm

As the wind chill can drop temperatures to single-digits in many parts of the state, officials with Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich's Keep Warm Illinois campaign are offering tips for seniors on how to stay healthy and warm during the upcoming winter months. The Keep Warm Illinois campaign is a comprehensive effort to inform and prepare Illinois residents, especially the elderly and persons with disabilities, for record high home heating costs this winter.

People who try to lower their heating bill by turning down their thermostat below 65 degrees risk developing hypothermia, a potentially fatal condition in which the body temperature drops dangerously low. At increased risk are older people who take certain medications, drink alcohol, lack proper nutrition and who have conditions such as arthritis, stroke, Alzheimer's disease and Parkinson's disease.

If paying the heating bill is a problem, seniors can call the Dept. on Aging Senior HelpLine at 1(800) 252-8966. The Department can help link eligible people to state resources that may be available. Additional information can also be found by visiting www.keepwarm.illinois.gov or by calling the Keep Warm Illinois hotline at 1(877) 411-WARM.

Other cold-weather tips are listed below:

- Dress in layers and cover as much skin as possible while outdoors. A hat is important since so much body heat escapes from an uncovered head.
- Keep active. Make a list of indoor exercises and activities when you cannot get out.
- Eat well and drink 10 glasses of water every day.
- Keep extra medications in the house. If this is not possible, make arrangements now with a pharmacy that will deliver.

- Stock up on extra non-perishable food supplies, just in case.
- Have your house winterized. Be sure that walls and attics are insulated. Caulk and weather-strip doors and windows. Insulate pipes near outer walls, in crawl spaces and attics that are susceptible to freezing.
- Make sure you and your family knows how to shut off the water supply in case pipes burst.
- Prepare your vehicle for winter. Check wipers, tires, lights and fluid levels regularly. Keep a windshield scraper and small broom for ice and snow removal. Maintain at least a half tank of gas during the winter season. Plan long trips carefully and travel by daylight with at least one other person.
- Protect against fire. If you don't have a fire extinguisher, buy one. Make sure space heaters are at least three feet from anything flammable. Do not overload extension cords.
- If you live in a house, plan now for someone else to shovel the snow when it comes. Do not shovel snow or walk in deep snow. The strain from the cold and hard labor could cause a heart attack; sweating can lead to a chill and even hypothermia.

Nursing Home Violations

The Illinois Department of Public Health has announced the following type "A" violations of the Nursing Home Care Act that were cited during the month of November. An "A" violation, which is the most serious licensure violation levied by the state, pertains to a condition which there is a substantial probability that death or serious mental or physical harm will result.

In our area, the Crestwood Care Center, 303-bed skilled care facility located at 14255 S. Cicero Ave. in Crestwood, has been fined $10,000 for failure to notify a resident's physician regarding his inability to swallow and lack of nutrition and hydration for four days. The facility did not notify the resident's family of a developing pressure sore, an inability to walk and inadequate nutritional intake that resulted in a significant weight loss. Staff failed to promptly assess, monitor and notify the resident's physician when the resident developed a respiratory condition, which caused him to be placed on life support for three days.

The facility has requested a hearing on the department's action. No hearing date has been set.

Also cited was Mercy Health Care Rehabilitation Center, a 259-bed skilled care facility located at 19000 Halstead St. in Homewood, which has been fined $50,000 for failure to provide appropriate wound care per physician's orders skin ulcers and pressure sores had dressings that, in some cases, went unchanged for days and were saturated with fluids. The facility also failed to ensure medications were administered according to a physician's orders. In addition, the facility did not provide a bed large enough to accommodate the needs of two residents who are obese and, as a result, they suffered from bedsores. Three residents suffered weight loss due to staff's lack of assistance during meal times and the absence of care plans addressing their nutritional needs.

The facility has requested a hearing on the Department's action. No hearing date has been set.

The California Gardens Nursing and Rehabilitation Center, which is a 293-bed skilled care facility, located at 2829 S. California Blvd. in Chicago, has been fined $10,000 for not administering medications as ordered by a physician and not properly documenting medications as given with regard to two residents. This lack of observation and services resulted in one resident suffering from multiple seizures.

The facility has requested a hearing on the Department's action. No hearing date has been set.

Medicare Drug Plan

Social Security and the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services are working together to ensure all Medicare beneficiaries know about their opportunity to enroll in a Medicare Prescription Drug Plan. The initial enrollment period for the Prescription Drug Plan runs now through May 15th. If you enroll in a plan by Dec. 31st, your coverage begins Jan. 1st. If you enroll in a plan after Dec. 31st, your coverage begins the following month.

Knowing where to go for the assistance can help you get answers quickly.

Some people with limited incomes and resources may qualify for extra financial help in paying for some or all of the costs of the prescription drug plans. Social Security is taking the applications for extra help and informing people whether or not they are approved. Basically, you may qualify if your income is less than $14,355 for an individual or $19,245 for a married couple living together, and your resources are less than $11,500 for an individual or $23,000 if you are married and living with your spouse. If you qualify, the extra help could save you an average of $2,100 per year in premiums, deductibles and co-payments related to your prescription drug costs.

You can apply for the extra help online at www.socialsecurity.gov or you can call Social Security toll-free at 1(800) 772-1213, TTY 1(800) 325-0778. Representatives are available Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tell the representative that you want to apply for the Help with Medicare Prescription Drug Plan Costs.

Some beneficiaries will automatically qualify for the extra financial help. Anyone who has both Medicare and Medicaid, or Medicare and Supplemental Security Income or anyone whose state pays his or her Medicare premiums, will automatically qualify and will not have to complete an eligibility application.

Applying for extra help with Social Security is separate from selecting a Prescription Drug Plan. Even if you are approved for extra help, you still need to select the plan that best meets your needs. If you apply and qualify for the extra help but don't join a plan, Medicare will enroll you in one by May 15th, 2006 to make sure you get this important coverage.

You also do not have to be eligible for the extra help to join a Prescription Drug Plan. The extra help is in addition to the potential savings you may receive if you join a plan. Medicare drug plans will cover brand name and generic drugs. Most plans will have a list of drugs, or formulary, that they cover as well as a list of which providers participate with the plan. Selecting the plan that is right for you requires comparing the providers to find which one best meets your needs. You need to sign up directly with the company or organization offering the prescription drug plan.

To get more information about the plans, what drugs are covered and the costs involved, you can contact the providers, Medicare or state and local organizations. Medicare has a toll-free number where representatives can answer questions by calling 1(800) 633-4227, TTY 1(877) 486-2048. The Internet site www.medicare.gov also has information and an online enrollment center to assist you.

I hope you all had a wonderful Christmas with your loved ones. Mine was perfect. My four sons were all home. Ray came from Columbus, Ohio, Jeff from Chetek, Wisconsin, and John from Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Dan who lives in Chicago hosted the family celebration. Jeff, my number three son, is a Desert Storm veteran and a life member of the Midlothian Memorial VFW Post 2580. John, the youngest, recently became a National Service Officer in training for the DAV and is currently in Milwaukee.

Marine Corps Pfc. Keith E. Krull, son of Pam and Jerry Krull of Burbank, recently graduated from the Ammunition Technician Specialist Course while assigned to Marine Corps Detachment Redstone Arsenal, Alabama. Krull is a 2002 graduate of Reavis High School in Burbank and joined the Marine Corps in April 2005.

Markham VFW Post 9801 and Ladies Auxiliary will hold a Soup Cook-Off Contest on Sunday, Jan. 8th at the post home, 3220 W. 159th St. For more information, call the post at (708) 596-6990.

Hometown-Murray VFW Post 9773 will hold a New Year's Eve Party at the post, 9092 Main St. in Hometown, on Dec. 31st from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. The cost is $30 per person or $50 for a couple, which includes a dinner of roast beef, Italian chicken breast, mostaccioli and sausage, Vesuvio potatoes, Italian green beans, tossed salad and relish tray. There will also be a dessert table and an open bar. Entertainment will be comedy and music by DJ Mike, and Master Magician Darren Hrabec will be presented. For tickets and information, call (708) 422-9800 after 3 p.m.

Veterans are being warned by the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) not to give credit card numbers over the phone to callers claiming to update VA prescription information.

If I have given you similar information before, this is so important it bears repeating.

"Some unscrupulous scammers have targeted America's veterans, especially our older veterans," said the Honorable R. James Nicholson, Secretary of Veterans Affairs. "VA does not call veterans and ask them to disclose personal financial information over the phone."

The latest scam currently centered in the Midwest comes from callers who identify themselves as working for the "Patient Care Group." They say VA recently changed procedures for dispensing prescriptions and ask for the veteran's credit card number.

"VA has not changed its process for dispensing prescription medicines," Nicholson said. "And we've definitely not changed our long-standing commitment to protect the personal information of our veterans."

For information, or questions, about VA services call the nearest VA medical center or call toll-free, 1-877-222-8387.

The VFW Department of Illinois, under the leadership of state commander Leon Barnes, is asking all posts, county councils, districts and individuals to submit their recommendation of worthy recipients (not VFW members) for a department award in the following categories: Outstanding Police Officers, Firemen; Outstanding in the Field of Education, Outstanding in Industrial Field, Legal Profession, Athletic Field, Governmental Service, Clergy, News Media, Outstanding Citizen and a special VFW award.

There is no special form for you to send, just a brief resume on why you feel the person you recommend should be considered for this award. Your recommendations should be sent to Department Headquarters, 3300 Constitution Dr., P.O. Box 13206, Springfield, IL 62703, no later than April 1st.

Nominate someone in your community who is deserving of this honor. Make sure you give the correct name and mailing address as well as the name and number of the sponsoring post or district. If your nominee is selected, they will be invited to the State Convention in June, but no funds will be provided for overnight lodging.

For further information you can call state headquarters at (217) 529-6688. The web page is www.vfwil.org; e-mail address is vfwil@vfwil.org.

I haven't heard from a lot of the organizations lately, suppose it's because everyone is enjoying the holidays. Send me your information or call and I will be happy to add it to this column.

Good-bye for this week. Have a very safe and happy New Year's Eve celebration. God bless you and your loved ones in the coming year and God bless America.

Letter To The Editor

I would like to take this opportunity to inform the people in Chicago and Suburban areas that the renowned Civic Federation has applauded and supports the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago for their fiscal responsibility to the taxpayers of Cook County. As President of the MWRD, I submit the following letter sent to me by the Civic Federation.

We here at the MWRD are honored and delighted to have received the attached communication from such a respected organization in the Chicago area.

Merry Christmas and a Happy, Healthy New Year to all!

Sincerely,

s/s Terrence J. O'Brien
President

Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago

Dear President O'Brien:

The Civic Federation is pleased to offer our support for the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District's proposed $1 billion budget for FY2006, which we believe offers a responsible approach to the District's finances for the coming year.

Given the realities of rising pension, health care, and personnel costs, the District's proposed budget demonstrates a number of fiscally responsible decisions that show a high regard for the prudent use of taxpayers dollars.

As we note in our analysis, the District has taken an active approach to balancing its budget through internal efficiencies. The Civic Federation strongly approves the District's $4.4 million reduction of its property tax levy, from $410.7 million to $406.3 million. We encourage other units of local government, such as the Chicago Public Schools and City Colleges, to follow your example and refrain from pursuing a reflexive policy of annual increases in property taxes to the maximum amount allowed under law.

The Civic Federation also supports the District's move to reduce employee headcount by 37 positions. Personnel costs are the greatest drivers of increased spending in most public budgets, and we applaud the District's strategic decisions to create efficiencies in that area. We also approve the District's fiscally prudent plan to gradually increase employee contributions toward the cost of health insurance premiums.

We encourage the District to consider working with other governments to create joint-purchasing agreements for electricity, fuel, and other commodities. As you know, we have long championed such cost-saving agreements.

Again, we commend your financial management team for their hard work and thoughtful fiscal planning. Attached please find a copy of our full analysis, which will be available on our website, at www.civiced.org. I look forward to testifying in favor of this budget at tomorrow's public hearing.

Sincerely,
s/s Laurence Msall
President

Katrina Relief Fund

In less than four months, the Jewish Federation's Katrina Relief Fund has received contributions from 6,000 community members totaling some $2 million.

Federation established the fund on Aug. 30 in the wake of Hurricane Katrina, one of the most devastating storms ever to hit the nation. Federation is passing on 100% of all funds received to agencies providing human services to both Jewish and non-Jewish residents of the areas affected by the hurricane.

Federation is collecting funds in conjunction with a national effort coordinated by the United Jewish Communities (UJC), which is working with local Jewish federations in the affected regions to help coordinate relief efforts.

Here in Chicago, the Federation's affiliate agencies also have assumed a major role in the emergency assistance efforts, helping people displaced by the hurricane with food, shelter, health care, day care, assisted living, and more.

Individuals wishing to make donations to help the hurricane victims should make checks payable to Jewish Federation Katrina Relief and send them to: Jewish Federation Katrina Relief Fund, c/o Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago, One South Franklin Street, Room 625, Chicago, IL 60606.

In addition, contributions can be made by credit card via JUF's secure website at www.juf.org or by telephoning (312) 444-2854.
